The English branch in Cleveland has doubled its membership since its formation two months ago. There are two branches there—an English and Hungarian, and the comrades write that in a few days a third, a Jewish branch will be organized. The comrades in Cleveland are enthusiastic about the Y. W. L. and are setting with vim and energy to the task of strengthening the Y. W. L.

Milwaukee reports its study class in fine shape. New York is increasing its work. League members are daily holding street meetings. Chicago sets the pace these days in obtaining new members. At their last C. C. C. meeting, delegates reported that 30 young workers had made application for membership. The Chicago Y. W. L. has, too, innovated a news service, extending quite a distance. Its publicity committee is working excellently. The Chicago City Convention will be held on July 2nd, and the comrades have arranged that 15 papers will receive good news matter relative to the Convention. The Voice of Labor prints weekly a number of columns of League material. Other Leagues should see that the various labor organs print news about local and national Y. W. L. activities. Come on; you other YOWLS. Let's make it a real race for Chicago!

Daisytown, Pa., comrade, Helen Murphy, writes that a branch of the Y. W. L. will probably be organised there in a few days. There's a daisy!

Dunchon attended the Jewish Workmen's Protest Convention in New York as a fraternal delegate from the Y. W. L. and made an excellent impression for the League.

The League comrades must do all in their power to help build up the Famine Scouts Organization launched by the Friends of Soviet Russia. Be sure to put forth all energies for a successful Tool Drive for Soviet Russia. Russia's workers must receive our utmost aid.

Note—All League members must fill out application cards. Charter members shall write in the word; "Charter" after the words "Proposed by (1)." All application cards are to be filed with the City Central Committees. Remember Regular dues begin with June 1st.

Carlson is having successful meetings on his way to Chicago. Abern will leave June 23rd for Chicago and on the way will hold meetings at Syracuse, Toronto, Buffalo and Erie. Meetings are also being arranged for Comrade Zam who will leave shortly for Chicago.

Pittsburgh Picnic

The Workers Party organization of Pittsburgh will have a monster Labor Day picnic at Elwyn Grove, with C. E. Ruthenberg as their speaker. A small picnic is arranged for the Fourth of July at which local speakers will make addresses.

Just as when the Workers Party won its fight for the right to hold open-air street meetings the S. P. tried to disrupt this educational work by applying for permits for the same corners and dates, so this almost defunct group is trying to vent its spite against the Labor Day Picnic by announcing their only event of the season for this day at a rival grove.

Needless to say this will not detract from the success of the Workers Party picnic and extensive advertising will be done to direct the workers to the right grove.

Coldwell Tour Ended

Joseph M. Coldwell, veteran labor leader recently released from Atlanta prison, has just concluded a tour of more than 70 cities in each of which he addressed a meeting on behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti.

This tour was conducted under the auspices of the Workers Party in co-operation with the defense committee. He declares that the workers are at last awakening to the importance of this case and that the proportions of their defense organization ought soon to equal that on behalf of Haywood in 1905 or Mooney at this time. The need for action is pressing and as soon as weather permits further work along this line Comrade Coldwell will resume the road.

Czechs to Join Workers Party

The Czecho-Slovak Marxist Federation has submitted the question of affiliation with the Workers Party to a referendum vote of the membership and forecast that it will be carried by an overwhelming majority.

This is the third substantial foreign speaking group to take such action within a very short space of time and means a material increase in strength to the Party.

Defense Committee Audit

Upon the assumption of the duties of Secretary of the National Defense Committee by C. E. Ruthenberg, an audit of the books kept by the former secretary, Edgar Owens, showed receipts of $24,897.21 and expenses of $24,969.12.

Miners' Relief Work

The Miners' Relief Committee is still conducting its work on behalf of the Miners of West Virginia and has issued a call for funds to all unions and working class fraternal organizations. The need of the Miners is greater than ever. Little has been done as yet by the workers of New York, and very little has been done by the Committee that have announced their intentions to collect food and funds for the Miners.

The Miners' Relief Committee will conduct a Tag Day on July 8th and 9th. All workers are asked to co-operate. Further announcements will be made as to the stations that will be established for these days.

Iron Heel in Porto Rico

The Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee reports that the local authorities at Ponce, Porto Rico, have confiscated a one-page leaflet published by the local labor group which organized for the purpose of bringing the story of the Massachusetts frame-up to the attention of the island workers.

The suppressed manifesto was a soberly worded appeal for funds and for the sale of certain defense literature. Notwithstanding this official interference the story of the frame-up is becoming known thruout the island.

Many New Endorsements

The committee further reports that a large number of additional endorsements on their new trial resolution are being received from central labor bodies in all parts of the country. Recently such endorsements have come in from Boston, Mass.; Tampa, Fla.; Jersey City, N. J.; Tacoma, Wash.

Candidates Active Unionists

The candidates for office named by the Workers Party of California are all militant unionists, active both in their own unions and in the general progressive tendency now organizing into the Trade Union Educational League.

Their candidate for Governor, William Turner, is an official of the Waiters' Union, delegate to the Central Labor Council, and President of the T. U. E. L.

Their candidate for Congress in the San Francisco district, Arthur Albright, is also delegate to the Central Labor Council and editor of the local labor paper, "Rank and File".

Their candidate for Congress in the Los Angeles district, D. Gorman, is a member of the Electrical Workers' Union and delegate to the Building Trades Council.

The candidate for U. S. Senator, Nestor Mattson, is also a member of the Building Trades.

DOINGS IN ROCKAWAY.

United Front in R. I.

A mass convention of all members of the Workers Party and other working class political organizations has been called to meet in Providence, R. I., June 25th, to discuss the possibility of building a united front of labor, politically and industrially.

The following is the resolution adopted by the Council of Labor and Defense on May 10th, 1922:

1. It is considered necessary to restrict for the present immigration into R. S. F. S. R., admitting only such groups of workers as can be guaranteed to find employment in the Republic, subject to the conditions stipulated in the Resolution of the Council of Labor and Defense of June, 1921.

2. Such industrial and agricultural groups, organized in the United States under the direction of the Department of Immigration of the Supreme Council of National Economy in agreement with the Commissariat of Labor, will obtain free entry into Russia.

3. The Commissariat for Foreign Affairs is bound to issue visas for admittance into Soviet Russia to groups of workers approved by the Department of Industrial Immigration.

4. The People's Commissariat for Agriculture is instructed to fully co-operate with the Department of Industrial Immigration in the inspection and location of Agricultural Communes for the Immigrants.

5. Food supplies, tools, equipment, clothing and household articles imported into Russia by industrial and agricultural groups of immigrants are to be admitted free of custom duty.

Acting Chairman of the Council of Labor and Defense,

RIKOV, Secretary, Fotieva.

Moscow, Kreml.

This resolution of the Council of Labor and Defense in defining the conditions of immigration into Soviet Russia, provides for unhindered admission of organized groups properly equipped with tools, provisions etc.

The exemption from custom duties of food, supplies, tool equipment clothing and household articles, imported into Soviet Russia by these groups, facilitates the immigration of industrial and agricultural groups. The Soviet Government, however, makes a condition that such imported products and various equipment be utilized only for production purposes of those groups and personal use of their members.

Organized Industrial and Agricultural Groups will without any difficulty be admitted into Soviet Russia, on presentation of a permit from the Representative of Supreme Council of National Economy in the United States.

Anyone planning to go to Russia should first take up the matter by mail with A. A. Heller, American Representative of the Supreme Council of National Economy, 110 W. 40th St., New York, N. Y. To start out alone, without making the necessary arrangements on this side, will subject emigrants to serious inconvenience on the Russian border and may result in their being refused admission.

KRUSE LEAVES OFFICE.

The Administrative Council at its last meeting extended indefinite leave of absence to William F. Kruse, Assistant National Secretary, on his own request to be relieved of party duties. Comrade Kruse has been in failing health for some months and has been ordered by physicians to seek outdoor work in a higher altitude. No successor to his position will be chosen for the present.

Organize West Side Branch.

A second meeting will be held this Friday night, June 23, to organize a West Side Harlem Branch of the Workers Party. The meeting will be convened at 8 o'clock at 206 West 133rd Street, ground floor west. All comrades living on West Side Harlem are invited to attend this meeting. The importance of organizing this branch and thereby establishing contact with the Negro workers resident in Harlem cannot be too greatly emphasised. Every comrade who lives in that section should take an active part in this essential work.

On Getting Excited

The New York Times, in common with the kept press of the world, is very much excited because Litvinoff, in Moscow, has issued a statement declaring that:

"At the Hague Russia will maintain the stand she took at Genoa!"

The Times thinks this is a Bolshevik bluff and proceeds to denounce it, pointing out that it was the manifesto of the Soviets on May 11, that broke up the conference at Genoa.

It will also be remembered that it was Lloyd George that was most anxious about calling The Hague conference and that the French fell in with his desires.

The Russians, after Genoa, were not slow in rejecting the proposed Russo-Italian trade agreement when it did not live up to all stipulations.

So, it seems, in spite of The Times, the Russians are sure of their position and may talk very coolly of having terms for a loan ready to submit to the capitalist experts at The Hague.

For it is capitalism that has the job on its hands of trying to keep alive. It feels the grip of death tightening. The Soviets are just beginning to live.

Railroad workers getting 23 cents an hour under the new rulings of the railroad labor board have had insult added to their injuries by New York Times' headlines as follows: "Rouge Cost Cited in Rail Pay Figures; Fruit Cake at $2 a pound and $1.25 Neckties Counted in the Family Expenses." We offer a year's subscription to every member of the railroad board if they will provide us with an explanation of how it can be done.

We Are a Great People

We have before us two publications, to wit: Samuel Gompers' "American Federationist," official organ of the American Federation of Labor, and Munsey's New York Evening Sun, June 20.

We read Gompers' gusto about the Cincinnati Convention in which he gives us this gem:

"Aside from the government of the United States, the American Federation of Labor is the world's greatest example of representative democracy."

Then we turn to Munsey's Sun and read that Miss Lola De Cartin, "a pretty Spanish woman, 29 years old, who earns her living by teaching languages," is sentenced to thirty days' imprisonment in the workhouse for the alleged theft of a French-English dictionary from the public library, that probably cost the authorities about 98 cents.

This is surely some democracy where one must steal books to learn, and, if caught, be sent to prison.

And at Cincinnati Gompers has developed a form of "democracy" where few, if any, of the delegates dare disagree with him, openly and vitally, in the convention hall.

The battle cry of Gompers' "representative democracy" is three gasps encored by a 100 per cent suppressed "Shush!"

Senator Reed in stumping Missouri for re-election says he likes Harding because he spends his week as follows: "Three days playing golf, then three days sailing about on the Mayflower, drinking lemonade and other things to recover from his fatigue. Sunday he goes to church because the sightseers go there to see him." Wonder what Reed thinks the capitalists put a puppet in the White House for! To be sure, he had to dodge the children of the political prisoners one Sunday at church. Even Reed must admit that Harding, as a poser and a dodger, bats 1,000 per cent in this baseball weather.

British Labor Party Conference

Interest attaches to the annual conference of the British Labor Party that meets at Edinburgh, because it will decide the question of affiliation of the Communist Party of Great Britain.

Since the British Socialist Party changed its name to "Communist," and allied itself with the Communist International, it has been barred from Labor Party affiliation, since it was claimed its constitution was in conflict with that of the Labor Party.

The Communist, official organ of the British Communist Party, now feels that:

"Undoubtedly a strong feeling has been growing in many localities against the exclusion of men and women who previously had been among the most active and self-sacrificing workers in the labor movement. This feeling is reflected in the resolutions sent in."

A questionnaire drawn up by the Labor Party was submitted to and answered by the Communist Party. The questions and answers will be laid before the conference for decision.

This matter recently came before a special conference of the British Communist Party. The conference was practically unanimous in declaring for a united front of all labor's political forces.

American workers should follow closely the working out of the political united front in Great Britain. They should also learn the lesson that the British Communists are teaching the British workers, much against the desires of the officialdom of the British Labor Party, which, by the way, happens to be the mainstay of the Second International, and thru it, of the reactionary labor forces thruout the world.

If they learn that lesson well they will realize that their future lies with the Communist movement, their only hope of emancipation thru the abolition of capitalist exploitation.

The Machinists' Monthly Journal says, "We know that the word "Amalgamate" is a bugaboo to many labor leaders, who will never give their support to the idea. However, we repeat that movements are bigger than men or groups of men, and in the end we shall have amalgamation, which, after all, is one step forward in the evolution of the trade union movement whose ultimate goal is the emancipation of the workers from wage slavery." That is well said. Let us watch the machinists' delegates at the Cincinnati Convention of the American Federation of Labor. They were not living up to expectations according to the latest reports.

[illegible] Rule in Russia.

[illegible]

Russia's Soviet Rule refuses to fall. Lenin insists on living. The peasants and workers of Soviet Russia continue to hold their own as the vanguard in the class struggle calling on all labor to enlist for the world social revolution.

Let the response of the workers everywhere grow and grow, "We Are coming, Comrades, We are Coming!"

We are attracted by two headlines in the [illegible] Sioux City, Ia. One says, [illegible] 12-Hour Day," the other, "[illegible] White House [illegible] to Defend 12-Hour Day." And since the steel [illegible] were on the inside at the White House, we take it for granted they are the ones President Harding heard, since the 12-hour workday still exists.

Faithful to His Class

Samuel Untermyer, self-styled "friend of labor," a millionaire lawyer and heavy stockholder in the steel trust, has secured the indictment of 37 prominent members and officials of the New York Jewish Bakers' Union.

Lawyer Untermyer, who is counsel for the Lockwood "smelling committee" of the New York state legislature, threatened the union officials with prosecution unless they desisted in their price-cutting war against a non-union bakery owner, the union having opened a bakery next door to the scab institution.

The union officials had the courage to defy Untermyer and his whole gang of labor haters, and the indictments came as the logical result.

It will be remembered that Untermyer recently placed his "O. K." on the merging of great steel corporations into the North American Steel Company, that exists by consent of the United States Steel Corporation.

Thus is "competition" wiped out, the same competition that Untermyer claims he is trying to keep alive by preventing the union bakers from subjecting the scab bakery owner to unfair competition, thru underselling him.

We haven't heard that Mr. Untermyer is planning to proceed against the Ward Baking Co., commonly known as the bread trust, with huge bread factories in many large cities, that is continually centralizing the bread-making industry thru wiping out the small baker.

Mr. Untermyer has not announced that he is planning to prosecute the various chain store combinations, such as the drug store chains, the restaurant chains, the [illegible] chains, the tea and coffee store chains, and others too numerous to mention, that daily wipe out owners of individual stores, forcing them into bankruptcy or out of business.

Mr. Untermyer is not troubled about competition until it becomes a class issue, a struggle between the workers and the boss, between labor employed in bakeries and the labor-crushing profiteer in that industry. Then Mr. Untermyer immediately takes his stand on the side of the exploiter.

Let those labor organizations that have tried to "use" Mr. Untermyer in the past in their struggles take notice. He will turn upon them when they least expect it. Mr. Untermyer is faithful to his class.

Vandervelde Quits

Emil Vandervelde, former minister of justice of Belgium and ex-President of the Second International, has joined his foreign Socialist colleagues in quitting the defense of the counter-revolutionaries now on trial at Moscow.

The Communist court will not permit us a stenographer of our own, they complained. You may have a stenographer, replied the court.

We don't like the presiding judge, was the next complaint, because he is a member of the Communist Party. Perhaps Vandervelde would be satisfied with "Bill" Taft, U. S. Supreme Court justice, enslaver of children and crusher of labor who is now travelling in Europe.

Vandervelde and his crew of defenders of counter-revolutionists knew that labor controlled the courts before he entered Soviet Russia.

In the words of the presiding judge, M. Piatakoff, Vandervelde and his fellows have enjoyed such license as they would have experienced in no other court in the world.

On this same subject the New York Times, under the heading, "Inexplicable Because It's Russian," declares:

> "Happenings in the Moscow court where the Social Democrats are on trial for treason, and therefore for their lives, are puzzling as observed from this distance. The liberty of speech, amounting to what would be called license anywhere, accorded to the defendants could be explained as due to a desire on the part of the Bolshevist powers to show the outside world how mild and generous they are, but the test of credulity by this assumption is severe. Hardly less difficult is it to believe that the defendants are deliberately trying to get themselves convicted and hanged or shot, though that would be the natural result of such admissions and declarations as they are making."

And again The Times, in its issue of June 20th, is forced to make the admission that:

> From what foreign observers saw, the foreigners enjoyed a license at this trial which they would not have enjoyed in similar circumstances—for it is a case of high treason which is practically admitted by the accused—in any other country.
> The Communists say they have had to fight the Social Revolutionaries no less than they fought the followers of Kerensky, the Cossacks, the Czarists. The leaders of the Social Revolutionary Party now being judged are in the position of the American royalist tories in the Revolutionary War versus Washington and his victorious republicans.

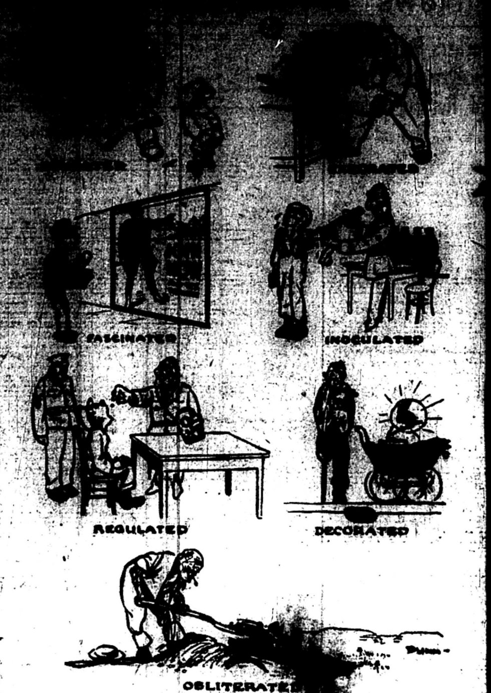
We must go farther to discover why Vandervelde has thus early thrown up the sponge in what was to be his master effort to expose the Soviet regime.

Safe in the assurance that Soviet Rule in Russia would not exact the extreme penalty and snuff out their miserable lives for the dastardly crimes they have committed, the social revolutionaries are glorying, in the open court room, in their crimes against the labor republic.

Instead of appearing, therefore, as the defender of innocent victims of Bolshevist rule, Vandervelde found himself in league with self-confessed criminals. This was surely an awkward position for a former King's minister and a democracy-loving Socialist.

So we find Vandervelde's retreat from Moscow probably less spectacular than that once conducted by a certain Napoleon Bonaparte, but certainly not less ignoble.

But Napoleon never tried to cover up his embarrassment by sending out fake reports of his assassination. Perhaps poor Vandervelde wishes he were dead. How will he explain to McDonald, Henderson and Hillquit?



From the Cradle to th[illegible]ave

They Are Getting Scared

Terror seems to be gripping the petty tyrants of the railroad labor board. It seems to be with fear that they hand another $27,000,000 slash in wages to the railway workers.

The majority members of the board, representatives of the railroad owners and the "public," give voice to their fear in a reply to criticisms by the two labor (minority) members of the board. Note this display of horror:

> "It is something new for labor members of the board to issue incendiary arguments to employes in favor of striking against a decision of this board. The giving of advice of this kind has heretofore been left to outsiders, who were not under the official obligations imposed by the Transportation Act, the main purpose of which is to prevent railway strikes and protect the public from their dire effects."

The agents of the railroad barons proceed on the mistaken theory that workers only strike when they are ordered to do so by their officials.

The greatest "inflammatory appeal" to strike is the blow delivered at the pay envelope of the railway workers by the railroad board.

That the board members representing the railroad capitalists cannot see that it is not strange. No ruling class has ever been able to see it. We find, therefore, this additional gem of logic from the majority board members:

> "It is well to remember that the time will never come in this or any other country when the ordinary rules of common-sense and business, call them economic laws if you wish, can be absolutely ignored in the conduct of any industry. The latest instance in which these laws have been thrown overboard and replaced by fine-spun socialistic theories, both in railway and other industries, is found in Russia, and the result there is not one that this country desires to emulate.
> "The minority are sowing some of the tiny seeds that have germinated and blossomed into industrial anarchy in Russia when they make such statements as this: 'They (the economic laws) are simply a description of the way in which business and industry has worked to date, and it has worked out very badly for human life.'
> "It will be readily conceded that our social and industrial system has not invariably produced perfect results, but, upon the whole, it has demonstrated its superiority to every experimental substitute that has been offered. And the fact must not be overlooked that this great industrial republic has rewarded labor with its largest degree of liberty, prosperity and happiness. It is well not to hold its minor imperfections so close to the eye as to obscure its benefits."

The workers did not have to wait for the minority members on the railroad board to tell them that human life gets little consideration under capitalism. They know it. It is brought home to them by their daily experiences.

The usual buncomb that, "This great industrial republic has rewarded labor with its largest degree of liberty, prosperity and happiness," sounds ever more shallow in the ear of labor.

The next step is for the workers to find the way out. They will find it in time, with the aid of the railroad board and other labor crushing agencies.

It is interesting to note that the spokesmen for capitalism, in their panic stricken terror, direct the eyes of the workers toward Soviet Russia. That is good. The workers will watch Russia and see her industries grow and thrive in the struggle for the realization of Communism. And then in time they will surprise these same agents with a demand for Communism in this country also. And it isn't a very big step from really wanting something and getting it.

The London Daily Herald, May 2[illegible], declares under a Paris date line that, "It is reported in the lobby of the chamber that initial steps have been taken with a view to the prosecution of three Communist deputies, including their spokesman, Marcel Cachin, on a charge of inciting soldiers to disobey orders." Nothing further has been heard of this prosecution as we went to press. Perhaps the French government concluded that the arrest of the Communist deputies might still more incite the soldiers.

Police Commissioner [illegible] of New York [illegible] "received" by President Millerand of France, at Paris. Millerand, who happens to be another renegade "Socialist," probably gave [illegible] a few pointers on how to battle Bolsheviks in America's metropolis.

RAIL STRIKE THREATENS!

NOTE OF FEAR IN BELLOWING FEROCITY OF PLUTE PRESS OVER HERRIN

Only a suspension of the ruling of the railway labor board reducing the wages of the shopmen and allied crafts and an agreement to immediately meet the representatives of the men in conference can halt the strike of approximately one million railway workers.

The vote of the workers affected shows a tremendous majority in favor of a strike including those of the maintenance of way men who have recently reaffiliated with the American Federation of Labor. The maintenance of way men are the chief sufferers from the recent decision of the labor board, the wages of this class of workers being reduced to as low as 23 cents per hour.

Blacksmiths, electrical workers, sheet metal workers, boiler makers, machinists, trackmen, signalmen, clerks and telegraphers will participate in the strike set for July 1st. The railway executives are frank in their announcements that they expect the government to intervene in their behalf. With the six hundred thousand miners standing pat in their strike the struggle of the railway workers will bring the industrial situation to a crisis.

The Armed Struggle At Herrin!

Proclamation of the Workers Party of America.

At Herrin, Illinois, striking miners have been engaged in an armed struggle with the gunmen and scabs in the employ of the bosses.

This breaking out of the class struggle into open force has given the capitalist newspapers the opportunity to pour forth their wrath upon the heads of the miners. With one voice these lying tools of the bosses are denouncing the miners and their union.

The bosses see in this defense of the miners against the armed attack of gunmen of the employer the opportunity to break the strike. They hope to use the fact that blood has been shed and scabs and gunmen have lost their lives to create that sentiment among the people of this country, which will enable them to throw all their forces against the miners. They expect now to use prosecutors, courts, injunctions and soldiers to destroy the miners' organization and beat them into submission.

Workers of the United States! Remember the events of the last two years! Remember the conditions which have precipitated this armed conflict!

For two years the bosses—the capitalist employers—have been engaged in a united attack upon the workers of this country.

The smash-up of the capitalist system brought about by the war resulted in millions of workers losing their jobs. The bosses have taken advantage of this situation. They have slashed wages. They [illegible] of living. They increased hours of work. They compelled the workers to accept worse working conditions.

FOR TWO YEARS THE WORKERS HAVE FELT THE LASH OF THE BOSSES, THE STINGING BLOWS WHICH HAVE MEANT POORER FOOD, POORER CLOTHING AND POORER HOMES TO ALL THE WORKERS AND IN THE CASE OF MILLIONS ACTUAL DESTITUTION AND WANT.

In April there came the turn of the miners to meet the attack of the bosses. The mine owners broke their agreement with the union. They set out to smash the miners' union, to slash their wages.

For three months the miners have stood like a stone wall against the attack upon their organization, upon their standard of living—already too low. They have kept the mines closed.

At Herrin, Illinois, the bosses employed scabs. They brought in armed thugs to protect them. When the striking miners marched to the mines to persuade the scabs to leave they were fired upon and two union miners killed.

Do you wonder that with the evidence of two years' attack pon the workers before them in the shape of lower wages rse working conditions and a weakening of the unions which taken place everywhere in this country, the miners resorted orce to protect themselves against an armed attack—even West Virginia the miners were driven to defend themselves orce against the same murderous attack?

ORKERS OF THE UNITED STATES! THE ARM- CONFLICT AT HERRIN IS THE DIRECT RESULT THE WAGE CUTTING, UNION SMASHING CAM- IGN OF THE BOSSES.

The bosses have used all the forces at their command inst the workers. They have used injunctions, industrial rts, government boards, police and the army against the kers in the effort to cut down their wages and break up unions.

Have not the striking workers again and again been brutally en and murdered by the gunmen, police and soldiers under direction of the bosses! At Newport, Ky., they are now g soldiers against the workers. In the Rhode Island textile e soldiers shot down the strikers. In Indiana Harbor work- were shot down during the steel strike.

or once the workers have put up a victorious defense. errin the gunmen and scabs were obliged to run up the flag!

orkers of the United States! Do not permit the lying alist newspapers to deceive you. It is the bosses who are nsible for the shedding of blood at Herrin. It is their to make the wage slavery of the workers even worse than past which is driving the workers to resistance—even to resistance.

orkers of the United States! The Workers Party of ica calls upon you to unite for the struggle against the s. The armed struggle at Herrin shows how bitter the gle against the capialist drive to reduce the wages and the unions is growing. To win in that struggle we must a UNITED FRONT OF LABOR.

HE MINERS MUST BE SUPPORTED BY THE OLE WORKING CLASS—BY ALL THE POWER WORKING CLASS CAN MUSTER.

The Workers Party of America has in its manifesto rkers! Unite to Fight the Bosses!" offered a program for uilding of the United Front.

ORKERS! RALLY TO THE SUPPORT OF THAT OGRAM. RALLY TO THE SUPPORT OF THE NERS.

EAT DOWN THE CAPITALIST ATTACK!
BUILD THE UNITED FRONT OF LABOR!

WORKERS PARTY OF AMERICA.

In the bellowing ferocity of the capitalist press as it details the horrors at Herrin, Illinois, it is not hard to detect a note of fear.

There has been war at Herrin—war between the mercenaries of a coal company and striking miners, and the miners have not been beaten.

For once at least in the bloody industrial history of America striking workers have turned the tables on the janissaries of the employers and as they pore over the list of casualties the publicity agents of the corporations send up a long, loud wail.

The coal barons of Herrin recruited gunmen from Chicago to terrorise the strikers and protect the strikebreakers.

They recruited them thru a rather well-known private detective agency. Thirty professional gunmen sent down by the agency, went on the job with the full knowledge that they were to beat, slay and terrorise at the orders of the mine superintendent.

They were potential murderers when they accepted their bloody employment and all the crocodile tears shed by the sob-artists of the capitalist and liberal press can not alter [illegible]

Strikers had already been murdered before their fellow-workers began their advance upon the mine. According to the testimony of surviving strikebreakers, McDowell, superintendent of the mine had killed in cold blood a picket on whom he fired from ambush.

Two miners were shot dead by the gunmen as they advanced bearing a flag of truce. It is no surprise to me that little mercy was shown these mercenaries once the miners swept over their fortifications.

"They came to murder, but remained as clay" to paraphrase an old saying.

To those who have never experienced the bitterness that fills the heart of a striker when after long weary weeks of waiting, he sees in the place vacated by himself and his mates the off-scourings of the underworld brought there to beat them back to servitude, there will never come an understanding of what took place at Herrin.

But to those who have fought on the industrial battlefields of this nation, and who know what it is to challenge the might of the employers of America, the miners of Herrin do not need to apologize.

The coal miners are striking to preserve a bare semblance of decent living standards.

They are hungry and so are their wives and children.

They are struggling not alone for themselves, but even for such as those whom they fought.

A strike is a struggle for bread, and he who sides with the employer as gunman or scab takes bread from the mouths of those who must have it or die.

He is a murderer, but the whole power of organized government is behind him, and in our society the strikebreaker is lauded as a hero by those whom he serves..

Had the hirelings of the coal barons won a victory in Herrin, no matter how bloody, it would have been hailed as a triumph for law and

EDITOR'S NOTE:—When Gompers' anti-soviet resolution came before the A. F. of L. Convention at Cincinnati, Benjamin Schlesinger, of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, wept over the fate of the renegades and counter-revolutionaries now on trial at Moscow. In doing this he endorsed the attack on Soviet Russia, and lined himself alongside of Gompers with these enemies of the Soviet Revolution in Russia. Trotzky tells the story of this party of betrayal as follows:

By LEON TROTZKY

The Social Revolutionary Party at present occupies the centre of attention, but quite differently than at the time of the March (1917) Revolution.

It often happens in history that some party or other, some man or other, is at first obscured from view, is forgotten for some time and then is again remembered.

The Social Revolutionary Party succeeded in a few months, one

Dunne and Foster Review Triumphs of Gompers' Black Reaction, Aided by Yellow Socialists, at Cincinnati Convention

The Cincinnati Convention of the American Federation of Labor is over. Black reaction triumphed. The Gompers' stone age conservatives joined with the yellow "Socialists" in the war against everything progressive and militant. The story is told herewith in the articles of William F. Dunne, labor editor of THE WORKER, and William Z. Foster, secretary of the Trade Union Educational League. We join with Foster in urging that all militant workers devote their best efforts from now on to building up "The League." Dunne and Foster write as follows:

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE

The Gompers machine met the severest test of the Convention the day before adjournment.

Every smoldering spark of resentment against the black reaction of the administration mobilized itself behind a minority report of the Committee on the Russian Resolution and the only consistent fight made by the radicals centered around the question of Soviet recognition.

Woll, reporting for the committee, read a long tirade against the Soviet government. Max Hays of the typos submitted the minority report urging recognition and the battle was on. Keep, of the tailors, in one of the most eloquent and logical addresses heard by the convention, defended the minority report, with the delegates interrupting to applaud. "No labor movement, least of all the American labor movement," he said, "should denounce a revolutionary government." To the charges of dictatorship made by the committee he replied by asking how many men controlled the government of the United States.

Frey, of the Moulders' Union, spoke against the minority report. He read a long statement by Jouhaux of France dealing with the activities of the Communists in the French labor movement as a reason why the Soviet government should not be recognized. Healy, of the Stationary Firemen, spoke for the minority report and denounced the administration resolution as [illegible]

Never was a labor movement in a more critical situation than ours is now, with the employers driving against us with unheard of vigor and strength at every point.

And never was a trade union leadership more incapable than ours to meet such a desperate situation.

The Cincinnati convention of the American Federation of Labor was a record of unrelieved failure and incompetency.

In not a single important instance did it show either understanding of the needs of the labor movement or ability to solve its problems.

The convention marked the utter bankruptcy, intellectual and spiritual, of the Gompers' machine and the trade union bureaucracy in general.

The pressing need of the hour was a thoro overhauling of our trade unions' policies and leadership, so that the movement might be fitted for its new tasks and tests.

But nothing of the kind was done. Everything was continued as before. The dead brain of Gompers ruled supreme.

Surely to all intelligent people, especially in view of the recent decision of the Supreme Court in the [illegible]

Second International Smashes Efforts of Commission of Nine

EDITOR'S NOTE:—In the accompanying manifesto the delegation of the executive committee of the Communist International, that sat as part of the "Commission of Nine," at Berlin, in the struggle to create the world united front of labor, shows how these efforts for the United Front were defeated by the Second Internationalists, who took a stand against the convening of the World Labor Congress of all labor. The manifesto in full is as follows:

What the Communist International feared has happened. The leaders of the Second International have hindered the bringing about of the World Labor Congress, the convening of which had been decided at the Berlin Conference of the representatives of the three Executives.

At the first session of the Commission of Nine which met together in order to carry out the decisions of the Berlin Conference in accordance with their mandate, they pronounced against the immediate convening of the World Labor Congress.

According to them such a Congress can only be considered when the Communist Parties renounce all criticism of the policy of the Social Democratic leaders and the trade union bureaucracy, and when at the same time the Soviet Government allows the Mensheviks and the Social Revolutionaries to organize rebellions with impunity.

[illegible] Popular, Cable States

The following cable has been received by the National Office of the Friends of Soviet Russia:

"Tractor Unit in Moscow Making Arrangements for Friends of Soviet Russia Farm. Project very popular."

This cable refers to the unit of [illegible] tractors and full equipment which was sent to Soviet Russia on May 10th. A corps of eleven men went along, to begin the cultivation of a farm and demonstrate to Russian peasants the use of modern machinery in farming.

Want Aid of World's Workers

The backwardness of Soviet Russia in the matter of modern machinery, coupled with the destruction of the four years of counter-revolutionary war against Soviet Russia and the refusal of the capitalist governments to allow any trade to be carried on with Soviet Russia, make this unit a most significant factor in the great work that the workers of the world and particular the workers of America, are doing in the reconstruction of Soviet Russia.

Tool Drive Getting Into Swing

The Tool and Machinery Drive being conducted by the Friends of Soviet Russia is beginning to acquire momentum. Inquiries are arriving daily asking about the different machines and implements required in Soviet Russia.

Philadelphia has ordered two tractors and ploughs. St. Paul is collecting funds for a tractor, Everett, Wash., for another. The campaign will get into full swing on June 26th when great quantities of publicity matter will go out—posters, folders and contribution lists.

Names Go to Soviet Russia

The names of all contributors, individuals and organizations will be sent to Soviet Russia as a testimonial of the support that American workers and farmers have given to Russian workers and peasants in their hour of need.

It will attest to the Russian workers how at a time when, hungry and starving, their children dying for want of food, with the capitalist governments refusing them aid, but sending them bullets instead, the workers of America have stood by them.

These names will be treasured in Soviet Russia, as significant of workers' aid to workers.

Rathenau and the others died because the German government and the German working class did not have the courage of their convictions, because they permitted the existence and the operation of an invisible, but none the less dangerous monarchy within the borders of the nation.

Rathenau was undoubtedly the outstanding figure in the present administration. From the first his efforts were directed wholly to the industrial and economic rehabilitation of his nation, and he never allowed nationalistic and chauvinistic considerations to interfere with any course that seemed to him to promise relief.

It was he who first attempted to bring about an understanding between France and Germany, he who arranged terms with Loucheur, the French minister of reconstruction and multimillionaire, which provided for the payment of a large portion of the German reparations in the form of manufactured products.

The collapse of the German ministry at that time, as well as the "accession" of Poincaré shortly afterward prevented the carrying out of a program that might, perhaps, have produced a more amicable understanding between the two nations.

It was Rathenau, also, who first propagated the idea of an international credit for Germany, who proposed the conference of bankers in Paris. It was Rathenau, finally, who brought about the German-Russian commercial treaty at Rapallo, that almost broke up the Genoa Conference.

To the nationalist, monarchist Junkers of Germany, whose hatred of France on the one hand is exceeded only by their hatred of Soviet Russia, on the other, the name of Rathenau was anathema.

The fact that he was a Jew only served to infuriate their hatred for this man who was willing to forget, in the interest of industrial rehabilitation, the indignities and abuses to which German nationalism had been forced to submit. On the other hand, he had been forced to fight off bitter attacks from the important interests that are allied behind Stinnes, that most powerful figure in German post-war capitalism, whose pro-English sympathies revolted against Rathenau's Francophile attitude.

At the time of his death the German foreign minister and the head of the General Electric Company of Germany was engaged in the task of buying up a press that would put him in a position to fight Stinnes and his backers with their own weapons.

The shot that felled Rathenau did not come unexpectedly. It is an open secret that monarchist elements which have been more or less active ever since the German government failed to punish the leaders that originated the notorious Kapp "putsch," have been increasing rapidly in numbers and in daring.

In the beginning, during the first days of the revolution, they directed their weapons against those who, like Kurt Eisner, Eugene Levine, Rosa Luxemburg and Karl Liebknecht, upheld the cause of the militant proletariat against the combined social-patriot and bourgeois elements.

Under Bauer, Scheidemann and Noske, the German government was so half-hearted in the pursuit of the perpetrators of these murders and showed its sympathy so unmistakably, that their influence and prestige grew enormously.

Their attacks now broadened out. They murdered Gareis, the leader of the Independent Socialists in South Germany. They murdered Erzberger, the most prominent pacifist in the ranks of the small bourgeoisie. Recently a vicious attempt was made against the life of Scheidemann.

The counter-revolution, that child of the cowardice and the treachery of the German Social-Democracy, stands armed to the teeth, prepared for battle.

The government is desperate, and in its desperation once more appeals to the masses, their last resort whenever the monarchist hordes threaten to tear asunder the whole miserable sham that masquerades to-day as the government of the German people.

When Kapp with his soldiers threatened the life of the German Republic it was the firm determination of a united working class that won the day,—and the Kappists went unpunished.

When, later, Erzberger was murdered, the German labor movement again, marched, hundreds of thousands strong, under banners that demanded the punishment of the perpetrators. The German Social-Democracy registered indignation—and quaked in its boots. And again nothing was done.

On the contrary, the Social-Democracy gave up all semblance of an alliance with the parties of the Left and cast its lot frankly with that of the German Volks-Partei, the party of the big captains of German industry and of the financial magnates.

When recently Scheidemann, the mayor of Kassel, who sold his revolutionary birthright for a mess of pottage, was almost made the victim of a deadly attack, he again remembered the invincible strength that lies in the mass action of the proletariat, and the same gentleman who scoffed, vilified and frustrated the project of a united front, when it was proposed by the Third International, called upon the working class to unite, when his own worthy person was in danger.

Again the shooting of Rathenau brings the entire working class to the front in a general strike as a threat to the Junkers who will hesitate to pit their strength against that of the German working class. But this time, the general strike was a mere demonstration. Two-thirds of a day the workers of Germany rested and then they went to work again. Yet this kind of a general strike does not frighten the hard-boiled Junkers.

For the misleaders of the German people know what the masses themselves have not yet discovered—that the only protection of the German Republic lies in the ruthless warfare against monarchism and monarchist elements by a united working class. The German working class has made many terrible mistakes. It has been pacifistic and charitable where it should have been merciless in its persecution of monarchist assassins. It placed its faith in bourgeois "democracy" at a period when only a dictatorship of the laboring masses could purge the country of the old regime. It spared the Ludendorffs, the Hindenburgs and Helfferichs when it would have been a wonderful lesson for the counter-revolutionists to learn that the workers, too, know how to shoot and to hit. It sacrificed some of the greatest men and women that the nation has produced in order to be kind, orderly, pacifist and law-abiding.

Now the Wirth government talks of revenge. It speaks of a firm hand and a clear head. But the bourgeoisie cannot act against the counter-revolutionists, because it is too much afraid of the revolutionists. It fears the Revolution and will ten thousand times rather make its peace with monarchist assassins and murderers than with the militant, fighting working class.

The working masses, therefore, must act for themselves. They must combine against a system that breeds murder, that creates disaster. They must unite against the capitalists of all parties and all shades of party color and wrest the power from the hands of the exploiters of labor.

The fate of the German Republic lies in the hands of the German working class, in the hands of a united working class.

[illegible] communists in particular. He commended the Cook County Criminal Court for the manner in which the trial was conducted.

Admits Error In Record

He admitted that the "record is not free from error." "But," he opined, "it is clear to any intelligent man that the plan and purpose advocated by the plaintiffs contemplates overthrow and destruction of the government of the United States and all the sovereign states . . . by organizing the malcontents into militant groups and, at the earliest opportunity, thru mass strike and force and violence, compelling the government to cease functioning and then, thru a proletarian dictatorship, taking charge of and appropriating all property."

The learned Justice, himself a politician of the first water, and one of the most astute organizers of "malcontents" in Illinois (his record in Rock Island County will bear witness) continues: "Their platform and program do not expressly advocate the use of weapons and physical force in accomplishing these needs, but they are chargeable with the knowledge that their aims and ends cannot be accomplished without force, violence and bloodshed."

Counter-Revolution Upheld

The Chief Justice admits that force and violence is not advocated in the program and platform. But he "infers" and "construes."

"They try to make us believe," he says, "that their program is a peaceful one and that . . . . owners whose property was under protection of the government, would surrender it without use of force and violence. This is too incredible to require discussion."

The Chief Justice is right. It is too incredible to require discussion. It is well to have the Chief Justice of the highest state court on record to this effect. When the workers take over the government by whatever measures the occasion demands, the deposed owners can be depended upon to organize the counter-revolution and oppose by means of force and violence the orderly processes of the new government.

Chief Justice Counsels Resistence

The Court openly advocates resistence to the new government. "The doctrines advocated (by the communists) are not harmless. They are a menace (to whom?).

And it behooves Americans to be on their guard to meet and combat the movement, which, if permitted to progress as contemplated, may undermine and endanger our cherished institutions."

Justice Carter Dissents

Justice Orrin N. Carter dissented. He held that the law under which the conviction was secured is unconstitutional and he announced he would submit a dissenting opinion later.

The Communist Labor Party was organized in Chicago in September 1920 at the time of the split in the Socialist Party. Its program emphasized certain principles of Revolutionary Socialism, that in order to bring about socialism the capitalist class would need to be deposed by a workers government based upon the soviet power.

During the raids in January 1920 many members of the Communist Labor Party and the Communist Party were arrested and indicted for violation of the Illinois Criminal Syndicalist Act.

The trial opened May 10th, and lasted exactly twelve weeks. After fifteen hundred veniremen were examined a jury of twelve was secured. Nine weeks were required to select the jury, about two weeks for taking evidence and one week for the closing arguments. The jury handed in its verdict August 2nd, pronouncing sentences of from one to five years in state prison against nine, of whom two were also fined $2000 and two $1000. The other ten were given sentences of one year in Cook County Jail.

Motion for a rehearing will be made, and if this is denied the case will probably be taken to the United States Supreme court to settle the constitutional questions involved.

The sentences and fines imposed were as follows: William Bross Lloyd and Arthur Proctor, $2000 fine and one to five years imprisonment; Jack Carney, L. E. Katterfeld, L. K. England, Ludwig Lore, Edgar Owens, and Nels Kjar, each sentenced to the penitentiary from one to five years, and Perry Shipman, Karl F. Sandberg, Dr. Oscar J. Brown, N. J. Christiansen, Samuel Ash, James A. Meissinger, Samuel F. Hankin, John Vogel, Morris A. Stollar, and Charles Krumbein, each of whom must serve one year in either the penitentiary or the county jail.

Edwin Firth, one of the defendants, has died since the conviction.

[illegible] within the borders of the United States of America.

The Times, in common with the New York Evening Post, and the rest of the kept press, shudders to think that the workers should have the audacity to defend themselves against their oppressors.

This horror of the bought press is particularly aggravated by the fact that worker-members of a coroner's jury had the courage for once to stand by their class, and fearlessly point their fingers at the real criminals.

Note how the New York Evening Post weeps over the obstacles confronting capitalist justice in its probable efforts to work the frame-up on the Herrin miners. With many tears it says:

> "Sheriff Thaxton is a union member and running for county treasurer. A grand jury might be impanelled next month, but the board of supervisors would choose it, and two-thirds of the board are union men. The state's attorney can organize a staff of investigators only if the board gives permission. Yesterday a coroner's jury, half of its members are union men, made a perfunctory investigation, and for verdict brought in an ex parte indictment of the coal company."

And then study the agony of The Times, faithful organ at the American court of King Profit. It wails:

> "Williamson County, Ill., is a sovereign state. Its real government is the district branch of the United Mine Workers. It executes its own law, the higher, the union law, by summary process. A coroner's jury, composed of three union miners and three business men, subject to the union, brought in the inevitable verdict on the killing of two union miners and 19 non-unionists last week. The officials of the coal-company are the guilty men."

It is not to be wondered at that the subsidized press kept secret the murder of the two union miners, Joseph Pitchiewicz and George Henderson, until they were forced to give it publicity thru the action of the coroner's jury.

Pitchiewicz and Henderson were shot down in cold blood when they went, with other striking miners, unarmed, to protest to the officials of the Southern Illinois Coal Co. against the bringing in of gunmen and scabs.

This happened on Wednesday, June 21. It was not until the following day that the coal miners, as best they could, were forced to engage the whole army of imported cutthroats and strikebreakers of the mine owners.

C. E. Anderson, former mayor of Herrin, now arbiter of the Illinois Compensation Court, testified that the struggle, in his opinion, was precipitated thru the killing of Pitchiewicz and Henderson.

Then, how eloquent a reply do we find to all the malicious falsehoods in the bought press in the few words uttered by Anderson when he says, "I saw no one intoxicated on the day when the conflict took place."

But that will not blot out all the cartoons, all the editorials, all the columns of news space picturing the coal miners as a drunken mob, these workers who were fighting for their homes, for bread to feed their families, against an invading army of murderers in the pay of the mine owners.

Workers and sympathizers of labor should place as little faith in all other questionable facts presented in such lurid colors by the yellow press.

It is not doubted that the real criminal in the whole affair is the mine capitalist, William J. Lester, owner of the strip mine.

He not only broke his agreement with the United Mine Workers, contracts held so sacred by the courts when violated by the unions, but invited murder as his aid when, with an "I'll be damned if I will," he sneered at the demands of Col. Samuel N. Hunter, Illinois National Guard, that he stop loading coal as he had agreed to do early in May.

Now he complains that the state militia, a la West Virginia, was not sent to aid his own hired assassins achieve victory in their murderous work.

Colonel Hunter has been black balled by the press hirelings everywhere because of his testimony before the coroner's jury. Hunter had been hurried to Herrin from Springfield the Sunday preceding the trouble, showing that it was not something that came to life over night. In telling of his attempt to get Superintendent McDowell to close down, Hunter said:

> "As I approached the mine my car was halted by an armed guard, who forced me to alight."
> "When I was allowed to proceed I found Superintendent McDowell in his office. I asked him about reports that traffic on the public highway had been held up by his guards. He denied this was true.
> "I said to him: 'Don't you know you are inciting trouble by trying to run this mine in the midst of this highly unionized county?'
> "McDowell differed with me, and said, they would keep right on operating."

Let the jobless in the nation's large cities not allow themselves to be used as scabs in the mine strike or any other labor struggle.

Those workers who were lured to Herrin as strike breakers, ignorant of the conditions existing there, are all on the side of the union miners. Study this report sent out by the Federated Press:

> Robert McLenon, a Chicago strikebreaker, who was wounded, says the union miners seemed to be "all right."
> Edward Green, Chicago, wounded, blames the mine owners and the employment agencies. "THE PEOPLE TO SHOOT ARE THE MINE OWNERS WHO LIED TO GET US DOWN HERE AND THEN MADE US DO SCAB WORK," he said. "These union men are on the square. I'd have done the same thing myself. I'm no scab. I tried to leave the mine when I found out what we'd been brought from Chicago for; but the guards wouldn't let me. The guards in the pit with us shot to death two union miners Wednesday before the union men surrounded us."

In Southern Illinois, at Virden, there is a monument erected in memory of union coal miners massacred by mine owners' gunmen in the days when the miners' union was young.

If Herrin had been another Virden massacre the mine owners and their press would have been happy and contented.

But it wasn't. The Illinois miners have a hundred per cent industrial organization. The complaints against them indicate they are beginning to realize their political power.

The spirit and the courage that did battle with the capitalists' mercenaries at Herrin, Illinois, June 22, 1922, will some day spread to the whole of the United Mine Workers' organization, and finally, permeate the whole of the American labor movement.

In that day capitalism will be doomed. Instead of fighting in defense of their jobs and their union, the workers will assert their power by sweeping away the last vestiges of the system of exploitation that keeps them in chains and establish a rule of their own.

Then will the "island of class rule," that the New York Times sees at Herrin, Ill., today, extend to all sections of the land in the struggle to build the classless society—COMMUNISM—that is rising to power over the world.

The meeting was opened by [illegible] R. Browder, representing the [illegible] tional office of the League. He [illegible] the meeting about the program [illegible] the League, and emphasized the [illegible] clusive nature of its organization.

"The League is becoming the [illegible] thering place of the entire left-w[illegible] movement in the trade unions," [illegible] said.

"Whatever theoretical differe[illegible] may divide us in our other wor[illegible] the trade unions we have, in the [illegible] gram of the League, a gather[illegible] place for every earnest worker.

"For example, on our nati[illegible] committee, we have members of [illegible] party whatever, members of [illegible] Workers Party, and the national secretary of the Farmer-Labor Party.

"We differ upon practical matters of political organization, but when we come together in the League, we find our interests and our program so close, that there is hardly a disagreement.

"We are all for industrial unionism thru amalgamation of the existing unions, we are all against Gompers' absurd policy of hitching the labor movement as a tail to a capitalist political kite, we are all for the ultimate establishment of a workers' republic, we are all for international affiliation to the only possible international organization to-day, the Red Trade Union International.

"No one seriously contends to-day that American labor should affiliate to the bunch of capitalist lackeys in the Amsterdam International, whose officials draw big salaries from the League of Nations.

"On these things, and on other immediate practical issues from day to day, all the left wing elements can unite, and they are uniting in the Trade Union Educational League. Branches of the League are now formed in more than a hundred cities and towns, and new ones are being formed every day.

"The circulation of The Labor Herald is going up by thousands each month. The issues of the League are being raised in every union of the country.

"The old leadership is bankrupt, and the rank and file of Labor are turning to the only sign of progress that can be seen to-day, the Trade Union Educational League. The future in the labor movement belongs to us."

M. J. Olgin, editor of the Freiheit, extended greetings to the League, and spoke for a half hour receiving an ovation from the enthusiastic audience. Bob Minor made a talk, and took up a collection of $184. An old time co-worker with Tom Mann of England was present and spoke.

Herman Defrem was elected as the Chairman of the Local Group for New York, and Ben Gitlow was appointed by the national office as its representative, to function as secretary and organizer until the organization is completely established.

An Executive Board will be formed to work with these two officers, composed of the organizers of the various industrial groups, elect[illegible] by meetings of the League memb[illegible] in the various industries.

Local New York will be exp[illegible] to have six delegates at the [illegible] National Conference of the [illegible] to be held in Chicago on [illegible] 26-27.

[illegible] way as the workers will, it is forced upon them by the employers. [illegible] prefer that the casualty list contain the names of [illegible] the workers rather than the names of men who have spent their lives in useful labor and who are on strike to prevent their hard-won privileges being wrested from them. I think every intelligent worker will take the same stand.

Spying upon, scabbing upon and intimidating the workers of this nation has become a pleasant and lucrative occupation.

The hordes of degenerates mobilized by the detective agencies of the country prove this statement to the hilt.

In every industrial conflict that calls attention to a festering sore on the social organism these vultures swarm to the scene and prey upon the struggling workers. They serve only the powerful and they have so far been immune from punishment for even the most atrocious crimes.

Their role is that of an invading army in industrial communities. In Herrin they were treated as the invaders they were. The entire community rose against them as it had the right to do.

It happens that this particular community is a community of toilers and were it not for this fact there would be no outcry from the capitalist press.

In Bisbee, Arizona, in 1917, when the "respectable" element armed themselves and deported 1200 striking miners into the desert without food or water, leaving them there to crawl back to civilization or die of hunger and thirst as the case might be, the capitalist press applauded.

It happens that in Herrin the tables were turned. The outraged citizens were not members of the chamber of commerce, but of the miners' union.

The coal barons had decided that the question at issue was to be settled by force; they had not consulted the other citizens in making this decision, but it was accepted. The greater force won, and no question of ethics is involved.

There would be no confusion about the matter at all if the workers of America were accustomed to winning these battles.

Had the Herrin miners been the victims the capitalist press would be quite calm, but busy laying the blame on the miners just the same.

Dead men tell no tales, but in this instance it is the mercenaries whose voices are silent. To me this brings no sorrow.

[illegible]

Any attempt at apology for the actions of the [illegible] is drawing a red herring across the trail that leads to those guilty —the mine owners.

Such action prevents the workers at large from keeping in mind the main point, that the Southern Illinois Coal Co. was determined to operate its mine, no matter how many workers they had to kill to do it; that the kept press is now howling because too many thugs and scabs were killed while the workers won the battle.

If that fight had gone the way certain elements in society today had hoped it would go, then there would have been paeans of praise from the dollar-controlled dailies for the forces of "law and order."

Remember Calumet, Mich., and Ludlow, Colo., where the mine guards not only murdered men, but shot and burned to death women and children. We did not hear the kept press clamoring for punishment them. They "deplored" the situation.

"Already we are in disrepute in the public mind, and threatened with litigation that, to say the least, will cripple our union for years to come," is only part of Farrington's hysterical utterance.

Yes, and any more such effusions from Farrington, or Lewis, or men in similar places, when the miners' union needs to close up every line of defense, and the miners will find it necessary to conduct a cleaning out process in their own ranks, to save their union.

Communists in the French Chamber of Deputies voted against an appropriation of 35,000 francs for France's representation at the wedding of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia on June 8. They did this as a protest against the "white terror," to which Communists are subjected in Jugo-Slavia. And in the excitement that arose during the debate the reactionaries wanted to pass laws to jail all the Communists. More "liberty" of discussion.

Famine in Russia More Acute

Reports are being spread broadcast to the effect that the famine in Soviet Russia is over and that no further aid is needed.

These reports are absolutely groundless. On the contrary, the famine is becoming more acute and is invading new territories. At the present time there is a terrible crisis in the Ukraine and Crimea, due to the draining of food from those areas and the influx of refugees evacuated from the Volga region.

The sufferings of the population in the Ukraine and Crimea are as full of horrors as those endured by the famine-stricken on the Volga.

There are millions of children, women and men without food. The city population is suffering most, so that relief will have to be directed particularly to those localities.

There are more than 32 million people affected, and aid is needed without delay. The American Relief Adminstration does not claim to be feeding more than 8,000,000 thruout Soviet Russia, yet the real number fed by them is 1,900,000 children receiving an average of 700 calories per day and 3,000,000 adults receiving mainly one pound of corn.

The Quakers are feeding 285,000 children at 800 calories, the International Children's Relief, an English organization, 715,000, the Amsterdam International of Trade Unions about 240,000, all other Red Cross organizations combined 78,000.

The Workers' International Relief Committee feeds 250,000, its relief, furthermore, being of a more permanent character, since it is aiding in productive work in Soviet Russia. It is obvious, therefore, that there are millions without food.

Senator Watson charged Herbert Hoover on the floor of the U. S. Senate with having aided efforts to overthrow the Soviet Government and restore the Czarist government. He declared that Hoover had caused an American steamer to transport a cargo of military motor trucks and supplies from Bordeaux to the northern army in Russia, to be used in General Yudenitch's army against the Soviets.

This in addition to Hoover's general report on the termination of famine in Soviet Russia, and his statement that no further assistance need be given the famine-stricken, together with the attitude of the American government toward Soviet Russia, seems but the manifestation of a general plan against the Soviet Regime.

The workers interested in Russian famine relief are watching developments.

The ubiquitous correspondent of the New York Times has discovered a "red plot" in the seizure of A. Bruce Bielaski for ransom in Mexico. Bielaski is ex-chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the United States Department of Justice, and The Times' fears for his safety is surely a confession of the many crimes he has committed.

Professor William Starr Myers, of Princeton University, told the Rotary Club in New York the other day that he is against "class legislation." He means he is against working-class legislation. Myers and Princeton University repeatedly put their "O. K." on legislation for the capitalist class.

Foster Urges All Labor to Join the United Front

MILWAUKEE.—A call to labor to drop all division and to make a united attack on the enemy, both economically and politically, was sounded here by William Z. Foster, before a meeting filled with railway workers and others.

He showed what he termed the futility of the present labor tactics. On the current wage cut he declared it was time for the railway men and miners to join forces in order to say to the exploiters, "You have pushed us as far as we are going to be pushed. From now on we fight."

Refused Hall at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS.—The St. Louis Central Trades and Labor union at its last meeting refused to permit the use of its hall for a mass meeting at which Wm. Z. Foster was to be the principal speaker on the proposal to amalgamate the various craft unions on the basis of one union for each industry.

The iron-fisted Mr. Gompers, [illegible] on record against a Labor Party and backed by an incredibly cowardly and slavish set of international officials, ruthlessly crushes every move towards working class political action.

And if the attitude of the Gompers machine, in dealing with the political situation, displayed a bankrupt condition, that of the so-called progressive opposition was little or any better off.

Opposition Is Timid

It knew what should have been done, but it was too timid to brave the anger of the "old man" and do it.

When the Crown Prince, Matthew Woll, read the administrations' childish political program of trying to secure the passage of four constitutional amendments to stop the present anti-union drive, even the body of delegates, accustomed tho they are to intellectual cringing before Gompers, balked and showed unmistakable discontent.

It was an historic opportunity to put across a working class political party. The sentiment of the convention was such that had there been but one red-blooded powerful leader willing to fight for this proposition the thing would have been done.

But unfortunately such a leader was not at hand. When stirred by rank and file delegates who perceived the splendid opportunity to end Gompers' stupid policy and to deal him a blow, Johnston of the Machinists, Lewis of the Miners, Jewell of the Railroad workers and others conferred and caucussed.

But they lacked the moral courage to go boldly ahead and to defy Gompers. The thing was vetoed in their caucusses. Not even a motion was made for a labor party.

Most Pitiful Exhibition

It was one of the most pitiful exhibitions of weakness that even A. F. of L. conventions have produced.

If the convention failed utterly to appreciate the needs of the working class in a political way, it failed equally bad on the industrial field.

In the great battle now raging in industry the need for the workers to bring their forces into closer and closer alignment is so patent that no one but a child (or a $25,000 per year international president) could deny it.

Yet the convention not only refused to make any such appeal for the workers to come together, but it fought with bitter bigotry every suggestion of that idea.

The amalgamation resolution of the Railway Clerks, which provided a plan of industrial reorganization, sane and indispensible for the present situation, was voted down without even a single delegate speaking in favor of it.

Again it was the fatal combination of the intellectually bankrupt Gompers' machine and the timid, fearful "progressive" forces.

At nearly every point of the convention's business the same failure to rise to the situation was in evidence. Almost the only things carried of even minor importance in a progressive way were the endorsement of the needle trades' resolution calling for closer affiliation among these bodies, and the demand for a new trial for Sacco and Vanzetti.

"Socialists" With Gompers

But the most deplorable feature of this generally deplorable and spiritless convention was the attitude of the so-called "Socialist" unions, the Ladies' Garment Workers, the Fur Workers, and the Jewelry Workers.

They lined up solidly behind the old Gompers' machine, totally repudiating all the principles they have advocated in past years.

They voted against trade with Russia, amalgamation, and the progressive candidates, and they stood for every proposition, no matter how reactionary, that came from the administration.

Whenever Mr. Gompers cracked his whip they jumped. He has captured them bag and baggage.

And their reward for this treason, so far as one could see, was merely the election of Benjamin Schlessinger as fraternal delegate to the British Trade Union Congress.

For this job he was nominated by the reactionary Green of the United Mine Workers and supported by the Crown Prince Woll, in a seconding speech. At any time one could see Schlessinger cheek by jowl with the blackest reactionaries in the labor movement.

There is no one quite so reactionary and contemptible as a rebel, real or professed, who goes wrong and joins with the traitors to labor.

Rebels Gone Wrong

Witness the Wrights, Spargos, Hunters, Wallings and other renegade Socialists now doing the dirty intellectual chores for Gompers.

Schlesinger has taken his place with these, and the needle trades' workers must be on their guard against an injection of Gompersism into their industry.

If they stand for it they will deserve all the evils that will surely come upon them.

With the so-called progressives in the convention betraying utter lack of leadership and the oldtime "Socialist" unions going over boots and all to the reactionary Gompers machine, it becomes more and more evident that the only hope of the trade union movement lies in those militant elements now concentrating in the Trade Union Educational League.

They alone offer promise of ending the system of bureaucratic leadership and policies that have just about destroyed the American labor movement.

Build "The League"

Gompers realizes this, hence his violent opposition to the League, at this convention as well as elsewhere.

Let his attacks be the signal for the rebels to realize that they are now on the right road.

The work of building the League should be carried on with redoubled vigor. It is the sole ray of light in the trade union movement.

The old leadership is bankrupt. If we had not known it before, the Cincinnati convention would have proved it beyond all doubt.

DEATH SENTENCE GOES

MOSCOW.—The All-Russian Central Executive Committee issued a new decree regarding the penal code, to come into force in June. Capital punishment is abolished, and may only be applied in districts under martial law. Five years imprisonment is now the heaviest punishment possible.

The Irish El[illegible]

By THOMAS J. O'FL[illegible]

The surprise of the Irish elections [illegible] success of the Irish Labor Party in [illegible] candidates put forward in the contest between Free Staters, Republicans and Independents to the coming session of the Irish Parliament or as it is known Dail Eireann.

It is very likely that had the Irish Labor Party sufficient material to contest other constituencies their delegation in the next congress might well be a majority.

Not alone were the labor candidates successful in electing 17 out of 18 candidates but in many instances they topped the poll. In Cork the labor candidates secured the largest number of votes of any other candidate in the city and as a sidelight on the temper of his following is the fact that after the election returns were announced thousands of workers marched thru the city carrying the Red Flag and singing revolutionary songs.

The Irish labor movement is one of the most revolutionary in Europe and is particularly so in comparison with the slow-moving, constitution and King worshipping Labor movement of England.

A few words about the Irish Labor Party and Trades Union Congress may not be out of place considering the tendency on the part of a large section of American labor to cast aside the dead wood policy of Gompers with its "reward your friends and punish your enemies program" and undertake independent political action thru the medium of the Trade Union movement.

Vote for their Class

The Irish Labor movement is under the direction of the Executive Committee of the Irish Labor Party and Trades Union Congress which is an organization, that controls the industrial and political activities of the organized workers of Ireland. The congress is not a loose federation like the A. F. of L. It is clothed with power to call strikes in cases of emergency tho it generally follows the rule of calling special conventions when such a policy seems essential.

The Irish Labor party makes it quite clear that for a worker to refuse to vote for a labor candidate on election is scabbing. The result is that in spite of the national excitement and the pressure brought to bear on the voters by the military forces of both the Republicans and Free Staters that the Irish workers wherever a labor candidate appeared on the ballot voted religiously in the interests of their class.

Before the European war the Irish Labor Party was affiliated with the British Labor Party. The British Labor Party favored the war while the Irish labor party opposed it. The latter thereupon withdrew and has not since affiliated. The Irish labor party rendered effective assistance in the national struggle against the British military forces and it was Conolly who was chiefly instrumental in bringing about the rebellion of Easter Week. This will be denied by the present so-called Republicans, but it is nevertheless true.

Strive for Workers' Republic

The Irish labor movement declared a successful general strike twice against the military occupation and succeeded in thwarting the enemy's aim. But England relieved from foreign wars was able to devote her entire attention to the Irish question, so when peace was offered by England last December, the Irish labor party accepted the situation as a step in advance which would give them the opportunity to forward the interests of the working class as they realized that Republics mean nothing to the workers unless they are Workers Republics.

We believe that the Irish labor party blundered in not taking a more decided position against the treaty on principle. Nevertheless they are to be congratulated on their realistic attitude towards the empty bauble of political independence.

It is evident now that the Irish question is stripped of much of its ability to harm the British Empire and from now on the task of overthrowing capitalism and monarchism must be carried on conjointly by the British and Irish workers. They have the same enemy—British Imperialism.

A very small minority in the Irish labor movement favored the Irish Labor Party standing back and leaving the contest between De Valera and Collins. The Labor Party overwhelmingly voted down this proposal.

When De Valera and Collins realized that Labor was going to contest the elections they formed a compact in order to retain their petty bourgeois grip on the Dail Eireann and called upon all patriotic citizens to vote for the coalition candidates.

De Valera and Collins Unite

There was even a threat of intimidation, but the labor movement of Ireland is an organized force about 300,000 strong, so they defied the veiled threats of the Republicans and the Free State politicians and went ahead with their plans.

It was a lesson for the workers to see De Valera and Collins who professed to hate each other unite at the polls in order to keep political power away from the workers. That they were jealous of each other there is no doubt, but there is less doubt that they were still more jealous of the workers.

While the Irish labor movement has been growing conservative of late it aims at the establishment of a Workers' Republic. Its use of the parliamentary weapon will be watched with interest by the American workers and the example thus set will have a great effect in hurrying the American labor movement toward using their political power as well as their industrial power against the master class.

The working class of Ireland besides accepting political action as a weapon against capitalism have also used the military weapon when occasion warranted it, and the sight of Red Guards even now is no unusual phenomenon.

It is commonly believed in Ireland that judging from the strength shown by the Irish labor party in the recent elections that when the next general election is held the Irish labor party will command a majority in the Irish Parliament. And that by the way is what the Ulster reactionaries fear more than the influence of the Pope.

[illegible] the time of the World War until the present day. He received a storm of applause which indicated that the convention was getting out of hand, so Gompers took the floor.

His speech was a combination of all the lies carried in the last few years by the capitalist press and a series of insinuations and half-truths. He read three telegrams from Herbert Hoover and Secretary of State Hughes in support of his statement that there were no restrictions on trade with Russia. He introduced the memorandum of the social-revolutionary delegation to the conference of the three Internationals recently held in Berlin in support of his charge that the Communists of Russia and the officials of the Soviet government were bloody-handed savages and closed with an appeal to the delegates to be once more guided by his advice.

The tremendous sentiment apparent among the delegates for the minority report was the more surprising as it came after the administration had been re-elected without a single change and with opposition against but two officers—Tobin and Fis[illegible] —with Schlesinger and his delegation voting solidly against the progressive candidates and with the administration. They were also pledged to vote against Russian recognition. [illegible] question before the convention aroused so much fighting [illegible] among the radicals nor is anything plainer than that the ordinary [illegible] trade unionist is nearer to a real understanding of the revolutionary labor movement than the mouthers of revolutionary phrases who call themselves Socialists.

Gompers' last effort was not regarded with the usual ovation [illegible] greets his denunciations of [illegible] nor did the magic names of Hughes and Hoover evoke a single clap. No more ghastly sight [illegible] disgusted spectators than that [illegible] palsied old man with one foot [illegible] grave dabbling his palsied [illegible] the blood of the men, women [illegible] children of suffering Russia, [illegible] grinning approval of a yellow [illegible] ist labor leader who sold his revolutionary honor for a trip to E[illegible] as a fraternal delegate. The Socialist Party, Sam Gompers, Hughes, Hoover and the whole capitalist machine of the United States is now [illegible] solubly linked with the imperialist murderers who defeat child labor laws, outlaw unions, institute a [illegible] of terror at home while attempting to crush the only workers' government in the world.

On the last day of the convention the minority report on Russian [illegible] tions was defeated and the administration resolution adopted without roll call.

Max Hays put up a splendid fight for the minority in his closing argument, but the administration lobby had time to rally the Gompers forces during the recess, and when Matt Woll, speaking in rebuttal for the resolution committee, appealed to the respectability of the majority delegates most of them forgot their pledges and again placed a black [illegible] upon the American labor movement. It stands to-day as the only [illegible] movement in any country that is opposed to the recognition of the Soviet government. The arguments [illegible] the supporters of the majority resolution would have been considered reactionary even in an up-to-date chamber of commerce. In reality [illegible] was the voice of the Civic Federation that was heard here and not the voice of American labor. Senator Borah's telegram to Hays made this plain. It created a sensation, contradicting, as it did, every statement made by Hughes and Hoover, but reason was [illegible] so far as the majority was concerned. It would not have been surprising if, [illegible] with victory, a resolution of condolence to Boris Bakhmeteff had been introduced by the Gompers crowd before the convention adjourned.

The convention has done nothing for labor but much for the bosses. It has dragged American labor a little deeper into the pit and seems to glory in its shame. The only hopeful sign was the presence of a little handful of men and women of dauntless spirit who alone were responsible for the fact that on the Russian matter the administration had to use all its strategy and [illegible] upon all its friends in high government circles to carry the day.

Perhaps it is just as well that during the brief period it has left to enjoy its power its shameful record should not be redeemed by any progressive act. Its most valuable service to labor has been to [illegible] new enemies within the [illegible] labor.

VOLUNTEER TO HELP MAKE MINERS' TAG DAY A BIG SUCCESS, JULY 8th AND [illegible] in the drive on July [illegible] the relief of the starving miners [illegible] West Virginia.

The present condition of the striking miners is deplorable. Ringed round by thugs and militia, the miners and their families are in danger of being starved into submission. Miss Elizabeth Gilman, active in relief work for the miners, reports the following: "Evictions continue and only today we received a report that at one place the drinking water had been cut off because the men refused to go to work on the company's terms. How long it was intended that the water remain off, the men did not know, but even a short time would produce a dangerous situation."

This is not all that the miners have to contend with. They and their families are starving.

They have nothing to eat, and it is up to the organized workers whose battle they are fighting, to come to their aid. Volunteer for the Tag Day.

WATCH ANNOUNCEMENT NEXT WEEK!

[illegible] for the non-convening of the World Labor Congress, [illegible] every worker to see that it is a case of pure pretense and nothing but deception on the part of the leaders of the Second International.

If the Second International gives as a reason for the non-convening of the World Labor Congress our past, present and future criticism of the Social Democratic Parties, it means that the Second International demands of the Communists that they resign themselves to the rule of the Social Democratic trade union and party leaders, that they renounce every struggle for their own ideals, for the ideals for which Rosa Luxemburg, Karl Liebknecht and hundreds of thousands of workers in Russia and Germany have fallen, and for which millions of workers in the whole world are fighting.

Soviets Will Not Abdicate

If the Second International makes the Congress contingent upon the Soviet Government giving the Mensheviks liberty to organize revolts, this absurd demand implies that the Soviet Government abdicate in favor of French Imperialism which has now come forward as the champion of the Mensheviks.

These demands which are preposterous to a sane understanding are set up in clear contravention of the resolutions of the Berlin Conference which had decided on the unconditional convocation of the World Labor Congress.

It is a matter of course that the Delegation of the Communist International immediately rejected these unreasonable demands. The Communist International has not only fulfilled the obligations which its representatives undertook in Berlin, but the Russian Soviet Government has also made concessions which go far beyond it.

How Different in Prussia

While the Delegation of the Communist International to the Berlin Conference pledged itself to obtain permission for the former Royal Belgian Minister Vandervelde, to attend the trial of the Social Revolutionaries as defending counsel and the Soviet Government at the request of [illegible]

[illegible] by the representatives of the Second International that the Communist International only demands the World Labor Congress in order to harness the world proletariat to the chariot of Soviet Russia's foreign policy, the Communist International on the suggestion of the Communist Party of Russia, declared itself prepared to forego having the question of the defense of Soviet Russia placed on the agenda for the World Labor Congress. Defend at least the bare existence, the morsel of bread of the workers of Western Europe, and then the Communist International will also co-operate and organize this defense in common!

All this was preached to deaf ears. The Second International did not desire a World Labor Congress under any circumstances. Germany is on the eve of great struggles over the apportionment of new taxation burdens. The increasing cost of all necessities threatens to lead to grave economic conflicts.

The Social Democracy wants to maintain in this situation its alliance with the bourgeoisie, cost what it may, and it is afraid that — in the event of its appearance at a Workers' Congress—it would be compelled by the united movement of the proletariat to break the united front with the bourgeoisie.

Don't Want United Front

The English Labour Party is confronted with an election, during and after which it will in some form or other collaborate with the Liberals.

These friendly relations with the bourgeoisie would naturally be hindered by an approach to the Communist workers. And the same holds true in other countries.

The Second International desired to render impossible the coming together of the World Labor Congress in any event.

But it had no objection to the Commission remaining in existence, in order to hinder the Communist struggle against the Social Democracy:

The Communist International could not allow the Social Democrats of all countries and the trade union [illegible]

[illegible] signed agreement, the Vienna International forthwith declared that owing to the attitude of the Second and Third Internationals, the Congress had been rendered impossible.

It was not sufficient that in this way Adler placed the struggle of the Communist Delegation for the carrying out of the Berlin decisions on the same footing as the struggle of the Second International against the Berlin decisions.

He justifies his attitude by the statement that "differences within the Executive of the Communist International render difficult the convening of the Congress." And this altho he must have known that the Executive of the Communist International unanimously ratified the agreement come to in Berlin.

At the close of the sitting he even went so far as to insinuate that the Communists were now opposed to the World Labor Congress because the Soviet Government was about to enter into a compromise with the Entente, and did not wish to be hindered by a Workers' Congress.

Launch Campaign of Falsehood

This shameful imputation is an absolute contradiction of all the facts, which are known to every reader, and which must inform every reader that Soviet Russia is now in one of the most difficult stages of the fight against the capitalist world.

This imputation was only a watchword for the cover offensive by the Press of the 2½ International. But one day after the breaking up of the Committee of Nine the Berlin Independent Socialist "Freiheit" had the bare face to write:

"The Communists are no longer interested in the World Labor Congress since the conclusion of the truce pact betwen Bolshevik Russia and the Entente States."

[illegible] of the open and disguised reformists in which the Communists would merely act as a screen.

Working men and women! The representatives of the Communist International have not light-heartedly undertaken this step. They knew what hopes the working masses had bound up in the existence of the Commission of Nine, for they knew that the Commission of Nine had awakened in you the hope that it would organize your struggle against the growing need. The representatives of the Communist International have withdrawn from the Commission of Nine in the conviction that any illusion with regard to such work by the Commission of Nine would only hinder your struggle for the establishment of the united front.

Block Fight on Capitalist Offensive

Only the naked truth, the calm recognition of the situation, will help to inspire the fight. And this truth is: the leaders of the Social Democratic parties and the trade union bureaucracy are opposed to the real fight against the capitalist offensive. And for this reason they are against the united front and the World Labor Congress.

Comrades:—The Communist International felt it to be no easy matter to sit at the same table with those who are politically responsible for the murder of Rosa Luxemburg, Liebknecht and Connolly, with the representatives of the parties which have helped world capital to keep the proletariat four years in the service of [illegible]

Communist Workers:—You have the duty of carrying the lessons of the first attempt at establishing the united front of the proletariat to the broadest masses of the working class.

Workers of the parties of the Second and 2½ Internationals! It is your duty after these experiences with your leaders to undertake everything, to neglect nothing, in order to show your leaders who have forgotten their duty that you have no mind to permit the further sabotage of the united front, that you are determined to unite with the Communist workers in the struggle against the assaults of capital.

The slogan of the World Labor Congress will be the slogan of the coming fight! But the experiences of this first attempt to convene the World Labor Congress have proved that in order for it to be possible, it is necessary to break down the first line of resistance of the leaders of the Social Democratic parties in Germany and England, that it is necessary in these countries, in practical daily struggle, to consolidate the working masses without regard to what party they belong, into one united front which will then spread all over the world.

On to the struggle for the proletarian united front and the World Labor Congress!

Down with the united front of the Social Democrats and the bourgeoisie!

On to the Struggle

On to the fight against the leaders of the Second International, the splitters of the working class!

Create the united front from below upwards!

[illegible] The Worker on the newsstands, build up the subscription circulation as well as to raise funds.

These conferences have in the past been the most successful means of maintaining working-class organs. For a number of years they supported the Volkszeitung, the only German Communist organ in this country. These conferences can do the same for The Worker if all branches of the Party will send their most active members to take part in building up the circulation of The Worker to the 50,000 mark.

Comrades William F. Dunne, Editor of The Worker; Robert Minor, Cartoonist for The Worker; J. Louis Engdahl, Managing Editor of The Worker; Elmer T. Allison, Business Manager, and W. W. Weinstone of the Local will speak on the need and methods for building up a revolutionary working-class press.

Branches and sympathizing organizations are requested to send representatives to the first conference to be held on July 7th, Friday evening, 8 P. M., to the Toiler Building, 208 East 12th Street.

ARTISTS VS. WRITERS

For the first time the Liberator arranged an outdoor Gambol and Costume Ball for Saturday, July 22, at Midland Park, Grant City, Staten Island. We will make it one to be long remembered. This will be a red-letter event for artists, writers, futurists, poets, philosophers, flappers and reds.

A baseball game where beastly bludgeons will replace the pen and brush as weapons of combat when the artists and writers will at last decide which shall hold sway. Among those who will participate in this age-old feud will be Mike Gold, Robert Minor, William Gropper, Louis Engdahl, Ben Gitlow, C. E. Ruthenberg, Elmer T. Allison and others.

Then there will be a costume ball. An international array including Turkish, Arabic, Syrian, Greek; together with artist models, artists, writers, business men, dancers, prestidigitators, loafers, workers, thinkers, poets, politicians, statesmen, reformers, reds and a host of others, including hairy apes, will laugh, giggle, dance, talk, chatter, eat, forget the worries of life in the joy of living. Go home happy and contented and kill two birds with one bone.

might say in a few weeks, in getting into power over the whole of Russia—so it seemed at least—and afterwards lost its influence just as quickly and faded into insignificance.

Fate of the "S. R." Party

The approaching trial affords us the opportunity of reviewing the strange fate of the Social Revolutionary Party. This explains the interest it arouses; it is produced by the necessity for understanding and arriving at certain conclusions.

I will only touch on one side of the question here, which it seems to me has not received sufficient attention in our press and which is nevertheless of great importance: the position which the humbler sections of the party, the rank and file, its minor officials respectively held or now hold in the party.

At the beginning of the present century Plekhanoff called the Social Revolutionaries, "Social Reactionaries".

This was appropriate in so far as it described the petty-bourgeois, reactionary components of its world outlook which threatened to convert the party into a tool of bourgeois counter-revolution and did in fact so transform it.

Criticised the Terrorists

As soon as the petty-bourgeoisie separates itself from the proletariat it always inevitably becomes a tool of the bourgeoisie. In the struggle against Czarism and feudalism the party played a revolutionary role.

It aroused the peasants, it stirred large groups of young students to political activity, it assembled around its standard considerable groups of workers who were not yet either materially or mentally separated from the village and who considered the revolution not from the proletarian class point of view, but from the shapeless point of view of the "worker".

The terrorists entered into the duel and sacrificed their lives for the lives of Czarist dignitaries. We critized this method, for we were of the opinion that the Sazonovs and the Kaliayeffs would have been more useful to the cause of the revolution if they had combined their energy with the energy of the working masses instead of increasing their individual force by the explosive force of dynamite.

Shows Beginnings of Chasm

But our work among the masses, our criticism and our exposition of terror converted these terrorist acts into external incentives for the revolutionary activity of the masses.

It often happened at demonstrations that the most self-sacrificing Marxist workers went hand in hand with the self-sacrificing "Narodniki" workers in order to oppose the Czarist Police and Cossacks by armed force.

Later on these met in the prisons of Siberia, on the way to prison and in exile. Among the humbler sections of the party there were always excellent, determined and self-sacrificing elements to be found in spite of the theoretical vagueness of their ideas.

Already at that time a chasm was beginning to separate the young Petrograd textile worker belonging to the Social Revolutionary Party who at any moment was prepared to sacrifice his life for the cause of the working class, from the intellectuals of the Avksentiev type, from the Heidelberg and other students, philosophers, Kantians, Nietschians who at that time differed in no way from the petty-bourgeois radicals of France, with the exception of their greater illusions and their inferior culture.

Expose Tchernoff's Zig-zagging

At that time it was clear to the Marxists how widely these two groups would diverge from the influence of the "Narodniki" ideology, and the future parliamentarians, political place-hunters who for the moment were in no hurry to surrender their Socialist phraseology.

In consequence of the war and the revolution the dissolution of the Social Revolutionary Party was enormously accelerated.

The complete political and moral decay of the upper sections of the party was accelerated by the fact that the great events compelled clear and exact answers and did not permit of vacillation.

Thus we see how Tchernoff at Zimmerwald unexpectedly adhered to the Extreme Left, thus renouncing the idea of the "National Party" and how he later on sat in a bourgeois cabinet and recommended the July offensive hand in hand with the Entente countries.

This terribly zig-zag course of the leader of the party already foreshadowed its approaching final eclipse.

A great quantity of trained energy still existed in the party. The heroic past of the party (its sacrifices, the death sentences, Siberian hard labor, deportations) held, as a result of our backward social relations (the peasant majority!), the honest, subjectively revolutionary parts of the rank and file of the party under the party banner, at the time when the stupefied upper circles of the party had become perfectly ripe for open official flunkeyism to imperialism and counter-revolution.

The whole of the play of the Central Committee with the members of the fighting organizations, from the political and moral aspect, took place at the time of the transition period; the rank and file seriously accepted the slogans of the party, proceeded in the old direction and proceeded courageously to the end.

They were prepared to kill, to sacrifice their lives against other lives. Their subjective motives were revolutionary.

They were only behind the times, they did not see the enormous change that had taken place in the whole world situation.

The upper circles saw this. They knew all too well that the terrorist campaign against the Soviets was financed from the same monetary sources which but yesterday financed Nicholas against us and against the Social Revolutionaries.

The upper circles of the party could not be ignorant of this. They did not act influenced by their traditions and by inertia. They speculated upon gaining advantages; they were conscious of their treachery, of their part as renegades.

They therefore conducted this diplomatic play with themselves, with history, with the imperialist Allies and before all with their own party and the rank and file.

The Tchernoffs and the Avksentievs profited by the heroism of the Sazonovs and Kaliayeffs and placed the honest and self-sacrificing members of the organization at the disposal of Noulens and Lockhart.

When these members of the fighting organization grasped the significance of historical events in the new world situation, when they convinced themselves that they were throwing their bombs at the behest of the French Embassy and the Roumanian Embassy, they shrank back from their own deeds.

The more determined and self-sacrificing they had previously been in their fight against the Bolsheviks with the methods which the Social Revolutionaries learned during the time of suppression, the greater now was their indignation and resentment.

Some of them mediated longer than other, some went abroad, some placed their lives at the disposal of the Workers' Republic and carried out the most dangerous tasks on the front in the civil war.

Some are still wavering. With a sort of unfailing instinct however, the bourgeois press of the whole world denounced the stand taken by Semenov and Konopleya with the cry of "Renegades".

At the time of the blockade of Soviet Russia it came to the final opinion that the Social Revolutionaries of whom they previously knew nothing were only the Left Wing of the anti-Soviet front or a [illegible] fighting mechanism for the terrorist measures ordered from Paris and London.

And then one suddenly met with a revolt, a direct stroke of treachery on the part of this Left Wing! A betrayal of the cause which at present unites Tchernoff with Poincare.

The spiritual revolt of Semenov, Konopleva and others against the Central Committee of the party and against the real masters working behind the scenes of this Central Committee, against the Social Revolutionary Party in its actual attitude, is in reality the immediate consequence of all that the past of the Social Revolutionary Party has to show in revolutionary spirit and in heroism.

There is only one clear answer to the great and simple question: which and what cause were all these Social Revolutionaries serving who were killed in terrorist duels and in street battles, or died in Siberian hard labor and exile; the cause which is espoused by the Tchernoffs together with the Noulens, the Poincares and the Lloyd Georges, or the cause of the Workers' and Peasants' Soviet Russia which, as Genoa demonstrated, is fighting alone against the raging imperialist bloodhounds?

Those Social Revolutionaries who have stood up against the corrupt clique which is still [illegible] to profit by the revolutionary traditions of the party can declare with a calm conscience that they are the trustees of all that the past of the Social Revolutionary Party has to show in heroism and greatness during the time of suppression and illegal work.

BE A PARTNER OF SOVIET RUSSIA

For $10 you can buy a share in a company which has formed a partnership with the Russian Soviet Government. It will manufacture cloth, clothing, etc., in Moscow and Petrograd. Russia furnishes the plants, the workmen, the raw materials and the market. American working people are now furnishing the capital and the technical aid. Any profits over ten per cent will go to enlarging these factories and running others, so that the possibilities of the project are without limit. [illegible] Greeted by [illegible] Coal Camps of Ohio

By CALEB HARRISON

"By their deeds you shall know them," may be a trite saying, but it is rich in meaning.

The success of the Workers Party depends largely upon the energy and intelligence the membership displays in putting our program into action.

I reached Neffs, Ohio, to address a meeting. Neffs is a mining town located in the hills of Southern Ohio, near the Ohio River.

We have several branches of the Workers Party in Neffs, but no English branch.

In spite of obstacles the meeting was successful.

Miners present appreciated the talk so much that I was urged to return and address the meeting of the big local of the Miners' Union.

This I did. There was an election of officers, but the miners gathered early, and the president gave me the floor before they went into business.

The response to our message to the striking miners was wonderful and the American members seemed the most enthusiastic.

In spite of the strike situation they insisted upon taking up a collection as a contribution toward our work.

I spoke in Bellaire, where we have a good local of active comrades, many of them active in the Miners' Union.

I went back into the hills again to Fairpoint, a town like Neffs in size and makeup. The miners were to have a meeting, but gave way to our meeting, which was held in a field down by a creek where a platform is erected for just such purposes. At the appointed time the miners began to come from all directions; men of many races and tongues.

In Fairpoint we have a local of the Workers Party, but like many places there is no American branch. The American workers recognize that the foreigners make the best of union men, but they stood aloof heretofore from political contact with their foreign brothers — they felt too superior

But times are changing: the class struggle rages. American miners at that meeting were just as enthusiastic as the foreigners. At the close of my speech I soon learned why the miners were so serious and thoughtful.

At Uniontown, five miles away, a strip mine was opened and 20 scabs are working. A group of national guardsmen, armed with six machine guns stand guard over the scabs.

At nighttime powerful searchlights sweep the countryside for miles around and woe to any unsuspecting person who goes too near that scab mine.

This is enough to make the miners serious, but, then, on top of that the operators of Clarkson Mine No. 2 have asked for men to go into the mine to clean it of fallen rock and coal. The miners see in this a trick on the part of the company to get the mine in operation.

They have stoutly refused to go into the mine, holding that this mine was closed by a shut-down ever since last August and the company never thought of having it cleaned until the strike.

Then into the scene came the organiser of the sub-district, Joe Angelo, who told the miners that according to their contract someone must go in to clean that mine; that the strike would be over in two weeks anyway. He made a threat that if the local would not allow any one to go in he would order men in and if they refused to obey, or if anyone interfered he would bring a policeman along, have them arrested and thrown out of the union.

In the discussion we had the miners learned that they could call Joe Angelo's bluff; and to his assertion that the strike would end in two weeks they would call his attention to John L. Lewis' present efforts to get the railroaders on strike together with the miners.

The Workers Party is going to become a factor in these parts.

Total, $344.30.

There are more than 700 branches of the Workers Party. Even an average contribution of $10 per branch will enable the party to carry thru this campaign successfully.

Do you want an active party, a party which is a driving force in the class struggle? You can help make the Workers Party that by backing the United Front Campaign Fund.

Let every party branch, every party member, support this first effort to make our party "A Party of Action."

From our first success we will go forward to others. A United Front will win that success.

Technical Aid Plans to Film Famine Aid Groups at July Picnic

The following letter has been sent to all organizations active in famine relief work by the New York Branch of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia:

"Comrades and Fellow-Workers:

"The Roll Call, issued and circulated by the Friends of Soviet Russia, when sent to that famine-stricken country, will, indeed, be a wonderful testimonial of the solidarity of the working class of America with the proletariat of the First Workers' Republic that continues to fight against terrific odds for the International Labor Movement.

"In and near New York City there is an army of class-conscious and forward-looking workers always on the job to put successfully across all activities connected with the strenuous task assumed by the F. S. R. We find the name of your organization entered as an active unit in the list furnished to us by the Friends of Soviet Russia.

"Along with the Roll Call the F. S. R. wishes to send to Soviet Russia, as soon as possible, motion pictures of all groups that have been instrumental in saving the lives of the starving in Russia. All these groups in the vicinity of New York will be "filmed" at the picnic arranged by the New York Branch of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia, July 16, at Dickert's Old Point Park, 4018 Boston Road, Bronx. These pictures will be shown wherever possible in Russia. Imagine what this will mean to the workers of Russia!

"We urge you to give this matter your most careful attention and widest publicity. Notify all your members by mail at once! Have a sign or banner made with the name of your organization in black or red on a white background. Avoid blue. Bring your flag to the picnic. If you are affiliated with the F. S. R., state so on your banner.

"Appoint or elect a captain to take charge of your group. Instruct your captain immediately upon arriving at the park to get in touch with Allan S. Broms, the official camera man of the Friends of Soviet Russia.

"Admission will be 50 cents each. Ten per cent of the clear proceeds will be turned over to the F. S. R. for famine relief.

"We take this opportunity to assure you that this picnic will not be an ordinary affair, even outside the moving picture feature. A very elaborate program is being prepared for the occasion by Com. G. Koukly, graduate of the Petrograd Conservatory of Music. Games and folksong singing will be conducted by experienced leaders, and prizes will be given away in a number of contests.

"We suggest that those of your members, who have some odd or distinctly national costumes, bring those costumes to the picnic. Accommodations have been provided to change and check your clothes without cost.

"Gates will open at 12 A. M

"Fraternally yours,
"A. Chorover,
"Secretary Arrangements Committee.

"P.S. Advise your members to take along lunch for the day, as we are permitted to sell only soft drinks, candy and fruit.

"All organizations which for some reason have not received the above letter should at once communicate with A. Chorover, Secretary Arrangements Committee, 240 East 23d Street, New York City."

[illegible] the U. S. A. [illegible] They established a "Senate" consisting of managers, foremen, etc. and a house of representatives consisting of representatives of the various crafts employed in the shops, the latter body being supervised by the former. The benevolent bosses called the two mills where this regime was established the "Harmony" mills.

Everything was harmonious for a while, but at last came a time when the knitters sent two representatives into the lower house who attempted to represent the workers. Immediately the harmony was destroyed. These representatives of the workers were sent back, and the knitters were told to send some one who would work harmoniously, which meant, of course, some one who would accept without question anything the bosses attempted to thrust upon the workers.

Of course, the knitters said "Nothing Doing," and the workers in both these mills are now on strike trying to force the bosses to live up to their own conception of industrial democracy.

There is a valuable lesson in this affair not only for the textile and other workers of the Cohoes but for the entire working class of America. It is this: Any plan of industrial democracy proposed by the employers is a fraud; and on the political field the lesson is the same. The political democracy of the bourgeoisie state exists only for the purpose of fooling the workers. Any successful attempt of the workers to send representatives to any political offices will serve but to prove the Capitalist state to be what it is,—the veiled dictatorship of the owning class, just as the industrial democracy of the "Harmony" mills proved to be but the veiled dictatorship of the mill owners.

Workers, make haste. Send your representatives to the state's assembly, to congress, to the governor's chair. You will the quicker learn that for you to be really represented, for you to really get what you want and must have, you must thru your organized power establish a government of your own.

Manifesto on Herrin Armed Struggle

"The Administrative Council of the Workers Party of America," has issued a stirring manifesto on the armed struggle between the striking miners and the mine guards and scabs at Herrin, Ill.

It lays the blame for the bloodshed entirely upon the shoulders of the capitalist class in its union-smashing campaign, and points out that such occurrences are inevitable in the intensification of the class struggle.

The only way for the workers to win this struggle, it is pointed out, is to build a United Front of Labor. The program for such a step was outlined in the recent proclamation issued by the party. The "Armed Struggle" manifesto has been issued in two-page leaflet form for distribution among the miners, and is sold in quantities at 25 cents per 100, $2.00 per 1000.

On Monday, July 3rd, he will address a general membership meeting on the subject of "The United Front." Sunday, July 2nd, he will address a big Workers Party Picnic in Waukegan, Ill.

[illegible] THE WORKER [illegible] readers on our mail lists, must enter this campaign at once.

THEY MUST WORK, they must approach every worker they meet on the job, in the unions, wherever and whenever they meet and secure their subscriptions. IT IS EASY. The low price of 20 WEEKS FOR 50 CENTS is a special inducement which will appeal to every worker with an atom of working class psychology.

SCORES OF COMRADES are on the job getting these 20 week subscriptions. More must join them. The campaign must be carried to a successful outcome. It can be done. It will be done—with the co-operation of all WORKER readers. We appeal to you as class-conscious workers to join the number who are carrying this campaign to victory.

HELP IN YOUR WAY, but help! There are various ways in which you can help get subscriptions. 1st, you can order a number of 20 week subscription cards at 50 cents each, paying for them in advance. Sell the cards afterwards. 2nd, you can order some of these cards and pay for them as they are sold. 3rd, you can secure the subscriptions of the workers in your shop by circulating copies of THE WORKER and a list for subscriptions. 4th, you can appeal to your Workers Party Branch for subs. And 5th, you can take a bundle of THE WORKER to sell in your shop, your Party Branch and your union. These are a few of the ways you can help. But help you must. Take your choice of ways, BUT GET ON THE JOB. Help make this campaign a success. Put THE WORKER in the hands of 25,000 new readers within the next three months.

THEY SAY—

Comade Katzan writes from Newport, L. I., that the three new readers he sends us are anxious to have full reports of the A. F. of L. convention.

A. A. fills a list of ten new subscribers from Bangor, Maine.

The Pittsburgh, Pa., Local has doubled its bundle order of The Worker a number of times recently. Now, under the impetus of nightly street meetings under the able leadership of Comrade Fred Merrick, District Organizer, 700 copies are being sold weekly.

"Am sending a list of new subscribers under your special 20-week rate. I hope they will all become steady subscribers from now on. Your paper is the best of its kind and regret that it has not a circulation of twenty millions. Let us hope it will have.

"Edw. Laremore,
"Wolf Point, Mont."

There were 12 on the List.

"Will send you some more soon," writes Comrade A. A. Buehler, of Kansas City, who sends in two 20-week subscribers.

Comrade Guillod, Canton, Ohio, sends in a list of thirteen names and promises there will be more to follow. We feel sure of it.

Here's a boy who has the proper spirit. Read his letter. "I am a school boy and I want to make money to pay for my bicycle. I believe I can work up a route for The Worker and sell a good-sized bundle each week.

"My father and mother don't want me to sell the capitalist papers that are poisoning the people's minds, and so I am going to sell working-class papers.

John C. Smith,
Phoenix, Ariz.

A healthy list of 12 new ones arrived from Comrade Master, Reading, Pa.

Five new ones and a promise of more come from Comrade Bailinson, Passaic, N. J.

THE RECORD SHOWS—

A slight gain over last week in the number of subscriptions received. The total received this week being 187, last week 175.

This is a small gain, but the records show that a larger number of comrades are taking up the work of getting Worker subscriptions.

Several hundred of the special 20-week subscription cards were ordered by Locals and District offices this past week. We feel that when these cards are "working" in the field the results will be gratifying.

The coming weeks must continue to show a constant increase in subscriptions secured. Increases, not in tens only, but in hundreds. This is possible. All that's needed is more comrades to take up the work of getting them.

What will next week's record show? It depends upon YOU as much as upon anyone. Order some 20-week sub cards TO-DAY and sell them to the workers of your acquaintance. Order them for all meetings of your Local, your union, your society. Get on the job.

SHOW RUSSIAN SLIDES

The Bronx Section of the Workers Party will show 300 stereopticon slides of Soviet Russia, the revolution and the famine at an open-air mass meeting at 163rd St. and Prospect Ave., Thursday, July 6. These pictures will be shown thru the courtesy of the Friends of Soviet Russia. Comrade Rafael Mallen has been exhibiting these slides to large audiences in the West. Comrades Mallen and Ray Ragozin will be the speakers. No charge will be made.

[illegible] striking Miners," the Unemployment Council of New York is arranging two weeks of activities for the striking and starving miners.

The miners are in a most difficult position. Scabbed on by the other unions that refuse to support them in their strike, they are conducting a most valiant fight for the working class of the country.

The bosses are determined to make an example of the miners if they can. They see a reasonable opportunity to break up their union by making division agreements which will be but the beginning of a campaign to break up the union entirely. Once having settled that problem, they will proceed to the less militant unions.

The railroad men are facing strike. Their strike will fail if the miners' strike is broken.

Meantime, the miners are not only striking, but also starving. It is high time, that the workers of the country as a whole are doing something. Is this what the workers of this country call solidarity? Or is the working class going to wake up and stand by the miners?

The Unemployment Council is arranging two weeks of activities to assist the striking miners. Street meetings will be held in all parts of the city in the weeks of July 3 to 15, at which the significance of the strike will be explained, and collections taken up for the miners and their families.

It is hoped to have Dwyer, the mine leader and member of the executive board of the United Mine Workers of America, speak.

Benjamin Schlesinger, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, was chosen delegate of the American Federation of Labor to the British Trade Union Congress. That's Gompers' "reward your friends" policy in action.

Make Men Die by Advertising

Seldom do we get such a frank confession of the propaganda power of the capitalist press as has just come from the lips of Sir Charles F. Higham, M.P., English advertising man, in addressing the New York Press Club.

Sir Higham berated the editors presented for not using their columns more to frighten their readers over the consequences of the railroad strike of July 1st.

He said he had looked in vain for any propaganda telling of the dangers of this strike; "how it will affect the minds of your young people; what it will do to spread Bolshevism."

Then the British knight launched out as follows:

> "American men and women ought never to go on strike. There are surely enough editors who so mold public opinion as to make them love their country too much to hurt it. During the war, newspaper propaganda sent millions of men to war, many of whom did not return. If you can make men die by advertisement, you can make them live, too."

Sir Higham doesn't really mean that the capitalist press can make people live by advertisement. That is part of the subtlety of his propaganda. He merely means that the propaganda of the kept press can keep life in the present social system by deluding and confusing the masses.

Continued life for capitalism means death and misery for the many, both in war and in peace.

The workers will only be able to conduct a real propaganda for life, liberty and happiness when they have complete control of the press and all other instruments of publicity and propaganda.

Then for the first time will the press really carry advertisements, in every printed word, telling the workers how to live, because that will be the real mission of the Communist order that will be erected on the ashes of capitalism.

Gompers' own press service is sending out feature articles on "Suppressed News." But the editor of the Wilmington, Del., Labor Herald made the mistake of running this article next column to Matthew Woll's report of Gompers' efforts to suppress the Federated Press, the only real labor news service in the country. Some of these Gompers' labor editors should not permit the right hand to know what the left hand is doing. Their readers might get wise.

Breaking All Precedents

Unusual scenes and events characterize the proceedings of the trial of counter-revolutionaries in Moscow, Soviet Russia.

These developments are very disconcerting to the kept press, and especially to their strongest allies, the renegade "Socialists."

The great demonstrations of workers in the streets before the Kremlin, where the trial is being held, and the appearance of workers' representatives before the court, is especially declared to be unusual.

This was even admitted by Prosecutor Krylenko, in urging that Moscow and Petrograd workmen, on the anniversary of the assassination of Volodarsky and the attempted assassination of Uritsky, be heard by the trial court.

Krylenko said: "I know that this procedure, according to bourgeois law, probably is unprecedented, and that Soviet Russia will be attacked for permitting it. Nevertheless, there have been many times when the Soviets have gone against old precedents. The workingmen should be permitted to talk, as we are only carrying out their wishes."

The Moscow and Petrograd workers charged that the counter-revolutionaries on trial were not only guilty of taking the life of Volodarsky and the attempted slaying of Uritsky, but also of the effort to assassinate Lenin, the bullet having been fired by Dora Kaplan, as she confessed, under orders from the Central Committee of the Social Revolutionary Party.

These events prove, as nothing else, that the Soviet Government is a workers and peasants government, a rule of the many and not of the few.

Imagine the capitalist court at Charles Town, West Va., trying to stage a demonstration of coal miners in favor of the conviction of William Blizzard on the charge of treason, of which he was acquitted.

The West Virginia court was so frightened at the presence of the few workers in attendance that strict orders were issued and repeated, against any form of demonstration in the court room, even after the verdict was rendered.

Imagine the capitalist court of Kansas trying to stage a demonstration of coal miners in favor of sending Alex Howat and August Dorchy to jail. Every possible effort was made by the sheriff and other local authorities to prevent demonstrations even after the trial was over.

In the Communist trials, wherever they have been held, workers have been barred from the court room, on every pretext, and where they have managed to secure entrance, they have been threatened with contempt of court, with fines and jail sentences if they displayed any sign of approval of the stand taken by those on trial.

So capitalist justice, the expression of the few who dominate in the social order of today outside of Soviet Russia, are shocked and amazed at events transpiring in Red Moscow.

Clinking gold, speaking on behalf of sacred and inalienable property rights, utters the words that are heard by judges on the court benches of America.

How different in Soviet Russia. Let us repeat the words of Krylenko, the prosecutor, who was formerly the Red Ensign of the Soviet Navy, when he said:

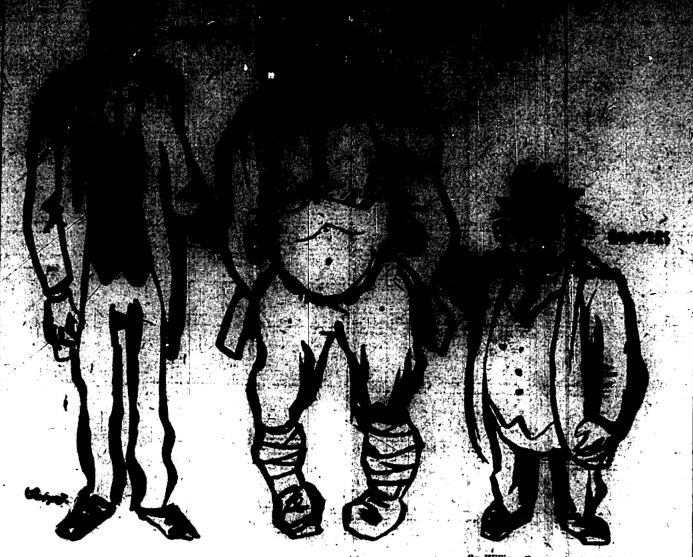
"The workingmen should be permitted to talk, as we are only carrying out their wishes."

Workers of America! You now see that Communist justice speaks your hopes! It seeks to realize your aspirations! It fights your battles!

We repeat again the inscription that appears on the banner that hangs on the wall back of the judge presiding over this Communist Court in Moscow's Kremlin:

"The proletariat court is the safeguard of the people's revolution."

Take your stand on the side of Communism and the revolution.



By William Gropper in the Volkszeitung

"The American Federation of Labor itself merely permits us to exist—little else," declares Henry R. Linville, president, Teachers' Union, New York. Another example of Gompers' efforts to hobble the labor movement of this country. Yet Linville points out, "Organized Labor must take note of what is being taught the children in the public schools of America, or fight a losing fight."

Sir Henry Wilson

Field Marshall Sir Henry Wilson, one of the gallant butchers who superintended England's part of the murder campaign carried on in Europe for over four years, himself met with sudden death by the instrument with which he settled many difficulties for the Imperial masters whose hireling he was.

While the capitalist press is shedding crocodile tears over the killing of this sanctimonious butcher—who like Oliver Cromwell killed and slaughtered conquered people in the name of the Lord—it is well for us to study his record and learn to what Lord he owed allegiance and what order he obeyed.

He was born in Ireland of English ascendancy stock—of that brood of prostitutes who were given land in Ireland stolen from the rightful owners in consideration for unswerving loyalty to the English throne and a willingness to do any dirty work that his British Majesty called for. Of that tribe Wilson was a worthy and not degenerate descendant.

When the Irish Home Rule Bill was passed thru the Houses of Commons and Lords in 1914 and signed by the King Wilson occupied a high military position in Ireland and was one of those who disobeyed the command of the British government to march into Ulster and preserve order.

Sir Edward Carson, afterwards a member of the British cabinet, openly advocated rebellion against a law passed by his Majesty's government. Sir Henry Wilson afterwards Chief of Staff of the British Armies, was guilty of a breach of discipline for which a common soldier would be shot. He refused to obey the government because the passage of the Irish Home Rule Bill meant to a certain extent the curbing of the power of the reactionaries in Ireland, and England. Therefore Sir Henry, a soldier of the King refused to obey the King but called upon all true Britons to rally to the Irish Tories who were then upholding the banner of Black Reaction in the British Isles.

The sudden outbreak of the World War prevented a civil war in Great Britain in which this loyal soldier of reaction played such a prominent part in fomenting.

During the war, Sir Henry fought for self-determination for Poland. In the meantime the Irish struck out for self-determination on their own hook and got murdered for their pains.

It was this scoundrel's government that murdered James Connolly in 1916. We might add that Arthur Henderson of the Second International was in on it too.

After the war for democracy was fought, Ireland by a great majority voted for an Independent Republic.

England retaliated by wholesale shooting, but all the bullets have not been flying in one direction.

A short time ago England decided to grant certain concessions to the South of Ireland which were accepted—the South not being in a position to continue the uneven combat any longer.

But even this small concession angered Major General Sir Henry Wilson so he offered his services to Sir James Craig, premier of Ulster, to subdue the nationalist element which form a majority of the province of Ulster.

After Sir Henry became Military Chief of Ulster murder was the order of the day. The Catholic workers of Belfast influenced by the radical Irish Transport Workers' Union were making common cause with their protestant brothers against the Ulster capitalists.

Sir Henry made war on both Catholic workers and Protestant labor organizers. He aroused religious frenzy to a high pitch with the result that thousands of workers have been either killed or driven from their homes into exile and starvation.

As a result of his policy murder reigns supreme in the City of Belfast and the workers of both religions are completely at the mercy of the Orange bosses.

Communists do not advocate assassination as a weapon against their enemies. They know that the capitalist system and not individuals are to blame for the inequalities that have made of this world a hell for the propertyless.

They know, however, that the ruling classes—particularly of Europe—have used assassination in disposing of troublesome leaders of their subject peoples and the British government has been lavish in the use of that weapon in Ireland.

The workers who have had to bear the murder of James Connolly in Ireland, the murders of Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg in Germany, the murders of thousands of workers in Russia by the hired assassins of capitalism are not going to shed any tears over the passing away of the professional murderer, Major-General Sir Henry Wilson, the military leader of British Toryism.

Court Upholds Counter-Revolution

Strange doctrines for an alleged "democratic" form of government are voiced by the Illinois Supreme Court in upholding the convictions of 18 members of the former Communist Labor Party.

It declares that the property owners of today, material for the making of future counter-revolutionists, will not surrender to a rising social order without resorting to force and violence.

The Illinois Supreme Court thereupon endorses and takes its stand on the side of counter-revolution by declaring that Communists, who believe in the change from capitalism to Communism, must be and will be held responsible for the violence and bloodshed that will be brought on by the property-owning capitalist class.

So far as we know this is the first time, since the Russian Revolution, that such doctrines have been voiced by American courts. This part of the Illinois court's decision says:

> "Their (the Communists) platform and program do not expressly advocate use of weapons and physical force in accomplishing these needs (taking charge of and appropriating all property thru a proletarian dictatorship), but they are chargeable with the knowledge that their aims and ends cannot be accomplished without force, violence and bloodshed.
> "They try to make us believe that their program is a peaceful one, and that, when confronted with the mob in mass strike, owners whose property was theretofore under protection of the government, would surrender it without use of force and violence. This is too incredible to require discussion."

We remember that a certain document, called the Declaration of Independence, contains the following:

> "Whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends (life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness), it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its power in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness."

When this issue of THE WORKER reaches its readers Fourth of July orators will be preparing their flowery orations in tribute to the Declaration of Independence and the Revolutionary forefathers.

Many will be told that it was under the inspiration of this Declaration that the American colonists fought thru seven years of revolutionary war to victory against British oppression.

These Fourth of July orators will not link this rebellion against misrule with the great Civil War, nearly a century later, that swept away the system of chattel slavery after five years of internal strife.

They will certainly not link it up with the struggle of the young Communist movement in this country, in common with the Communist movement thruout the world, in blazing new paths toward human freedom in these trying days. The processes of evolution do not exist for them.

Communists will agree with the Illinois Supreme Court in the stand that no ruling class will surrender without a struggle. But they do charge that, even as British oppression was guilty of the revolutionary war, even as chattel slavery was guilty of the Civil War, so upon the heads of the present ruling class rests all the crimes of capitalism, even the final counter-revolution that it will wage against the awakened workers in their struggle to achieve Communism.

The Illinois Supreme Court, as an instrument of capitalism, has placed its endorsement upon that final counter-revolution. This position will no doubt be upheld by the United States Supreme Court.

But, let the workers understand, that in making that ruling, the courts of today stand in the position of British misrule in 1776, they stand at the side of the chattel slave owners of 1861.

The courts of today oppose the abolition of wage slavery, just as the opponents of evolution in the last two centuries opposed the cry of the bourgeois colonists for political independence in the Revolutionary War, and the demand of free labor in the Civil War for the wiping out of chattel slavery as this nation was about to launch forth upon an era of intensive capitalist development.

It is the Communist movement of today that stands as the inheritor of this war for liberation from a foreign yoke, and of the struggle for the emancipation of the Negro race from human slavery's chains.

And as such, we mock at court decisions and march forward to inevitable victory. The counter-revolution is always defeated in time in the struggle with revolution.

Political prisoners whose wives and children are picketing the White House to secure their release will be punished by the Administration. Their cases will be held back by the Department of Justice until all other cases have been reviewed and sent to the President with recommendations for [illegible] reduction of sentences to a peace time basis. Another [illegible] added to the long list of [illegible] of the Harding administration.

[illegible] price that is placed [illegible] under varying circumstances.

It has been known that several thousands of dollars have been obtained from big corporations for the loss of a life in a railroad accident or some other catastrophe. This achievement is usually accomplished after a long court struggle.

Thugs in the slums of our large cities have been known to take human life for a price, $10, $25 and up.

But it remained for Mrs. Angelina Vircenza, who lived in the Bronx, New York City, to set the price on her own life the other day.

Sold for $400.

She had been saved from the flames that were sweeping her home. When in perfect safety she remembered the family savings—$400—and dashed back into the hungry fire and perished.

She was faced with the choice of her own life and the small family treasure that had no doubt been amassed, pennies at a time, thru great sacrifice, thru robbing her little family of four of many small necessities.

That $400 represented to this mother all that was worth living for. It was the biggest thing in life to her or she would not have given her life to rescue it.

Such is the tragedy of the present social system. The great masses of the workers are burdened down in agony in the struggle for the barest necessities of life. All the sunshine that life holds is the small savings that may be swept away by to-morrow's misfortune. That gone, all is gone.

Humans Thrown on Scrap Heap.

To wage that struggle against necessity children are sent into the factories, women become prostitutes, men turn criminals, in that struggle many commit suicide others are mentally or physically wrecked and thrown on the scrap heap human by-products of the system.

No one will deny that under capitalism human life is the cheapest thing in the world. In a Communist society it will be the most precious treasure on earth. Everything possible will be done to safeguard it.

That is the hope of the workers, the peasants and the soldiers of Soviet Russia, the hope that has kept them struggling against every foe, fighting on and on in the face of what at times seemed certain defeat.

Beyond the civil wars, interventions, the plague, the famine, the breakdown of industry they always saw the sun of Communism rising, higher and higher, and they struggled on.

War on "The System."

With their land finally freed from the clutches of capitalism they see human life realizing ever greater possibilities, the children taken out of industry and placed in the schools, women restored to their homes and those they love, men fully rewarded for the social service they render, the weak in mind and body aided instead of despised, in a word, human life glorified.

When Communism comes to America, the men and women of that day will look back upon these days as an era of savage barbarism.

They will read with great curiosity of the woman who gave up her life to save a paltry $400. They will be forced to suppress a smile, not only because helpless and ignorant people should offer their lives for sale but that they should sell them so cheaply.

If we must sell our lives in these days let us sell them as dearly as possible in the war to end the present brutalizing social system called capitalism.

"Prison Athlete"

By RALPH CHAPLIN,
Author of "Bars and Shadows"

The prison athlete walks across the yard,
A grey dull thing—one of the numbered throng.
Before him stalks an old and wizened ghoul—
Death leading life— a blended curse and song.

He stands within the shadow of the tower
And sheds his shameful garments one by one;
Then steps to where the coolly gushing shower
Flashes its strings of diamonds in the sun.

RAILWAY LABOR BOARD BECOMES NEW STRIKEBREAKING AGENCY FOR ROADS

RUSSIAN WORKER DELIVERS A SMASHING REPLY TO EMMA GOLDMAN'S LYING AND MISLEADING ARTICLES

Labor Board Rule Forces Strike Shopmen Quit on All Roads Double Cross Given by Grable

The railway shop crafts, machinists, boilermakers, blacksmiths, car repairers and electricians, are on strike on all the railroads. For all practical purposes it is a one hundred per cent walkout, reports showing that but a handful of these workers remained on the job at scattered terminals. Four hundred thousand men are involved.

The Railway Labor Board, thru Chairman Hooper, has made public announcement of its intention to act as a strikebreaking agency and has assured men taking the places of the strikers that they will have the full protection of the federal government. It has further announced its intention of encouraging the organization of the stikebreakers and their recognition by the Board as the legitimate successors of the striking unions.

With this announcement of the Board the inevitable doublecross makes its appearance in the desertion of the striking shop crafts by the officials of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Workers. Altho the membership had voted solidly for a strike, President Grable of the Brotherhood has ordered his members to [illegible] and take up all grievances with individual roads. For this desertion of the shopmen the Maintenance of Way Workers have received nothing but a promise that their grievances will be "considered", when they reach the Board after months of negotiation with the railroad managements.

In railway labor circles the action of President Grable and his subordinates is looked upon as one of the most inexcusable violations of union principle in the history of the labor movement.

Interest now centers around the action of the railway clerks, who are balloting on a strike, and their reaction to the default of the maintenance of way workers.

The pickets of the shopmen are rapidly organizing and the railroads have already recruited large forces of guards and gunmen and have thrown complete cordons around their most important plants.

Being chiefly engaged in repairing mechanical apparatus which the roads have been putting in shape for a strike the effects of the cessation of work may not be felt acutely for some little time altho numerous delays in passenger traffic have already occurred.

It is believed that the next step of the government will be to try and prevent any further tightening of the tentative alliance betwen the miners and the striking railway workers.

Rail Workers Strike as Harding Talks

By LAURENCE TODD
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON. At the moment when President Harding was reading his speech to the representatives of the bituminous coal operators and the United Mine Workers, admonishing them in vain to settle the coal strike quickly two thousand railroad workers in the shops of the capital city were laying down their tools and walking out inaugurating the rail strike forced upon them by the administration.

"This is no time for the militant note of the radical who would prefer to destroy our social system," said Harding, in his speech to the coal miners. Yet at the other end of town, the railroad shopmen held him responsible for attempting to destroy the foundations of their social status.

"We know," said Wm H. Johnston, president International Association of Machinists, "that the railroad labor board, in destroying our national agreement, was carrying out Mr. Harding's wishes. He told Mr. Jewell that 'the national agreement must go,' and refused to hear our side of the case. He had heard the railroad managers' side, and he pronounced judgment which the railroad labor board carried out. It may be that in reducing our wages the board is carrying out his instructions.

Signatures Pouring in For Amnesty

(By The Federated Press)

Opening of the drive for a half milion New York signatures to the monster petition for the release of all political prisoners, which is to be presented to President Harding this month, brought almost immediate promise of more than 100,000 signatures here. Forty thousand signatures have been guaranteed by the cloak and skirt makers alone, thru the action of their joint board. All the shop chairmen of the organization are to act as petition agents to get the signatures of all the workers in their respective shops."

Similar action is being taken by the Fur Workers' International Union thru its Joint board, represented by A. Brownstein, and by the dress and waist makers' organization of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. The dress and waist makers have 15,000 affiliated members, and have guaranteed that number of signatures thru the agency of their shop chairmen.

Others which have pledged support include the Millinery and Ladies Straw Hat Workers, Bonnaz Embroiderers, the pants, vest and skirt makers of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America; and within a week it is believed that every affiliated organization in the needle trades industry will have quietly but earnestly engaged in the voluntary enrollment of its members thru the shop chairman system.

Herrin Scabs Deny Atrocity Tales of Press

By TOM TIPPETT
(Federal Press Staff Correspondent)

HERRIN, Ill.—Strange tales of double crossing are told by the wounded mine strikebreakers in the hospital here, to which they were taken after the bloodshed of June 22.

The hospital, unguarded, is in the heart of the city. After hours spent with the survivors I am convinced that Attorney Bull's alarm for their safety is not shared by the victims, who say they were betrayed into the [illegible] agencies at the behest of the coal company.

The first man seen was Ed. Green, who lives, according to his story, at 1230 W. Madison St., Chicago. He declares he has been a union man all his life and deplores his present disgrace. He asserts that John Tracy of the Steam Shovelers and Dredgemen's International Union, Chicago, sent him to what he thought was a "union shovel job." He was met at the train in the night by the mine superintendent, McDowell, now dead, and taken to the mine which he discovered the next morning was surrounded by armed guards. He protested to the boss and was told that he would be shot if he attempted to escape. Four other members of this union, sent to the mine under similar conditions, were killed, according to Green.

The next cot held Ed. Miller, a handsome Swede, who told of a long period of idleness in Chicago and of being hired by an employment agency on W. Madison St., Chicago. As a special inducement for this job the usual fee of one week's pay and train fare was waived in this instance and free shipment was offered to a "track job on a shovel in Illinois." Miller's body holds two bullets and chances for his recovery are slight.

The next room contained a dying Irishman with eight bullet holes in his writhing body. "I didn't know," was all he could gasp. Beside him clasping a crucifix was his mother, a little white-haired woman, who had arrived from Chicago. Old and bent, she presented a tragic figure, softly whispering between her prayers, "My boy, my boy!"

Apparently all the gunmen had escaped or were killed, but their timekeeper, Allen Findlay, shot thru the thigh, was able to talk. With uncanny frankness he said he was not a gunman, but their bookkeeper, and was sent to the mine by The Edward J. Hargrave Secret Service, 145 N. Clark St., Chicago. Twenty-six guards had been sent to protect machinery in case of violence. In his opinion they were employed by the coal company to reduce their insurance. The chief in charge, he said, was Morris Delaney, who received $14 per day and board. Common "gunners" were paid $5 per day and were expected to "work a little when things were quiet."

The stories of atrocities, circulated in the metropolitan press, were branded as lies by all the wounded men. The concensus of opinion among the sufferers was that the arch crime against them was committed before they came to the coal field, by a scheming coal company plotting with unscrupulous employment and detective agencies who do not hesitate to betray workmen to their deaths.

Russ Worker Answers Emma Shows Her in her True Colors Refutes Her Lies With Facts

(We have received the following contribution from [illegible], at one time organizer of anarchist groups, editor of "Ninth Wave" and "[illegible]" in Odessa at the beginning of 1919. He was asked in a letter by a comrade what he thought of the articles of Emma Goldman presently being published by the New York World and other papers, and his reply has been sent to us.)—Ed. Note.

Your letter and your apprehension that I might agree with Emma Goldman sounds like an insult to me. You ask my opinion about Emma's articles, about her right to throw mud at the Russian Communists, to vilify the Soviet administration. I would like my answer to you to serve as an open letter to Goldman herself; maybe we can arouse her sense of shame if she has any. I cannot agree with people of the type of Goldman and Berkman, because I am a worker, born in the ranks of workers, suffering the miseries of their lot and knowing only their point of view. I am not a lying American sensation-monger, as Goldman is, and am only taking pains to make the matter clear in the interest of my fellow-workers. I am a revolutionist, and not a prostitute of revolution. [illegible] with her in Soviet Russia, [illegible] conversation with her was sufficient for me to understand what kind of revolutionist she was; to show me the limited nature of her capacity to appreciate the changes that had taken place in Russia since October, 1917.

In my letter I want to show you that Emma, notorious Emma, is only a hysterical, shameless liar; she is an enemy of the workers (a class enemy); a representative of the bourgeois stream of thought, nothing different from suffragism, and like suffragism, no business of the workers.

Neither Russian Nor Revolutionist

You are mistaken when you imagine that she is a Russian, or that she is a revolutionist. She is a Polish Jewess, not the same type of Jew as Trotsky, who is an internationalist, but of the Jew type who is found in all large American cities in the old-clothes business, and she is possessed of the same psychology. She is like the other Jewess who attempted to assassinate Lenin, Fanya Kaplan, and those others of their faith who consider Trotsky their deadliest enemy.

She is not a revolutionist as you cannot call a drunken man who is fighting with a policeman on the street a revolutionist, or suffragists who pour acid into the letter boxes. Raised in America, the land of "boom," she is far from an understanding of revolutionary honesty. We, Russians may be very bad as men, but as revolutionists we use judgment as to how to behave in all the events of life so that we may not injure the revolutionary movement. Practice teaches us many things. We are brutal and unpolished, but straight and truthful.

"Why didn't Pontifical Kropotkin attack the Bolsheviki?" asks Emma Goldman, and replies, at the same time, "because he is honest and an old revolutionary guard." How dare he fight the men who are leading the revolution, and fighting against the whole organized imperialist world? How dare he give help to the enemy since he saw already the result of his help to French and world imperialism during the course of the so-called Great War? Emma herself states in her article, "He couldn't fight the Bolsheviki. He could not, like some of the old revolutionary guard, make common cause with the enemies of the revolution. Even had he found a way of having his protests published in the European press, the reactionists would have used them against Russia. No, he could not do that."

Dictatorship Only Way

Is she stupid or dishonest? Since she proclaims against herself in these articles that aid the enemies of the revolution and are against the struggling workers of Russia, I believe she is both—stupid and dishonest.

Your general mistake is that I, after my journey to Soviet Russia, am the same kind of anarchist as I was before. Of course not. The great Socialist revolution in Russia has made me, like 99 out of every 100 honest anarchists, a revolutionist, not of Kropotkin's, but of Lenin's type; because there is no party of the workers in the world more revolutionary and more extreme than the party led by Comrade Lenin. There is no other way to reach Communism than the way of proletarian dictatorship, and Communist society is a society without a state, the ideal of the anarchist.

Planning and Acting

I will try, point by point, to answer all the lying stuff of Emma, who desires to be a gravedigger of the Russian revolution, which is only a grave for her anarchistic ideals. She found the whole world a graveyard of thoughts and ideas and she only makes one mistake; she should say, "anarchistic thoughts and ideals." It is the end of so-called philosophic anarchism, because the Russian revolution has shown to the whole world that not peoples, not masses, but class-conscious revolutionary minorities perform the tasks of the revolution. Peoples or masses do nothing of themselves, philosophic anarchism notwithstanding. They must be organized, urged, driven or led, and this is the work of the class-conscious section of the revolutionary movement. The revolution itself is a struggle not only against the bourgeoisie, but against the ignorant and stupid workers and peasants.

Not by living among the stars, not by painting beautiful dreams of the future, not by criticism of the state and authority as the philosophic anarchist does, but by definitely planning what to do to-day, and how to act to-morrow, the revolution was saved by the proletarian party.

Only Communists Had Plan

Of all the varieties of Socialist and anarchist groups in Russia, only the party of the proletariat, the Bolsheviki or Communist Party, knew how to act in all the critical moments of the revolution. [illegible]

Amalgamation or Annihilation

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE

The railway shop crafts are on strike against a ruling of the Railway Labor Board reducing their wages and abolishing certain of their working conditions.

The Railway Labor Board is a governmental agency and with a full knowledge of this Benjamin Hooper, chairman of the board, has issued a call to all loyal citizens urging them to take the places vacated by the strikers and assuring them that in so doing they are not scabs but dutiful supporters of the government. The strikers, according to Hooper, have forfeited all rights to consideration by the Railway Labor Board and that body no longer needs to recognize the organizations with which the strikers are affiliated.

Going further than any spokesman of a government body has ever gone before in an official capacity, Hooper urges that those who take the places of the strikers immediately proceed to form some sort of an organization that they may secure the benefit of rules and regulations already made by the board and in "order to function before the board" in new disputes that may arise. The men who grab the jobs of the striking shopmen, to quote Hooper, "are not strikebreakers seeking to impose the arbitrary will of employers upon employes. They have a moral as well as a legal right to engage [illegible] of the American public to avoid interruption of [illegible] railway transportation, are entitled to the protection of every department and branch of government."

Here we have it, short and sweet:

The Railway Labor Board, having fulfilled its function as a wage-reducing agency of the employing railroads, while maintaining the fiction of impartiality, now blossoms out as a scab-recruiting and strikebreaking agency backed by governmental authority. It not only reduces the wages of railway employees to a starvation level but when they leave their employment in protest the board immediately launches an organization of scabs, a company and government controlled union, opposing the organization of the strikers.

There is no other interpretation possible of the latest public statement of the Railway Labor Board. Without government ownership of the railroads the railway workers now find themselves in conflict with the government. The board is relieving the railway executives of the necessity of recruiting scabs and has placed the seal of governmental approval upon anything the railway executives may do in rendering ineffective the effort of the strikers to maintain their living standards.

When the Railway Labor Board was created a few Labor editors pointed out the inevitable result of the recognition of the rights and powers of the Board by the unions. Their warnings were unheard or unheeded, and during the war period the heads of the railway unions looked upon the Board as a friend rather than as an enemy. The officials of the unions were fulsome in praise of the Railway Labor Board and never tired of telling the membership of the wondrous blessing that had come to them thru its creation.

The government was on their side, and of course no opportunity was lost to confound the reds who claimed that no agency of a capitalist government could really be for the workers. The union officials went up and down the land singing the praises of the Railway Labor Board and made no attempt whatever to strengthen their organizations or to prepare them in any way for the fight that any fool knew must come.

I have but little respect for the intelligence of the American workers, who fell for this bunk, less for the officials who preached it and none at all for those in high places in the labor movement calling themselves labor leaders but who have no vision and no understanding. What excuse is there for presidents of international unions who have seen labor betrayed time and time again by politicians, believing that the Railway Labor Board would be anything else than a union-smashing instrument at the earliest opportunity?

These leaders are the loudest shouters for American democracy—even outdoing the Chambers of Commerce and the professional patriotgers—yet unless they are of such subnormal intellect that they cannot draw a conclusion from evidence they cannot have failed to notice that every conspiracy against labor has as its basis the premise that this government is a democracy and that it is as much concerned for the welfare of labor as it is for that of capital.

No more gigantic falsehood was ever promulgated but to it the labor leaders never fail to subscribe.

These conspiracies vary but little in the manner in which they are brought to fruition. Labor, thru its representatives, is first cajoled into acknowledging the fairness of some department of the government. It may even be thrown a few sops until it is entirely off guard, lulled into lethargy by the fatuous statements of its own officials. Then the employers begin a nation-wide campaign for a reduction of wages and increases in hours; their propagandists insist with increasing vehemence that it is the interest of the public alone that the [illegible] employers are considering and that the public alone will benefit. Labor, say the publicists, must sacrifice as well as capital. The [illegible] finally comes before some "impartial" governmental agency which the labor leaders have been eulogizing and then labor [illegible] where the chicken got the ax, much to the grief and surprise of the [illegible] which then issues long statements about the cost of living, comparative wages, American standards, etc.

These statements have nothing to do with the decision of the employers and their federal aides because decisions to reduce wages are always in defiance of evidence that wages are already too low.

398,000 Shopmen Strike

RAILWAY LABOR BOARD BECOMES NEW STRIKEBREAKING AGENCY FOR ROADS

RUSSIAN WORKER DELIVERS A SMASHING REPLY TO EMMA GOLDMAN'S LYING AND MISLEADING ARTICLES

Labor Board Rule Forces Strike Shopmen Quit on All Roads Double Cross Given by Grable

The railway shop crafts, machinists, boilermakers, blacksmiths, car repairers and electricians, are on strike on all the railroads. For all practical purposes it is a one hundred per cent walkout, reports showing that but a handful of these workers remained on the job at scattered terminals. Four hundred thousand men are involved.

The Railway Labor Board, thru Chairman Hooper, has made public announcement of its intention to act as a strikebreaking agency and has assured men taking the places of the strikers that they will have the full protection of the federal government. It has further announced its intention of encouraging the organization of the strikebreakers and their recognition by the Board as the legitimate successors of the striking unions.

With this announcement of the Board the inevitable doublecross makes its appearance in the desertion of the striking shop crafts by the officials of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Workers. Altho the membership had voted solidly for a strike, President Grable of the Brotherhood has ordered his members to [illegible] take up all grievances with individual roads. For this desertion of the shopmen the Maintenance of Way Workers have received nothing but a promise that their grievances will be "considered" when they reach the Board after months of negotiation with the railroad managements.

In railway labor circles the action of President Grable and his subordinates is looked upon as one of the most inexcusable violations of union principle in the history of the labor movement.

Interest now centers around the action of the railway clerks, who are balloting on a strike, and their reaction to the default of the maintenance of way workers.

The pickets of the shopmen are rapidly organizing and the railroads have already recruited large forces of guards and gunmen and have thrown complete cordons around their most important plants.

Being chiefly engaged in repairing mechanical apparatus which the roads have been putting in shape for a strike the effects of the cessation of work may not be felt acutely for some little time altho numerous delays in passenger traffic have already occurred.

It is believed that the next step of the government will be to try and prevent any further tightening of the tentative alliance betwee the miners and the striking railway workers.

Rail Workers Strike as Harding Talks

By LAURENCE TODD

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON.—At the moment when President Harding was reading his speech to the representatives of the bituminous coal operators and the United Mine Workers, admonishing them in vain to settle the coal strike quickly, two thousand railroad workers in the shops of the capital city were laying down their tools and walking out, inaugurating the rail strike forced upon them by the administration.

"This is no time for the militant note of the radical who would prefer to destroy our social system," said Harding, in his speech to the coal miners. Yet at the other end of town, the railroad shopmen held him responsible for attempting to destroy the foundations of their social status.

"We know," said Wm. H. Johnston, president, International Association of Machinists, "that the railroad labor board, in destroying our national agreement, was carrying out Mr. Harding's wishes. He told Mr. Jewell that 'the national agreement must go,' and refused to hear our side of the case. He had heard the railroad managers' side, and he pronounced judgment which the railroad labor board carried out. It may be that in reducing our wages the board is carrying out his instructions.

Signatures Pouring in For Amnesty

(By The Federated Press)

Opening of the drive for a half milion New York signatures to the monster petition for the release of all political prisoners, which is to be presented to President Harding this month, brought almost immediate promise of more than 100,000 signatures here. Forty thousand signatures have been guaranteed by the cloak and skirt makers alone, thru the action of their joint board. All the shop chairmen of the organization are to act as petition agents to get the signatures of all the workers in their respective shops."

Similar action is being taken by the Fur Workers' International Union thru its joint board, represented by A. Brownstein, and by the dress and waist makers' organization of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. The dress and waist makers have 15,000 affiliated members, and have guaranteed that number of signatures thru the agency of their shop chairmen.

Others which have pledged support include the Millinery and Ladies Straw Hat Workers, Bonnaz Embroiderers, the pants, vest and skirt makers of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America; and within a week it is believed that every affiliated organization in the needle trades industry will have quietly but earnestly engaged in the voluntary enrollment of its members thru the shop chairman system.

Herrin Scabs Deny Atrocity Tales of Press

By TOM TIPPETT

(Federal Press Staff Correspondent)

HERRIN, Ill.—Strange tales of double crossing are told by the wounded mine strikebreakers in the hospital here, to which they were taken after the bloodshed of June 22.

The hospital, unguarded, is in the heart of the city. After hours spent with the survivors I am convinced that Attorney Bull's alarm for their safety is not shared by the victims, who say they were betrayed into the [illegible] agencies at the behest of the coal company.

The first man seen was Ed. Green, who lives, according to his story, at 1230 W. Madison St., Chicago. He declares he has been a union man all his life and deplores his present disgrace. He asserts that John Tracy of the Steam Shovelers and Dredgemen's International Union, Chicago, sent him to what he thought was a "union shovel job." He was met at the train in the night by the mine superintendent, McDowell, now dead, and taken to the mine which he discovered the next morning was surrounded by armed guards. He protested to the boss and was told that he would be shot if he attempted to escape. Four other members of this union, sent to the mine under similar conditions, were killed, according to Green.

The next cot held Ed. Miller, a handsome Swede, who told of a long period of idleness in Chicago and of being hired by an employment agency on W. Madison St., Chicago. As a special inducement for this job the usual fee of one week's pay and train fare was waived in this instance and free shipment was offered to a "track job on a shovel in Illinois." Miller's body holds two bullets and chances for his recovery are slight.

The next room contained a dying Irishman with eight bullet holes in his writhing body. "I didn't know," was all he could gasp. Beside him clasping a crucifix was his mother, a little white-haired woman, who had arrived from Chicago. Old and bent, she presented a tragic figure, softly whispering between her prayers, "My boy, my boy!"

Apparently all the gunmen had escaped or were killed, but their timekeeper, Allen Findlay, shot thru the thigh, was able to talk. With uncanny frankness he said he was not a gunman, but their bookkeeper, and was sent to the mine by The Edward J. Hargrave Secret Service, 145 N. Clark St., Chicago. Twenty-six guards had been sent to protect machinery in case of violence. In his opinion they were employed by the coal company to reduce their insurance. The chief in charge, he said, was Morris Delaney, who received $14 per day and board. Common "gunners" were paid $5 per day and were expected to "work a little when things were quiet."

The stories of atrocities, circulated in the metropolitan press, were branded as lies by all the wounded men. The consensus of opinion among the sufferers was that the arch crime against them was committed before they came to the coal field, by a scheming coal company plotting with unscrupulous employment and detective agencies who do not hesitate to betray workmen to their deaths.

He was asked in a letter by a comrade what he thought of the articles of Emma Goldman presently being published by the New York World and other papers, and his reply has been sent to us.)—Ed. Note.

Your letter and your apprehension that I might agree with Emma Goldman sounds like an insult to me. You ask my opinion about Emma's articles, about her right to throw mud at the Russian Communists, to vilify the Soviet administration. I would like my answer to you to serve as an open letter to Goldman herself; maybe we can arouse her sense of shame if she has any. I cannot agree with people of the type of Goldman and Berkman, because I am a worker, born in the ranks of workers, suffering the miseries of their lot and knowing only their point of view. I am not a lying American sensation-monger, as Goldman is, and am only taking pains to make the matter clear in the interest of my fellow-workers. New York Has Tag Day for Coal Miners

Down in West Virginia, where 80,000 men are fighting a life and death battle against the slavery which the coal barons seek to impose upon them, things are happening which ought to arouse to action every class-conscious worker.

The miners, who have passed thru an ordeal of privation and suffering which would have undermined the most hardened, are slowly being starved to death by the ruthless, profit-mad coal barons.

Machine-guns, bombs, evictions, every cruel and destructive agency has been brought into play to accomplish the sinister purposes of the mine owners. But the miners have maintained their ground despite everything.

Lawrence Dwyer, telling of the intolerable conditions existing in the New River Coal fields, reports the daily eviction of miners and their families.

Having no shelter, the miners make tents out of paper to house themselves and their families.

These tents are playthings for the elements. With no roofs over their heads, forced to drink filthy creek water, their women and children maltreated by the lowest scum, imported from the slums of New York, the miners are indeed fighting against great odds. Already there are signs of weakening under the terrific strain. The miners have no food. Dwyer says "Since January 1st they have been existing down there only on food sent in by kind people from the outside."

Food must be rushed to West Virginia immediately. The Miners' Relief Committee is running a Tag Day on July 8-9, for the benefit of the starving miners. Volunteers are wanted. Enlist at the following stations:

Governmental statistics constantly prove that the average American worker gets a wage making impossible a decent standard of living, but reductions occur constantly just the same.

The shopmen now on strike are in conflict not only with the railway managements but with the full power of the federal government; in addition to that they are on strike because of a decision of a government board which their officials have sanctioned and praised and on which their officials depended for concessions instead of solidifying their organizations and inculcating in the membership the knowledge of the irrefutable fact that the workers gain only in proportion to their organized power.

The railway systems of this nation are a unit in this fight. Behind the federal government their forces are rallied, and they can call to their assistance, as Hooper says, the full force of public opinion as well as the military and judicial might of the state and national government.

Compare to this unbroken front the sixteen organizations in the transportation industry. Note with what glee the capitalist press chronicled the fact that the firemen, trainmen, engineers and conductors were "working as usual" the day the shopmen struck. How joyful was the capitalist press again when the officials of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Workers, with a 90 per cent strike vote in their pockets, decided to once more throw themselves on the tender mercies of the Railway Board and desert the shopmen. The clerks and telegraphers are still at work because the Board has cunningly delayed its decision relative to their wages.

The truth of the matter is that not only have the officials of the railway unions let the enemy decide their policies, but they have also let them fix the strike date and determine which organizations shall strike and which shall continue work and betray the strikers.

In the checkered history of labor organizations and their struggles in all lands in all ages there has never been a more insane and destructive policy than this—the policy of American railway labor at a time when the power of its employers is concentrated as never before.

In this acute crisis for the railway labor organizations "Amalgamation or Annihilation" becomes something more than a phrase. It is a living reality that must be faced—NOW.

W. S. Harlem Br. Workers Party Meets June 13

The newly orgnized West Side Harlem Branch of the Workers Party will hold its next meeting on Friday evening, June 13, at the West Indian-American Hall, 149 West 136 Street, between Lenox and Seventh Avenues. All comrades living on the West side and desirous of connecting themselves with this branch are invited to atend the coming meeting, at which officers will be elected.

While this branch of the Party will carry on most of its activities among the Negro workers of West side Harlem, it is to be made up of both white and colored comrades resident in the district. Several members from the Harlem (East side) English have transferred to this branch, as wel as the Negro comrades who formerly were affiliated with the Yorkville English. Money is being raised for a permanent headquarters and Social Centre and great activity is expected from this branch. Several street corner meetings have already been held in the section, and others will be planned and carried out as soon as the branch is permanently organized. At these street corner meetings The Worker will be sold and the colored workers thus made acquainted with the Party organ.

meet in a general conference the management of all the railroads, as the miners are now meeting all the operators, but we shall refuse to meet them singly. They had the opportunity months ago, but rejected it."

Reports show that 97 per cent of the membership had obeyed the strike call. A few old men and half a dozen "yellows" had stayed at work.

At machinists' international headquarters the list of assignments of officers to various posts thruout the country was announced by Johnston to his board members. Vice-President Anderson will have charge of the Pennsylvania shopmen, with headquarters at Pittsburgh. David Williams will have the roads leading into New York City. Peter Conlon has this city. W. V. Hannon has Denver. Other officials have other stations south and west. St. Paul will be headquarters for the northwestern division, with James Taylor in charge.

By MICHAEL GOLD

I came to Pittsburgh on a [illegible] on my way to the great coal strike. A mist filled the [illegible] of coal and [illegible]. It was not the [illegible] Corot; it was smoke, raw smoke [illegible] fitting garment for this stark city that is the [illegible] of America.

Pittsburgh is stark. It is stark and straight as a [illegible]; it drives on. There are no fancy skyscrapers in Pittsburgh, no show streets or [illegible]. I came out of the station and looked about me. I saw the squat, dirty houses, the [illegible] trucks rumbling along the streets. Beyond the [illegible] of roofs I saw tall smoke-stacks everywhere, pointed like fingers at the stupid, ancient skies. They were pouring out thick, [illegible]; they were vomiting smoke like monster drunkards dizzy with too much life; they were streaming the black smoke of industry, the smoke of vitality, of production, of life, of creation. The monster mills surround Pittsburgh; they taint her air and her skies; there are days when their smoke eclipses the sun at midday for a half hour or more, till the wind has purged the cosmos; the mills are a part of Pittsburgh, and make it dirty and hot with being, make it throb like an engine with fire and action.

I walked about Pittsburgh the next few days, waiting for my chance to get out into the strike regions. Who has ever described in words that cruel, hard city that fascinates one like the eyes of a huge python! I walked about it for two days, and saw the most miserable slums in the world, and the most magnificent palaces. And everywhere were the mills—the mills where steel is made—steel, the skeleton of the modern world, steel that is the life-breath of the modern world. Man was once clay, then he became bronze, then iron; now he is Steel! Railroads, skyscrapers, tractors, machinery—their father is Steel! And Pittsburgh is steel; the giant Pittsburgh is dirty and stinking and horrible, but he produces steel!

I stood on one of the bridges that cross the Alleghany river near Pittsburgh. Coal barges were going up and down the yellow stream, pushed by old-fashioned stern-wheel steamboats. There were raw, naked hills on either bank, scarred and gouged as tho great beasts had had them between their teeth, and with splashes of green spring grass here and there. There were empty coal cars on the sidings near the river—rusty long sheds, warehouses and waste places gaunt, grim, smoky city, stripped to the primitive buff and reeking with black sweat like a stoker at his furnace! Who has ever painted it? Who has ever understood it, among the oleomargarine intellectuals, among the lemonade artists, among the gossipy old maidy, vapory small-town writers of American tragedy? They come to see Pittsburg and shudder, and run back to their books and their eternal ruminating on the mysteries of married life. They rush back to read and imitate Dostoievsky, and to brood on the infinite, and to utter sickening, yearning moans for the past. And Pittsburgh is here. And Pittsburgh plows thru, like a battleship in a storm. And Pittsburgh lives. And Pittsburgh creates steel and coal, the life-blood of "Civilization." And strong men work and hope and love and fight and die in Pittsburgh, and women bring babies into the world, strong babies, and there is drunkeness and riot, creation and destruction. But the Young Intellectuals go to Paris to sip absinthe, or to Rome to publish little reviews.

The alarming, amazing city, the littered with tin cans and rot. Down the river one saw another bridge, and it was surrounded by a fog of black smoke. Pittsburgh lay beyond one of those raw hills, and it was shooting its smoky breath into the clean face of the solar system. Smoke, smoke—the smoke of creation—of steel! On this bank of the river there was a colony of company houses; deadly grey, dirty and alike in every part like a row of blank-faced idiots sitting in the sun, the bright sun that shone on the unanimous gray roofs and made them glow like cubes and squares of ice. The men who made steel lived in those houses. And on the other bank were the steel mills—a colony of strange low buildings squatting somehow like an envenomed octopus with a thousand outreaching thick tentacles, sullen and filled with a fierce angry life. I counted forty smoke-stacks in the fourth of a square mile where these buildings were placed. They were tall smoke-stacks that poured forth smoke continuously—the black, green, yellow robin-blue, white, and gray smoke of the different processes by which steel is made. Hammers and heavy forging machines were clanking and pounding; the smoke rushed from [illegible]

When I went down to the coal fields I rode for two hours along the Monongahela river, and saw it [illegible] the sights of steel being created by man. The river was lined with blast furnaces and rolling mills; it was like moving along the trenches of a great battle. It was the spectacle of America's power, that power that has enabled her to conquer the world. The material life of the world centers about coal and steel; the lives of the world's millions now hang on the fate of the world's coal and steel, and it was Pittsburgh that battered down Essen and ended the war; it was Pittsburgh [illegible] the world it has built that killed Rupert Brooke and John Reed and Karl Liebknecht; it was Pittsburgh that created Carl Sandburg and Eugene O'Neill, Dada Futurism, Bolshevism, Capitalism, Gary and Lenin. Pittsburgh is the material and spiritual capital of the twentieth-century world. Here it was now—working at its terrible flaming forges, making steel. The air was heavy with the smoke of steel, the young leaves and grass on the river banks were loaded with the soot of steel-melting—and the river itself was dabbled with marks of the bloody parturition of steel—it ran blue, it ran brilliant yellow, here green, brown, mauve and scarlet, the acids of the different processes in the enormous birth of steel.

"But oh, how monstrous!" I heard the gentle small-town spirit of the past murmur in my ear. "Oh, the horror of these leagues of buildings bursting with flame! Oh, the insane mathematics of it all, the rationality, the inhuman, sleepless lust of these endless machines! Men are fed into these mills as into a giant's maw, and the great jaws eat them, crunch them with cannibal glee, devour their human flesh and bones and dreams! Nothing human can stand against the cold fury and power of these monsters, and the tyrants who own them. Soon the machines will rise from the feast here, and slavering with lust, will hunt thru the other regions of the quiet, simple world. All men will be made the food and slaves of the machines. All dreams, laughter, love and human beauty will go into the furnaces to be burned into Steel. The human world, this hopeful, varied, beautiful world of man that has struggled out of the primeval slime, will be filled, as the living trees that stand in the smoke of the coke ovens are killed utterly and [illegible] a dismal ash. The machines will enslave the world. The world will become a vast roaring mill inhabited by millions of slaves, slaves chained like bees with the madness of work, knowing nothing but Steel. The great cosmic mill will grind away century after century, turning out steel, steel, steel. No one will know why after centuries—no one will question—no one will read and write, draw, paint, love, laugh, fight, adventure any longer. Steel, steel, steel!"

But a big-chested, hairy old man next to me in the train, a white-haired steel worker, was talking to me in a soft Irish brogue as he smoked his pipe. He told me of the little garden he was planting, and how the warm weather had brought the tips of the early vegetables thru the mould. And he spoke of his son, a "fine big feller," who was taking a course in electrical engineering at the Technical Institute. And he jested about his wife, who had been quarreling with him for forty years because he changed from winter underwear to summer too soon. And he told me how he had worked in the mills since he was a boy, and how the puddlers stand over the cauldrons and stir the metal, and how the steel is made into pigs, and how it is run thru the rollers. And he talked about the Great Steel Strike, and how he had just about got ready to get his gun out to go after the State Cossacks, when it ended, and how there would be another big strike coming, and by God, how he'd be there with it again.

He was old and strong and human and unafraid. He was organized labor. There was a greater power than the machines. It would go up against the beast and conquer it—humanize it, make it the servant of man. It was the labor movement, and no one in America not knowing the labor movement can look upon the mills of Pittsburgh and believe in life. No one can understand one without the other. Yes, the power of labor is greater than the power of governments or machines. Labor is stronger even than steel. There is no room for despair—Labor has not yet learned from books how to despair. Labor will redeem Pittsburgh some day—make it beautiful as a strong man wrestling with fate. Labor will build up a new culture in which the making of coal and steel will be part of the creative life of man. Labor is the hope of the world.

Russian Worker's Reply to Goldman

Guard and a revolutionist of the Goldman-Berkman-Schapiro type. The soldier-worker had only one argument, "there are only two classes, bourgeoisie and the proletariat. What is good for the bourgeoisie is bad for the workers; what is good for the workers, is bad for the bourgeoisie." The agitator did not succeed, as there can be no success for the bourgeois anarchistic propaganda amongst workers.

Workers' Interests Alone Count

The Russian revolution showed that there is no such thing as a common humanity; that there is no freedom or happiness for all; that we are fighting for freedom and happiness for the working class only, for the extinction of our enemies, whether they may be Emma Goldman or Paul Milukoff. In the beginning of 1920, one could see the crowd of former rich merchants and millionaires standing on the streets of Moscow offering for sale four little pieces of sugar on a plate. They were not interested in making a sale: their purpose, their only purpose was to demonstrate to the people of Moscow and the world that they were still in existence as merchants; that they still maintained themselves as a privileged class, a class free from the necessity of toil. They might die of starvation, but they would not condescend to the degrading position of working for a living.

Kropotkin's Bankruptcy

This same thing reminds me of Kropotkin, who fell bankrupt in the early days of the revolution. The only service he had to give to the workers was "don't interfere with the masses, let them do everything." When questioned regarding the defense of the Soviet Republic, his only answer was "leave it to the masses." But masses do nothing themselves. To face the guns of the German invaders with sticks and stones would be equal to committing suicide. Men had to be mobilized into an army; ammunition factories had to be set working; the army had to be organized and disciplined to the use of its weapons before it could hope to meet the attacks of its enemies on any kind of footing at all.

Only One Choice

The workers of Russia faced the question whether to have anarchy and chaos or order, plan, organization; whether to prefer the Socialistic state to the madness of aristocrats of thought. They were wise enough to give heed to the voice of common sense. After his full bankruptcy, seeing that dirty horde of workers taking their destiny into their own hands, and even expropriating his highness' palace, Kropotkin went and hid himself in Dmitroff, and as former speculants sell their sugar on the streets of Moscow, to show that he is still an aristocrat, that he is far ahead of the crowd, in the most terrible days of the heroic struggle, he began his book on "Ethics," he began to take an interest in music and art (a very sorry sight). He had a special payok (allowance) as a consideration of his former service in the revolutionary movement, but he had only enough kerosene for one lamp. Millions of houses in Russia and Siberia were without kerosene during the course of the revolution. The men and women who made the revolution successful did much of their work in the dark, because they had no kerosene at all. Baku was in the hands of English expeditionary forces.

Goldman Feared Lice

ONE THING IN GOLDMAN'S ARTICLES IS TRUTHFUL, THE FEAR OF LICE. THE FEAR DROVE KROPOTKIN FROM MOSCOW. BECAUSE HE WAS COMPELLED TO SHARE HIS COMMODIOUS HOUSE WITH LOUSY WORKERS, SO DIFFERENT FROM THOSE HE SAW IN THE PICTURES IN GEOGRAPHICAL MAGAZINES, HE GATHERED UP HIS BELONGINGS AND MOVED TO HIS OTHER HOUSE IN DMITROFF, TO WRITE HIS GREAT WORK ON "ETHICS," WHILE THE PROLETARIAT WERE COMPILING THEIR WORKS ON "ETHICS," WORLD ETHICS, ON THE VARIOUS BATTLE-FRONTS WHERE THE RED ARMY USED RIFLES AND ARTILLERY AS WRITING MATERIAL.

The fear of lice prevented poor Emma from visiting the "grand old man." She could not travel in the same manner as the delegates of the Soviets, the people in control in Russia. They travelled on the roofs of cars and on tops of locomotives. Notwithstanding the fact that they were the rulers of Russia, they could not have special cars, but were compelled to travel with the same degree of comfort as the hobo does on the American railroads, and with nothing to eat but a chunk of dry bread. Spoiled by American hospitality and gentlemanly behavior to ladies, by tar and feather parties, by jail and deportation, she demanded special attention, special cars, even special trains, for the performance of such necessary revolutionary work as visiting this same "grand old man."

From the beginning of the revolution, there was a great shortage of men and women with organizing ability, but Emma could not find any work except collecting material for a revolutionary museum, and this is a very suitable engagement for people like Goldman-Berkman-Schapiro, for all such rubbish belongs in a museum.

Her Nonsensical Conclusions

Did she collect such nonsense as the Brest-Litovsk story for her revolutionary museum? Who does not know that before the Brest treaty was signed, the Ukraine had already made a separate peace with Germany, and being in control of the bourgeoisie not only betrayed Soviet Russia, but provided men, arms and food for the German Imperialists. With the Brest-Litovsk treaty began the end of the German Empire. Emma's stupidity till the present time prevents her from understanding this simple historical fact, which is known to the meanest worker.

She Pities Speculators

Poor Russian peasants were robbed of food by the awful Bolsheviks. Many of her poor compatriots, second-hand proprietors, were shot for speculation during the revolution. Did the workers rob the great landlords of their estates for the peasants or expropriate them of their property by the right of revolution? Did the workers by robbing the cattle stations and dividing among the peasants the cattle and the grain, do anything unjust? No, it was expropriation of capitalists in the interests of the working class, and only the petty larceny psychology of the second-hand store could prevent Emma Goldman from understanding it.

Revolution Is Robbery to Emma

The revolution began in the towns in Petrograd and Moscow, and the workers, in their great victory, divided with the peasants. They retained in their possession destroyed factories, and broken-down railroad systems, and it was an absolute necessity that they should remain in their work shops preparing the machinery for the defence of the revolution. They had the right to demand of the peasants all the surplus products of the country in so far as it was necessary to carry on their work, and to sustain the Red Army in its mighty efforts. The actions which are called robbery by bone-headed Emma are in reality the legitimate reward of the workers for carrying the weigh of the revolution on their shoulders. This "robbery" is the most brilliant effort of the Communists during the revolution accomplished in the face of the greatest difficulties, in spite of the growing bourgeois tendencies in the minds of Emma's poor peasants.

"The Most Revolutionary Challenge Made in a Court in the United States"

"A COMMUNIST TRIAL"

This pamphlet contains a discussion of Communist principles in the most interesting form—questions and answers, questions by a hostile judge and prosecutor. These are some of the questions asked C. E. Ruthenberg:

What is meant by the word "proletarian"?
What is imperialism?
Explain what you mean by the class struggle?
How do you propose that the workers shall capture the power of the State?
What is the loyal army and navy and police force going to do at that time?
What would become of the President of the United States and the members of congress?
What is the transition period between Capitalism and Communism?

The speech by I. E. Ferguson to the jury contains a keen analysis of the fundamenteal Communist principles, and a defense of the right of revolution which makes the whole case for Communism.

Meat Workers To Re-build Their Union

OMAHA.—The fragments of the stockyards' union, shattered by the unsuccessful strike of last winter, are appealed to by the Committee for Reorganization of Packinghouse Workers to form a comprehensive amalgamated union in the industry. Plans were discussed at a meeting in the Butcher Workmen's Hall July 2.

The committee says:

"We propose that fro mthe time a car of livestock is spotted at the stockyards gate up until the refrigerator car is loaded with dressed meat ready to be moved out of the yards, all men who shall have taken part in its preparation shall be members of the one international union and subject to its call. We believe that every man who plays any part in the preparation of the finished meat product, should be under the jurisdiction of the international. In this we include the stockyard employees, the drivers, the butchers, skinners, laborers, engineers, firemen, electricians, plumbers, steamfitters, carpenters and all other tradesmen employed within the packing house gates.

"We do not propose to destroy the various craft unions within the packing houses, we do not object to their existence and believe they should conduct their own affairs and function in any way they see fit providing of course that their actions are in accord with the general policy and program of the international union.

"We propose that an organization be so built that in case of a strike no tradesman will be allowed to stay on the job to keep the plant in operation enabling the scab butchers to work. We propose an organization in which the stock yard employees will not handle livestock to be killed by scabs brought in to take the places of the strikers and one in which the butchers would not stay on the job to kill livestock handled by non-union stockyard employees."

Some time ago District Council No 5 passed a resolution asking that the International Union of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America call a convention the purpose of which would be to convert itself into an organization such as outlined. Sufficient locals have voted upon this proposition and the international has called the convention to be held in St. Paul July 24.

SEATTLE.—With working class control of the world drawing nearer workers must prepare to manage the world better than prior ruling classes have, Rev. Robert Whitaker warned the Central Labor council here recently. Pride in membership in the working class must be inculcated, Whitaker declared.

The death of William Rockefeller gives Arthur Brisbane an opportunity to do a little public toadying to the multi-millionaires for whom he acts as snake-charmer.

To the deceased gentleman, says Arthur Brisbane, must go the credit for harnessing the waterfalls of the mountain streams in the far west, for electrifying the Milwaukee railway thru Montana, Idaho and Washington, and for numerous other achievements which have brought prosperity and happiness to millions.

The writer happens to be one of the unfortunate highly skilled and highly skinned slaves who helped to "harness the waterfalls" of the far West and who toiled for a miserable pittance along the right of way of the Milwaukee railroad and in the many sub-stations and power-houses needed to successfully "harness" the power which moves the ore from Mr. Rockefeller's Butte mines and drives the locomotives on Mr. Rockefeller's railway.

The writer, in company with several thousand other workers, ate the slum-gullion and slept in the bunk-cars; roasted in the summer and froze in the winter, was driven by petty foremen and had his stomach robbed by grafting timekeepers, was gypped of his overtime by crooked bosses and went on gang-strikes to recover it; hung by his eyelashes from dizzy heights on poles and precipices getting thru the copper conductors; fought the three thousand volt direct current when a slip meant death; saw man after man meet and lose to the lurking death—a crashing fall or the licking tongue of the electric demon.

We did these things, I suppose, so that a hundred thousand dollar-per-year editorial writer could give the credit for mechanical advancement to a man whose millions were his sole claim to fame; who never knew catenary trolley construction from a concrete bridge or two 1500 volt generators in series from an electric headlight.

I do not recall ever seeing Mr. Rockefeller at work "harnessing" the waterfalls. I seriously doubt if he could tie an insulator on a hand-line so it would not tear loose while being hauled to the top of a hundred and twenty-five foot pole.

I KNOW he could not make the electric connection on a controller of one of the locomotives he owned. I am positive he could not make the survey for one of his transmission lines nor direct the erection of it after the survey was made. I am certain that he could not design the most simple piece of electric apparatus that makes part of the whole wondrous scheme nor could he have withstood the physical hardships undergone by the unskilled workers without whom nothing could have been done.

Where, then, does Mr. Rockefeller come in? How is it that his name is linked with this great enterprise?

It is quite simple.

Mr. Rockefeller had some money and he wanted to make more money. He PAID the men who did the work. He bought their brains and their bodies and in many instances he bought their lives. He bought these things very cheaply because the men had nothing else to sell and they wanted to live a while longer.

With the work and the dream which preceded it William Rockefeller had nothing to do but to Arthur Brisbane and the class he represents, William Rockefeller means the Milwaukee railroad.

What brains William Rockefeller had are now the food of worms but the Milwaukee railroad is still running trains because all the workers are not dead.

Capitalists do not run the capitalist system despite the vaporings of fat-salaried publicists.

Trying to Cover Treason

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE

When the editor of Justice, the official organ of the International Ladies' Garment Workers, in an attempt to cover up the slimy trail of treason Schlesinger left behind him at the A. F. of L. convention, tells his readers, as he does in the issue of June 30th, that Schlesinger is the first Socialist ever sent as a fraternal delegate to the British Trades Union Congress, he adds the black smear of a lie to a record already besmirched.

Almost twenty years ago—1903—Max Hayes, a member of the Socialist party was sent on the same mission. John Walker, also a Socialist, was sent in 1912. James Lord, deposed at the recent convention as head of the mining department by the Gompers machine, was sent in 1917, whether he was a member of the Socialist party at that time or not we do not know but he was certainly looked upon as a Socialist by the conservative element.

The stupid and brazen falsehood perpetrated by the editor of Justice is merely a clumsy attempt to mislead the membership with the idea that Schlesinger made a few minor concessions to the machine that a Socialist might represent the American Federation of Labor at the British Trades Union Congress.

Of the same jesuitical character is the labored attempt to explain, in the same issue, why Schlesinger and the delegation—with one exception—violated the instructions of the garment workers convention—upheld the hands of the Gompers machine in its denunciation of Russia an dsold out its boasted "socialism" and "radicalism" for a petty honor conferred upon President Schlesinger.

This editorial states that the garment workers could not vote for the minority resolution calling for recognition of Russia "as this had only in minds jobs for American workers, and totally disregarded every other motive and reason." This is another bald and unequivocal falsehood and anyone who will read the minority resolution will recognize it as such.

Since when, however, has this lofty and idealistic attitude been adopted toward practical matters by such slippery politicians as Schlesinger and Yanofsky have proved themselves to be?

The cold facts of the matter are that they were pledged to either vote against, or damn with faint praise, the minority resolution.

Here is what Schlesinger did.

He took no part in the debate until Max Hayes, on the last morning of the convention, was making his argument for the minority resolution. Schlesinger rouse, interrupted Hayes and asked to be allowed to amend the resolution by inserting a clause demanding free speech, free press aud freedom for political prisonrs. The manoeuvre had been carfeully timed so that it would create confusion in the minds of the delegates at a time when clarity was needed. It was done for no other purpose for the reason that Schlesinger and his delegation had had ample opportunity during the whole convention to introduce the resolution dealing with this matter.

Schlesinger not only betrayed the Russian workers and the Russian revolution but he did it in the cowardly manner that we have come to look for from this type of self-seeking individualist. He did not have the courage to make an open fight but sought the help of the Gompers machine to cover his contemptible actions.

The contention of the editor of Justice that the refusal of the minority to accept the Schlesinger amendment seriously injured the minority resolution is not true altho this was not the fault of Schlesinger. I was sitting within twenty feet of Schlesinger when he rose and offered an amendment and it was with the greatest difficulty that I heard what he said: I will take an oath that not two dozen delegates knew what he was talking about.

I can only say that if the membership of the Ladies' Garment Workers accepts the explanation offered them as an excuse for the dirty role played by their delegates they are more gullible than I think they are and deserve to the full the black disgrace that Schlesinger and his ilk have brought upon them.

Beckley, W. Va., June 22, 1922.

Mr. J. Louis Engdahl,
Editor, The Worker,
799 Broadway,
New York City

Dear Comrade:—Just a few lines to let you know that I have not forgotten the aid you have been to our friend "Peggy" Dwyer and the help given to our struggling miners in West Va. I have had many calls for the Worker, but our fellows are not in position to buy anything except food (and darned little of that) so I cannot ask them to subscribe for any paper at present.

However, I wish to tell you what is going on in this district, and if it will help in raising even a small amount of funds to help us secure food and shelter, it will be time well spent, even if it is now nearly midnight and my eyes shutting of themselves in spite of my efforts to keep them open.

Live on 30 Cents Per Week'

In the first place, Tom L. Lewis, Secretary of the New River Coal Operators Association, invited Rabbi Wise of New York to come to the New River Field, and there find ideal conditions among the miners who are scabbing on their fellow workers.

I cannot of course say what their report will be, but I do know that they found the Coal Operators fighting as savagely (as ever the Red Indian fought), to maintain their privileges, hundreds of men and their families are now living in tents, paper shacks, barns or any other kind of shelter they can find, while I as Secretary-Treasurer have been handing out to men utterly without funds the sum of from 18 cents to about 30 cents per head each week.

I do not know how they have existed, but they have, and the fighting spirit is still strong, altho it must be confessed, that when these men see their comrades of the mines being thrown out of house and home, it needs courage of a high order to stick until it comes their turn.

We even have the spectacle of the Coal Operators trying to force farmers who leased farms, to compel the miners to move their tents off their land and to get out of the barns.

I have in my possession a notice given by a farm owner to his tenant demanding that he compel the miners to move all their tents about 25 off the property. (This man lives in Charleston, and at first when the tents were erected on the land made no objection, but, they are all in plain view of every train on the C. & O. so I suppose it hurt the sensibilities of his plutocratic friends, when they passed on the train.)

Can't Wait On Courts

There have been in the neighborhood of 400 evictions in this district, the men either having been thrown out or getting out by their own effort after the notice was served on them. (Very few have been able to give bond for rent and so hold on till the Circuit Courts gave judgment.) And there is now to the best of my judgment approximately 800 or a thousand more notices of eviction in the hands of the miners who are awaiting the action of the courts, these notices are being served every day, and I suppose will continue to be served until all who dare question the Overlordship of the Coal Barons get off the Earth, or at least out of their sight. (Ireland has got nothing on West Virginia in the matter of evictions.)

How long this reign of terror—for it is terror when a man lives in daily dread of seeing his loved ones exposed to rain, cold nights and hot days, with no shelter from either in sight—will last, no one can say. But no doubt the Coal Operators have decided that it will last until the Coal Miners surrender every right gained in a struggle of more than twenty-five years.

Whether it will last till that time depends in a great measure on what the Friends of Liberty in these United States do, to help the miners combat the program of the coal operators.

Trusting that the world workers are lining up for the United Front, which will make them supreme, I remain, with every good wish,

Fraternally yours,
John Gatherum,
Secretary, District No. 29.

LOOKING FOR TROUBLE

FAIRPOINT, O.—At Uniontown, five miles away, a strip mine has been opened and 20 strikebreakers are working. A group of national guardsmen armed with machine guns stand guard over them. At night searchlights sweep the countryside from the mine.

The operators of Clarkson Mine No. 2 have asked union men to go into the mine to clean it of fallen rock and coal. The miners see in this a trick on the part of the company to get the mine in operation. They have refused to go, holding that this mine was closed by a shutdown ever since August, 1921, and the company never thought of having it cleaned until the strike.

[illegible] while the [illegible] convention of the American Federation of Labor goes on record against recognition of Soviet Russia and refuses affiliation with even the "moderate" Amsterdam International, the Truro Convention of the twelve thousand Nova Scotia mine workers of District 26, has decided to organize a demand for a fifteen million dollar Government Loan to relieve the famine-stricken, has decided to apply for affiliation with the Red (Moscow) Trade Union International and to send a delegate to its forthcoming world congress in October.

These hard-headed Scottish-Canadian miners have further declared themselves ready to co-operate with any other section of Canadian labor, in the first instance the western mine workers of District 18 (Alberta), in the setting up of a United Front against Capital.

And finally, this amazing convention has openly "proclaimed to the world that we are out for the complete overthrow of the capitalist system and the capitalist state, peaceably if we may, forcibly if we must."

This stand of the Truro convention which places the Nova Scotia miners in the forefront of the radical forces in America, is the result and climax of a long and bitter struggle with the powerful British Empire Steel Corporation, in the course of which the miners met the thirty per cent wage slashing campaign of the corporation with a defensive counter-attack in the shape of the "strike on the job" policy.

The retort of like work for like pay created so tense a situation that it finally forced a discussion on the floor of the House of Commons. There the slippery King Government was compelled, over the head of the clumsily reactionary Minister of Labor Murdock, to grant the Scott Conciliation Board.

But the award of this board has left the miners deeply dissatisfied and the district executive was sharply censured at the convention for their acceptance of it.

The award has utterly failed to remove the basis of the sense of poverty and wide-spread humiliation which has seized on nearly everyone of the twelve thousand class fighters.

Nearly every resolution from the various lodges breathed a spirit of continued struggle against the British Empire Steel Corporation.

Nearly the whole convention lined up under the leadership of the able and fearless secretary-treasurer J. B. McLachlan, and criticized the executive board in no uncertain terms for its "defeatism."

A sign of the temper of the convention is that Timothy Buck, Industrial Organizer of the Workers' Party of Canada, who conveyed greetings and emphasized the urgency of international affiliation, was given an enthusiastic ovation and invited to tour the whole district.

JULY 16

Just as soon as the sun sets on Sunday, July 16, bonfires will be lit all over Dickerts Old Point Park, 4078 Boston Road, Bronx. By now you have, no doubt, heard, and know that this is the date of the picnic arranged by the New York Branch of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia.

However, you might wonder what's the idea o fbonfires. Well—just imagine a spacious, cool and comfortable park with, say, five or six of these bonfires going at the same time, while five or six large groups of comrades lay and sit around singing revolutionary songs or songs of thier homeland. If you love the strain of a sad Russian song—well and good—join the group which echoes some melancholy tune of the steppes. If a Hungarian folk-song, coached in more cheerful tunes, is more to your liking all you have to do is to walk over to another corner. In still another corner you might be given the opportunity to add your voice to a chorus scaring the moon pale with the vigor of The Internationale.

The park will be open from 12 A. M. 10 per cent of the clear procedds will go to the Friends of Soviet Russia for famine relief.

In addition to a well arranged program, to games with prizes, to dancing with masks on, pictures of all organizations active in F. S. R. work will be taken.

Come along. You will have a good time and will help a good cause.

POLICE CHIEFS SAVINO NATION

SAN FRANCISCO.—The International Association of Police Chiefs, in session here, is running true to form. Sixteen of the 17 members of the committee on criminal procedure favor a national law making punishment obligatory for certain offenses. William F. Pinkerton addressed the convention, urging that the whipping post and the pillory be restored as punishments. "Dislike for work is the cause of crime," said Chief Benson, Wilmington, Del. Mrs. Anne M. Godfrey, federal Americanization chief for California, Nevada and Arizona, fulminated against radicalism.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—The issue of "Amalgamation or Annihilation" has been raised in every labor union in the country thru the action of the Chicago Federation of Labor in almost unanimously adopting [illegible] calling for the amalgamation of all crafts in the different industries. This resolution, while receiving the support of various [illegible] of labor, [illegible] aroused the enmity of Samuel Gompers and other leading officials of the American Federation of Labor, [illegible] Gompers even made a trip to Chicago in an effort to head off this movement.

THE WORKER this week publishes an article on this all-important question by J. W. Johnstone, secretary of the Organization Committee of the Chicago Federation of Labor, that brought in the "Amalgamation Resolution." Johnstone is one of the national executive committee-men of the Trade Union Educational League, and was one of the chief organizers of the great stockyards' strike in Chicago. The article is as follows:

By J. W. JOHNSTONE

The greatest and most pressing need of labor at this moment is a greater and more binding consolidation of its fighting forces on the industrial field.

This is made glaringly apparent by the completeness with which the employing classes have covered every industry in the country with rich and powerful fighting organizations.

Chambers of Commerce, "Citizens' Committees," etc., aggressive, militant and imbued with a keen sense of solidarity, rally vigorously to each others' support in times of industrial strife.

To say that they are united on all questions would be wrong; they bicker and fight bitterly amongst themselves, big business crushing and swallowing small business, etc.

Even now the small banking interests of the country are forming a national organization to combat the ever increasing power of the master financiers, but when it comes to where they stand on the labor question, they are solidly united, and are determined to smash organized labor.

Labor Suffers Defeats

These aggressive organizations have won many smashing victories and are still advancing. Labor, on the other hand, since the employers started their labor union smashing offensive, has met at almost every point damaging defeats.

At best, some unions have been able to mark time. Certainly no advances have been made.

The real facts are, if we want to be honest about it, that labor's fighting forces have been forced to retreat and are still on the retreat. This must stop.

With this condition confronting us, we trade unionists will do well to review our fighting line, our form of organization, and make the necessary changes as quickly as possible to meet the present industrial situation.

The numerous defeats that we have suffered should prove conclusively that our fighting forces, as at present organized, are inferior to those of our employers.

For example, why were the packing house workers so decisively defeated? They lost the eight hour day. Their wages were reduced almost 50 percent.

Exposes Craft Union Impotency

All the splendid working conditions gained under the aggressive leadership of the Stockyards Labor Council have been lost and the union so completely smashed that hardly a trace of it can be found.

This is a shining example of craft union impotency, of the incapability of a single trade union to cope with and successfully combat the disciplined, well drilled, militant organization of the employers.

Another glaring example that proves the necessity for amalgamation is the railroad situation. With the most powerful aggregation of employers in the world to fight, we see the pitiful spectacle of 10,000 stationary firemen taking issue with this monster alone.

We also see the operating force standing aside while the shop men went as sheep to the slaughter and then, when the job was well done, the shop men standing by while the operating force got their trimming. Isolated unions and federations have played their part on the railroads and must give way to the next step—amalgamation of all railroad unions into one organization covering the entire railroad industry.

War on Building Trades

Take the Chicago building trades fight against the scab shop. In this instance the heretofore secret organizations of the employing class come out in the open and announce that they are going to smash the building trades unions. The "Citizens' Committee" is the high-sounding title under which they intend to do the job. They represent the richest and most powerful financial and industrial pirates in America.

Here we find the building trades fighting for their very existence, but they are not a united body.

True, there are only about 20 per cent who have not joined with the rest of the building trades who are fighting the so-called "Citizens' Committee" and the Landis Award.

What are the main issues in this fight? Wages is always a big issue, but in this case they take a secondary position.

The scab shop, the using of non-union material, union men forced to work under police protection, the right to strike denied, are what the unions must accept if they agree to the Landis award.

Causes of Division

These are so basic in nature that no union can accept them and live. In fact you would think that there could be no disagreement on the rejection of these clauses. Yet we have division, and why?

Because, in the first place, the rank and file of the minority don't really know what is taking place, and their officials do not see the change of power from the contractor to the financial interest and they foolishly think that the weapons and tactics of yesterday will suffice for today.

Third, and prime, factor is that the employers' organization on the labor question is solidly united and moves in the one direction; they fully recognize their identity of interest and never lose sight of it, while the building trades workers, on the other hand are divided against themselves.

The building trades of Chicago are one of the most powerful union groups in the country. They are exceptionally aggressive and count in their ranks some of the best fighters in the labor movement.

Establish United Front

A temporary united front is rapidly being established and will be completed before this appears in print. There is no doubt that they will win their fight against the so-called open shop but the victory will only be temporary, other issues will be raised and if the building trades allow themselves to be inveigled into another fight before their forces have been solidified, the all too numerous unions amalgamated into one organization covering the entire building industry, defeat will be inevitable.

Amalgamation is the next step that the trade union movement must take or it will be destroyed. There is no choice. It is the natural upward trend of the movement and should have taken place many years ago. We should be acting industrially now instead of merely talking about it, and we have not very much time to lose.

Action Is Now Needed

Action is what is needed. It should be a special order of business in every local union.

Every delegate or any prospective official should state clearly where he stands on the question of amalgamation and if they fail to toe the mark defeat them.

We must realize that the day of a single craft union or loose federations conducting a successful fight alone has gone.

They have blazed the way and have done wonderful work, but their function has been performed and they must give way to a better and higher form of organization.

The slogan of every organized worker in the country should be "Amalgamation or Annihilation."

After Three Years

By J. E. SNYDER

Three year ago, "The Third International" of the Workers of the entire world, in session, at Moscow, made the positive declaration that:—

"The present is a period of the dissolution and collapse of the whole system of world capitalism. Unless capitalism is replaced by the rule of the working class, world civilization will collapse."

Capitalist democracy was branded as a fraud with only pretensions of equality and a disguise for the rule of the financial oligarchy controlled by the great financial and industrial interests.

In national conventions of every nation of the earth this sentiment was echoed by earnest men and women and expressed in platforms and manifestoes spread broadcast among the workers and their masters.

The answer of the masters was JAILS! DEPORTATIONS! FIRING SQUADS! and from the dark corners crept forth the inquisitors with police clubs and machine guns, ready, at command, to murder the prophets of the new day. From the corridors of the Hall of Fame came the challenging words of Walt Whitman:

"Not a grave of the murdered for freedom, but grows seed for freedom, in its turn to bear seed,
Which the winds carry and re-sow, and the rains and the snow nourish.
Not a disembodied spirit can the weapons of tyrants let loose,
But it stalks invisibly over the earth, whispering, counselling, cautioning."

But the masters, as the masters of all ages have done, went on with the mad policy of blindfolding the eyes of truth that they might thus cover up their folly and darken the path of humanity's progress.

And now comes testimony from the ranks of the master's political tools. The rising tide of discontent on the part of the masses and arrogant contempt on the part of the speculators, who gamble in human necessities, has alarmed men in high places who see the wheels of civilization slipping and the declaration of the Third International coming true.

Listen to Mayor Hylan of New York City. The ruler of an empire city. In a speech recently delivered in Chicago, referring to Theodore Roosevelt's condemnation of "invisible government," Mayor Hylan said:

"The real menace of our republic is this invisible government, which, like a giant octopus, sprawls its slimy length over city, state and nation.

"At the head of this octopus are the Rockefeller Standard Oil Company, and a small group of powerful banking houses generally referred to as the international bankers.

"The Rockefeller interests control the Standard Oil Company, a corporation composed of several hundred associated and affiliated concerns transacting a combined business of more than $3,000,000,000 a year. The Standard Oil Flag floats over a fleet of ocean-going vessels larger in number and tonnage than the United States navy and the pennant of Standard Oil is followed and supported by the flag of the United States all over the world.

"The little coterie of powerful international bankers virtually run the United States Government for their own selfish purposes. They practically control both parties, write political platforms, make catspaws of party leaders, use leading men of private organizations and resort to every device to place in nomination for high public office only such candidates as will be amenable to the dictates of corrupt big business.

"They connive at centralization of government on the theory that a small group of hand-picked, privately-controlled individuals in power can be more easily handled than a large group among whom there will likely be men sincerely interested in public welfare."

And Mayor Hylan is not the only capitalist "statesman" that is howling at the heels of the master class. Senators Hiram Johnson, Borah, La Follette, Walsh, Reed and other reformers, in high places, are doing their best to sweep back the rising and overwhelming power of the "invisible government."

The Communist Labor Party of America, in September, 1919, wrote in its program:

"The economic conditions in every country determine the form of organization and method of propaganda to be adopted. In order efficiently to organize our movement here, we must clearly understand the political and economic structure of the United States.

"Altho the United States is called a political democracy, there is no opportunity whatever for the working class thru the regular political machinery to effectively oppose the will of the capitalist class."

With the testimony of Mayor Hylan, with the knowledge that Wall Street and other capitalist interests spent eight million dollars to elect Harding, with the late international combinations of Chambers of Commerce, Four-Power sea and trade control does any one need further proof that the Communists were right about the capitalist power in 1919 and the necessity for the workers to understand the political and economic structure of the United States and to organize accordingly?

As a reminder that the "invisible government" is still at work, six exponents of the workers' cause, who were arrested in Oakland, California, for attempting to organize the Communist Labor Party in California November 9th, 1919, have suddenly been cited to appear in a body for trial under a blanket indictment just returned by the Grand Jury of Alameda County, California. Altho the defendants are fighting this latest move of the inquisition, they expect to be railroaded to San Quentin if the imps of darkness have their way.

The six men are J. A. Ragsdale, I. G. Reed, C. A. Tobey, James H. Dolson, E. B. Smith and J. E. Snyder, while Clarence Tobey is held under a separate charge growing out of the same case.

The defendants are handling their own case and will use their forty jury challenges and this opportunity to corroborate their charges against capitalism, and the claims of Communism to bring freedom and happiness to the workers of the world.

Capitalism is marching to its fall, under a burden of four hundred billions of world debt, and the growing scorn of the entire world. It is doomed. The rise of a new civilization depends upon the workers. No other human power can rise to save the situation. "The earth shall rise on new foundations—We have been naught, we shall be ALL!"

Rally July 14 at Carnegie Hall to Boost Bond Drive

A mass meeting will be held at Carnegie Hall, Broadway and 57th St., on Friday evening, July 14th, the purpose of which will be to launch a campaign for the sale of bonds to be issued by the Russian-American Industrial Corp., which was recently formed by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers in its efforts to help the Russian workers to reconstruct industry.

The capital of the corporation has been fixed at $1,000,000 and shares are being sold at $10 each. As soon as the requisite capital is raised, the corporation will start to manufacture clothing and textile products, in the nine factories which have been turned over to the corporation by the Soviet Government.

The speakers at the meeting will be Sidney Hillman, Pres. of the A. C. W. of A., and Pres. of the newly-formed corporation, Robert Minor, cartoonist, and press correspondent, Timothy Healy, President of the Stationery Firemen's union, Joseph Schlossberg, Secretary of the A. C. W. of A., Arthur Giovanetti, Sect'y of the Italian Chamber of Labor, Abraham Lefkowitz, of the Teachers Union.

TEN WORKERS SHOULD READ THIS COPY OF THE WORKER; KEEP IT IN CIRCULATION

[illegible]

A [illegible]

By [illegible]

The average American worker is much more concerned about the [illegible] cycle of Mary Pickford or the batting average of Babe Ruth than about the defects of the Constitution and the manner in which it might be corrected, for this is the task which Mr. MacDonald, formerly an editor of The Nation, has set himself.

On the other hand, it will not offer much meat to the conscious and well-informed worker. In his criticism of the Constitution, the radical worker goes much further than does the cautious author of this book.

He is familiar with the works of Professors Charles Beard and J. Allen Smith. He realizes that the American Constitution is an economic document pure and simple; that every provision in the Constitution was intended as a safeguard and protection of the property interests and that it has fulfilled its functions perfectly.

He is probably also familiar with the statement of the at one time historian, Woodrow Wilson, who declared that the American Constitution was favored by the privileged classes who were united in purpose and altho a minority, were able to secure its adoption.

The author of this book makes it quite clear that the Constitution is antiquated and that it is no longer responsive to the will of the people.

Mr. MacDonald, it seems, still dwells in the atmosphere of the eighteenth century philosophers, who felt that if only the people would be allowed to express their will, every evil would at once disappear. The Constitution, consequently, must be revised, and all will be well.

The play of social and economic forces, of capitalism, of imperialism and how these forces inevitably control the machinery of government in the capitalist state, no matter what the form, no matter what machinery may be devised to insure the expression of the "will" of the people, of all this the author seems to be blissfully ignorant. At any rate, no mention of such influences is made; nothing is said about the economic basis of politics and political parties.

A [illegible] is left in the mind of the reader [illegible] of the [illegible] does not in fact serve the interests of all the people, but which serves primarily the interests of particular classes or groups. Just as when the Constitution was being framed, Alexander Hamilton declared that the best model to follow would be the English with its hereditary king and lords, so MacDonald urges that in place of an irresponsible president and cabinet we should substitute the English form of government with its responsible cabinet. This, in fact, is the chief point made by the author. He would shear the president of most of his powers, such as vetoing legislation and controlling foreign and domestic policies. Such powers would be transferred to Congress. The formulation of policies would be entrusted to a Cabinet which would be drawn mainly from Congress, and which would remain in power only as long as it retained the confidence of a majority of Congress. The Cabinet could then dissolve Congress and appeal to the people if its policies were not upheld. It would seem that in view of the fact that the English workers enjoy the blessings of just such a system and find it about as responsive to their needs under the Cabinet of Brother Lloyd George as the American government under Brother Harding, it is difficult to become very enthusiastic about the blessings that would follow this reform.

The one advance made by the present author over works of a similar nature is the suggestion that representation in the House of Representatives be based in part on occupation and not entirely on artificial geographical units.

To the worker who has never stopped to analyze the evils inherent in our governmental structure, the book will serve a useful purpose in helping to disillusion him about the document which politicians parade before us as a great charter of American liberties.

Tractors for Soviet Russia

Twenty tractors have been shipped to Soviet Russia for use in the famine district. A complete unit, including personnel, went along and will demonstrate in the famine area what can be done with the aid of modern machinery. The cost of this unit was about $100,000.

This is the first quota of agricultural machinery that has gone forward from the American workers. The Friends of Soviet Russia has taken upon itself a gigantic task of helping in the economic reconstruction of Soviet Russia. The work has begun.

Melting Snows Reveal Horrors.

The spring thaw is bringing to light the gruesome facts of the famine. Heaps upon heaps of bodies are being found—children, women and men, the victims of starvation.

What is Being Done

Up to March 15, the Soviet Government contributed nearly $60,000,000 for food for adults. This does not include the funds collected for taking care of the children, diseased and invalids in the hunger districts nor for the seed.

The Red Army has been ordered to participate in the farming work in the famine districts. All recruits are put through a course in farming. Close contact with the discharged Red Army Guards, many of whom are working on their own farms, others on Soviet estates, has been effected. In the Ukraine 14,000 dessiatins are being tilled by Red Guards. Next year, 33,000 dessiatins will be taken care of by the army.

International Workers' Relief.

The British workers have raised nearly 5,800 pounds sterling for relief. A bazaar in London recently netted several hundred pounds.

Despite adverse conditions in South Africa, the South African Relief Committee has raised about 1,200 pounds sterling, and has forwarded a shipment of food stuffs.

As already reported, the government of Queensland appropriated 10,000 pounds for relief. The Workers' International Relief Committee sent a letter of thanks to the Premier of Queensland for the generous assistance.

Argentine has raised 2,200,000 marks.

France has sent two trains of foodstuffs and is now getting a ship ready to take the place of the "Hortense," which was sunk in the Mediterranean.

The German workers have raised 3,200,000 marks in cash and about 3,500,000 marks in clothes, etc.

What Some Contributors Write.

"Find enclosed the sum of five dollars, as a contribution of the "Church of Christ at Strickland Grove to the famine-stricken of Soviet Russia."

"I enclose my little mite to help the poor brave Bolsheviki in their sufferings, and their noble fight for the freedom of the world workers the world over. May success be theirs is my earnest wish in founding the great brotherhood of humanity."

"I am a staunch friend of Soviet Russia. I am American born and not related nor a descendant, but am of their principles. I am only a worker. My wife has been sick one year. I am 65 years of age. My wages are $55.00 per month."

"I am a miner and am on strike here and we have got to make every dollar go as far as we can. But I've still got a dollar for the starving in Soviet Russia."

"Please find enclosed a post office order which is from the Flowing Wells Sunday School. You already know us."

"This money is from us, the Christian Reformed Church of Kanawha. May the Lord bless your noble efforts that those poor children may receive the necessary food."

"Enclosed find draft for $56.83 for the starving in Russia. Special Easter offering from the ——— Washington Methodist Episcopal Church."

From a National Soldiers' Home: "I regret that I can't send more, but I am also nearly down and out, and living off the 'generous' bounty of Uncle Sam."

"On this 'Good Friday' morning, while writing this at my desk, I can hear the bells of a down-town church call forth the people to sacrifice, and my mind flashes across the pond to our plucky comrades in Russia. I wish every worker in America could understand and appreciate their need at this time.

Laundry Workers Organizing.

A unit of laundry workers is being organized at the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia. All those interested should apply to the Secretary at the office, 240 East 23rd St., from 7 to 9 P. M.

A general member meeting of laundry workers will be held on Friday, July 14, 1922, at 240 East 23rd St., at 8 P. M.

S. T. A. S. R. CLASSES

The following classes are to be formed under the auspices of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia:

1. Classes in Russian for English speaking persons.
   a) For beginners.
   b) For advanced pupils.
2. A class in Stenography and Typewriting.

All those interested are invited to communicate with the secretary at the above address. Office hours: 5 to 8 P. M.

On Wednesdays, at 8 P. M., Allen S. Broms of the Friends of Soviet Russia, is delivering a series of lectures on "Standards and Managements", which are of great instructive value."

[illegible] the Genoa Conference. He writes as follows:

By GEORGE HARDY

In order to understand the situation at Genoa and the actions of Soviet Russia in signing the Treaty of Rapallo, and the German desire for an agreement with the Soviets, we must understand the economics of these two countries.

Speaking of the materialist conception of history, Marx said: "If you cannot interpret history from this angle, you cannot interpret it at all."

This is precisely the case here; in fact, all political advantages aimed at, and all diplomatic manoeuvers arise from this base, even tho we have a proletarian and a capitalist state getting together.

Russian officials have said long ago: "Only the repudiation of reparations, or very radical modification will ease the world's situation, and this only temporarily."

Therefore, they demanded repudiation—a wiping out—of war debts—immediately they entered the conference.

Also, desirous of calling the bluff of France—remembering that Briand had stated at Washington, that the reason France could not disarm was because of the enormous Russian Red Army—they asked for a discussion leading to a reduction of armaments.

This was a test of the sincerity of the capitalist groups.

Lloyd George had to compromise with French imperialism before entering the conference, even tho, British capitalism knew by doing so it was making dangerous concessions, for modern industrialism has brot the whole of Europe into a social unit. It has produced an interlocked productivity which precludes the petit-bourgeois, small ownership outlook represented by France.

The officials of the Workers' State of Russia know the narrow viewpoint of the ruling-class, with all past and present economic antagonisms upper-most.

The Wizard Out-witted

Knowing France would not listen to reason and ease the pressure on Germany, the Russian Soviet Government arranged the Treaty ahead of the conference. It acted like a political bomb-shell when signed. It blasted the apparent harmonious camp of the capitalist enemy, which brot forth the old war epithets against the Germans. The Russians had out-witted the "wizardly wizard"—Lloyd George.

Re-organization of transport; balancing of budgets; the stabilization of currencies. In short, reconstruction of capitalist production—keener exploitation of the workers—is what the Genoa conference is called for. They refused to do the first elementary thing towards it.

Instead, quite obviously, England began playing for Russian trade. While the British Premier says the bolsheviks "entered the conference as enemies" he was prepared to treat with them as victors, for he knows that the Red Army of Labor has beaten the capitalist forces of the world upon the field of battle; and he fears to go home empty handed.

In the last analysis, capitalist economy, and therefore, European and world economy, depends upon the world's workers working. But in all countries, except Russia, the workers allow the masters to rule, throwing themselves to the mercy of the imperialistic plunderers.

Workers Starve Amid Plenty.

The war has produced an economically unbalanced world. Only three important countries of the world have balanced budgets, namely England, America and India. Private ownership of wealth production has failed, depriving the workers of the first necessities of life, so the workers starve outside the factories in a world of want and plenty.

The workers who "won the war of democracy," may well reflect as they walk the streets. Yes! "We won the War" for the allied masters to enslave the workers of the Central Entente, shipping coal and making ships while the allied miners and ship-builders go hungry, because they won the war for the industrial barons.

Russian currency—with the recovery of industry, aided by capitalism, and the development of her enormous wealth—state wealth—will soon wipe out the adverse fluctuation. Russia must enter into agreement with capitalism, since the world's revolution did not happen. Remember, as I have stated many times, the Soviet officials are not retiring before the ruling-class, but before the social forces that have remained capitalistic.

Unite Industry with Wealth

Russia has linked German industry up with her enormous wealth, covering a stretch of territory from Vladivostock to the Rhine, with a population, over two-thirds of Europe.

From a revolutionary standpoint we must regard this as the greatest piece of economic and political strategy made at Genoa. We know that British industry is dependent upon Russia. So are the unemployed of the world, for there can be no relief from unemployment without building up Russia's economic life.

Russia, by linking up Germany, has forced the allied capitalists to challenge each other upon issues they outwardly agreed to solidly before going to Genoa.

Speaking of the revolution Lenin said: "If there had been no war there would have been no political ground to retreat upon." Exactly, and Russia would have been a "Turkey" over-run with allied commissions and capitalist supervisors, dictating and giving orders.

The reverse is the case now. They have fought for the revolutionary suppression of international imperialism and succeeded in no small degree. This is now obvious to the elementary student, for had it not been so, the conference would have adjourned under the pressure of Russian diplomacy.

Revolution Must Be International

The revolutionary working-class knows that the communist revolution must be upon an international basis. We will have to advance and retreat in this class-war in order to manoeuver the masters to their defeat. The Russians temporarily retreated economically, but won politically, for they have forced the ruling-class to do things they had no intention of doing.

Revolutions thruout history were nationalist. The proletarian revolution is different. The workers being the last class to achieve its emancipation must move on an international scale, and therefore, the proletarian revolution must be international, and we are already making headway.

The slave-owners are not able to redeem their system that brings starvation and death to the workers. They are a declining class. The working-class will be the dominant class. The workers should rise to the call for International Unity.

They must rise to aid Russia if invasion is threatened. Do it in no unmistaken terms. Organize around the banner of the Red International of Labor Unions. Join the Communists of the world in delivering labor from wage-slavery. We have the masters in retreat. Ours is the approaching victory.

The workers are not sitting idly by. A move has been initiated for the complete reorganization of the building trades council and is gaining in momentum. Many unions have served notice upon the building trades department of the A. F. of L. that the council must be reorganized in accordance with the constitution of that department, which says in part that: 'No local council, chartered by the building trades department, shall enter into any agreement with a contractors' or employers' association which provides for compulsory arbitration of disputes between journeymen and their employers; or that requires members of affiliated unions to work with non-union men or forbids the sympathetic strike.

All these provisions have been flagrantly violated by the Chicago building trades council. The Landis arbitration became compulsory, union men are compelled to work with non-union men and the sympathetic strike is taboo.

The overwhelming majority of the building trades workers demands a council that will function and help to unify labors' forces in this present severe struggle.

They realize the necessity of centralized leadership and are intent upon creating such leadership by placing more militant workers at the head of the movement and use more up-to-date methods of struggle against the powerful and cunning enemy.

Unite Against Fascisti.

MILAN, Italy.—A united front of the workers of Italy has been established owing to the dangerous proportions assumed by the "fascisti" movement. At a recent meeting of representatives of the General Confederation of Labor affiliated with Amsterdam, the Italian section of the Red International affiliated with Moscow, and the Syndicalists, a joint committee was created which will direct the united efforts of these three wings of the labor movement along the following lines: the demand for liberty of action and of meeting, now virtually denied, because of the lawless interference by the fascisti; safeguarding of the rights already gained by the workers, especially the eight-hour day.

NO MINERS—NO COAL

NEW YORK.—New York's supply of anthracite coal is almost entirely exhausted. Dealers here admit that unless the strike is ended within the next few weeks there will be a serious coal famine when cold weather sets in. "There will be a shortage anyway," said one dealer. "It could not be avoided even if the strike was settled today."

Past and Future of the International Communist Women's Movement

By BERTHA STURM

Since the Second International Conference of Communist Women in Moscow, a solid tie binds all sections of the Communist women's movement of the world.

The ever more uniform and energetical organization of women's propaganda results in closer connections between the various sections and the International Women's Secretariat.

While the latter—besides the work of the Women's Secretariat—has been especially engaged in establishing connections with the countries of the Near and Far East, with the Russian border states as well as with Poland and the Balkans; the Berlin Sub-Bureau had to keep up communications with the Western European countries. The means and results of this activity will be outlined in the following review.

Only very seldom and at special opportunities the Sub-Bureau addressed general circulars to the sections.

It rather exchanged opinions and material with this or that country on national problems of special practical importance, thus giving the communications an individual character.

The reason for the employ of this method is evident. Only the International Women's Secretariat is authorized to discuss and decide on problems of international importance.

In consequence of difficulties of communications between Soviet Russia and the Western countries proposals and decisions of this kind did not arrive in Berlin as often as would have been desirable for a close and vigorous co-operation. In order to carry thru the tasks set by the International Women's Conference is was necessary, however, to consider the particular national conditions in every country.

Immediately after the World Congress the International Women's Secretariat addressed a first circular to the Party Executives and women correspondents of all countries clearly summarizing the demands of the International regarding women's propaganda, which are of fundamental importance for a systematic organization of the activities among women. Among these demands the most important were the setting up of National Women's Secretariats, publication of women's periodicals and women's pages in the Communist daily press, providing of continuous financial support for purposes of women's propaganda. The Party Executives were asked to support by every possible means the realization of these measures and to give a report on the results of this work within three months.

On its own initiative the Berlin Sub-Bureau twice appealed to the Communist women of all countries for participation in the actions and demonstrations of the world proletariat. Two manifestoes were issued dealing with the relief campaign for Soviet Russia. These manifestoes were dispatched to the international Communist Press and to all women correspondents. On the occasion of the fourth anniversary of the proletarian revolution in Russia a circular was issued containing material and organizational directions on the participation of women in the manifestation. Moreover an article on the significance of the Russian revolution with regard to the liberation of women was conveyed to the international press thru the "International Press Correspondence" (Vol I, No. 3).

Of great significance is furthermore a plan for the study of the economic, juridical and social position of working women after the war in all countries of the world which has been elaborated by the Statistical Institute in Moscow in conjunction with the International Women's Secretariat. The Berlin Sub-Bureau communicated this plan to all Sections together with an accompanying explanatory letter.

"The Communist Women's International," edited by Clara Zetkin on behalf of the Executive Committee of the Communist International and of the International Women's Secretariat in Moscow, contains information on the Communist Women's Movement and on important, political, economic and organizational problems concerning it. This international organ, however, is until now only published in German and the material contained therein can only be utilized by a few countries. With regard to this fact we consider it necessary to publish regularly the most important articles in the "International Press Correspondence" and thus to convey them to the international Communist press. Moreover the Sub-Bureau itself is translating part of the material and sending it to the various countries.

Another important task has been begun by the Berlin Sub-Bureau: the publication and distribution of Communist booklets for agitation among the masses of politically indifferent proletarian women. In countries with very few trained agitators this task meets with great difficulties. In order to overcome them the entire women's propaganda material which has been published until now by the National Women's Secretariat of the Communist Party of Germany, has been sent to the various sections for information and utilization. Furthermore, the organ of the Communist Party of Germany for women's agitation "The Communist Woman" is regularly dispatched to all sections which are in connection with the Sub-Bureau. On the other hand the Berlin Sub-Bureau receives more or less regularly all women's periodicals and women's pages as well as all pamphlets on women's problems from the various countries. The Sub-Bureau has also commenced to organize an exchange of this material between the Sections which, however, has not yet been completely accomplished. By exchanging articles and reports on the women's movement which are of international interest, the character and the methods of women's propaganda will become more uniform, and experiences, successes and plans of every country can be utilised on an international scale.

The Sub-Bureau furthermore considered the idea of translating pamphlets of international significance into the most important languages, and of publishing booklets for countries with the same language (Germany, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Switzerland; France, Belgium, Switzerland). The first attempt in this direction was made by the booklet "Working and Peasant Women in Soviet Russia" by Alexandra Kollontay, which is now issued by a German publishing house. For translation into other languages two pamphlets were chosen which have already been published in German and which are especially suited for agitation for the Russian Relief Action: "The Working Woman in Soviet Russia" (illustrated text) as well as "Soviet Russia and Her Children." The simple descriptions of revolutionary ideas and inspirations as well as their rich illustrations of these booklets have met with great sympathy among the German proletarian women.

On the organizational state of the Communist Women's Movement in the various countries the following may be reported:

Material and reports on Hungary were provided by an Hungarian woman comrade who is working in Moscow. Though we have received no reports from Bulgaria since the International Women's Conference we realize from the Bulgarian women's organ "Ravenstvo" (Equality) that our comrades there are doing active and successful work. The other Western European countries are all in communication with the Berlin Sub-Bureau. Some of them are even reporting regularly and in detail.

National centers for women's propaganda (women's secretariats or women's committees) exist in the following countries:

Germany, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Bulgaria, France, Holland, Sweden, Switzerland. In Italy, where heretofore only some district committees were in existence (Turin, Milan), the Party is at present organizing a National Women's Secretariat in the new headquarters of the Party in Rome. Secretaries for women's propaganda paid by the Party are employed in Germany, Czecho-Slovakia, Bulgaria and France.

In Germany, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Bulgaria (?), France and Holland the responsible directors of women's propaganda are members of the Party Executive with deliberative and in some countries even with decisive voice.

In Belgium, Great Britain and Italy (where the formation of a national committee is only a question of time) the Party Executives have charged certain comrades with the task of organizing the women's propaganda. In Denmark Comrade Marie Nielsen has been appointed president of the Relief Committee for Soviet Russia. We hope that this fact will have a good influence on the propaganda among the Danish women.

Communist women's magazines are being published in Germany ("Die Kommunistin" — The Communist Woman), Czecho-Slovakia ("Die Kommunistin" — the Communist Woman in German, "Zenski List" and "Zeny" in the Czech language), Bulgaria ("Ravenstvo" — Equality), Holland ("De Voorbode") Sweden ("Roeda Roester" Red Voices) and in Norway ("Arbeider-koniden" — Working Women). In France the publication of a women's magazine was decided upon at the Marseilles Congress; in Austria this problem is being discussed.

Women's pages in the daily papers were arranged for in Germany (Tribune of the Proletarian Woman in the Central organ, "Die Rote Fahne"—The Red Flag, and pages under various headings in 24 provincial organs), in Austria (Women's Page of the Vienna "Rote Fahne", in France "Tribune des Travailleuses"—Tribune of Laboring Women in the "Humanité" and an increasing number of women's pages in the provincial papers), in Switzerland (women's pages at irregular intervals in the "Vorwarts" at Basle and in the "Kampfer" at Zurich). Occasional articles, contributions and reports on women's problems appear on the editorial pages of the Communist Press in Germany ("Die Rote Fahne" and the provincial papers), Czecho-Slovakia ("Vorwärts" at Reichenberg), France ("Humanité"), Italy ("Ordine Nuovo"), Holland ("Tribune"), Belgium ("Drapeaux Rouge") and Switzerland ("Kampfer").

Germany, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, France, Holland and Sweden have published pamphlets for women's agitation.

Women's National or District Conferences since the World Congress have taken place in Germany, Czecho-Slovakia, Holland, France and Finland. In Austria a National Women's Conference will be organized in conjunction with the forthcoming Party Convention.

Two problems of great importance for the character and the spirit of Communist women's propaganda as well as for its firm organizational structure could not be dealt with in this report and will be discussed separately; the mutual information and support of the sections and the Berlin Sub-Bureau by appointing delegates of the International Women's Secretariat with instructions for temporary collaboration in this or that country; secondly, the international mobilization of proletarian women for the Russian relief action and, vice-versa, the utilization of the campaign for the enlivenment of the Communist women's movement.

Soviet Russia Needs Machinery As Well As Food

Vast Shortage of Machines Will Mean Another Famine

Russia was never able to produce her own machinery. Before the war, Russia used to import tremendous quantities of machinery, especially farming implements and machines. In 1913, 45,000,000 gold roubles (1 rouble = 50 cents) worth of farming tools and machines was produced in Russia. Gradually the annual production diminished, owing to the Soviet Government having to fight the counter-revolutionaries. In 1920, Soviet Russia produced only 2,500,000 roubles' worth of the same machinery.

The deterioration of farming machinery in Soviet Russia is fearful. Since the outbreak of the war (eight years), only 100,500,000 roubles' worth has been manufactured, as against a normal production of 350,000,000 roubles' worth. Before the war more than 50,000,000 roubles' worth was imported every year; since then none at all.

In addition, according to statistics published not long ago, of the 18,000,000 ploughs in use in Russia at the time, 12,000,000 were made of wood, and of the 22,834,000 harrows, 21,000,000 were either of wood or furnished only with iron teeth.

As a result, in order merely to reach the 1913 standard, Soviet Russia must be provided with at least 800,000,000 gold roubles' worth of farming machinery and tools.

Only one of two things can relieve the need of Soviet Russia. Either a large part of the population must die, or tremendous amounts of farming machinery must be furnished. Food alone will not settle the matter, since it merely will relieve the immediate need. If machinery is not supplied, famines will become a regular manifestation in Soviet Russia.

Genoa has demonstrated that Soviet Russia cannot depend on the capitalist governments. The Hague will probably be but a repetition of Genoa. The task devolves upon the workers: they must supply what the capitalist governments refuse Soviet Russia. They must furnish productive, constructive relief—relief that will build up the country and make it impregnable to the attacks of the capitalist governments.

AMERICAN DELEGATES TO WORKERS' INTERNATIONAL RUSSIAN FAMINE RELIEF CONFERENCE, BERLIN, IN DANGER

Explosion in Hamburg Damages Building in Which They Are

While sitting in the office of the Hamburg Famine Relief Committee, and talking over with the secretary matters of the conference called by the Workers' International Russian Famine Relief Committee on July 9, in Berlin, an explosion took place that startled the three American delegates to the conference.

Two bombs had been placed in the office of the Hamburger Volkszeitung, a radical paper, only one of which exploded. Only one person was hurt.

For the moment, however, it was quite a startling experience for the American delegates. The act has been laid at the door of provocateurs, a type of person very active at the present time in Germany—owing to the advanced and critical stage of the struggle between the workers and their employers and to the increasing will of the workers to become the masters of Germany.

PROSPECTS FOR CROPS IN SOVIET RUSSIA

Most recent reports from Soviet Russia indicate that the crops are progressing well in those districts that were most affected by the famine. There are dangers, however, in the fact that hunger may drive the peasants to eat the crop before it ripens, and that a few provinces are threatened by grasshoppers and field-mice.

In Zaritzyn 19 per cent more area was planted than last year and the outlook is very good. Propaganda among the peasants to plough up the land early was very successful. During the summer it is hoped to till 50 per cent more soil than last year. This is also true of Saratow.

Lack of Draft Animals

The want of horses and oxen is being keenly felt. The peasants have made the greatest efforts to plant as much ground as possible. Without the aid of draft animals, however, they were obliged to pull the ploughs and harrows themselves.

In Tschuwaschen, Ufa, Wiatka, Tambow, Orenburg, Damask, Samara and Kazan the outlook is very good. Food, however, must be furnished till the end of August. And to prevent another famine, Soviet Russia must have machinery.

SOVIET RUSSIA READY TO EXPORT LARGE QUANTITY OF FLAX

Rich Chance for American Importers

A splendid opportunity presents itself for American flax importers to obtain supplies of that material.

The commercial newspapers of the world and especially governmental sheets assure us day by day that Soviet Russia has nothing to export, that her production has completely ceased and that, even tho she might be producing in small quantities, the railroads are so demoralized that nothing can be transported.

This is totally untrue. It was just as untrue when the American Relief Administration early in spring asserted that it would be useless to send more grain to the Russian ports, since they were congested and the railroads could not carry all the freight.

Soviet Russia is ready to do business in flax. American importers interested should apply to the Friends of Soviet Russia, 201 West 13th St., New York City.

SALZMAN MEETINGS

Albany, July 6; Troy, 7; Schenectady, 8; Cohoes, 10; Amsterdam, 11; Johnstown, 12; Gloversville, 13; Utica, 14; Syracuse, 15; Oneida, 16; Pennelville, 18; Rochester, 19 and 20; Buffalo, 21 and 22; Niagara Falls, 24; Jamestown, 25; Salamanca, 26, Olean, 27; Bolivar, 28; Hornell, 29; Van Etten, 31; Ithaca, August 1; Geneva, 2; Binghamton, 3; Paterson, 4; Passaic, 5; Stelton, 6; Newark, 7; Elizabeth, 8; Jersey City, 9.

Have You Helped?

By C. E. RUTHENBERG, Executive Secretary, Workers Party.

Have you responded to the United Front Campaign Fund appeal?

Have you sent in the minimum of $10 for this work?

We must have at least that much from each branch in order to make a success of the work of making the party a real force in the class struggle in this country.

The Central Executive Committee of the Party has considered the question and has determined that no party branch has done its full duty unless it raises at least 50 cents for each member of the branch. That is the quota for your branch—if you have twenty members you should raise $10, if you have fifty members, $25, a hundred members, $50.

The contributions will be listed in the United Front Campaign Fund column of "The Worker." Will your branch be listed in the revolutionary roll of honor of those which do their full duty?

Comrades:—The United Front of Labor program of the party is a practical question of the immediate class struggle. We can put our program into effect if we put sufficient power behind it.

We must do that. That requires speakers, organizers, leaflets. Your quota of the United Front Campaign Fund will help secure them.

RAISE IT QUICKLY. SEND IT PROMPTLY.

The campaign is growing in force and power. With your help it will go forward even faster.

Let us make our party count in the class struggle. Let us make it a powerful and unified party.

MESSAGE OF THE ALL-RUSSIAN CENTRAL FAMINE RELIEF COMMITTEE TO THE WORKERS OF THE WORLD

Appeals to All Workers to Continue the Shipment of Food and Productive Help

On June 7, after hearing a report of the Secretary of the Workers' International Russian Famine Relief Committee, Berlin, the All-Russian Central Famine Relief Committee of the All-Russian Central Executive Committee of the Soviet Republic issued the following message:

"In spite of the bad economic conditions and other difficulties that they had to contend with, the workers of the world have made it possible thru energetic work to assist most materially in combatting the famine in Russia.

No Relaxation in Famine Relief

"The Central Committee sends its thanks to the workers of all countries for their fraternal aid.

"In view of the terrible need in Soviet Russia, the Central Committee appeals to the workers and labor organizations of the world not to diminish their relief work, but on the contrary to increase it as much as possible. It is most essential to take care of the many thousands of orphans, to provide the suffering workers with food and to build up agriculture and industry which have been destroyed by the famine. The Central Committee feels sure that the call of the starving Russian workers and peasants for help will be heard by all workers."

WRITE LETTERS TO SOVIET RUSSIA!

Peasants Moved to Tears by Letter They Have Received

French, Swiss, British and German workers send letters with their contributions to the starving workers and peasants in Soviet Russia. The letters frequently are sewed into the garments that are contributed or are laid in the boxes and bales that are sent to Russia.

These letters speak a tongue that only a worker speaking to another worker can use. Thus a seamstress in Berlin sewed in the pocket of a coat a slip of paper on which was written what millions of workers in all parts of the world would say to Soviet Russia to-day: "Brothers, do not be discouraged. We are poor and weary and our exploiters grind us down. But we workers will help you—not with gold and goods—no, with our hearts—with our blood.—Brothers. Keep your heads high!"

These words are the gospel of solidarity and mutual help of the workers and all suffering people. What are all resolutions and proclamations compared with these simple words coming from the heart of a poor seamstress deprived even of the necessaries of life?

Letters from children and from all kinds of workers. They are being kept at the Women's Club at Kazan, and will attest the solidarity of the workers when Soviet Russia was in great need.

Let Russian Workers Know You Stand by Them

When sending your contribution to Soviet Russia, whether it be money, clothes, tools or machinery—whether you are a man, woman or child—send words of greeting and cheer to our suffering Russian comrades. Send your letters to the Friends of Soviet Russia, 201 West 13th Street, New York City, and they will be forwarded to the workers and peasants in Soviet Russia.

These letters frequently mean more than food—they buoy up the suffering workers and convince them that they do not stand alone against the antagonistic capitalist world, but that workers in all countries stand by them, ready to help.

Farewell Resolution of the International Group of Mechanics

At the farewell party of the International Group of Mechanics on the eve of leaving for Soviet Russia, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Be it resolved that the First International Group of Mechanics members of the Lettish Co-operative Society of Petrograd and of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia of the United States and Canada, express its full satisfaction and appreciation to Comrade F. Zimmerman and the members of the Central Bureau of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia for their material help and assistance in getting the group organized.

And be it resolved that the Central Bureau of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia and Representatives of the Lettish Co-operative and the Kuzbas Organization work and send group after group of workers to the Economic battlefront of the First Workers' Republic.

"And be it further resolved that all comrades remaining in the United States become active members by joining the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia and help to build up the economic front and make it as strong as the military front. Only then will Russia be safe from the attacks of world imperialism.

The Committee: Henry Weber, Edward M. Boyle, Edward Hecht and Joseph Wimmer.

ROLL CALLS AND TOOL DRIVE LISTS TO BE KEPT IN RUSSIAN ARCHIVES

As a testimonial of what American workers have done for their Russian comrades at a time of deep distress, the Soviet Government has decided to preserve the Roll Calls and the Tool Drive Lists in the archives of Soviet Russia. There will be a department for the display and safe keeping of all literature and other matter arising out of the relief campaign.

In years to come, when the famine has become a thing of the past and when Soviet Russia has shown the world what workers can do in co-operation instead of under the lash of the capitalists, workers in America who have assisted their Russian brothers will be remembered from the inscription of their names in the Roll Calls and Tool Drive Lists of the F. S. R.

MARSHALL MEETINGS FOR THE WEEK

J. W. Marshall, speaker on tour for District No. 2 of the Workers Party, will fill the following dates:

Geneva, N. Y., July 6; Binghamton, N. Y., July 7; Paterson, N. J., July 8; Stelton, N. J., July 9; Passaic, N. J., July 10; Newark, N. J., July 11; Jersey City, N. J., July 12; Elizabeth, N. J., July 13.

Police Picked As Arbitrators by the Proletarian Party

BUFFALO, June 25.—When J. W. Marshall, speaker on tour for District No. 2 of the Workers Party, arrived here he found that two meetings awaited him on one scheduled corner, one arranged by the Workers Party and the other by the Proletarian Party.

The Workers Party committee had arrived at the corner first. Both meetings had been sanctioned by the police. Greetings were exchanged between the two committees by a rapid flow of hot arguments.

The leader of the Proletarians, a real estate shark by the name of Peterson, said that he would let the police render a decision on this difficulty.

The Workers Party speaker ventured the suggestion "that we should not settle our differences with the capitalist state as arbitrator," and the reply was, "When in Rome you must do as Rome does," in other words, "when in capitalist America you must do as capitalist America does," that is whenever an argument occurs between groups of workers who are supposed to be class-conscious, always call in the police to settle the question.

In short, the Police-Proletarian faction won in the first round and the Workers Party meeting moved to a less frequented corner.

Peterson's stand in with the police seems to be too evident to avoid suspicion. We are satisfied tho that the membership as a whole of the Proletarian Party is above using such tactics.

Young Workers of New York Show Progress at Second Convention

At the second convention of the Young Workers' League of Local Greater New York held recently, the League unanimously reaffirmed its endorsement of the Workers Party of America as being the only fighting organization of the adult workers in America.

The Executive Committee of the Local reported on the activities of the New York League and reviewed the progress of the league from the time it had changed its name from the Independent Young People's Socialist League to that of the Young Workers' League.

At the time the youth organization carried its old name there were about 150 members in New York. But with the inception of the Young Workers League in the field the New York League gathered over 300 members.

At present there are 15 branches of the Young Workers' League in New York.

Besides reaffirming its adherence to the Workers Party, the convention endorsed the Young Communist International and its sections in every country. It endorsed the decisions and rulings of the National Convention and went on record to support the Friends of Soviet Russia in the Famine Scout Campaign.

The following statement was sent to the National Executive Committee of the Young Workers' League by the convention:

"Clarity and action. This seemed to be the guiding spirit of the Second City Convention of the New York League.

"We have accepted the decision of the First National Convention of the Working Youth and have made determined strides towards the fulfillment of our tasks."

The New York League prides itself upon holding the first city convention in accordance with the rulings laid down by the National Convention.

In its efforts to build a strong Young Workers' League thruout the country, the New York League issues a challenge to all other leagues in a race for the formation of branches and for 100 per cent response to the national organization, and its program.

Young workers, join the Young Workers' League!

Big Move for Amalgamation

What promises to be the greatest move in this country for a railroad industrial union is disclosed in a circular received in New York by local lodges in the sixteen railroad unions.

It consists of a "PLAN FOR AMALGAMATION" of the sixteen unions, put out in the form of a leaflet of four pages with diagrams, by the Minnesota Railroad Shop Crafts Legislative Committee.

The plan recites the situation confronting the railroad workers, the arguments for and against amalgamating into an industrial union, a practical plan for bringing it about, and an appeal to the local unions to unite with the Minnesota body to place the plan before every union railroader.

The entire proposition is unparalleled for completeness, and the thoro manner in which every phase of the question is covered in about 4000 words.

The diagrams are illuminating, and throw the advantage of the industrial union of railroad workers into such bold relief, that every worker can see its advantage at a glance.

The leaflet is offered to the local unions for distribution among their members, at the rate of $1.50 per hundred copies, and should receive a wide circulation. The leaflet is signed by the Secretary of the organization, O. H. Wangerin, 411 Dakota Bldg., St. Paul Minnesota.

The Role of Government

It is quite evident that the coal operators have disappointed the politicians.

The operators were confident that non-union coal production would take care of the demand and in three months the miners would be willing to crawl back to the mines on the owners' terms. Instead of this many thousand formerly non-union miners have joined the United Mine Workers of America and though with the aid of judges and gunmen coal production is slowly increasing the surplus is rapidly vanishing.

The miners are winning their strike; the solidarity in their ranks is as strong as ever, so Mr. Harding calls a conference—something he could not see his way clear to do three months ago.

His speech to the assembled representatives of the miners and coal barons contained the usual bunk relative to the rights of "the great American public." It also contained a veiled threat of government intervention in some other form than an attempt at mediation and it was at the miners that this threat was directed. It is in situations of this kind that the mask of impartiality falls from the face of the various governmental agencies and these agencies are seen in their true role—that of coercing the workers when the economic power of the employers cannot bring them to heel.

It is significant that the press, democrat and republican all alike, commend the White House puppet for his remarks on this occasion.

Our Wondrous Educational System

Every now and then, particularly when some snooping committee composed of morons and worse, comments on the discovery of some radical who is polluting our public school system, that system is lauded to the skies as the greatest of the achievements of this great republic and bitter are the denunciations hurled at those conscienceless reds who seek to poison the fount of knowledge from which the youth of this land derive education and inspiration.

Accustomed to absorbing the bunk and piffle of the professional publicists of capitalism as a sponge absorbs water we take it for granted that about 97 per cent of the American public throw out their chests and agree that we are the most enlightened nation in the world and that the percentage of intellectual giants in our midst averages rather high.

It is with considerable pleasure in these days of loyalty oaths for teachers and the compulsory singing of the Star Spangled Banner by children who have had no breakfast—and whose prospects for supper are poor—that we chronicle once more the findings of government experts who examined that cross-section of American society—the men drafted into the national army. Here are the figures that condemn our educational system as a tragic failure and which explode the hoary theory that the public schools function as educational institutions.

5 per cent of the men were of the mental age of 18 or over.

10 per cent of the men were of the mental age of 16 to 18 years.

18 per cent of the men were of the mental age of 14 to 16 years.

25 per cent of the men were of the mental age of 13 to 14 years.

20 per cent of the men were of the mental age of 11 to 13 years.

15 per cent of the men were of the mental age of 9 to 11 years.

7 per cent of the men were of the mental age of 7 to 9 years.

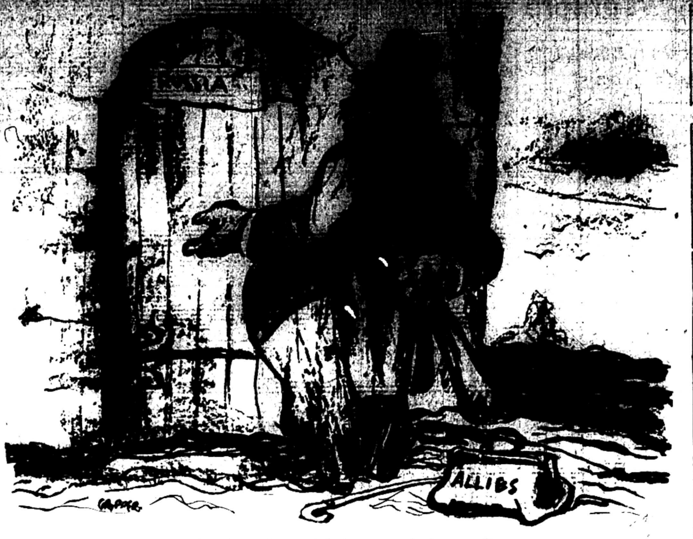
With unwonted charity we will assume that the 15 per cent who were of the mental age of 16 and over can be considered normal. This leaves 85 per cent of the products of our educational institutions who have the mental equipment of children of the age of 16 and under.

The figures are averages compiled from an examination of more than three million men from all walks of life. They prove that the average American citizen is mentally a child with only a child's control over his actions. It offers the best explanation we have yet seen for the ubiquitous mediocrities in American public life. There must of necessity be solidarity among morons.

Just what harm a few reds could do to a system that produces such results is a little hard to understand unless we realize that the public schools are not intended to educate but merely to produce automatons mouthing parrot-like, the catch-phrases of capitalism; automatons, such as those whose mental qualifications we give above, ready to fight and die for glories they do not share, for causes they do not understand.

Longs For Private Life, Harding Tells Friends—Headline.

A rapidly increasing number of the population are willing to gratify this longing.



The Allied attitude: "Rob if we can, trade if we must!"

Liberalism and Religion

The National Catholic Welfare Council, whose pronouncements in favor of the trade union movement as it now exists, against the twelve hour day in the steel industry and the more subversive phases of the open-shop movement have been quoted with enthusiasm by the liberal and labor press has been suspended by the Vatican.

The National Catholic Welfare Council was an expression of an insurgent movement within the Catholic Church whose supporters are called Modernists. It differs with the officialdom of the church on many questions the chief of which is the recognition of the fact that rules and regulations compiled during the feudal period are inapplicable to the modern industrial era. The Modernists have their counterparts in the Protestant churches, in the Interchurch World movement whose report on the steel strike brought them to financial ruin.

We are interested in the fate of the Welfare Council and the Interchurch World movement only because it tends to show that officially the churches are a part of the capitalist system—one of its bulwarks—and that when any group gets out of hand it is either given the choice of severing its connection with the parent body or remaining silent concerning the evils of present day society.

When churchmen, because of a lukewarm attitude toward things as they are, incur the displeasure of the powers that prey they become living demonstrations of the fact that orthodoxy exists merely because it supports a ruling class.

When churchmen complain of injustice in the system and are then punished for heresy it becomes additionally evident that economic heresy is the one crime that the rulers—religious and political—never forgive. Orthodox religion is not only against social revolution but it is solidly against any tampering with the right to rob and tyrannise at will on the part of those who own.

To religious liberals it seems that this understanding never comes. They become martyrs for the sake of their convictions but for what pitifully inadequate remedies do they sacrifice themselves.

German Workers Save the Republic

The German workers have once more demonstrated to the satisfaction of the world that the power is in the German unions. There is not the slightest doubt that a monarchist uprising would be crushed with little difficulty, that the ten or twelve millions of organized workers can, if they will, dictate the kind of government that Germany shall have.

The cowardice of the existing government becomes more apparent as this fact is realized. Instead of encouraging the belief of the workers in their power and the right to exercise it the social-democratic government has never ceased its continual swing to the right. It has catered to the monarchists and the capitalists and on its own head is the blood of Rathenau.

There has been but little change in the complexion of government in Germany since the overthrow of the Kaiser. Some democratic forms have been set up but on the whole the personnel of the courts and the police is about the same. In its hysterical fear of a working-class revolution that would sweep away the capitalist state the social-democratic government has sought to strengthen itself by catering to the most reactionary elements—aristocrats and ex-officers. It has used them to break strikes and to terrorize the workers; any advances the workers have made have been in spite of the mouthers of democratic phrases who sit in seats of power in the German government.

When Erzberger was murdered last summer it was the communists who initiated the mass protests and insisted on elimination of all monarchists from public office. The government replied with the suppression of a few monarchist papers for a few days while at the same time suppressing more than twenty communist organs. It continued its retreat toward the right and the murder of Rathenau was the logical result.

It now appeals for the support of the independent socialists and we hope that they will consent to enter the government. If they do it will clarify the issue in Germany because with the admission of these opponents, who cannot strengthen the government, it becomes a straight question of the complete overthrow of capitalism or the continuance of a regime which the German workers have saved time and time again from the consequences of its cowardice and incompetence.

There are unmistakable indications that the German workers are tiring very rapidly of saving the "republic" for the benefit of Stinnes and the flock of vultures he represents.

It is already apparent that the Ebert-Scheidemann-Noske crowd again intend to use against the communists the emergency legislation enacted to suppress monarchist activity.

In so doing they are playing with fire and there will be no kindly workingmen to save them when this fire breaks out.

5,000 Readers Drafted in "The Worker's" Campaign for 25,000 New Subscribers

All Workers Party Locals, Branch Members, and all readers of THE WOREKR are asked to take active part in the great WORKERS campaign now on.

DRAFTED! Yes, drafted. Damnable word! Well, it all depends. If it's the capitalists that say the word to the workers—to enlist, to fight for them, to give life, blood and treasure, that profits may be increased, that capitalists and their State, their society, their interests may prosper, then, we agree. DRAFTED is a word of damnation and we are opposed to it.

BUT—AND HERE IS THE DIFFERENCE—if DRAFTED means that WORKERS draft WORKERS to work, to struggle, to make secure the interests of WORKERS—THEN—we say, the word's all right, and we're for it to the limit. We're opposed to the capitalists' rule in any and every form—and because we are, we refuse to place a limit on workers' rule; for this reason—workers' rule means workers' obedience to their own rule. It means the elimination of capitalists' rule, elimination of obedience of the workers to capitalist rule. That's what we are for and we think YOU are with us.

THAT'S WHY WE DRAFTED YOU!

Precisely. Because THE WORKER Management believes that every reader is opposed to the rule of capitalists over the workers, we have drafted each and every one in the campaign for 25,000 new subscribers. If there are any WORKER readers who believe that the exploiter should govern the workers—they are exempt from the draft. We wouldn't think of drafting them in this campaign. Good soldiers in a working-class cause are never made of that sort of material, at least not while in that state of mind, and we know they are worse than useless for our purpose.

ORDERS TO MOVE FORWARD

A special letter to all WORKER readers is being mailed this week. This letter contains instructions to MOVE FORWARD. It tells WHAT TO DO—HOW TO DO IT—WHEN TO DO IT. We expect every reader to follow his instructions. SUCCESS depends upon each. Success will come, 25,000 new subscribers WILL be the harvest if each reader DOES follow instructions. Read your instructions—obey them—move forward—share in the victory!

WORKERS PARTY UNITS WILL TAKE LEAD

Workers Party Locals and Branches must take the lead in this campaign. There will be no exemption for them. They have already enlisted. They are duty-bound to serve full time and obey all instructions. No backing out for them. We don't think any of them will wish to back down. They must, they will take the lead.

WATCH FOR THE EXPLOSION

What a lot of bugaboos there are in the world. Even the revolutionary movement has its share—more than its share, we think. We are going to explode one of them in this campaign. There is one known as the "HOT WEATHER INERTIA." And we say, in the words of the Hairy Ape, "To hell with it." We say again, paraphrasing the above named proletaire, that all that's needed is smoke, steam, fire, steel—and we'll smash thru at "twenty-five knots an hour." And that's what counts. Put more fire and steam in your own work and we'll win thru.

We say, the hot weather "inertia" is all bunk. It has no place in the revolutionary movement. It has no place in the activities of the Workers Party; it has no place in this campaign for 25,000 new subscribers,—and, it is not going to get a lease of life from us. We say it is all bunk and we are going to explode it as a theory. We and the WORKER readers are going to prove by GETTING THESE 25,000 SUBSCRIBERS during these summer months that this bugaboo is just what we call it—unadulterated bunk and deserving of death at the hands of militant workers.

THAT'S ALL—EXCEPT—

This campaign was determined upon knowing the difficulties facing it. Unemployment, a low morale among the workers, a disorganized and disrupted labor and revolutionary movement, and all the rest.

And, it is a part of the REMEDY FOR THE PRESENT DISORGANIZATION OF LABOR IN AMERICA.

Every WORKER reader desires this upbuilding of labor. They themselves, must administer the remedy. They must create the contact between the workers and communism and its message. This is your duty. You must fulfill it. When you do so, you will have helped much in the revival of militancy among the workers. Do your part. Follow the instructions in the letter sent you.

Business Manager.

National Convention of Workers Party Is Called for August 28

The Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party in its session last June 29th and 30th issued a call for a national convention of the party to be held beginning August 28th in Chicago.

During the discussion of the question it was argued that a convention of the party is necessary to clarify the party program and to strengthen the party organization. An agenda committee consisting of Robert Minor, J. Louis Engdahl, C.E. Ruthenberg, E. T. Allison and Alexander Trachtenberg was elected. This committee will also make the preliminary draft of the party program.

The convention will consist of 75 delegates, which will be apportioned to the districts on the basis of dues paid for the months of March, April, May and June.

Editorial Policy of Papers

One of the sessions of the sitting of the committee was devoted to the discussion of the editorial policy. After an exhaustive discussion of the policies of the party papers the following decisions were arrived at:

1. That all Workers Party papers be edited in every instance in harmony with the principles of the Third International.
2. That it be the policy of our papers to give publicity to the decisions and resolutions of the Third International.
3. That the C. E. C. holds the responsible editor of each paper responsible for carrying out these decisions.
4. That it shall be the policy of the papers to give the widest publicity to the news of the struggles of the American workers and to editorially discuss these struggles.

An editorial board consisting of Robert Minor, William F. Dunne and C. E. Ruthenberg of which the editors of the party papers will also be members was elected to coordinate the work of the party publications.

Greets Young Workers' League

The report of the executive committee of the Young Workers' League was received and the following resolution of greeting was adopted:

WE WELCOME THE YOUNG WORKERS' LEAGUE

A response to the resolution adopted by the first convention of the Young Workers' League on the matter of the relationship to the Workers Party.

The Workers Party welcomes the adherence of the Young Workers' League to its banner. The younger comrades in adopting and living up to their watchword, "Clarity and Action," prove their clear recognition of the nature of the class struggle and the methods by which it must be waged. Their request for political guidance by the party while maintaining a friendly reciprocal autonomy in their organization affairs, translates this slogan from theory into practice.

Experience in the world movement has shown that in the major struggles of the workers there must be no divided counsels if victory is to be achieved. The young movement has a specific mission. It must reach the American youth with the message of Communism and furnish leadership in the struggles of the young for freedom from capitalist oppression. This struggle however, is part of the general class struggle and cannot be waged on any basis of duality. The Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party will continue its support of the activity of the Young Workers League and instructs all party units to further the development of the young movement. It welcomes the exchange of fraternal delegates on all directing committees and will bring the matter of allowing such delegates a vote to the attention of the next convention of the party which alone can make the constitutional provisions necessary to such action.

Long Live the Young Workers' League of America, organ of the revolutionary-minded youth of this land, vanguard of the young forces that will establish a communist order thruout the world.

Comrade A. Schulenberg was seated as the representative of the C. E. C. of the Y. W. L. on the C. E. C. of the Workers Party and all party units were instructed to enter into a similar exchange of representatives. Until the next convention the Y. W. L. representatives will have a voice, but no vote in the party units.

Y. W. L. CONVENTION

Strong efforts will be made to organize the working class youth, in the vicinity of the Great Lakes, by the Young Workers League of Chicago, at its Convention to be held in Chicago, July 2nd, in the Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd.

NOTE:—Questions on the subject of child education will be answered. Address all questions to the Child Education Department, The Worker, Room 405, 803 11th St., New York City, N. Y.

Harding Helps Rail Lords

STRIKERS TIGHTEN THEIR GRIP ON ROADS; RAILWAY BARONS ADMIT LACK OF SCABS

Amalgamation

The Need of the Hour for the Sixteen Standard Railway Unions; a Practical Plan Proposed by the Minnesota Railroad Shop Crafts Committee

With the Minnesota Shop Crafts legislative Committee the following unions are affiliated: International Association of Machinists, International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Helpers, International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Ship Builders and Helpers of America, Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers International Alliance, Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

At the 1922 convention of the Railway Employees' Department of the American Federation of Labor, President B. M. Jewell demanded of the amalgamationists that they stop talking in general terms of their proposition, and submit a definite plan of a general railroad amalgamation. Here it is.

Railroad unionism is in danger. The [illegible] shop drive is now upon us. The companies are determined to wipe out the unions on the railroads and to establish a condition of serfdom for their workers. And they are all too successful in their efforts. Even the most powerful unions cannot resist their onslaughts, and as for the weaker one, they are being crushed outright. Conditions are being worsened rapidly in every branch of the service. Wage cuts, lengthening of hours, abolition of overtime rates, re-establishing of piece-work and straight time for Sunday work, and the general elimination of union conditions are the order of the day. Faced by a militant and relentless foe railroad labor is in disastrous retreat.

In this great struggle, the companies are winning because they are thoroly united, while the workers are not. All the important railroads in the United States are controlled by a dozen New York banks, which, in turn, are in the hands of a few financial pirates. Railroad Capital is one gigantic organization which fights as a unit all over the country. But railroad Labor is split into many fragments, into sixteen autonomous unions, amongst which real solidarity and concerted action is impossible. Against our mighty foe, we fight in little detachments, developing only a fraction of our power. That is why we are losing the battle. To oppose the mighty railroad combination of capital with single craft unions or loose federations of them is about equal to fighting the modern battleship with bows and arrows.

We must look the situation squarely in the face and act accordingly. There is one way, and one way only, in which we can defeat the offensive of the companies, and that is to develop our full power by thoroly uniting our own forces. We must bring about unity of action among the entire army of railroad workers, from the engineer to the section hand. Like the employers, we will have to act as a solid body all over the country. To do this requires imperatively that we draw together our scattered and divided forces into one enormous organization of all classes of railroad workers. Such a gigantic combination would not only stop the "open shop" drive of the companies, but it would also enable the workers to forge ahead to new conquests. It would be invincible. With the 1,800,000 railroad workers standing united and making common cause together, there would be no industrial power in the country able to withstand them. The creation of this powerful organization would begin a new era of accomplishment, not only for railroad workers but for the whole labor movement.

Such a great railroad union would be strictly feasible. The employers have been able to combine the financial and technical sides of the industry. Surely, then, the workers have the intelligence to unite the human side of it. Indeed, the best proof that it can be done is the fact that in many countries the railroad workers are already organized in single great unions covering every category of the service. All that is needed is the will, and a little horse sense. Yet the thing must be gone at intelligently. To simply desert the old unions and to try to organize offhand a perfect organization is a fatal mistake. That way lies dualism, disruption and demoralization. We must act in accordance with trade union evolution. We must stay in our old unions and work diligently to merge them together thru amalgamation. For almost forty years the railroad organizations, in a hundred different ways, have been gradually uniting their forces and expanding their fighting front. Their ultimate, inevitable goal is a solid organization of all workers in the railroad industry. That is the real meaning of the development of the system and division federation movements, the organization of the Railway Employees' Department, the agreements between the four Brotherhoods, and now the consolidation of the B. of L. E. with the B. of L. F. & E. We must fall in line with this process and recognize its inescapable conclusion, which is one union for all railroad workers. Our task is to work ceaselessly for and to everlastingly insist upon amalgamation of the sixteen railroad unions into one mighty, inclusive organization.

Only Coolie Scabs Take Strikers' Jobs

By HARRY GODFREY

(Federated Press Staff Correspond.)

General managers of railroads running into New York now admit that "at least 70 per cent" of the shop crafts workers are on strike. They still are running advertisements in the newspapers for shop crafts workers of all kinds.

They also, with the exception of the Pennsylvania and Long Island railroad officials, have in effect withdrawn their threat not to take back any strikers and now are attempting to get back the workers by declaring themselves ready and willing to do so "for a time."

The admission of the rail officials that 70 per cent of the shop workers are out, to those who have followed their claims is equivalent to an admission that the strike in fact is 100 per cent effective here.

Detailed figures furnished by the union officials show that 25,000 men are out in the New York terminal district.

No word of any peace move had been received here from Chicago, according to David Williams, vice

Courts Rush To Aid of Rail Barons

CHICAGO. — Federal and state courts have mobilized for action against the 400,000 striking rail shopmen, leading off hostilities with injunctions and public statements. The unions seem slowly to be forcing the railroads to defeat. Use of strikebreakers has caused tension in several districts.

Judge Wants Publicity

The familiar cuss words of industrial warfare were brought into play by Federal Judge Car[illegible] licity." Carpenter drew up a "personal letter" to U. S. Marshal Robert Levy and then read it to the newspaper men.

"Mr. Marshal Levy, personal," Carpenter read. "The courts of this country, both federal and state, are the last bulwark between the people and communism, bolshevism and anarchy. In our courts the poorest and the richest have equal and only equal rights."

He then instructed the marshal to protect strikebreakers and enforce Hands Off, Uncle Sam!

Workers Party Calls on All Labor for Solid Strike Front

The Workers Party of America, viewing the successful efforts of the financial and industrial interests to secure unlimited supports of the federal and state governments in the railway and coal strikes has issued the following manifesto to the workers of the United States:

The government machine is in motion to help the bosses cut down wages and reduce the standard of living of the workers of this country. The goveernment is preparing to strike down the resistance of the workers by using injunctions, courts, soldiers.

Six hundred thousand miners are on strike

Four hundred thousand railroad workers are on strike.

One hundred thousand textile workers are on strike.

The government is preparing to attack these workers to help the bosses beat them into submission.

The Attack On the Workers

The bosses want big profits for themselves—AS BIG AS THE [illegible] profits they are trying to force down the standard of living of the workers. They want to force the workers to eat poorer food, to wear poorer clothing and to live in poorer homes.

For two years now the bosses have been attacking the workers all along the line. They have slashed wages everywhere. They have increased hours of labor. They have tried to dstroy the unions.

MILLIONS OF WORKERS ARE ALREADY SUFFERING AS A RESULT OF THE ATTACK OF THE BOSSES. THEY AND THEIR FAMILIES ARE LIVING ON LESS. THEY HAVE BEEN COMPELLED TO REDUCE THEIR STANDARD OF LIVING SO THAT THE BOSSES MIGHT HAVE GREATER PROFITS.

The bosses are not satisfied. They want to drive wages still lower. They want to destroy the workers' organizations completely. They want the workers completely at their mercy so that they may rule as unchallenged Kaisers in the industries of the United States.

More Than a Million Workers On Strike

In their campaign to do this they drove the miners out on strike by refusing to negotiate a new wage agreement. They are determined to destroy the splendid fighting union of the miners and to establish the open shop in that industry.

They forced the hundred thousand New England textile workers out on strike thru a second cut in their wages within a year.

With the help of the government acting thru the Railway Labor Board they cut the wages of the Railway workers last July. In June this same board announced another cut of the wages of the same workers reducing their wages, in some instance, to as low as 23 cents per hour. It is to resist this attempt to make them work for starvation wages that the shopmen have gone on strike.

The Railway Labor Board has gone so far in the attempt to help the railroad owners as to endeavor to induce workers to scab by giving them a clean bill of health. It has timed its wage-cuts in such a way as to jockey the railroad union into separate strikes.

Workers! Now We Must Unite!

Workers! The coal diggers, the railroad shopmen, the textile workers, more than a million men, who are on strike against a bitterer wage-slavery are not fighting for decent food, clothing and homes for themselves and their families alone. They are fighting for a decent standard of living for the whole American working class. They are fighting for you. They are fighting for the wives and children of all the workers.

If the bosses can beat down the miners, if they can whip the textile workers into submission, if they can make the railroad shopmen accept starvation wages, they will strike at other groups of workers and force even lower wages and worse working conditions upon them.

Workers! The time has come for united resistance against the attack of the bosses. The miners, the textile workers, the railroad shopmen must be supported by the whole power of workers of the country.

Engineers, firemen, conductors, maintenance of way men! Refuse to scab by working while the shopmen are fighting. Your turn will come next. DO YOU TO WANT FIGHT ALONE?

Workers of every trade, stand by these striking workers. Refuse to handle scab coal. Refuse to do any work that will help the bosses in this fight.

The Government and the Strikers

The bosses are preparing to play their strongest card against the striking workers. They are planning to break the strikes thru the power of the government. They propose to beat the workers into submission thru use of injunctions, courts, soldiers. Already scores of injunctions have been issued, the militia is out in Illinois, [illegible] and other states. The use of United States soldiers is [illegible]

Railroaders and Miners Worrying Employers

By LAURENCE TODD

Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON.—First fruits of the informal alliance between the organized railroad workers and the United Mine Workers of America, in their common struggle to restore labor standards in the basic industries on the continent, were seen here when the United Mine Workers, backed by the nation-wide strike of railroad shop men, laughed at the threats of the coal operators.

A long and heated session of the coal barons with the coal miners' spokesmen led to precisely nothing, from the operators' standpoint. But from the standpoint of the miners it was valuable in showing to the country that organized labor is now "coming back."

So firm were the miners on their demand for a national conference agreement and the maintenance of the old wage scale that the administration was compelled to toss into the midst of the scuffle its plan for arbitration of the dispute.

The railroad workers recognize that they are coming to the aid of the coal strikers at the critical time, and that the coal strikers have won half the battle for the railroad men. The railroads are carrying non-union coal to market. A few weeks will show that these roads cannot get along without shop forces. Coal delivery will fail; coal production in non-union mines will cease when cars cannot be promptly moved.

Strike Effective

At the headquarters of the International Association of Machinists, President Johnston declared, "Everything is going finely; the strike has been even more effective at the outset than we had expected.

Harding Gets Orders from Rail Lords

President Harding has taken his cue from the Railway Labor Board and by proclamation has outlawed the members of the railway shop crafts who are on strike as well as all who assist them in any way, shape, form or manner.

The proclamation, after reciting events leading up to the strike, places the whole force of the federal government behind the railway owners in the following language:

Now(Therfore, I, Warren G. Harding, President of the United States, do hereby make proclamation, directing all persons to refrain from all interference with the lawful efforts to maintain interstate transportation and the carrying of the United States mail.

The issuing of the proclamation following a hurried conference with railway executives gives the lie to the reports caried by the capitalist press to the effect that the strike is not effective. From all reports the railroads are badly crippled and the expected influx of men to take the strikers' places has not materialized. The total of trains cancelled by the various roads runs into the hundreds, and on the Wabash alone it is stated that about 3,000 miles of road are out of commission.

CHICAGO.—"The striking employes are not being driven back," declared B. M. Jewell, president, railway employees' department, A. F. of L., as reports of the first weeks' success of the strike came in.

"Notwithstanding that we have by every means available to us made it known that a conference was desired with any responsible person authorized to negotiate a settlement or that any proposal by any person properly authorized would be carefully considered, no move has been made by either parties to bring about a settlement with us," Jewell continued.

"Responsibility for continuance of the shop men's strike therefore does not rest with the federated shop crafts employes."

Jack Bradon Heads World War Veterans

MINNEAPOLIS. — Election of Jack Bradon, New York, as national chairman, concluded the third annual convention of the World War Veterans, held here and in St. Paul. Bradon has put 12 years in the regular army.

Advanced views were expressed by many of the delegates and strong resolutions adopted, including a demand for recognition of Russia and for a billion dollar loan to Russia for purchasing farm machinery. Relief work of the Friends of Soviet Russia was indorsed unanimously.

Demands for the release of 700 service men alleged still held in Ft Leavenworth were voiced. Support of them miners on strike was voted. Delegates to the convention represented strong miner constituencies in Illinois and West Virginia. The railroad labor board was called upon to rescind its action outlawing the striking shop crafts by virtue of its appeal to strikebreakers to organize and obtain the board's recognition.

Mayor-elect A. F. Nelson, St Paul, and Mayor George E. Leach, Minneapolis, welcomed the convention to the Twin Cities.

by the railroad labor board was hailed here as the acknowledgment on the part of the majority members of that body, that its doom had been sounded by the strike. Resignation of the labor members of the board is anticipated as the next logical development. After that, the administration may select two representatives of strikebreakers and a new representative of the transportation force to speak for the 2,000,000 railroad workers. The presence of A. O. Wharton, representative of the outlawed shop crafts, in the board is now made so illogical that he will probably soon be taking a prominent part in the directing of the strike. Such, at least, was the opinion of labor officials in Washington.

The A. F. of L. comes directly into the rail dispute thru the affiliation with that body of a large number of local unions of colored freight handlers and coach cleaners in the southern region. They cannot strike without direct sanction from the executives of the federation.

"Soviet Russia Has Stopped Retreat," says Advise From Moscow

MOSCOW.—Volga provinces, reporting to the central executive committee, send word that grain sown a year abo is now coming up in some places. This fact bears additional testimony to the severity of the drought last summer, which did not even allow the grain to sprout.

It is not yet known to what extent this grain will bear. But the peasants, hailing this miracle with renewed hope, are returning home in thousands from the cities and outlying districts to which they fled.

Terrible need still exists. The Nansen committee estimates a million deaths before the harvest and that undernourishment will be serious all next year. Lack of horses and man power for the seed sowing will undoubtedly leave many districts without sufficient food this fall.

But the Volga will not be blotted out as a food producing region, as was feared in the extreme depression last winter. It has sustained a severe blow and will have lost by famine and disease some 2,000,000 inhabitants, but it will recover. This means that Russia need retreat no further at present. It means that extreme concessions at The Hague need not be expected.

For nearly a year Russia has been retreating step by step, forced to serious compromise and concessions in order to save the bare life of her citizens. Some weeks back Lenin announced that the retreat was at an end. Signs of this appear already in Moscow. There is no longer the same desire, or even willingness to admit foreign capitalists, for mere "purposes of investigation."

There is a strong desire for trade and for foreign capital, from concerns which really mean business. Profitable concessions are still open, one of the recent ones is the turning over of large numbers of ruined houses in Moscow and Petrograd to a British construction company which will put them in repair.

Giant irrigation projects in the whole Volga basin to ensure all future harvests wait only for capital. Mining concessions, forest concessions, factory concessions, represent not only opportunities for foreigners to make money, but also needs of Russia.

Will Not Pay High

Russia will not pay too high, because she knows she doesn't have to. Her good harvest prospects and her treaty with Germany assures that. If necessary, she can go forward without external help.

The assistant health commissar of White Russia said to me, as I passed thru Minsk: "Last fall the word was everywhere: 'Retrench, retrench.' We cut down in every direction; we could not care for the children in our homes properly; we dismissed people right and left; we had to cut in places where we knew it meant death to cut. But this spring the word has gone out: 'Expand! The young generation must be made strong.' The work we do now has hope in it, it is not merely pouring all we have into a bottomless gulf to keep human beings barely alive, it is building healthy children for the future."

these vulture nests. What violence there has been so far has been almost solely confined to clashes between the hired guards and pickets.

In Bloomington, Illinois, however, where several companies of militia were sent immediately the strike was called, they have been engaged in indiscriminate volleying which has endangered the lives of the residents and resulted in the demand from the citizens that they be withdrawn. The brotherhoods on the Chicago and Alton have threatened to strike if the troops are not removed.

bosses it steps in—with its injunctions, courts and soldiers—to break the strike, to beat the workers into submission. The government—national, state and municipal—is at all times a tool of the bosses which they use to protect themselves in robbing and exploiting you. When the bosses get into a pinch they openly use this governmental machinery to beat the workers into submission.

Keep the Government Out

Workers! You must use your strength to keep the government from breaking the strike of the miners, the textile workers and the railroad shopmen thru use of force—thru injunctions, and court action backed by soldiers.

DEMAND THAT THE GOVERNMENT KEEP ITS HANDS OFF. BACK YOUR DEMAND WITH A MASS DEMONSTRATION OF YOUR STRENGTH.

Call mass meetings and parades in every city to express the workers' opposition to government interference to help the bosses break the strikes. It is time that labor speaks out. Let the bosses and their political tools who run the government for them know that labor has power.

The central labor organizations in each city exist to fight the common battles of the workers against the bosses. These central bodies should mobilize the workers for mass meetings and parades against the sending of soldiers into strike zones, against the use of the injunctions and courts to break the strikes.

Union men! Make the demand in your local union that these central labor bodies act.

Demand that the central labor body in your city immediately call a mass meeting in support of the miners, the textile workers and the railroad shopmen.

WORKERS! YOU HAVE POWER. YOU HAVE THE POWER OF GREAT NUMBERS. YOU MUST MARSHALL THAT POWER TO PREVENT THE BOSSES FROM BEATING THE MINERS, THE TEXTILE WORKERS AND THE RAILROAD SHOPMEN INTO SUBMISSION THRU USE OF INJUNCTIONS, COURTS AND SOLDIERS.

Workers! We must fight if the bosses are not to grind our faces into the dirt. We must fight back with all our power if our wages and working conditions are not to be made worse than ever.

LET US BUILD A UNITED FRONT AGAINST THE BOSSES, THEIR INJUNCTIONS, THEIR COURTS AND THEIR SOLDIERS.

IF WE DO THAT THE MINERS WILL WIN, THE TEXTILE WORKERS WILL WIN, THE RAILROAD SHOPMEN WILL WIN, THE WHOLE WORKING CLASS WILL WIN BECAUSE WE WILL HAVE BEATEN BACK THE ATTEMPT OF THE BOSSES TO MAKE US ACCEPT OWER WAGES AND WORSE WORKING CONDITIONS.

the injunction previously issued by "such means as may be necessary."

Wrecks are becoming more frequent. Union men say these are due to defective inspection by green strikebreakers, while quarters friendly to the roads intimate malice on the Milwaukee road, the Santa Fe and the Reading.

Roads Invite Violence

Determination by the railroads to resume shop operations with strikebreakers under guard has led several sheriffs to warn that this will probably result in violence. Armed guards are hard to control and strikers are quicker to recent excesses and abuses by company guards than policing by the regular authorities. Union meetings have been uniformly peaceful, according to reports to railway employees' department headquarters here.

"We are powerless to prevent bloodshed if the railroads carry out their plans," said Sheriff Jake Morrison, Bloomington, Ill., where the Chicago & Alton has planned resumption.

The Illinois Central has set July 17 as the deadline for strikers to return to work without loss of seniority in a long advertisement in the press setting forth that the men are striking "against lawful decisions of a branch of the U. S. government."

The expiration of such notices on other roads, notably the Milwaukee, has nto affected the walkout which remains as solid as at the outset on July 1, according to union headquarters.

In spite of federal injunctions against picketing, the 2309 shopmen compromising the forces on the 19 roads with staffs in St. Louis are effectively maintaining their own.

Coal roads are feeling the pinch. The Norfolk & Western has all shopmen out and laborers in addition. Some clerks, maintenance of way men and non-union men have also joined.

NO COLOR LINE

SAN FRANCISCO. — Interracial solidarity was evidenced in the strike of railway shop men here when Japanese engine wipers walked out with the white workers in the Southern Pacific shops. At Roseville Chinese railway laborers joined the strike.

EUREKA, Cal.—Omar J. Eaton, I. W. W. organizer, was found guilty of criminal syndicalism by a jury which was out five minutes. J. Kennedy, defense league secretary, is still in jail for contempt of court because he protested against Judge Sevier's refusal to allow Elmer Smith to act as Eaton's attorney.

is being continued by the railroads, the Baltimore & Ohio being the latest addition. The road admits in its advertisement that "the efforts of the company to fulfill its obligations to the public have, necessarily been hampered by the strike now in effect." A Michigan Central passenger train limped into the station here with two big locomotives pulling it.

The Southern Pacific system shopmen are out almost to a man all along the line, according to a wire from System Secretary Gordon with offices in San Francisco. Milwaukee maintenance of way men are reported out 50 percent though no strike order has been issued.

Armed guards on the Milwaukee road have been sent to Milwaukee from Chicago according to the admission of one guard who was arrested on complaint of pickets.

If no wage increases are obtained before August 1 by E. F. Grable, president, Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees, unions of the New England roads will strike, according to resolutions forwarded to Detroit.

Kansas Slave Act Working

The Kansas industrial court act, known to workers as the Kansas slave law, has been invoked to break the strike. President T. Huntington and Secretary Thomas Hillery, Federal Shop Crafts, Topeka, have been ordered arrested, charged with sending out strike orders in violation of the compulsory arbitration clause of the law. Other union officials are to be arrested for the same reason, though they claim that the law does not apply on roads engaged in interstate commerce. It is expected that the action of the state will cement the rail-miner alliance more firmly in Kansas, since Alexander Howatt and August Dorchy, former miners' district officials, have been convicted and are serving sentence for refusal to recognise the act.

Resuming the warlike tone he had laid aside for a day, Ben W. Hooper, chairman, U. S. rail labor board, announced that no consideration would be given the shop crafts' case unless the strike orders were withdrawn and application made to the board for rehearing. Hooper again sounded the "outlaw" note in his statement when he declared:

"The shop crafts have been fairly heard before the local board. They have appealed from the sober, conservative judgment of this board to the strike, with all its inevitable un-American subversion of law and order. For the labor board to yield to measures of this kind would be an outrage upon public decency and would hasten enthronement of anarchy in this country."

BOISE, Idaho.—Three I. W. W. members serving long terms in the state penitentiary here for alleged criminal syndicalism have been granted paroles. They are Henry Farner, James V. Bliss and Thomas O'Hara.

Bookkeepers' Union Loses Its Charter

The charter of Bookkeepers, Stenographers and Accountants' Union No. 12646 has been revoked by order of President Gompers. The power to do this is vested in the executive council of the Federation as the union was chartered directly by that body. The union was opposed to the Gompers policy and has been conducting an active propaganda campaign for industrial unionism, the support and recognition of Soviet Russia and other policies that are poison to the Gompers regime.

It appears that certain international officials in whose offices the union members were employed objected to living up to the working rules of the organization and complained to the ancient president of the A. F. of L., who listened with much sympathy to their lurid tales of persecution at the hands of the militant stenographers.

Local reactionaries have been gunning for this little union for some time. The officialdom of the Ladies'y Garment Workers openl boasts of its part in wrecking the organization; it is notable that the New York Call gives the same story in connection with the revocation of the charter that the capitalist press carried featuring the attempts of the organization to secure union conditions in the offices of international unions.

Coolie Labor

president, International Association of Machinists, and secretary, central strike committee of this district. He declared that there would be no settlement save on the terms of the strikers.

It has become known that at least one railroad here has made separate peace overtures to its striking shopmen. The offer was rejected on orders from B. M. Jewell, national director of the strike of the six federated shop crafts.

That the rail managers fear a further extension of the strike is indicated by the fact, according to union leaders, that the New York Central management has offered to make concessions to the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks if they would cancel their strike ballot.

With more railroad workers in this district joining the shop crafts strikers daily the Erie railroad has resorted to the use of Chinese coolies as strikebreakers in its Jersey City yards. Between 150 and 200 Chinese, recruited among unemployed seamen here and in other Atlantic coast ports, are working in the places of laborers who have quit in sympathy with the shopmen.

The strike in this section is progressing favorably according to John J. Dowd, chairman, strike committee. He declared that of 443 foremen in the local yards, 251 have joined the strikers.

The Long Island railroad is feeling the pressure of the strike. Large numbers of electricians, boilermakers and other mechanics are quitting the Long Island power plant, and many skilled mechanics of the New York Central lines have joined the walkout. Rail service in and out of New York, particularly commuting service, is beginning to show effects of the strike. Trains on the Long Island are late, and the Erie has been forced to cut down the number of trains.

shop men by walking out despite indefinite postponement of strike orders by President E. F. Grable. San Bernardino, Cal., an important rail center in the southern part of the state, reports maintenance men out there on the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific systems.

Traffic Curtailed

Traffic is reported curtailed on some roads. A few passenger trains on the Northwestern line have been taken off temporarily, it is understood, while continued advertising for help with police protection promised by the New York Central lines and notices in the press by the Burlington and Milwaukee roads threatening loss of seniority rights if the men do not return by stated dates indicate that the walkout is actually more complete than the companies are willing to admit officially.

The favorite company propaganda stories are putting in an appearance. One of the most time-honored, to the effect that officials of local unions on one line are strikebreaking on another line where they hope to remain unknown, was trotted out in the papers the third day of the strike as happening in Chicago.

The stories of interference with U. S. mails, intended to pave the way for government intervention, broke into print the sixth day, originating in St. Louis, Kansas City, Marshall, Tex., De Quincy, La., and Chaffee, Mo. Alleged violence was reported from Bloomington, Ill.

SEATTLE.—The 12-hour day, poor food and unpaid overtime are now the rule on ships running to Alaska from this port and operated by the Admiral line, one of the shipping board's maritime companies.

Chicherin Nails Lie of Chicago Tribune

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
(European Director, The Federated Press)

BERLIN. — George Chicherin, commissar for foreign affairs of the Russian soviet republic, is in Berlin undergoing medical treatment after his labors at Genoa. He does not want to be interviewed and declares he is out of touch with affairs in Moscow for the time being.

Nevertheless he suspended his role of a private citizen long enough to pay his respects to the 'world's greatest newspaper," and to denounce its Berlin correspondent.

"The Chicago Tribune," said the foreign minister, "declares I have said that, so long as Russia has not been recognized by the powers, we will not withdraw our memorandum of May 11, the withdrawal of which is demanded by America and France as a condition of these two countries for participating in The Hague conference on Russian affairs. The inference is that, in case we are recognized, we may withdraw this memorandum.

"Never have I said that the government of the soviets would agree to renounce its principles for the sake of concessions to be made in return for recognition."

(The memorandum of May 11 is the negative reply of Russia to the demands of the capitalist governments assembled at Genoa.)

The news of the million dollar corporation formed by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers in America to establish nine clothing factories in Moscow and Petrograd seemed to please him.

Liberators, Poetesses, Moon Calves, Freudians Join in One Mad Revel

The Liberator Artists and Writers have arranged an Outdoor Costume Ball for Saturday, July 22nd, at Midland Park, Grant City, Staten Island.

Floyd Dell, Author of Moon Calf will act in the capacity of a Sigmund Freud hearing confessions from ladies. Lydia Gibson, poetess, will head a delegation from Tahiti, followed by South Sea Island belles in their native garb.

One of New York's perennial problems, deciding who is the prettiest girl in town, will be definitely settled. The settling will be done by a committee consisting of Boardman Robinson, Floyd Dell, William Gropper, Mike Gold and Robert Minor.

In the afternoon there will be a baseball game between Artists and Writers to decide the supremacy of pen or brush. Among others who will play are Robert Minor, Michael Gold, William Gropper, Gellert, Engdahl, Dunne, Art Young and Allison.

Meeting to Launch Gigantic Project to Aid Russia

A movement of far-reaching importance has been started by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers with the formation of the Russian-American Industrial Corporation. Responding to the call of the Russian workers for help in their efforts to rebuild industry upon the shattered ruins of Czarism, the A. C. W. of A., thru its officers, has taken the first concrete step in the direction of rebuilding Russian economic life.

The nation-wide campaign for the boosting of the R. A. I. C. will start with a monster mass meeting, arranged under the auspices of the Friends of Soviet Russia for Friday evening, July 14, in Carnegie Hall, 57th St. and Seventh Ave. Many notable speakers will be present. Chief among these are: Sidney Hillman, Jos. Schlossberg, Arturo Giovannitti, A. Lefkowitz, Robert Minor, and W. H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists.

It is pleasant to dance awhile in the fresh air to the music of a first-class string orchestra. It is still more pleasant to know that all your movements while dancing or otherwise enjoying yourself will be recorded by a motion picture film. Comrade Allan S. Broms of the Friends of Soviet Russia will take these pictures. Arrangements will be made to enable you later to see these pictures on the screen.

The filming will take place at the annual picnic arranged by the New York Branch of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia at Dickert's Old Point Park, 4018 Boston Road, Bronx, July 16, 1922. The films will be sent to Soviet Russia as soon as possible. Each organization is expected to bring a banner with the name of their organization done on a white background in black or red letters.

Comrade Ben Gitlow will say a few words of greeting.

Gates open at 12 A. M. Ten per cent of clear proceeds will go to the F. S. R. for famine relief.

All aboard for a good time! Come and help a good cause.

Discussion will be held in the Garden which has been especially prepared with lights and decorations for this and other occasions of open air meetings, discussions, etc. All comrades are urged to come early in order to be admitted, as the capacity is only 300.

The comrades have an opportunity of spending more than a pleasant evening participating in a subject of serious debate among all sections of the working-class of this country. Admission 15 cents.

Antonini Shows Schlesinger Violated Instructions of Union

(The action of President Schlesinger of the International Ladies' Garment Workers in failing to support the minority resolution for the recognition of Soviet Russia at the A. F. of L. convention has aroused a storm of protest in the ranks of that union.

President Schlesinger and the editor of Justice, the official organ of the union, have tried to explain away what has proved to be a most embarrassing situation for these recent converts to Gomperism.

We therefore take pleasure in publishing the following statement from Luigi Antonini, the one delegate to the A. F. of L. convention, who fought for the minority resolution and against the machine on other matters. The letter corroborates certain statements made by The Worker in the preceding number.—Ed. Note.)

Editor The Worker:

It has come to my notice that a question has arisen in the Jewish Press with regards to the stand assumed by the delegation of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union at the recent Convention of the American Federation of Labor, held in Cincinnati, O., regarding the recognition of the Soviet Russian Government.

Inasmuch as I do not understand or read Jewish, I could not say anything and besides it was not my intention to enter into this discussion. But I have carefully read the explanation given by President Schlesinger in the issue of the New York Call of Saturday, July 1, 1922, as well as the editorial in the official organ of the I. L. G. W. U. No. 27, issue of Friday, June 30, 1922, on the same matter.

While I do not know why he had to explain or defend his stand, I note that he had the honesty to state in his explanation, "with one exception," which exception of course refers to me. However, I am sorry to note that in the editorial issued in "Justice" no such reference is made but all are put in the same sack, thus giving the impression that the stand taken by the delegation was my stand as well.

It is well to note here that I was a delegate to the Convention of the A. F. of L. and that I was elected with the largest vote at the Convention of the I. L. G. W. U.

Now, since we are in the field of explanation, I want to state as briefly as possible my position and in doing so I do not intend to take issue with my co-delegates regarding their action, as an account of their action is to be given to those by whom they were elected and not to me, just as i will have to do. However, I cannot do otherwise than say that until the last moment when the report regarding the recognition of Soviet Russia was presented in Cincinnati, I had no doubt that the stand of our delegates would be the same as that assumed by me, inasmuch as at the Convention of the I. L. G. W. U. which took place only four weeks prior in Cleveland, it unanimously voted and decided in unmistakable terms upon the attitude of the International regarding the recognition of the Soviet Russian Government.

In fact, I shall quote here from the report of the Convention of the 9th Day Proceedings, Wednesday, May 10, 1922, when the Resolution Committee in presenting Resolutions No. 95 by Local 3, No. 115 by the Joint Board of Cloakmakers of New York, No. 87 by Local 9, No. 77 by Locals 1 and 25; No. 39 by Local 89, which while expressed in different terms, all ask for the recognition of Soviet Russia, recommended a substitute resolution for all of the above, which is as follows:

> "WHEREAS, the Russian Soviet Government has concluded peace and trade treaties with a number of European countries and are negotiating such treaties with numerous other countries, and
> "WHEREAS, the United States Government still maintains its position not to recognize the Russian Soviet Government, and
> "WHEREAS, such policy pursued by the United States Government may be injurious to the economic conditions of this country, and is contrary to the principles of a democratic government, and
> "WHEREAS, the re-admission of Soviet Russia to the family of nations will help to restore the disturbed industrial equilibrium of the world and to bring to the Russian people more normal and economic conditions, be it therefore
> "RESOLVED, that the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union, in Biennial Convention assembled, urges the immediate resumption of diplomatic and trade relations with the Government of Soviet Russia."

This resolution was carried unanimously and none of the delegates who were at the Convention stood up to speak against it, and for the benefit of all we can go on in the proceedings of the same day and will find that Delegate Miss Goodman asked: "Does that mean that our delegates of the A. F. of L. Convention are not instructed to bring this before the body?" inanswer to which Delegate Heller (Chairman of the Resolution Committee) said:

> "Our delegates are supposed to carry out all the decisions and policies of the International and we have full confidence in their ability to represent the opinion expressed at the A. F. of L. Convention."

I, therefore, as a representative of our people sent to the A. F. of L. Convention held firmly to this stand, without bothering about the reasons brought out by the others, and supported the minority report as presented by the Committee on International Relations at the A. F. of L. Convention, as this was identical to what had been decided at our own Convention in Cleveland.

As to the question of Political Prisoners in Russia, in my opinion it had nothing to do with the recognition of the Russian Soviet Government. I would also state that if there was any intention on the part of our delegates to bring this matter before the Convention of the A. F. of L., they had time to appear before the Committee on International Relations and present the reasons on same, or at least they could have offered an amendment to the Minority Report before the previous question was voted upon.

It is still my opinion that these two questions are different from each other. I believe there must not be any dissension of opinion in asking the Government of the United States for its recognition. If the Government of Finland and Hungary with its White Guards, the Government of Italy with its Fascisti destroying the Chambers of Labor and other institutions of the Workers are recognized, it is no more than just that the Government of Soviet Russia should be recognized and the Russian population left to work out their own destiny.

This has been my stand as a true unionist and socialist. However, I cannot see why my five other co-delegates did not vote in favor of a Roll Call on the question.

I do not think there is anything to add to the above, except that I wish to declare that I emphatically voted for the Minority Report in pursuance of my previous record and attitude assumed in the two previous Conventions of the A. F. of L. at Montreal and then at Denver, believing I am carrying out the sentiments of the members who sent me there.

LUIGI ANTONINI,
Manager Italian Dress and Waistmaker's Union,
Local No. 89, I. L. G. W. U.

President Harding has issued another proclamation on the railway strike. We have not kept count of the number he has issued on the coal strike but none of them to have produced any coal. For this reason we doubt if this one will run any trains.

Mr. Irving T. Bush, president of the New York Chamber of Commerce, according to the press, believes that the Soviet government must be replaced. Without any wish to be nasty about the matter we recall that the late Messrs. Kolchak, Denikin, Yudenitch, and some fe wothers held the same opinion.

Turning from Gompers

By EARL R. BROWDER

One of the hopeful signs in the labor movement is the growing break with the Gompers tradition, on the part of powerful officials in the trade unions. Many do not understand how far this breach has developed. It first showed itself at the Montreal Convention of the A. F. of L., when the Plumb Plan was put over by the railroad unions in alliance with the timid progressive forces, against Gompers' unqualified and unrelenting resistance. It showed itself again in the February conference for considering political action by the labor movement, which was a challenge to Gompers' policy of "rewarding friends and punishing enemies." And while the breach was carefully kept in the background during the recent convention of the A. F. of L., yet it grew even there. In order to get a clue to what a great many labor leaders are thinking, we have to go to those who are the least under Gompers influence. Take the Locomotive Engineers' Journal, a very conservative publication, organ of one of the most traditional of American unions, but outside of the American Federation of Labor, and therefore more frank in speaking its mind. In the July issue, it devotes a column and a half to Gompers and the convention, in which the most bitter words are used. The following are samples:

Convention Looked Backward

"'I always like to look back. That's why I always carry my retrospect along,' said Samuel Gompers on the eve of the forty-second annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, which has just finished its session in Cincinnati. This remark by the leader of the federation epitomizes the whole convention. Like Mr. Gompers it looked backward."

"Unfortunately, most of the time of the convention was devoted not to constructive action, but to negative criticism and laments regarding the sorry state of labor's power under the present regime. Instead of forging a united front for organized labor to offset the combined assault of big business, the leaders of the Federation launched their thunderbolts against the workers themselves. Industrial unionism, the principle of amalgamation, the Federated Press, and other developments in the labor field which are not controlled by Mr. Gompers and his lieutenants were denounced with the bitterest invective. The attack upon the Federated Press is an indelible stain upon the honor and honesty of both Mr. Gompers and his right hand man, Mathew Woll. Woll who is president of the "International Labor Press," the official American Federation of Labor news channel, made an assault on the independent labor news service called the Federated Press which was as untrue as it was uncalled for."

Betray Interests of Workers

"For the leaders of the A. F. of L. to attempt to poison the minds of the workers against those who are striving to better their conditions, and to do this with falsified statements, is to betray the interests of the workers in order to gratify a cheap passion for personal power."

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, paragon of conservatism and "regularity," is not suddenly becoming revolutionary. It is only giving expression to the growing disgust which is felt everywhere in the labor movement for the leadership which is destroying the American labor movement. The same ideas exist thruout the unions under Gompers control, but because of a simple lack of what is vulgarily called "guts," it has not yet come to public expression. When Gompers finally goes, he will receive the same kind of universal execration as the late Diaz of Mexico, or the Czar of Russia. There will be none to mourn, except the courtiers and beneficiaries of his personal bounty.

We will create this WORKER BUILDING MACHINE from its readers. You are logically the most interested in seeing it built up. You have a greater interest in it than any others. It speaks your tongue, it fights your battles, it stands for what you stand for. It is YOUR weapon. YOU must make it stronger.

GIVE IT YOUR STRENGTH. Give it your backing. DO the things which will make THE WORKER grow. These are:

Sell subscription cards.
Secure subscribers from shop-mates on lists (20 weeks for 50c).
Send five dollars for ten sub cards and sell them.
Demand that your Party Branch members all become subscribers.
Demand that every Branch member take five cards and sell them.
Take a bundle for sale or distribution.
Get others to do so.
Get the news stands to take a bundle.
Make your Party unit a part of THE WORKER machine.
Do these concrete things and THE MACHINE WILL BE BUILT.
And when it is built—success is assured.

Amalgamation

Some Benefits of Amalgamation

Many advantages would come to the workers thru a general merger of the sixteen unions. Chief of these, of course, would be far greater industrial power. Amalgamated organizations are always infinitely stronger than federated bodies. The great war furnished a striking illustration of this principle. At first the Allied armies operated practically as autonomous units. But there was too much confusion and too little power. Enemy pressure soon forced them to federate. But even this did not give the smooth working mechanism necessary to concerted action and maximum power. So finally, when it seemed as if the war was almost lost, they all had to amalgamate into one body under one general staff. This brought results. Thereby the strength of the combined armies was trebled or quadrupled, and the fate of the Central Empires was sealed. And so it would be were the railroad unions amalgamated; their present strength is hardly an indication of what their great might then would be. It would be the old story over again of the strands of hemp, which, while separate, are easily broken, but which, bound together into a rope, cannot be torn asunder. Complete amalgamation would give the railroad workers many times the power of the present craft unions.

Another important benefit of amalgamation would be the elimination of jurisdictional disputes between the railroad trades. For years these internecine quarrels, a cancer of the labor movement, have sucked the life blood of railroad Labor, while the companies have chuckled in glee. But amalgamation, the broad highway to solidarity, would put a speedy end to them. Once the railroad workers are all in one organization, there would never again be seen the sad spectacle of one group of trades working while the rest are striking. That disgrace would be gone forever.

Solidarity, Efficiency, Economy

A further advantage of amalgamation would be the practical ending of dual unionism. The long-standing tendency of sections of workers splitting off from the unions and starting new bodies is a serious menace. It has weakened the unions greatly by withdrawing thousands of good workers from them. So serious is this menace that some day, unless it is checked, it may burst forth into a devastating conflagration that will destroy railroad unionism altogether. Dual unionism is peculiarly a disease of craft unionism. For the most part it is a striving, however ill-advised, for greater solidarity. Amalgamation, by achieving this solidarity, would destroy the very foundations of dualism. The launching of a general amalgamation would be the signal for most, if not all, of the independent organizations to join forces with it.

Still another advantage of amalgamation would be great financial economies in the operation of the organization. Consider the saving in rent and other expenses that would result from combining the many headquarters into one. Likewise the economy of merging all the journals, each of which has a separate editorial staff, into a single great publication. The fusing of all the executives, organizing staffs, system chairmen, etc., into one general management, would avoid the tremendous criss-crossing and duplicating of work now prevailing, thus making for great economy. It is safe to say that the business of the railroad workers could be handled much better in one union with a much smaller official family than is now the case.

[illegible] idea of the amalgamated union. A[illegible] is conventions. Some of these cost almost fabulous sums. The outlay for the last convention of the B. of L. F. and E. was [illegible], that of the B. R. C. of A. [illegible] and the B. of R. T. and others in proportion. The amalgamated union would make immense economies in this respect. Basing its representation upon the system federation, instead of the local union, it could, with much more efficiency and just as much democracy, hold conventions not larger than any one of the several crafts does now. It would save at least $1,000,000 per convention over the present system. All told, a general amalgamation would bring about economy in management to the amount of probably a couple of millions per year. This money could be put to real use in building up the organization. Besides its other virtues, amalgamation is especially a measure of great efficiency and economy.

A Plan of Amalgamation

Three things we have made clear so far: First, the imperative need for one organization to include all railroad workers; second, that this industrial union must be brought into being by merging the existing sixteen trade unions; and third, the tremendous advantages that will accrue from amalgamation. And now let us consider how this amalgamated union should be constructed:

The objection most seriously urged against a general union of all railroad workers is that it would be such a confused body that it could not [illegible] physical impossibility because of the widely differing standards of dues and benefits now prevailing in the many organizations, the contention being that it would be out of the question either to get the section men and other low dues-payers to assess themselves the three to five dollars per month that the train service men pay, or to induce the latter to abandon their insurance features so that their dues might be reduced to the lower levels of the other trades.

But those who reason thus know nothing of modern industrial unions, as exemplified by organizations in many parts of the world. In a general railroad union there would be no confusion of trades, no indiscriminate mixture of all classes of workers. On the contrary, there would be far more regularity and order in this respect than is now the case. Such a great union would be divided into a number of sections or departments, each one consisting of two or more closely related trades. In our diagrams we have worked the thing out on the basis of six such departments. Practice might demand one or two more or less than this, but to elucidate the principle we will follow the number stated. Within these departments natural trade lines would be preserved. Men of similar callings would meet together and discuss their common problems. Their demands and needs would be efficiently developed and taken care of. But the several departments would have no autonomy in wage negotiations.

With its various departments, the amalgamated union would be something similar to an army, minus, of course, the latter's stringent discipline. An army has many different sections, such as, infantry, cavalry, artillery, air service, signal corps, commissariat, etc., etc. The lines between them are kept distinct, but all are nevertheless definitely dovetailed together so that they make up one compact unified organization. The whole thing is a model of system and order. Think what a helpless muddle an army would be if it allowed the various sections to operate independently. Yet, with our sixteen autonomous unions, we are doing exactly that impractical thing. It is indeed no wonder that we are so weak. Amalgamation would not bring confusion; we have that now with our chaotic system of craft unionism.

At the head of the general organization would stand an executive council of (according to our plan) thirty-six members, together with the necessary secretaries. Each department would elect six members to this council, and of the six, two would come from each of the three natural divisions of the railroad industry, West, East and Southeast. Thus the executive council would be thoroughly representative, industrially and geographically, of the whole railroad service. Made up of delegates of every trade and every locality, it would be competent to formulate the demands of railroad workers as a whole and to organize a united battle-front to make them prevail. Essentially the same system is now in effect in the famous National Union of Railwaymen of Great Britain, and it is a pronounced success over the old system of craft unionism. In the departmental form of organization, there would be no element of confusion. It would be incomparably more scientific and efficient than our present outworn, haphazard system of trying to do business thru sixteen more or less jangling and disconnected unions, which find it impossible to stand together even under the severest pressure from the companies.

Effects of William Cunningham and family, evicted July 1st, at Wickham, W. Va., by New River Coal Company, as Mrs. Cunningham was about [illegible] be confined.

Preg[illegible] Woman Evicted From Wretched Dwelling by Coal Baron Thugs

Lawrence Dwyer, returning only a few days ago from West Virginia, tells of a pregnant woman being evicted from her home by order of the Coal Company. This unfortunate woman, the wife of a striking miner, had a certificate from a doctor declaring that she was pregnant and should be permitted to retain her rooms. But the hirelings of the coal operators were not moved by this fact and immediately proceeded to eject her. Now she is exposed to the inclement weather, the rain and the wind, while her furniture is scattered on the ground. And she is without food. This is a sample of the sweet democracy which is being handed to the coal miners and their families by the owners of the mines. This is one of numerous cases occurring daily in the strike area.

The starving miners have sent out a cry for help. The workers everywhere must come to their aid at once. The Miners' Relief Committee has arranged to have a Tag Day on July 15-16 for the benefit of the starving miners. Volunteers are wanted. Register at the following stations: 296 Sackman St., Empire Hall, Lorimer and Ten Eyck Sts., 47 Chrystie St., 248 E. 23rd St., 350 E. 81st St., 1581 Fifth Ave., 1670 Wilkins Ave., 208 E. 12th St.

Contributions for the miners should be sent to Louis Gross, Secretary of the Miners' Relief Committee, 208 E. 12th St., N. Y. C.

Editor The Worker
Dear Comrade: The attached clipping was taken from the July 1st issue of The Worker:

> The Machinists' Monthly Journal says, "We know that the word 'Amalgamate' is a bugaboo to many labor leaders, who will never give their support to the idea. However, we repeat that movements are bigger than men or groups of men, and in the end we shall have amalgamation, which after all, is one step forward in the evolution of the trade union movement whose ultimate goal is the emancipation of the workers from wage slavery." That is well said. Let us watch the machinists' delegates at the Cincinnati Convention of the American Federation of Labor. They were not living up to expectations according to the latest reports.

Local No. 68 of the I. A. of M., San Francisco, at its regular meeting June 21st, sent a telegram to its Delegation, at the convention of the A. F. L., then in session at Cincinnati, Ohio, on motion of the undersigned, reminding it of the fact that our organization had gone on record, at its last convention held at Rochester, N. Y., unanimous in favor of "AMALGAMATION." I am glad to inform you that they have complied with our request, according to letter received by us from them.

Our national organization has gone on record twice by referendum vote of its membership, by a large majority, in favor of amalgamation, also as above stated at its last convention.

While this is all true, your suspicion is well founded, because nothing practical has ever been offered or attempted, by our Int. Officers to bring about amalgamation, except some discussion on the subject of amalgamation and the annual vote of the delegates to the convention of the Metal Trades Department of the A. F. of L., composed largely of Int. Officers.

Amalgamation must be forced upon the leaders of the various Metal Trade Unions, by the rank and file of these respective unions.

In harmony with this idea, Local No. 68 of the I. A. of M. of San Francisco, is sending out invitations to the various local Metal Trades Unions to participate in a local conference to devise practical ways and means to successfully bring about amalgamation.

The object of the writer is to induce other militant members of Metal Trades Unions in other industrial centers to do likewise, so that we may hold a national conference in the near future. Each delegate to this conference must be actively engaged at his trade, unles he happens to be without a master at the time of election.

Hoping that you give this information the widest publicity thru the columns of your valiant paper, I remain yours for industrial freedom,

Al. Schneider,
Sec'y-Treas. Local Group,
San Francisco, Cal.

II

For some Anglo-Saxons, some of the expressions used in this letter may sound very bad, because Emma Goldman is a lady. We Russian Communists do not make any distinction between men and women, neither do we differentiate in regard to nationalities. In Socialism we are equal; so by calling her a liar I do so without any consideration of sex.

Rotten Lie About Schools

The whole story about "dead souls" contains not one single trace of truth, because in reality we had no such thing as "show" schools. She tells us the same story that H. G. Wells does in relating his experiences in Soviet Russia, and she took her story not from what she saw in Russia, but from Wells' writings about "show" schools.

The week after the publication of Wells' story, one of the best Russian critics and publicists, Kornei Tchukovsky, issued a protest against the lies of Wells. Tchukovsky and other litterateurs, who had taken Wells to inspect the different schools, not being so stupid as Wells proved to be, did not think of playing the foolish tricks which Wells imputed to them;-and their protest showed to the intellectual world that Russian writers and journalists are not of the type of English and American sensationmongers. Some of the writers who signed the protest against Wells' unwarranted articles were anti-Bolsheviks, but, trained to look upon literature as a sacred thing, they were disgusted by the shame that Wells brought upon their profession by the circulation of stories that they themselves knew to be absolute lies. If Emma Goldman likes to refer to the Russian and European press of that time she can read for herself the names of the protestants and the grounds upon which they objected to the lying story.

Schools Are Great Achievement

W. D. Vanderlip, Arthur Ransome, Mrs. Claire Sheridan and many other anti-Bolsheviks state that the most brilliant work accomplished by the Bolsheviki is the organization of children's homes and schools. They used the palaces of the Czar in Tsarkoe Selo, and wooden houses in the villages, because it was impossible to bring the Czar's palaces into every village or to build palaces in the time of awful struggle.

My wife, seeing the children's house in Dmietriveka Street, in Moscow, was quite willing to leave our child there, because she thought it was the best in the world (and it was not a "show" place either), after seeing other schoolhouses she found that it was one of the worst in Moscow. Everything depends upon the management, and in the degree of interest in the work taken by those in charge.

The most severe criticism of everything that goes wrong, of all blunders and inefficiency is to be heard from the leaders of the Communist Party. They are not afraid of the truth, and their own actions are subject to the same criticism as the actions of every other member. The "cleaning the ranks" of the party was carried out not by party officials, but non-partisan workers and peasants. Can any other party in the world afford to let the unattached masses decide who should belong to the party, and who should not?

Goldman says the children pay for the Bolshevist revolt. In reality the children are the debtors of the revolution, and the slogan of the great Russian revolution is not to love your neighbors (which is very easy to do), but for a higher ideal to love those far away those, in fact, not yet born.

Cheka Is Bad for Emma's Kind

The "Cheka" is described as the blackest measure of the Bolshevik regime, and if our enemies, in every possible way demand the abolition of the Cheka, express themselves always in horror of the Cheka and its activities, this should be sufficient proof of its usefulness to the working class during the transition period. She states that for every Communist slaughtered by the forces of counter-revolution, the Cheka takes ten lives. At this price it's a bad bargain for the Communists. One sincere Communist is worth, not ten, not a hundred, but thousands of such cattle as Emma Goldman, Berkman, Schapiro. The Cheka cannot be such a terrible organization, or they would not have allowed Emma Goldman to leave Russia, knowing as they did, that she was an arch-enemy of the revolution.

In the long article about Spiridonova, the only truthful passage is that she killed Luzhenovsky, who was not governor of Tamboff, but head of a punitive expedition, for which act of terrorism she was exiled to Siberia. She did not arrive in Siberia as "a mere bundle of raw flesh," as Emma Goldman says. Since Emma says she was engaged in collecting material for a revolutionary museum, she must have seen some of the many photographs of Spiridonova taken at most of the railway stations on her way to Siberia. These photos show her surrounded by crowds of admirers, smiling, with the spectacles that she always wore, not because she lost her eyesight in goal, but because she was deficient from birth.

Russia of the workers does not intend to pay the debts of the Czar not even to Spiridonova. The obstacles that stem the tide of proletarian revolution will be ruthlessly swept away. Those individuals and doctrines that cannot conform to the needs of revolutionary progress are discredited and must go. "Babushka" Breshakovskaya or Spiridonova, Plechanoff or the Social Revolutionary Party or Mensheviki, the workers will cast them aside—have cast them aside.

No Mention of Worker Victims

Instead of in prison or court-martial for betraying the workers' revolution, the awful Bolsheviki place Spiridonova in a neuropathic hospital, which only shows that the Bolsheviki do not use violence against the worst enemies of the revolution. Trying to show Spiridonova as a martyr, Emma did not mention a single word about the victims of Spiridonova's actions and there are thousands and thousands of them.

What Counter-Revolution Does

In the beginning of 1918, by order of Spiridonova, the German ambassador, Mirbach, was assassinated, the only purpose of which was to renew the war with Germany, a task that was impossible for the exhausted and disorganized Russian army. This was before the organization of the Red Army. Spiridonova was the head of the left wing social revolutionaries who tried to overthrow the Communist regime. After three days fighting in the streets of Moscow the plotters were defeated. The death of thousands of victims lies on the conscience of Spiridonova, between her and the revolutionary workers runs a river of blood, which prevents her from claiming any common interest with the workers. Of course Spiridonova proclaims that they are against taking power into their own hands, they wish only to overthrow the Bolsheviki.

This shows that she is possessed of commonsense, that she has no desire to take over power, when power means to make something out of nothing, to build a house without materials, in a time when everything was in a state of chaos, when the whole life of the country was disorganized, and when the party that was willing to assume power was looked upon as an aggregation of mad men. It was only possible for the heroic and enthusiastic proletarian party of the Russian Communists to accomplish this immortal task. Heroic mad men!

FIGHTING AGAINST THE POWER OF THE WORKERS AND PEASANTS, REFUSING HERSELF TO TAKE THE POWER, FOR WHOM DID SHE PREPARE THE GROUND? FOR THE CZAR MAYBE!

"The Bolsheviki put back the unfolding energies of the Russian people," Emma Goldman was told by Kropotkin. But we knew that Kropotkin since 1914, since the time he became an anarcho-patriot, since the time he appealed to the masses of the workers to join the armies in the great fight for the freedom of France, since that time he was dead for the workers, together with his philosophical anarchism. "The people knew that something tremendous was before them and which they themselves must face, organize and direct," states Emma in her article, and continues that the "dogged resistance offered by the people of Russia to the Bolsheviki yoke is the best proof of that." Even in this statement Emma's stupidity [illegible] far from understanding why the workers and peasants of Russia believe only in the Bolsheviki; why even the "yoke" of hunger and starvation keeps them fighting against the whole imperialist world and fighting successfully, why only two anarchists were elected to the All-Russian Congress, and about two thousand Communists and non-partisan sympathizers of the Com- [illegible]

Emma's news about the labor unions in Russia is very amusing. She writes that at the Third Conference of Trade Unions held in Petrograd in July, 1917, 210 delegates were present, representing 1,475,425 workers. Striking news for me and for everybody who read the accounts of the Third Congress, because I was a delegate to this Congress from Odessa. It was held in Moscow from the 5th to April 15, 1920, and was attended by 1676 delegates; from this number 1588 were Communists, 30 Mensheviki, 2 Anarchists, and at that time I was so stupid that I was one of the Anarchists; all the other delegates were non-partisan sympathizers with the Communists. The delegates to this Congress represented more than 7,000,000 organized workers. One can see what kind of material she collected for her revolutionary museum.

The Role of Unions

Labor unions in the time of revolution were turned into military barracks. In time of peace they are schools for the workers, they are the places for meetings and lectures, they are the places for organizing sabotnik, communist Saturday afternoons, many of their functions are state functions, because the state is their state, the weapon they use to suppress their enemies. Poor Emma does not understand why the workers do not strike for higher wages, why they don't fight for better conditions, and in her opinion this is because they are afraid of Bolshevik oppression. In reality it is because they understand that for the first time in their lives they are working for themselves, and further, that to secure increases in their wages would mean to increase the prices of commodities offered for sale by the speculants. The workers, according to her statement, have only retained the 8-hour day in 76 out of 695 industrial establishments. Some of them work from 12 to 18 hours per day. Why is this so? Is it by the demand of the Bolsheviki or by demand of the economic needs of the revolution? For the first time in their lives the workers have become the masters of their own destiny and their revolutionary enthusiasm and commonsense lead them to marshall all their energies in the common fight against economic destruction. They even refuse to ask for overtime pay because their overtime work is for the salvation of the revolution.

Goldman a "Dead Soul"

Emma Goldman, before the eyes of the revolutionary workers, is no more than a "dead soul," with her second-hand store psychology. She is against the revolution because the revolution suppresses speculants. Petty traders might, with their wares, break thru the roofs of the cars, might finish the already broken down transport system. Let them do it; it is individual freedom. Let the poor peasants keep their grain in the ground, to rot; while the workers and Red Army face all the problems of the revolution. Let Berkman and Schapiro be free from military service in the Red Army because they prefer talking to fighting, when it concerns themselves.

Such is the anarchistic ideal of revolution, so-called philosophical. As French bankers, she demands full payment of the Czar's debts to Spiridonova, she even expects to collect what is owing to herself from the California crowd that tarred and feathered her. She placed the account before the Russian workers to be paid in esteem and worship, and in the spirit of the petty bourgeois she demanded interest as well as capital.

Fool and Traitor

In the earlier part of this letter I showed that she is not an internationalist as the great leaders of the Russian revolution like Lenin and Trotsky are, but a narrow-minded nationalist. Her reference to the Brest Treaty is the best proof of this. Like all nationalists, she describes the Brest Treaty as a shame to the nation. She sees shame where every classconscious worker sees only the salvation of the revolution. She is not even an anarchist, because not one honest man in the revolutionary movement, not Kropotkin, none of the old revolutionary guard would consciously do the dirty work of the bourgeoisie, supporting them with lying and malicious slanders of the first workers Republic in the world. She is a worthy successor to Judas Iscariot, the only difference being that Judas only got thirty pieces of silver, and she is being paid three thousand.

Trotsky's "Dictatorship v. Democracy"

By ALBERT VERBLIN

The existence of the Third International implies a constant ideological struggle against the opportunism of all camps. At least the struggle will be mainly confined to the realm of ideology up to the time when the proletariat will have seized the power. Then books and ideas will be exchanged for more formidable weapons, especially (and there is no reason to suspect the contrary) if the various shades of socialists will join the camp of the future Kolchaks and Denikines.

And this ideological struggle will revolve mainly around the fundamental questions of Revolutions, such as the dictatorship of the proletariat, the system of Soviets, revolutionary terror, etc. For, in essence, the tactics of a party, its attitude towards immediate problems confronting the working class depend upon its acceptance or rejection of the fundamental questions of the Revolution. The immediate tactics of a Communist and a Socialist Party must necessarily be different because of their different attitude toward fundamental problems.

Naturally, Kautsky, the chief theoretical defender of socialist opportunism, and the one who has written more than anyone else against Soviet Russia and the revolutionary principles it embodies, is given special attention by the leaders of Soviet Russia and of the Third International. In addition to his voluminous attacks and slanders upon the Russian Revolution, it must be remembered that Kautsky was once upon a time a revolutionary Marxist himself. There was a time when he defended the revolutionary dictatorship of the proletariat against the opportunist Bernstein, when he defended the general strike as opposed to parliamentarism. And this revolutionary past of his, together with his ability to quote and misinterpret Marx makes him deserving of special attention.

Thus Lenin specially wrote a pamphlet, "The Proletarian Dictatorship," against Kautsky. And now it is Trotsky who, in "Dictatorship vs. Democracy," fires a broadside at him. One must admire Kautsky's ability to take punishment. After Lenin got thru with him, one would think that he had had enough and would discreetly retire, but he comes back again with his "Terrorism and Communism," only to be floored again by Trotsky's brilliant answer. A veritable glutton for punishment.

In his "Terrorism and Communism" Kautsky foresook whatever Marxism remained with him from his early days. He raves at the Bolsheviks not so much on Marxian grounds but because they completely ignored the "natural law" of democracy, because they did not take into consideration the Kantian categorical imperative, he explains revolutionary terror by the inhumanity of the inhuman Bolsheviks and (by implication) by the fact that man has given up his vegetarian diet. The book is as fine an example of an old man's garrulity as can be found. There is almost nothing concerning the human face that Kautsky does not touch upon.

Kautsky wrote the book in the interest of the continued existence of the bourgeoisie. How else can one explain a book which demands of the proletariat, before it takes power into its hands, that it be sound morally and spiritually, that it have a high degree of education and that it be trained in the running of industry? How else can one explain a book that would advise the proletariat to wait until it gets a parliamentary majority and to use soft words of persuasion in case the capitalist class happens to be somewhat recalcitrant. How else can one explain a book that would make a virtue of indecision, hesitation and cowardice?

Trotsky wrote an answer in the interest of revolutionary decision and firmness, giving us the "necessary spiritual armory for the inevitable and approaching war." And the answer is superb, masterful. Nothing is left unsaid. He takes up Kautsky's arguments, and lack of arguments, one by one and demolishes them completely. The brilliant style, the inexorable logic, the revolutionary audacity of the book will forever assure it a place among the classics of revolutionary literature.

Trotsky wrote the book in the middle of 1920 when the World Revolution was on the up-grade and constantly gaining force. At that time it seemed that there might not be any need for a theoretical refutation of Kautsky.

But events did not turn out as expected. The revolutionary wave, largely due to the betrayal by the Social-Democrats and Independents, receded. A period of stagnation set in and just because of that, Trotzky's answer has added value. Now, when the revolutionary situation is not so tense, when Kautsky and his spiritual brothers are happy over the fact that the Revolution was not everywhere successful, it is doubly and trebly important that the theoretical justification of opportunism should be confuted and that the fundamental principles and tactics of the Revolution should be put forth in all their logical clarity.

To call "Dictatorship vs. Democracy" a mere answer is not doing justice to the book. Trotsky does not merely answer. He develops the fundamental problems of the Revolution and leaves not a doubt in the world but that the workers of all countries will, in the main, have to follow the fundamental principles and tactics of the Russian Revolution. To depend upon formal and absolute democracy to usher in the peaceful Social Revolution means actually to deny the possibility of Revolution.

Democracy grants both J. P. Morgan and the laborer earning twenty-five cents an hour equality before the law. Both of them have one vote. But the actual difference in economic status and power between the two easily uncovers the fraudulent character of this democracy. At best, democracy afforded the proletariat an opportunity for political training and organization, but to expect it to introduce the revolution painlessly and constitutionally is actually to reject the revolution in deed. Especially is this true in the present stage of imperialism when the objective forces places on the order of the day the sharp antithesis: "Either the dictatorship of the imperialist clique, or the dictatorship of the proletariat." Kautsky chooses the former, Trotsky the latter.

The difference between Trotsky's and Kautsky's attitude on terrorism is the difference between one who actually believes in the revolution and, believing in it, is willing to use all means to assure its success and one who merely talks about the revolution.

Trotsky says: "The revolution 'logically' does not demand terrorism, just as 'logically' it does not demand an armed insurrection. But the revolution does require of the revolutionary class that it should attain its end by all methods at its disposal—if necessary, by an armed rising; if required, by terrorism."

Not that terrorism is a sacred principle to us. Not that we believe in its use because we like to spill human blood, but because we are interested in preserving by all means and at all costs the gains made by the revolution. The intensity of the terror will depend upon the resistance of the bourgeoisie, the international situation and other factors but "the man who repudiates terrorism in principle, i. e., repudiates measures of suppression and intimidation towards determined and armed counter-revolution must reject all idea of the political supremacy of the working-class and its revolutionary dictatorship. The man who repudiates the dictatorship of the proletariat repudiates the Socialist revolution, and digs the grave of Socialism."

No review can give the remotest idea of the worth of Trotsky's polemic against Kautsky. One can read it several times and not fail each time to enjoy the style and contents of the book. No class-conscious worker can in the least afford to miss reading, studying and enjoying this Marxian classic.

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—Following the ejection of a gang of Erie Railroad strikebreakers from filthy quarters provided for them by the railroad on the piers here, the Erie has secured a temporary injunction from the United States district court restraining the local authorities from entering the road's property or interfering with any of its employees. A hearing on an application for a permanent injunction will be held on July 17.

BOSTON, Mass.—Officials of the New Haven, Boston and Maine, and of the Boston and Albany lines virtually admit that practically no strikers have been persuaded to return to their jobs. Union leaders here assert that within ten days the service on all New England lines will have become seriously crippled because of the lack of skilled and experienced men in the shops. The few strikebreakers the roads have been able to get are with few exceptions, incompetent or entirely untrained.

HORNELL, N. Y.—Protected by the state constabulary, a trainload of strikebreakers from New York City has arrived here at the Erie shops. Forty-eight negroes who were imported earlier in the week to work in the shops have been sent back. They were unable to perform the skilled work properly, and declared they were misinformed by the railroad as to the conditions here.

BOSTON, Mass.—The state minimum wage commission has ordered an average increase of 75 per cent (correct) in the minimum wages of women employed in the laundry establishments of the state. The decree is effective as of July 1.

News of Workers Party Activities [illegible]

Meeting Starts Real Campaign For The Worker

A real beginning was made in the campaign for 25,000 new readers for The Worker Friday night when the conference called by Secretary Weinstone met at 208 East 12th Street. The following were present: Wm. F. Dunne, Labor Editor of The Worker; Elmer T. Allison, Business Manager of The Worker, other comrades and the following delegates from Branches of the Party in Greater New York:

Comrade Amile, Spanish Branch.
Comrade Kupfersmith, Yorkville English.
Comrade Rosen, Brownsville, Engl.
Comrade Zuckerman, Harlem Engl.
Comrade Relter, Queens English.
Comrade Potosky, Bronx English.
Comrade Bernstein, Bronx English.
Comrade Aaronson, Boro Park Engl.
Comrade Undjus, Lithuanian Williamburg.
Comrade Gallup, Harlem Jewish.
Comrade Sacharow, Young Workers League.
Comrade Newman, Young Workers League.
Comrade Gold, West Side.
Comrade Johnson, Finnish B'klyn.
Comrade Sould, Esthonian.
Comrade Hymowitz, Downtown English.

Comrade Weinstone was unable to be present on account of illness.

Comrade Allison was elected chairman. He opened the meeting by stating its purpose, namely: to devise ways and means for increasing the circulation of The Worker in New York City, and further, to organize "Worker Conferences" of delegates from W. P. Branches, Labor Unions and sympathizing organizations to aid in building The Worker.

Comrade Dunne outlined the aims of The Worker and stated that no paper can succeed on its merits alone. It needs to be pushed; therefore, ways must be found for putting The Worker into the hands of the workers outside the Party. At present, he said, only 50 percent of the Party members are subscribers. He explained that only by putting the weekly Worker on a sound basis could a daily be realized.

The following distribution problems were taken up:

1. Bundles of Workers to the Branches: Comrade Allison stated that at present there are many difficulties in the way of the effective sale of The Worker thru this means, because branches meet every two weeks, and members get old issues. Also, members who do not attend regularly do not get the Worker at all. He proposed the following motion which was adopted.

EACH MEMBER IS TO TAKE AT LEAST TWO COPIES (IN ADDITION TO THEIR OWN SUBSCRIPTION) FOR SALE TO NON-MEMBERS.

The Branch is to collect from these members weekly and remit to Local. Worker Office to mail papers direct to members and to collect from Local. No returns allowed. Branches are to send lists of those taking bundles and number of copies [illegible] to Local [illegible], these to be forwarded to Worker to be placed on mailing list.

2. Members' Subscriptions. Motion proposed and adopted that all English reading members must become subscribers. Each member, foreign speaking as well as English is to be allotted 5 20-week sub-cards to sell to non-members. Branches are to allot [illegible] and remit as sold to Local.

3. News-Stands: Comrade Allison informed the delegates that until the time when The Worker can spare $500 to put the paper on all the newsstands in the city, we would have to go along as best we can. A motion was made and adopted that — BRANCHES SHALL DELEGATE MEMBERS TO SOLICIT ORDERS FROM ALL NEWS STANDS IN THEIR DISTRICTS. PAPERS TO BE MAILED DIRECT TO STANDS AND CHARGED BY WORKER OFFICE.

Comrade Housewood suggested that a truck could be hired for one day each week to distribute The Worker to the news-stands on the day they were issued, thus obviating the complaint of newsdealers that they do not get The Worker regularly. Comrade Housewood was instructed to look into the matter, and see whether this can be arranged.

4. Work in Unions. Members must thru the labor union nuclei organize the sale of The Worker in their unions. Special workers for this distribution, must be chosen. Appeals should be made in the Unions for support.

5. Meetings. Motion proposed and adopted that the arrangement committees of all out-of-door meetings must instruct the chairman or speaker at that meeting to spend five or ten minutes in which to introduce the Worker to the audience—explaining the nature of the paper, reading off some of the headlines and explaining their meaning to the working-class and boosting the sale of The Worker. All branches are to take sufficient copies to cover all public meetings held by the Branch and all other meetings that it is possible to reach. At all open air meetings a committee should be on hand to sell The Worker while the speaker is talking about the paper to the audience.

6. Conferences. To be held each two weeks. Labor unions and sympathizing organizations to send delegates. Reports from all delegates to be made to Branches and extension of work to be planned. Meetings are to be held on Friday. The next Conference to be held 8.30 P. M. July 21, at 208 E. 12th St.

Bronx Section F. S. R. To Picnic on July 15th

The Bronx Section of the Friends of Soviet Rusia will run one of the best picnics of the season on July 15. On that date it is expected that the whole population of the Bronx will move into Dickerts Old Point Park, where music, refreshments and dancing will be the outstanding features of a moonlight picnic for the benefit of the starving in Russia.

"The Most Revolutionary Challenge Made in a Court in the United States"

"A COMMUNIST TRIAL"

This pamphlet contains a discussion of Communist principles in the most interesting form—questions and answers, questions by a hostile judge and prosecutor. These are some of the questions asked C. E. Ruthenberg:

What is meant by the word "proletarian"?
What is imperialism?
Explain what you mean by the class struggle?
How do you propose that the workers shall capture the power of the State?
What is the loyal army and navy and police force going to do at that time?
What would become of the President of the United States and the members of congress?
What is the transition period between Capitalism and Communism?

The speech by I. E. Ferguson to the jury contains a keen analysis of the fundamenteal Communist principles and a defense of the right of revolution which makes the whole case for Communism.

Lantern Lectures on Road Building at Technical Aid

Under the auspices of the Society of Technical Aid to Soviet Russia, a series of lantern-illustrated lectures on "Highway Construction" will be given in English.

With the advent of commercial trucking the development of highway construction has reached such proportions, that it is competing with the railroads. Russia having the smallest amount of railroad mileage, is in a crying need for highway development. Those of you, who expect to go to Russia should have at least an elementary knowledge of rural road building, and it is the hope that this lecture will be a good starter for same.

The first lecture will take place on Wednesday, July 19th. The doors will open at 8.15 and again at 8.30 for those, who come late. The small admission fee of 10c. will be charged. Tell your friends about these interesting lectures.

Young Workers League Will Mark Day for International Youth

International Youth Day, Sunday, September 3rd, is to be observed thruout the world by the revolutionary youth. The Young Workers League of America is preparing far-reaching plans to observe this event in the United States.

The five thousand members of the Young Workers League are now busy advertising this affair. Circulars and posters are being issued by the national organization.

Many branches of the Workers Party have already indicated their enthusiasm for cooperation in the arrangement of this event with the Y. W. L. The national organization of the Workers Party also declares that it will aid the Y. W. L. in making this greatest of events for the revolutionary youth of the world a real success.

Speakers are to be routed with a message especially for the American youth.

"I don't see why this event should not stir the vast masses of the proletarian youth in this country," stated Martin Abern, national secretary of the League when he gave out the information regarding International Youth Day.

Oliver Carlson, editor of the Young Worker, says a special edition of this militant paper is in preparation. Every effort is being made to have the International Youth Day (September) issue excel all preceding numbers in interest and value.

One million organized revolutionary young workers thruout the world are to celebrate International Youth Day, Sunday, September 3rd. The Young Workers League of America is the organization in this country which is cooperating with the International Committee that is to conduct this event in all countries.

The purpose of this international demonstration is to show the solidarity of the working class youth, and to call to the attention of all workers the intolerable conditions imposed upon the young.

Masses of literature and advertising matter apprising the young workers in this country of this great event have been sent out by the National Executive Committee of the Young Workers League to its many branches in the U. S. and Canada. Word has been received that the organized Mexican and South American working class youth is to participate in this demonstration.

Speakers have been routed to carry the message of the Young Workers League to the American working class youth.

A special edition of the Young Worker, the official organ of the Y. W. L. of A. is being prepared especially for the occasion.

The work is being conducted from the offices of the League, Room 9, 1145 Blue Island Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Women's Organization Aids Women in Jail

The Joint Board of the Socialist Consumers' League is organizing a protest campaign against the imprisonment of Minnie Kalnin and Anna Leisman of the Bronx. They are planning women's meeting thruout the city. To encourage the branches affiliated with this body into active participation in the work of liberating these women, the Joint Board of the Socialist Consumers' League donated twenty-five dolalrs to the National Defense Committee. Here is an example which similar organizations in New York City might well follow.

City Convention of Local New York, Sunday, July 23

The convention of the branches of the entire city to nominate candidates for the Fall election and to elect delegates to the District convention, to be held a week later, will convene at the Labor Temple, July 23, 10 A. M. This will be the first step in preparation for the coming campaign. The Local expects to put forward a full ticket in the campaign and to make a vigorous campaign against the capitalist and reformist parties.

More than 100 delegates will assemble, to discuss the problems of the workers as well as to put up their representatives for conducting a period of intense propaganda and organization work among the workers during the parliamentary campaign. The agenda which has been sent to the branches for discussion cover the most important problems which will find expression in the platforms to be adopted at the District Convention on July 29. Branch delegates to the city convention are to bring in recommendations for candidates in the territory covered by the branch. All credentials of delegates are to be in the Local Office no later than July 15.

Picnic, Summer Festival of Local Greater New York, July 30, Dickert's Park

The Summer Festival of the Workers Party to take place at Dickert's Park on July 30, bids fair to be the biggest event of the season.

Arrangements have been made for a great day of sport for the comrades and sympathisers of the Workers Party. Mass singing, atheletic exhibitions, games for men, women and children will be only a few of the features arranged by the Local. Some unusual events for the occasion are in the making and will attract numbers. Save the Day—for great sport—Local New York Day—July 30.

Tickets for the festival can be purchased from the Local Office of the Freiheit, Volkszeitung, National Office W. P., 1347 Boston Road, Bronx, Harlem, 143 E. 103rd St., Williamsburg Lorimer Hall, Ten Eyck and Lorimer Streets. 40c. in advance, 50 cents at gate.

Free Speech Fight Exciting Stamford

The Workers Party is waging a free speech fight at Stamford.

On the evening of July 1, Kaplan was arrested while attempting to hold a meeting in the public square after being refused a permit by the town clown who was apparently acting under orders from the borough president—owner of a department store catering to the elite of Stamford.

After spending the night in jail, Kaplan was taken before the magistrate and his bail fixed at $100.

Elmer Allison, business manager of "The Worker," tried to hold a meeting in Stamford on Tuesday night and was likewise arrested after a lengthy argument with the authorities. He was released on $100 bail.

No meetings of this kind have been held in Stamford for four years, yet the crowd was unmistakably with the speakers.

The cases will be fought by the party on the issue of free speech, the charge being the violation of a city ordinance against holding street meetings without a permit.

New Little Paper with Real Fighting Spirit

A little four page 6 x 9 Russian paper has made its appearance in Chicago. It is published monthly by the Russian District Committee of the Workers Party of America and promises to be one of the fighting papers of the party. It is sold at one cent per copy and comrades who can make use of a good propaganda paper in the Russian language are urged to order a bundle for distribution.

For sample copies send a two cent stamp to "Rabochy Listak," Room 307, 166 West Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

"THE JOBLESS" APPEARS

The Unemployment Council of New York City, 201 W. 13th St., has started the publication of "The Jobless," a four-page publication with a wealth of good reading matter. The mission of "The Jobless," as stated in the first issue, is "to help organize the unemployed, to link them up with the Labor Unions; and to create a united front of the workers."

TOKIO.—Amalgamation of Japanese trade unions as a means to more effective resistance to the employers is under way here. It is proposed to form a single national labor league of all elements of the labor movement.

A LETTER FROM AN ONLOOKER

Editor, The Worker:—As a comrade in the class-struggle from another land who has found a warm and fraternal welcome from Comrades of the Workers' Party over here, I should like to offer a few thoughts of friendly (and I hope creative) criticism in reference to the Workers' Party and its future tasks.

All comrades will probably agree that the main task of a Workers' Political Party is to build a power machine thru which the working-class will be able to wage its struggle against the exploiters in every field of social life, and ultimately to put forth that effort at the right time so that the transition from the decaying social order of capitalism to the coming social order of Workers' Government may be accomplished with the minimum of suffering and disorder. In short, that the main task of the Workers' Party will be to fit itself to be an efficient instrument to wage the struggle on the part of the wage workers to a triumphal conclusion against the forces of wage slavery and oppression.

To secure this effectiveness the main factor is one of density—the proportion of trained and disciplined party members to the population. Unless this density is of a certain degree such a political party is unable to bring that effective leadership and guidance to the wider masses of the population as is essential to their purpose.

A density of one in three hundred may be taken as the irreducible minimum for effective action and control, and for this proportion to be reached in the United States means a party membership of at least 350,000 of trained and disciplined workers, thoroly class conscious, who know what they want and how to get it and who have made all preliminary preparation in readiness for such a transition of power from the Boss Class to the Worker Class.

To achieve this irreducible minimum will probably be the main task of the Workers' Party for some time to come.

Without this irreducible minimum being achieved the Workers' Party will be impotent to achieve that destiny which is the object of its existence.

Now this all means tremendous organizing and recruiting campaigns to explain to the Workers the necessity of such a party as the Workers Party, to point out that industrial organization alone cannot achieve the Workers' Emancipation as was exemplified in the failure of the Italian proletariat in 1920, and to attract those elements from the masses of the Proletariat as are best suited to be absorbed into the machine that will alone be able to achieve class emancipation.

Science Evolves Correct Type

As regards rival political parties such as the Socialist Labor Party of America, it is sufficient to point out that they failed completely and fundamentally in attracting anything like the proportion of class conscious workers necessary for their task. They were ineffective. That alone puts them on the scrap heap as failures. Machines are judged by results. Railway engines that will not run and will not get up steam must be improved, fresh types tried and alterations effected. That is the way Science evolves the "right" type of railway engine. To be scientific means to continually experiment, to observe, to deduce, to progress, to proceed from theory to practice, to try out theorums in their practical application, and this applies to scientifis Marxians and scientific students of the class-struggle as it does to chemists or physicists or any other type of scientist.

But size and numbers will of themselves achieve but little. Quality counts equally with quantity. And in this respect such organizing and recruiting campaigns must be paralleled by equal effectiveness in internal organization within the party. Educational circles and classes for newer party members, elimination of uncertain or dangerous elements, a close knitting of the organizational machinery within the party, a complete harmony between the component party, between those entrusted with leadership and the Executive, between the Executive and the District Committees, between the District Committees and the branches, inside the branches themselves in their internal organization, all these details are vital and decisive as to whether the party is a healthy and powerful organism or a weak and impotent one.

Self-Discipline Breeds Effectiveness

Fidelity to the Party, Belief in the Party, a willingly accepted self-discipline to party decisions, all these factors make for effectiveness or impotence.

The second problem that confronts the Workers' Party is in reference to the industrial and unemployed fields.

Workers organized industrially can only exert their strength industrially if they approach 100 per cent. organization. The rapid attainment of 100 per cent. organization in the Trade Unions is therefore one of the first tasks of the Party. A low percentage of workers organized in an even revolutionary union can exert comparatively low industrial strength. Universality of Trade Union Organization should therefore be one of the first goals of the Workers' Party. The subsequent attainment of leadership in the industrial organization and the revolutionising of these organizations is one step further.

Organise the Jobless

As regards the unemployed, their economic position gives them a mental reflex that is decidedly revolutionary. Their organization into unemployment organizations similar to Trade Unions is similarly an urgent task of the Workers' Party. Such organization has been largely achieved in Britain.

The importance of this work within the Trade Unions and the Unemployed—in contact with the larger non-party masses of the workers is so important that every member of the Workers' Party should be compelled to take part in it or leave the Party. Further than that it must be suggested that every party member be compelled to put in a fortnightly report sheet detailing how many hours work have been put in in contact with the non-party masses and how many hours absorbed in purely internal party work—at branch meetings, committees, causes, etc.

The result would be to show I believe that so far as America was concerned the Party tended to feed within itself a state of affairs that can only result in unhealthiness and in a "political scarlet fever" for the Party.

Membership of the Party should, I would suggest, be made conditional to willingness to work for the Party. A mere academic knowledge of the three volumes of "Capital," and of the "Communist Manifesto," a mere adherence to the theoretical program of the Party should not be sufficient to obtain or retain membership.

Eliminate the Dead Wood

Otherwise the Party will carry quantities of useles dead wood such dead wood usually ends its vocation in party disruption, and splits, and all the disorders of internal inaction. The machinery of the Party for the elimination of drones should be drastic.

Unlettered workers who are all out for dictatorship by their class, even if they possess but slight erudition on economics, should be admitted to probationary membership and by study circles and experience within the party machine be developed into class conscious class fighters.

This type of party-trained members will serve the party better than those admitted with preconceived ideas of this or that "ism."

Previous experience in political parties leads one to the conclusion that the "principle of re-call" for all delegates and officials and group leaders by the body electing them leads to the healthiest form of organization and effectually prevent that growling and dissatisfaction with Leaders and Executives that eats out the heart of an organization.

Stick to Open Worker

Finally I believe that one of the main tasks of the Party is to remain legal. International experience has shown that it is overwhelmingly harder to function when driven underground than when legal.

If the core of the Party members is solid and sound and the membership as a whole understand the spirit of the party and have a just conception of its tasks they will not insist on that ultra-revolutionariness in program that only serves to shorten its legal life.

Revolutionists should be prepared to form even goose clubs or sick benefit clubs if that is the only form of organization thru which certain tasks may be achieved.

Meanwhile what of the situation? The vast masses of unemployed which are likely to be swelled in succeeding years as Capitalism nears its final collapse show that the call for a powerful, closely knit, strong and self disciplined Workers Party in America is urgent. Such a party is long overdue. As I leave these shores then my most heartfelt wish is

His Farewell Greeting

"Forward the Workers Party."

In every field where Workers are gathered together, may its members be unceasingly active.

With leadership of the masses as its goal, may the membership win such leadership and deserve such leadership in every phase of the life of the Masses.

Conscious that in every country and every clime, thousands of comrades are equally toiling on the same lines and along similar channels may its membership have the consciousness of the historic triumph of their class ever before them and of the steps to its final achievement.

Unity of Labor As Gompers Sees It

There has already been much comment and there will be more on the action of Gompers in revoking the charter of Bookkeepers, Stenographers and Accountants Union No. 12646.

Hugh Frayne, organizer for the American Federation of Labor, who performed the task known in union circles as "lifting the charter" refused to give any reasons for the action but it is generally understood that communists were in control of the union and that it was the elimination of the reds from the union that was desired.

This is probably the first time that a union has been expelled from the A. F. of L. for its political leanings and the drastic methods used by officialdom against a little organization without any real economic or voting strength indicates that the communist policy of working within the unions is worrying the same officials who prate so loudly of unity but who do not hesitate to destroy a labor organization as soon as its policies do not suit the reactionary tastes of those who are leading the labor movement to destruction.

As for the communists who have lost their union cards thru the revocation of the charter the experience will probably do them a world of good. The revolution in America is not just around the corner; a union is not and cannot be a political organization; under capitalism a union can only go so far without being destroyed.

This must be learned at whatever cost. To secure control of unions is quite easy in many cases. To make them function one hundred per cent after capturing them is a different matter and something that communists have to do. To court expulsion over minor matters is foolish and in the present state of the labor movement almost criminal.

Not by turning unions into battlegrounds of opposing political parties do communists gain the confidence of the workers but by conducting the affairs of the union better than the standpat leaders can or will.

A jubilant shout will go up now from all those elements who pretend to see the hopelessness of working within the trade union movement. They will draw a mighty moral from this incident with which to bulwark the case of dualism but one and all they will evade the crux of the matter. It is not that working within the unions is a failure as a tactic but that the habit of secession and neglect of the trade union movement of America for "ideal" unions has unfitted many revolutionists for the painstaking work that is required.

The communists of Bookkeepers, Stenographers and Accountants Union No. 12646 tried to do too much in too short a period.

They will know better next time.

As for Gompers and the gang he represents it is plainer then ever that the unity of labor means to them servile acceptance of things as they are and that they prefer to destroy unions rather than see them turn and face the future instead of the past

Be a Part of "The Worker" Machine In Its Greatest Subscription Campaign

Heed This Call to Action: Join Forces with Thousands who, in Action, Form a Mighty Power That Will Build "The Worker"

ARE YOU A PART OF IT—the great machine which THE WORKER is organizing to put this paper in the hands of 25,000 new readers?

If you are not, you should be. If you are not, we invite you to become a part now.

KEEP THIS FACT IN MIND—no paper, capitalist or proletarian, can live, can grow unless it is backed by a huge machine which works for its growth night and day.

THE WORKER must have the backing of such a machine. This machine must be composed of the truest comrades who read its pages, who believe in its message to the workers—who are willing to fight for the principles it advocates by securing support for it.

Without such backing THE WORKER can never become the power it should be in the American labor movement. Without this backing it can never become the known mouthpiece of the Workers Party in the knowledge of the American workers. And it will never fulfill its function as an exponent of communist principles until it is read by these workers.

Educational newspapers like THE WORKER do not grow because they are well edited. They do not grow because the principles they teach are correct. They do not grow because they are the official organs of one or another element of the revolutionary movement in more or less close agreement with the world communist movement. They do not grow because of their typographical appearance nor of their cartoons or artistic appearance.

There is BUT ONE METHOD which will develop THE WORKER into the power it should be. That is: AN ARMY OF BACKERS WHO WILL WORK FOR IT—UNCEASINGLY! Let that fact sink home. It is the fruit of years in the management of this paper. That is what every workers' newspaper management has learned by bitter experience. And, because it is a fact, it points the way in which to BUILD.

WE ARE BUILDING NOW

Because we recognize this fact, because we know it is true, we are determined to build this machine now. It is the only way to succeed. It is the only way THE WORKER can be fashioned into the fighting weapon of the workers, which it must become.

"The time is not yet for independence," President Harding told a delegation of Filipinos, who have been waiting for their liberation for more than twenty years thru both democratic and republican administrations. Harding inferred that the Filipinos might grow to like exploitation under the American flag. And if they don't they might be shot into liking it, this last conclusion being our own.

Collins and Griffith are winning much praise from the organs of imperialism these days. They have become the saviors of civilization in Ireland almost over night much the same as General Smuts did in South Africa. British imperialists are happy for their long nights of worry are over. They have found Irishmen to do the work that was too dirty for the scum of the London slums.

We hold no brief for a fanatical nationalism nor do we believe that Irish workers would be exploited less in a republic than under the Free State but certainly we prefer the men who choose to die for their idea of freedom to those who under the guise of saving Ireland perform the bloody tasks of British imperialism and murder their fellow-countrymen in order to prove to foreign masters that they too can rule.

Irish labor has lost its opportunity. It should have used its power for a free Ireland—an Ireland free from both English and Irish capitalists—but its leaders have played the old, old game of emancipating themselves and leaving the membership to the tender mercies of the employers who have no country.

Pressure From Below

The gigantic strike movements now under way in the United States are almost wholly without precedent in American industrial history and they can mean only one thing—that American labor is slowly learning the lesson that strength only comes from struggle.

The shop crafts are giving a wonderful demonstration of solidarity and from the "Big Four" brotherhoods, with all its characteristic regard for contract technicalities, comes the announcement that their members will refuse to run trains with "faulty equipment." It is no wonder that there is some hysteria in capitalist quarters; whether the announcement of the brotherhoods presages much or little in real action is beside the question.

The announcement itself is unparallelled from a source that has hitherto been regarded as the last bulwark of conservative unionism. The employers have lost their grip on the unions in two basic industries—coal mining and transportation—the workers are in revolt and things are never again going to be quite the same despite the efforts of Gompers and his henchmen to preserve the status quo.

Officialdom in the unions is feeling the pressure from below. Nothing else explains what is happening in labor circles to-day.

Democracy's Tender Spot

The capitalist press is much excited over a leaflet, signed by the Communist Party of America, is said to have been distributed to the striking railroaders. The Times was kind enough to the communists to reprint most of the leaflet in a box on its first page and thereby give it a circulation of several hundred thousand more than it would otherwise have had.

Perusing the version given by The Times gives us the impression that the authors of the circular have merely made a digest of the strike stories carried by the capitalist press, incorporated it in a circular and therefrom drawn certain conclusions perfectly apparent to any worker who stops to think.

Certainly there can be no quarrel with the statement that the government is siding with the railroads and against the strikers. If we remember correctly it was the action of a governmental body—the Railway Labor Board—in reducing wages that precipitated the strike, neither can any fault be found with the charge that the courts and military forces are used against the strikers. These two things are matters of daily record and the capitalist press surely has no just cause of complaint because some persons take the trouble to call the attention of striking railroaders to the fact that the government is exercising the function which the patrioteers so loudly proclaim a fundamental duty, namely, the protection of property rights.

In this disturbed condition which the nation finds itself it is undoubtedly productive of a certain amount of discontent among poverty-stricken workers, forced to sacrifice for a time their scanty incomes that they may retain some small measure of their hard-won privileges, to point out that government exists solely in the interests of one class but the truth of the statement cannot be successfully challenged.

Personally we doubt if anything more than a careful reading of the accounts of the dispatch of troops to the strike zones and the issuing of injunction after injunction restraining strikers from everything except breathing is necessary to convince an intelligent worker that government in America is nothing more than an efficient instrument for the suppression of the efforts of the workers to secure control over their jobs.

Without this control slavery is a fact and, as in their every attempt to escape from this condition of servitude, the workers are met at all times by the various government agencies nothing is plainer than that capitalist government is an institution for perpetuating slavery and protecting those who profit from a slave system.

Judging from the hysterical comments of the capitalist press, the Communist Party of America seems to have put its finger on a very sore spot.

The Vatican has recently placed all the works of Anatole France on the Index Expurgatorious; no reasons were given, says the dispatch. Our own opinion is that some one around the Vatican has just read "Penguin Island."

This Capitalist World

By EMIL LYON

The capitalist system of production has broken down. Mines mills and factories are idle. Millions of workers are unemployed. They are denied the opportunity to work and produce wealth. Suffering and hunger stalks thru the whole capitalist world and millions of people exist in a state of semi-starvation.

The Capitalist World which in 1914 boasted of its great wealth, boasted of its gigantic powers of prodution, boasted of its smoothly running system of business, of the power and security of its governments, is sinking into decay.

Hundreds of billions of its wealth has been destroyed; its industries produce haltingly or have come to a stop altogether; its financial system is tottering, its governments try one desperate trick after another to maintain their power in the face of the wrath of the suffering masses.

Victorious and vanquished countries present a picture that is different only in the degree of misery and suffering which is the lot of the workers. Central Europe is a mass of destitute and hungry men, women and children. In France, Italy, England and the United States an army of workers, numbering millions in each instance, have no work and daily come closer to the same conditions.

Altho insecurity, unemployment and poverty were the lot of the workers in 1914, a comparison of the Capitalist World then and now gives the impression that a great blight has fallen upon it, a blight which shows itself in decaying industries, reduced production, starving millions, bitter struggles between capitalists and workers, and general insecurity.

Capitalism Its Own Grave-Digger

A blight has fallen upon the capitalist system. That blight, which is closing its factories, destroying production, throwing millions into idleness and threatening to engulf its people in an abyss of misery and suffering, is not something which has fallen upon it from heaven.

It is not a superior force from outside of itself which is working its destruction; it is the laws of capitalist production which are bringing its downfall and decay.

The whole system of capitalist production rests upon the robbery and enslavement of the workers.

Capitalist ownership of industry means that the workers cannot secure employment, cannot work and earn the means of supplying themselves with food, clothing and homes to live in, without the consent of the capitalists.

Capitalist ownership of industry enthrones the capitalist owners as so many petty kings and czars, each with a group of workers ranging from a few hundreds to tens of thousands whose right to life is in the capitalists' hands thru their control of the workers' opportunity to earn a living.

Through the exploitation of the workers the capitalists continuously amass new capital. The profits which they receive from industry are so vast that they are unable to consume them, no matter how riotously and luxuriously they live. These profits become new capital and are reinvested in industry. Through this process new industries are built up and the machinery of production increased. More goods are produced. The capitalists receive more profits from their new investments. Superficially it might seem that this process is wonderfully fine for the capitalists and that it might go on forever, but actually it contains the seeds of destruction of the capitalist system.

The canker at the heart of this beautiful process of making the capitalists richer is that the capitalists must sell the goods which capitalist industry produces before they receive their profits. The workers who are robbed of their product can only buy part of them. The capitalist class and its hangers-on are too few in number to consume the remainder.

Produce Only for Profits

In the United States today the existing industrial organization has powers of production which could produce enough of everything needed to supply the whole people with everything necessary for a high standard of life—good food, good clothing, good homes, education and recreation—but many industries are closed down, others are producing at part capacity, because the capitalists will permit the workers to produce only if they can make a profit.

The taking of that profit makes it impossible for the workers to buy the goods they produce with their wages.

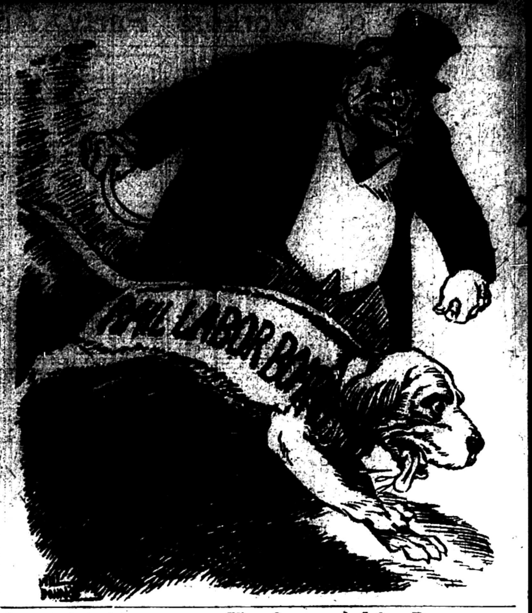
The capitalists cannot sell their goods at home. They cannot be sold in foreign markets because of conditions which capitalism has produced.

Consequently, for a year, between four and six million workers have been condemned to idleness with resulting privations and suffering for themselves and those dependent upon their earning power.

The Plight of Imperialism

The capitalists must sell their goods. In the countries where capitalism has reached a high state of development the surplus goods which cannot be sold in the home market become predominantly tools, machinery, rails, locomotives, the products of iron and steel. Coincident with this high development of capitalism it becomes increasingly difficult for the capitalists to invest their new capital profitably in home industry. Thus we find in the highly developed capitalist countries a surplus of a certain kind of goods and a surplus of capital.

The necessity of selling these goods, the desire of the capitalists to invest their new capital so as to earn still greater profits, develops the policy of imperialism, the blight of which lies upon the whole Capitalist World today.



The Story of John Brown

By JEANETTE GERSHANICK

Seldom has history granted an accused man the opportunity of being tried under more dramatic circumstances than was given to William Blizzard and the other coal miners of West Virginia indicted for treason.

In the self-same court house, at Charles Town, W. Va., 63 years ago, an old grey-haired man was tried under the same charges, treason against the state.

Sixty-three years ago, John Brown translated his inveterate hatred for slavery into action. Last year, Blizzard, discovering that West Virginia had become a slave state as of old, attempted to bring it back to a semblance of justice.

John Brown was a descendant of Mayflower stock. While quite a youngster, he was staying with a slave holder on whose plantation he met a young slave of his own age. He became very fond of him and considered him his equal in every way.

But while young Brown was treated with respect and every kindness, the young slave was whipped and maltreated for little or no cause. Brown's sense of justice was aroused and from those days, he became a staunch abolitionist.

The abolition movement was no more unified in its tactics than the socialist movement of today. There were Wendell Phillips and Emerson and others who believed that the best method was the slow one of education and agitation.

John Brown did not share these views. He admitted the value of agitation but he also wanted action. He based his action on a great law in history—namely, that when a system of society becomes unprofitable to the ruling class, it is discarded.

With this principle in view, he set out to make slavery unprofitable to the slave-owners. We find him busy in Kansas during the troublous days of 1855. And when he was driven from there, he was secretly organizing slaves in the neighboring states.

A few years later he proposed a scheme to some well-known abolitionists of the North. He would secure a retreat in the mountains of Virginia where he could receive slaves who had run away from their masters and then help them to reach Canada. The intellectual abolitionists looked askance upon such a project and refused to support him.

One wealthy philanthropist of New York, Gerrit Smith, gave him some money and helped him to carry out his plan.

Brown rented a farm near Harpers' Ferry, a Government arsenal. Here he received ammunition and weapons with which to arm a band of followers. His plan was to seize this arsenal and use it as a rallying point for the slaves and thus organize them so that they could escape from slavery. He believed that by raiding the plantations, the slaves would leave and seek refuge at the arsenal.

His sons who had taken a solemn vow to him that they would work for the destruction of slavery, knew nothing of their father's plans. When he finally told them, they tried to dissuade him because of the dangers with which the scheme was fraught. Brown replied that every attempt to grasp freedom meant the loss of one's life but there was no better cause for which one could die.

He cautioned them against the use of more violence than was absolutely necessary. With his band of nineteen, he took the arsenal and for three hours he held it without one drop of blood having been shed. It was not until the troops came in that shooting began. And then, John Brown, the father, had to behold one son dead and the other dying. With one hand on the pulse of his dying son and the other on his gun, he gave orders to his men and refused to yield. Soon, however, his dogged will and perseverence gave way before the numbers of troops and he was taken prisoner.

Undaunted and confident of his cause, believing that he had done what he thought best but little knowing the real significance of his act for it was left to history to prove this, he accepted the verdict "to hang."

John Brown was hanged. In the sixty-three years that have passed, the execution has found its place in the history of the fight for freedom of oppressed peoples. In his day he was called wild-eyed fanatic, and insane on the subject of slavery. Every movement of the past and present for the liberation of mankind must have its John Brown's. They must go hand-in-hand with the pamphleteers and parlor propagandists.

What Emerson said of John Brown can well apply to the present. "I wish we might have health enough to know virtue when we see it and not cry with the fools 'Madman!' when a hero passes."

Soviet Economic Forms

By NIKOLAI BUKHARIN

In the event of our great historical strife being decided in favor of the proletariat, the capitalist groups inserted into our system of economy will objectively have played the part of the capitalist expert, and against their will they will have worked in favor of the working class.

The multiplicity of the economical forms in our republic is one of the fundamental influences of our economic life, and has always to be taken into consideration.

Therefore, in treating the question of the part to be played by the trade-unions under the conditions of the economic policy one has to consider before all the variety of our economic forms.

It is evident that the tasks and the methods of the trade unions are dependent on the kind of economic form.

In the same way as the forms of enterprise vary in many ways from proletarian state enterprises, the task of the trade union varies from its specially organizational part in the state factories, up to strike funds and strikes in private capitalist enterprises.

The growing multiplicity of the economic forms determines the growing multiplicity of the tasks of the unions.

Trade Union Delegates Fight for United Front with W. P. in S. P. Conference

The Socialist Party and Farmer-Labor Party of New York City staged a love-feast last Saturday and Sunday for the purpose of achieving unity in the coming campaign for jobs, but their love-feast was rudely disturbed by trade union delegates in the conference who wanted a real United Front of Labor.

In order to give their conference the appearance of a move toward indpendent political action by the organized workers of New York City, the S. P. and F.-L. P. sent invitations to the unions to send delegates to their conference. Most of the delegates who came from the unions were members of the S. P. and F.-L. P. who had succeeded in getting their local unions to send them to the conference.

In addition to these, however, there were about a score of delegates who had come to the conference in the hope that it was to be the beginning of a real political United Front of Labor. These delegates ame to the conference instructed by their unions to demand that the Workers Party and all other political organizations of the workers be invited to send delegates. It was this demand which rudely disturbed the nice little love-feast which the S. P. and F.-L. P. had arranged.

Tragedy of Irish Labor

Postgate Sees Dark Days Ahead for Irish Workers; Middle Class Backed by Britain

By R. W. Postgate

(Written especially for The Worker)

LONDON, July.—The conflict between the Free Staters and the Republicans in Ireland is probably quite the most disastrous thing that has ever happened to the revolutionary movement in that country.

Yellow Leaders Betray Larkin

The revolutionary working-class elements in Ireland are not strong. The Communist Party is small in numbers and woefully inexperienced. The official labor movement led by Tom Johnson is reformist and reactionary. The timidity and irresolution of the trade union officials is partly concealed by their nationalism, but a very brief acquaintance with them shows that the spirit of the old Irish Tansport Workers' Union has disappeared.

No more striking instance of this has perhaps occurred than the quiet dropping of Jim Larkin's name from the list of labor candidates. There was no question but that Larkin's return was ardently desired by the mass of the Irish workers. There was no question, either, but that the officials of the I. T. W. U. were most apprehensive of the effect that his presence would have upon their followers. His name, therefore, quietly disappeared.

Workers Divided

In the struggle between O'Connor and Collins the workers were thus found hopelessly divided. Behind Collins, no doubt, were all

The Need of the Hour for the Sixteen Standard Railway Unions; a Practical Plan is Proposed

Problem of Dues and Benefits

The departmental form of organization would also solve thoroly the problem of union benefits or insurance, which we hear urged so often as an insuperable obstacle to amalgamation. There would be no pressing reason why this insurance, and the dues which are so closely related to it, should be standardized and made the same for all classes of workers. On the contrary, after establishing a basic rate of dues to cover the fundamental activities of the union, it would be not only practical but advisable to have different rates of insurance and dues prevailing in the several departments, according to the workers' ability to pay and to the customs and traditions of their respective trades. This could be accomplished readily by setting up a special office section to manage all the union's insurance features and to supervise the varying schedules in the several departments, or possibly sub-departments. Due to more economical management, the amalgamated union could furnish better and cheaper insurance than is now the case. The whole thing would be a simple business matter, much simpler in fact than that which is daily carried on by insurance companies everywhere. Without any special technical difficulty, these companies operate vast systems of insurance involving millions of beneficiaries and hundreds of rates and premiums. To say that railroad Labor cannot do as much with its comparatively simple insurance problem and to urge that the latter is an insoluble objection to amalgamation, is to put a mean value indeed upon the abilities of the workers. It means that we rail-

Miners Not Fooled by Crafty Plan

Following the refusal of the United Mine Workers of America to commit suicide by submitting their grievance to a commission which could outvote them 8 to 3, President Harding has sent a message to twenty-eight governors of states where coal is mined which in fact, if not in words, declares war on the striking miners.

The proposal for the "impartial" commission stated that it was to be composed of three representations of the coal owners, three of the miners and five representing the "American people."

The experience that the railway-men are now having with an "impartial" board on which are only three representatives of the public has furnished the miners with an exceedingly accurate instrument with which to measure the benefits labor can derive by putting itself at the mercy of these camouflaged employer's instruments.

Coal Owners Accept

It is noticeable that the majority of the operators in the bituminous fields and all the anthracite operators accepted the President's proposition. They could afford to, knowing that the first action of the proposed board would be to order district agreements which, after all, is what the coal mine owners really want.

The miners refused to fall into the rap and now face the beginning of he real fight. With the promise of full government backing contained n Harding's message to the gover-

The Second and 2½ Internationals are constantly discussing the question of whether they should or should not demand the recognition of the Soviet Power.

What does the recognition of the Soviet Government mean? The King of Abyssinia and the Emperor of Annam as well as Nicholas II were recognized by every "civilized country." But the gentlemen of the Second and 2½ Internationals almost look upon themselves as upon heroes because they actually decided to demand the recognition of the Soviet Power. Legal recognition means actual relations with Russia, and no matter with what hatred the capitalists look upon the first proletarian government, they must recognize it, and they do recognize it for the simple reason that they are in need of trade with Russia. Trade with Russia is impossible on a large scale without definite and binding treaty relations with the Soviet Government.

Workers Party Issues Call for Convention Beginning August 28

By decision of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party, a national convention will be held in Chicago, beginning Monday, August 28th, 1922.

The convention will consist of 75 delegates to be apportioned to the districts on the basis of dues stamps sold during the months of March, April, May and June.

The expenses of the convention will be met by an assessment of $50.00 to each district for each delegate the district is entitled to send to the convention. The $50.00 for each delegate must be remitted to the National Office prior to the date of the convention or paid to the finance committee of the convention at the time credentials are presented. From the fund thus created delegates will be paid their railroad fare and other expenses will be met. Districts may decide upon the method of raising this fund in accordance with the best plan for each district.

Provision Covering Election of Delegates

The party constitution makes the following provisions for the election of delegates:—

Article VI, Section 4. Delegates to the national convention shall be elected by district conventions. Branches in organized cities shall elect delegates to a city convention which in turn elects delegates to the district convention. The number of delegates to which each branch is entitled shall be decided by the Central Executive Committee according to the membership as above. When there is no City Central Committee the branch shall elect delegates directly to the district convention.

Section 3, of the same article provides . . . . . Delegates shall be apportioned to the districts according to membership based upon average dues paid for the period of four months prior to the call for the convention. The district shall apportion the number to be elected by the city conventions on the same basis.

Election shall begin in the branches beginning July 25th and districts conventions must be held and the delegates to the national convention elected not later than August 15.

Districts Organizers should at once make preparations for the election of delegates in their district in accordance with the constitutional provisions above.

Agenda of the convention will be sent to the districts before the date specified for the beginning of the elections and will also be published in party papers.

Sack's Russian Bureau Follows Bakhmetieff Into Deepest Oblivion

By HARRY GODFREY

(Federated Press Staff Correspond.)

NEW YORK.—The socalled Russian information bureau which for five years has spewed misinformation from sumptuous offices in the Woolworth building against the Russian soviet government, is no more.

Quietly without a word of warning this fountain-head of czarist propaganda in the United States has packed up and stored its papers, and no longer will the newspapers of the United States be favored with its carefully concocted yarns about the "tottering" soviet government.

A. J. Sack, who thruout the existence of the bureau, has rejoiced in the title of its director, isn't a bit discouraged, according to a statement he gave out when the bureau closed its doors. Russia's salvation still is on the way, the statement says, and "every moment brings us nearer to the realization of the aim for which generations of the best representatives of the Russian people have fought and died."

Sack's fighting and dying has been conducted mostly from chairs in front of mahogany desks in New York's most expensive office building, but the thousands of envenomed words his bureau has caused to be printed in American newspapers against the Russian government have had a great deal to do with creating and maintaining the public opinion to support the vindictive policy of the state department against Russia.

It would take, probably, a statistician working overtime for many days to compute the number of times the Russian information bureau has had the Russian government on its last legs; the number of times it has had the soviets on the verge of being overthrown; the number of times it has shown Lenin and Trotsky to be tools of Germany; the number of times it has had Kolchak and Yudenitch and Wrangel and the rest at the gates of Petrograd and Moscow.

Union Delegates Fight for W. P.

Conference a Cut and Dried Affair

All the details of the conference seem to have been agreed upon by the Socialist and Farmer-Labor Party in advance. A speech by A. Lefkowitz of the F.-L. P. opened the conference. Lefkowitz' speech was in the approved, flamboyant style of political oratory, akin to the Fourth of July speeches of the politicians of the Republican and Democratic parties with labor and its needs as the subject.

When Lefkowitz concluded Algernon Lee, of the S. P., was elected chairman and a credential committee was appointed. This credential committee quickly brought back its report showing that almost all that there is of the Socialist and Farmer-Labor Party in New York City had appointed themelves delegates: The Socialists had 148 delegates; the Farmer-Labor Party 2; about a hundred additional members of the S. P. and F.-L. P. were present as delegates from unions and about 25 trade union delegates who were not affiliated with either of the two parties calling the conference.

A little flurry was caused by the recommendation of the credential committee that delegates elected by the Paola Zion and the World War Veterans be seated a fraternal delegates only. The conference after a little discussion decided that it wouldn't be hurt by giving the representatives of these organization the status of full delegates.

The positions as officials of the convention had been settled in advance by the two parties running the conference, and it took but a few minutes to pass around the permanent chairmanship, vice-chairmanship and secretaryship of the convention. In order to save the face of the trade unionists present one of the two vice-chairmanship was awarded to the trade union group, and A. Shiplacoff, erstwhile Socialist representative in the state legislature and former member of the N. E. C. of the Socialist Party was elected to represent the trade unionist in the official family of the convention.

Try to Evade United Front Issue

No sooner was the conference organized than Max Zukofsky of Millinery Workers Union No. 1 arose to offer a resolution that in order that a real United Front of Labor be established on the political field that the Workers Party, the Socialist Labor Party and all other workers political and industrial organizations be invited to send delegates.

Chairman Algernon Lee immediately began jockeying in order to prevent the conference from going on record on the issue thus created. By a parliamentary trick he interpreted the motion to be a motion to suspend the rules to consider the question raised, thereby cutting off all debate. Had he merely ruled the motion out of order Delegate Zukofsky could have appealed from the decision and gained the floor to speak upon the matter.

Following Lee's ruling one of the Socialist delegates rose to move to lay the motion to suspend the rule on the table, thus making the cutting off of discussion doubly sure. This was carried.

In apologizing for the action of the conference after the motion was carried Chairman Lee said that the motion to take from table would be in order after the election of committee, or a resolution to extend the invitation might be introduced thru the resolution committee, indicating the purpose to dodge the issue raised by the union delegates until too late to make the invitation if extended of any importance, since the work of the conference would be over.

Conference Forced To A Vote

Under the rules representation on the various conference committees was divided equally between the S. P. F. L. P. and the trade union group. The S. P. and F. L. P. came prepared with slates covering their representation on the committees and the elections of committees settled into a struggle between the S. P. and F. L. P. to elect members of their respective organizations who were present as delegates from the union, with the S. P. getting rather the best of it.

No sooner was the election of committees over than delegates Zukofsky rose once more to offer his motion. This time he had determined not to be tricked by Lee's interpretation of his motion, but proposed to insist upon a ruling on it as presented and to appeal and gain the floor if it was ruled out of order.

Evidently realizing that the issue could not be side-tracked and that it would remain a thorn in the side of the conference as long as it was not settled, Chairman Lee suggested that the conference might as well face it at once. After some hesitancy on the part of the S. P. delegates it was so decided, and a half hour assigned to debate the motion.

Trade Unionist Fight For Workers Party

The debate on the motion resolved itself into a struggle between the Socialists and Farmer-Laborites on one side fighting against the independent trade union delegates who wanted the Workers Party invited to the conference so that a beginning might be made in establishing a United Front in which all workers' organizations would be represented.

Delegate Zukofsky of the Millinery Workers, Delegate Harry Berlin of the Dress and Waist Makers, Delegate Walcovitz of the I. L. G. W. No. 22, Delegate Sperer of the Technical Workers and Workers Union made strong argument for the invitation to the Workers Party. They pointed out that the conference as it stood was not a United Front of Labor, but merely a combination of two parties. They asked the S. P. and F.-L. P. delegates why they were afraid of the Workers Party. They pointed out that the Workers Party had the support of large number of the local trade unions, and that by keeping the Workers Party out of the conference they were making a United Front impossible because the Workers Party with the support of these union, would carry on its own campaign.

Harry Weinberger of the Farmer-Labor Party also appealed for real unity.

James O'Neal of the Socialist Party, A. Lefkowitz of the Farmer-Labor Party, Louis Waldman, and others, responded with bitter attacks upon the Communists and the Third International. O'Neal declared that the purpose of the Communists in creating a United Front was to increase their own strength—thereby admitting that in a contest between the Right and Left in a United Front grouping the Communists would gain strength.

Lefkowitz made an impassioned appeal to keep the Communists out. He didn't want the love-feast disturbed by these rude people who are not satisfied with fine words, but want action in the interest of the working people. Waldmann also voiced the Socialist fear of the Communists.

When the vote was taken it was found that the Socialists and Farmer-Laborites had voted solidly against inviting the Workers Party, while the independent trade union delegates voted for such action, the vote being 25 for the motion and 204 against.

The question of inviting the S. L. P. was voted on separately immediately following and the first voted in the motion to invite carrying, but the S. P. hastily marshalled their forces and secured a reconsideration, which resulted in the defeat of the motion.

Organize American Labor Party

With the troublesome question of the Communists out of the way the conference went peaceably on its way, nominating a full ticket for all the political jobs in Greater New York and adopting a meaningless milk-and-water platform. The name under which the campaign will be made is that of the "American Labor Party", but labor will undoubtedly be as conspicuous by its absence from the party as it has been in the case of similar parties in the past.

DES MOINES, Ia. It is reported from Clarion, Ia., that striking shop and car men at that point Saturday drove all strikebreakers out of town. They were told to keep going and not come back. The last seen of many of them was as they cut their was thru corn fields in a general direction away from town.

The Chicago Great Western Railway Co. has annulled all its way freights for an indefinite period. Rock Island train crews are having a hard time with their power at Valley Junction terminal.

In the Coal Fields

A wave of indignation suffused the capitalist press over the driving out of scabs and gun men in the coal mines of Herrin, Illinois. Will such tactics are the instinctive retaliations of men driven to desperation by long continued suppression carefully hidden. A letter from one of our members describes one of the daily occurrences in the strikefield a comparatively minor matter that is multiplied by the thousands every week by the hirelings of the coal operators.

"Here is a little news for The Worker. A West Moreland Coal Company deputy went out on a public road and clubbed a striking coal miner over the head, knocking him unconscious.

"While the man was bleeding like a stuck pig, the deputy carried him over on the company grounds and then arrested him for trespassing.

"We went to the sheriff only to be told that we had to do just what the deputies want us to do as these deputies had as much power as a sheriff.

"On any excuse they have us arrested and there is no chance for an honest trial, we just have to pay our fines or go to jail."

Scab Crews Carried on Mail Cars

By LAURENCE TODD.

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON.— Strikebreakers are being shipped from point to point by the railroad companies in "United States Mail" cars which are legally not mail cars at all. The postoffice department had made no sign of protest against this misuse of its name.

Not one instance of actual interference with the mails has been reported from anywhere in the country during the railroad strike and no violence toward any postal employe has occurred.

Harry Shore, chief clerk to the second assistant postmaster general, in charge of railway mail affairs, acknowledged that the statement broadcasted by the postoffice department on the word of a railroad official, some days since, that a carload of "mail clerks" had been taken from a mail car by strikers, was utterly false. He said it appeared that the men were "railroad employes," probably strikebreakers, and that they were riding in a car which might have been marked "United States Mail," but which was not at that time in mail service. No law is violated if a car which has no postoffice employe on board is used as a passenger or freight car.

"We are in touch with our members, and we have not received any report of even a single case of interference with the mails during this strike," said H. W. Strikland, general secretary-treasurer, National Railway Mail Assn. "Of course the lack of locomotives prevents the moving of occasional mail cars, but that is not interference with the mails. Nobody in the mail service has been threatened, and no mail has been threatened or injured."

Postmaster General Work, who is a political protege of the Guggenheim-Rockefeller interest in Colorado, has issued a statement claiming that "if it should happen thatevery mail train thruout the United States would cease to run, the department would continue to transport the mails thruout the country by motor truck and airplane. It is estimated that two planes could carry all the first class mail between Washington and New York City. As now equipped the postoffice department planes can carry 30,000 pounds of mail at one flight."

The fact is that these planes have been carrying 500 pounds each, and that about 20 tons a day is the first class mail traffic between New York and Washington.

LOCOMOTIVES GO BAD

By LAURENCE TODD

(Federated Press Staff Correspond.)

WASHINGTON.—With the railroad strike sweeping the country like wildfire, the interstate commerce commission finds itself under entreaty from railroad corporations to violate the locomotive inspection law, with which no other authority than Congress can legally interfere. Under that law, the shopmen are bound to win their strike within a few weeks, since it requires that locomotives, unless in good condition, must not be used.

Caught in Own Trap

As the railroads have been to it that the number of inspectors employed by the interstate commerce commission for 70,455 locomotives on 260,000 miles of railroad is only [illegible]0, and that the appropriation for their salaries and expenses is very scant, they will have difficulty in proving the engineers wrong when they refuse to take out locomotives which they consider unsafe.

More Boilermen Out

News from J. C. Schmitt, international vice-president, boilermakers, to strike headquarters here that 4,000 more men have come out of the big Pennsylvania shops in 48 hours, and that the remaining 5,000 would probably be out within two more days, was hailed by the shopmen as the biggest single walkout since the struggle got under way. Ninety-eight percent of the shop men in towns adjoining Altoona have quit. This means that the Pennsylvania system will soon be crippled for locomotive power as the other eastern roads already are.

General Secretary-Treasurer Davison of the machinists, returning from a trip across Virginia, reports that none but passenger and mail trains are moving. Superintendents are shoveling coal at the chutes, while non-union coal hitherto moving from West Virginia to seaboard and to Pittsburgh is stopped. Excursion trains have been stalled by locomotive troubles, in the open country, and the public is now staying off the trains except where compelled to take the chances of travel.

Sammy Gompers Speaks Out

Some times the dead awaken. It is a miracle but it does happen. Such an awakening has taken place in the case of Samuel Gompers [illegible] the Communists [illegible] government [illegible] class [illegible] in regard to the latest developments in the strike situation in this country.

[illegible]

"The miners who are on strike are not going to dig coal until the strike is ended. [illegible] The army may go to the mining districts, but the army is not composed of coal miners.

"The fact is that there is nobody to mine coal until the coal miners now on strike return to the mines. They will return to the mines gladly and quickly as soon as the mine owners agree with them on terms and conditions of employment.

"The responsibility for this grave crisis is upon the mine owners. It is on no one else. No matter what the Government may say, what the mine owners may say, or what hostile newspapers may say, the mine owners are the guilty parties.

"Let it not be forgotten that the strike was caused by the wanton disregard of their contract by the mine owners. They treated their pledge to the miners as a scrap of paper. They refused to confer with the miners. They sought to treat the miners as serfs, and the miners refused to accept such treatment. They ceased mining coal.

"It is important to the country that coal be mined. It is even more important that a half million miners be treated with justice. The nation cannot put anything ahead of justice. It cannot put politics or the profits of a small group of mine owners ahead of justice to the miners. It cannot even put the need for coal ahead of justice. Coal can be had in ample quantities the moment justice is done.

"Brute force cannot override justice in the United States. I do not know what measures the President has in mind to take, but, I repeat, the only method in which coal mining can be resumed is agreement between the miners and owners upon terms deemed fair and just by both sides. It will not do to trample rough-shod over the aspirations and the requirements of any portion of our people. This is neither the hour nor the scene for the man on horseback. The great need of this hour is for normal, natural conference between interested parties. When a half million men are aggrieved is a poor time indeed for the roll of drums, the rattling of sabres and the pounding of the mailed fist."

Will Gompers now give up his "rewarding his friends and punishing his enemy" policy and fight against the enemy of the working class—the capitalist government? We doubt it. He'll leave that to the Communists, as in the past.

Butchery in South Africa by British

EDITOR'S NOTE.—We give space this week to the first direct news that has come thru from South African labor leaders. Will of the slaughter. It is a letter from the secretary of the Cape Town Branch of the Communist Party of South Africa. Before the war, the whole of Great Britain protested against Botha's deportation of South Africa labor leaders. Will the British workers allow this viler atrocity of Smuts' to pass without protest? Here are the facts:

By THE SECRETARY

Cape Town Branch, Communist Party of South Africa

I am writing to acquaint you with the serious position which our Party is now in as the result of the recent Civil War on the Witwatersrand.

The opening of the present year saw a strike on the coal and gold mines of this country, as a result of an ultimatum from the employers in those industries notifying the almost immediate termination of the hitherto existing conditions of employment, which meant the lowering of the standard of living of the workers.

The strike commenced January 10, and on that day about 23,000 workers had downed tools.

Conferences Prove Abortive

Several conferences were held between the Chamber of Mines and the South African Industrial Federation, representing the strikers, but they one and all proved abortive.

The miners determinedly refused to knuckle down, and the Chamber was equally adamant.

A deadlock ensued which lasted some time, when the Federation again offered to meet the Chamber to see if some settlement could not be arrived at.

This offer met with a flat refusal, the Chamber stating that in future they were not prepared to recognize the Federation for any purpose whatsoever.

This arrogant attitude on the part of The Chamber combined with a persistent pressure from the rank and file of the striking miners, compelled the Federation to call a general strike thruout South Africa.

General Strike Successful

In Johannesburg and right thruout the Transvaal province the general strike was completely successful. In Natal partially.

The Government had made elaborate preparations for the general strike and large numbers of police and military were rushed to the Rand.

The commencement of the miners' strike, however, possessed some unique features.

Profiting by their experience of 1913, when unarmed strikers had been shot down by the forces of the Government, the commencement of the strike saw the miners organizing themselves into military units.

These military units were termed "Commandoes." The ultimate declaration of martial law on the Rand, which almost immediately followed on the declaration of the general strike, was the signal for a general military attack on the strikers, and fierce fighting commenced between the police and defense forces and the strikers' "Commandoes" all along the Reef.

Bomb Workers' Hall

All the available military forces were brought to bear. Bombing aeroplanes, tanks, heavy artillery and machine guns were all brought into play. Benoni Trades Hall, with 750 workers inside, men and women, was completely demolished by an aerial torpedo, with terrible loss of life.

The suburb of Fordsburg, where a fairly large number of workers were concentrated, was shelled by heavy artillery for 75 minutes, with tremendous casualties.

After this event, the "gallant" troops marched in and took the residue prisoner.

The courage, the determination, the almost unbelievable heroism with which the workers defended themselves has excited great admiration, but with all this, the Government forces being far superior, they were, of course, ultimately beaten.

10,000 Await Trial

To-day over 10,000 prisoners await trial. Full details of the whole affair are not yet available. Correspondence between this branch and Johannesburg has been strictly censored and we have had to rely almost solely on the capitalist press for what information we succeeded in getting.

Spread "Red Plot" Tales

With this, of course, a "Red Plot" rumor was set afloat. The "authorities have documents to prove . . . etc., etc." and then, with the membership book in their possession, the police commenced a policy of "combing out," with the result that practically every member of the Party was arrested. The Party printing press had been completely smashed. The position to-day is that the Party headquarters in Johannesburg are almost completely decimated. Many comrades killed, the rest in jail, offices and plant wrecked.

We fear that those comrades who took a leading part in the strike, and who are now in prison, will receive very heavy sentences—possibly hanged or deported.

If the sentences already meted out to some of the comrades for so-called "minor" offenses are any criterion, this will certainly be the case.

One comrade, for selling "What Means This Strike?" by Daniel De Leon, and "The Development of Socialism from Science to Practice," by Karl Radek, was sentenced to six months' hard labor without the option of a fine.

Wore Red Ribbon; Three Months

One, for wearing a red ribbon, three months' imprisonment. Another for saying "It is not necessary to go to Germany to find baby-killers—we have them here," four months' hard labor.

The South African Section of the Comintern, not yet a year in existence, has received its baptism in blood.

The bitter feeling of the Rand Workers at their bloody and brutal defeat will prove fertile soil for Communist propaganda in the future. And, next time, the workers will win.

How to Cure World-Unrest

JOHN B. GRAB

Salt Lake City, Utah.—John B. Grab, a well-known financier of this city, has given out an interview on labor problems and the cure for wide-spread discontent.

Mr. Grab advocates "labor at homes" one day in the week, when the workers can visit the homes of "the best people" and look at the carpets, chairs, chandeliers, woodwork and all the other beautiful things which they have produced.

With Our Readers

Cleveland, Ohio, July 3, 1922.

Editor "The Worker"

Dear Comrade:

Sunday, July 2, I was in Toledo, Ohio, sent there by the district organizer to speak at the Picnic of Local Toledo, Workers Party. The Picnic was arranged in a Public Park. And here the fun began. Two policemen were scheduled on patrol duty in the park. As soon as the members came together and put some refreshments on the tables that are there for that purpose, the policemen slid near and announced that nothing can be sold over these tables by orders of the Commissioner of Parks. Nothing doing, had to abide by the order and so everything was given free.

At about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, comrade Wilnacker, member of the Dec. of District No. 6, called the meeting to order, and after some brief remarks, introduced me as the speaker for the meeting, to speak on the "Policy of the Workers Party". The two cops, with white caps, at once came near me where I was speaking from a park bench. They let me speak for about ten minutes and then one of them gently started to pull at the coat of mine. I did not pay any attention to the guy and just kept on speaking. After a minute came another drag, little stronger than the first one, and I had to give up speaking, at least for the time being.

I inquired "what's wrong," did I say something that is of criminal character?" The cop said, that is not the case, and informed me that "you canot speak in Public Parks, and I am ordered by the Commissioner of Parks not to permit any one speak here." I asked whether he would allow me to get up and announce that order he gave me, and he consented. Told the Local comrades what transpired and that it may be impossible for me to keep on and invited the chairman of the meeting to take charge of it.

Comrade Wilnacker get up and told that the mayor himself had spoken two weeks ago from the same bench at the same spot, and the Commissioner of Parks di not order the police force to pull him down, but when the workers want to have a speaker to voice their demands and express their policy the force of the bourgeoisie is there to prevent it. He announced that the workers will have to stage another free speech fight in Toledo as they did few years ago and forced the city administration to capitulate before the might of the workers.

Angriness and rage could be seen on the faces of the workers who were present at that meeting, but they felt that they are not well enough organized to take up fight right now and that it must be postponed for some later date. When comrade Wilnacker asked for collection, the contribution they made was so generous that it covered all expenses, for the refreshments that were given away free and also to cover my railroad fare.

The mayor of Toledo is besieged right now. He is a kind of man who thinks that if he is elected the mayor of the city he automatically becomes the absolute owner of the town and can do anything he pleases. Being on very good terms with the City Electric Railway Co. he forbade the Busses that are operated by some smaller fry, to use the city streets and the electors of Toledo are initiating a referendum to recall the guy, and the Workers Party has a member on the City Council who is favorable towards that step. Probably this will explain why he does not like the Workers Party. Now he becomes richer and thinks he also owns the city parks.

Yours in comradship,

d men have not even a fraction the intelligence of an every-day urance company.

Fallacious Objection

nother favorite objection of the i-amalgamationists is that the mation of a general railroad on would gravely injure the chinists', Blacksmiths', Boilerkers', Electrical Workers', Sheet tal Workers', and Stationary emen's unions by splitting off the tions of their members who work the shops as it demonstrates rly how ill-prepared we railroaders are to make a united fight. Think trying to map out a unified policy inst the solidly organized comies thru the medium of sixteen erent executive boards, autonom- and independent of each other, e for faint "understandings" ong the Brotherhoods and the atisfactory alliance of the shopn in the Railway Employees' Detment. The thing is impossible the face of it. So long as such unscientific condition exists, the road workers will never be e to set up a united front against companies. The first task of amalgamation convention would to end this deplorable state of irs by literally breaking down walls between the executive oftrs of the various unions. It uld have to provide for the elecn of an executive council to repent all the trades, and to consist two or three members from each anization participating. This uld bring about unity in the adistration and enable the workers stand together as one body. rging the executives would in itconstitute half of amalgamation th that accomplished, the sixteen anizations temporarily could be practically intact, each to funcn as a department in the general road union, and each maintaining own standard of dues, benefits.

Completing the Amalgamation

igure 2 indicates the situation t would prevail after the sixteen cutives had been combined into body. With this done the rest the work, viz, the extension of amalgamation to the various nifications of the organizations, ld proceed in a slow and careful hion. A commission might be apnted to conduct it. Gradually the borate organizing forces would joined together into one mechan-, and the many journals comed into one powerful publication ewise the system and division erations would be changed and anded in accordance with the new tionship. But most important of the barriers between the various ely related trades would be dually dissolved, nationally and ally, and the number of departnts reduced. At first, as we have nted out, the sixteen organizans could act as so many departnts of the general organization. t as the amalgamation became fect and the trades came to know understand each other better, ny of these departments could be rged to good advantage. The gineers and Firemen might be mbined into one department; the nductors, Trainmen and Switchn into another; and as fast as the tal trades unions amalgamated ionally their respective departnts in the railroad unions would consolidated accordingly. Eventlly the number of departments ld be reduced probably to as low six, viz: Enginemen; Train Sere; Train Control; Office, Station, eight and Express; Mechanical ades; and Maintenance of Way. Figure 3 illustrates the completed algamation. We make no claim t it is absolutely exact in detail. perience may demand its modifiion in certain minor respects, such changes in the line-up of the ups in the various departments, in the manner of election or the mber of members on the execu- council. But the general prines of the plan will stand. The tem of one union of several detments, each containing two or re related trades, and with one cutive council covering the whole anization, is the only possible ans for the railroad workers to elop the solidarity and unity of ion necessary to cope successfully the mighty combination of railcapital.

Start Must Be Made

If all the sixteen unions cannot be induced to go into this project simultaneously, as many as possible should be brought in. The plan fits partial amalgamations as well as a complete merger. If only a few of the trades agree at first to amalgamate, they can go right ahead organizing themselves on the departmental plan and awaiting the time when the rest see the light and come in to complete the organization. In fact we should do everything possible to further all movements to close up the ranks of the railroad unions. Movements to consolidate the Brotherhoods and to bring them into the A. F. of L., to amalgamate the metal trades, to strengthen the Railway Employees' Department by giving it more money and authority, etc. should be heartily encouraged as steps in the right direction. But in doing such detail work we should never forget our ultimate goal of eventually bringing all the existing railroad unions into a joint convention and there merging them into one great, mighty and all-embracing union of railroad workers.

Gives More Power

Brother Unionists: Amalgamation means greater power to the organization, more efficient and economical management of our affairs, lower dues to the membership. It will put more bread on the railroader's table and better clothes on his children's backs. It is a recognition of the patent fact that as we have only one highly organized enemy to fight, we ourselves must be in only one organization in order to fight effectively. It means for us to stop backing up and to begin going ahead. It spells victory instead of defeat.

Don't Be Fooled

Don't be misled by fake arguments against amalgamation. Don't let standpatters fool you with the old nonsense about the Knights of Labor, the American Railway Union, the Industrial Workers of the World and the One Big Union being proof that our project won't work. Those organizations had absolutely nothing in common with amalgamation. The Knights of Labor was merely a mass organization, hastily thrown together in the midst of great strike movements. Practically no trade or industrial lines existed within it and it had almost nothing in common structurally with modern industrial unions. And as for the A. R. U., I. W. W. and O. B. U., they were secession movements pure and simple, dual organizations which had no chance for success. The amalgamation here outlined is neither a mixed mass organization like the K. of L. nor a seccession movement like the A. R. U., I. W. W. and O. B. U. It is a scientific coming together of the existing unions into a departmentalized organization, infinitely more powerful, and infinitely better able to take care of the interests of the various trades, than the present craft unions.

Federation Not Efficient

Likewise you must discount the arguments of those who say that federation is the highest type of organization. Now, federation is all right so far as it goes. It has done much to acquaint the trades with each other and to teach them that they have a common fight to make. But it is only an intermediate stage between the primitive state of craft isolation and that of the final amalgamation of all trades. We must go on beyond federation and actually join all our unions together. That is the inevitable course of labor development. This is coming to be better and better recognized. Within the last couple of months the Chicago Federation of Labor, together with scores of other central bodies and hundreds of local unions, have endorsed the principle of amalgamation. At their recent conventions, the International Typographical Union and the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks did the same. Likewise the B. of L. F. and E. have just decided to fuse with the B. of L. E. Many other organizations will soon take the same course. Amalgamation is now the greatest issue before Railroad Labor.

Only Effective Answer

Amalgamation is the only effective answer Railroad Labor can make to the "open shop" drive. Indeed, the issue is clear and sharp. For us it is either amalgamation or annihilation. Which shall it be? It is up to you to determine. We are confident of your decision.

[illegible] instruct your officers and delegates to work for amalgamation wherever they may be: in your local unions, local federations, system federations, division organizations, and international [illegible] brotherhood conventions adopt the following resolution:

Resolved: That we favor the amalgamation of the sixteen standard railroad unions into one organization covering the entire railroad industry, and that we call upon our general officers to take the necessary steps so that a joint convention of all these organizations (or as many of them as possible) can be assembled to put this amalgamation into effect.

A. C. W. Plan

A. C. W. Sets Example

If the demand for the recognition of the Soviet Power at the time of intervention and the armed struggle against it had any revolutionary significance at all, it now appears as the slogan of those capitalists who desire trade with Russia. The Second and 2½ Internationals are only the mouthpieces of these capitalistic circles, to the extent that they are not actually forced by the workers who sympathize with Soviet Russia but are not in a position to turn their sympathies into action. An example of how to recognize Soviet Russia in contrast to the "recognition" of the heroes of the yellow International, was set by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

"The New Republic," a radical bourgeois weekly published in New York, reports that the Amalgamated Clothing Workers deration at their Fifth Convention decided to issue a loan of one million dollars which is to serve to organize a clothing co-operative that is to aid in the construction of the industry in Russia. In this co-operative the representatives of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and those of the Soviet Government will work on a basis of equality. The representatives of the Soviet Government will for their part furnish the factory room and the raw materials. Only workers and labor organizations may become shareholders. The co-operative is obligated to spend all profits exceeding ten per cent for extension purposes.

This bourgeois weekly from which we cite these news also brings excerpts from the speech delivered by Comrade Hillman, the President of the Union. "Many people speak of world economic reconstruction, but if we should leave the work of reconstruction in the hands of those cliques that caused the war and have now concluded "peace," we shall accomplish nothing but the formulation of a banal phraseology, and new formulas which, were they to be carried out would only result in one part of the world ruling the other. Were this to happen life would become ten times as difficult as it is now. The working class of our country as well as the workers of the other countries should rise and make it clear that the work of establishing peace in this world is not only one for a few officials and Ministries of Foreign Affairs, but that the vital problems of millions of men, women and children are to be solved by the masses of all countries. The working class of the world should take upon itself the economic rebirth of Russia which has set the example for creative work."

The bourgeois weekly reports that the Clothing Workers convention listened to Hillman's speech with great interest and accepted his proposal.

The aid which the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America decided to furnish Soviet Russia should serve as an example to the proletarians of other countries. The American clothing workers have pointed the way that is most beneficial to Soviet Russia, and which if followed should contribute considerably to the liberation of the Russian workers from the yoke of foreign capital. Such a step would lighten the work of preserving the social conquests of the revolution and would accelerate the economic development of Soviet Russia which in its turn would be in a better position to aid European proletariat in its struggle of liberation.

Real Aid for Russia

Forced by the attitude of the working masses the gentlemen of the Amsterdam International were compelled to collect money for the famine sufferers of Russia. For every crumb of bread which they furnished Soviet Russia, their agents left behind them a trail of venomous propaganda against the Workers' Government during their stay in Russia. It suffices to mention the activities of Brantel, member of the Austrian Social Democracy, who after arriving in Georgia with medicaments from the Amsterdam International and spending two weeks there, published a long pamphlet (without knowing either the language or the local conditions) in which he speaks like an expert and points out that Bolshevik regime in Georgia destroyed all the treasures

[illegible] the Amalgamated [illegible] of America [illegible] is an honest American [illegible] having arrived in Russia not for the purpose of making revolution but for the purpose of [illegible] the Russian workers, made an excellent study of the conditions under which we are living, and they returned to America to organize the relief work. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union is not a Communist organization; it is a union of workers suffering under the dictatorship of capitalism. This union is not part of the yellow A. F. of L. headed by Gompers, but in times of need it furnishes more aid to the other unions than some of the biggest labor organizations. This is due to the spirit of solidarity that pervades it.

That is why after the Amalgamated Clothing Workers had heard Hillman's report they declared: "We helped the famine sufferers by sending them $500,000, but that was only temporary relief; we must aid in a way that will do away with the famine in Russia altogether."

The Russian workers will receive this news with great joy, not only because $1,000,000 means material relief but also because the spirit in which the American clothing workers have given this money is the spirit of the Russian workers.

Ben Gitlow, Jim Larkin Refused New Trials Two Judges Dissent

ALBANY, N. Y.—James Larkin and Benjamin Gitlow, the latter a former member of the New York legislature, must serve the remainder of their terms for alleged violation of New York's criminal anarchy law. The decision has been handed down by the court of appeals here. New trials were granted, however, to Charles E. Ruthenberg and Isaac E. Ferguson, also convicted in 1920 on similar charges. All four were convicted on charges involving alleged responsibility for publication of the Left Wing Manifesto in the Revolutionary Age. Two members of the court, Justices Cuthbert W. Pound and Benjamin Cordozo, dissented from the opinion upholding the conviction of Larkin and Gitlow. The latter have been at liberty on bail for several weeks, having served part of their sentences.

Miners Not Fooled

nors, with the capitalist press howling over the miners' "refusal to arbitrate"—arbitrate themselves out of existence—with a childish public mind saturated with a carefully cultivated egoism concerning the importance of its role in industrial affairs the miners have resolved to continue their struggle and they have chosen wisely.

Proclamations, machine guns and bayonets do not dig coal, and it is coal that is needed.

There has been no production this summer that counts. Every week sees the normal surplus decreased. Even were the skilled miners to return there would still be a scarcity this winter, the riff-raff who will answer the call of the operators will not even be able to supply the daily demand, to say nothing of piling up a surplus.

The coal owners have been licked by the miners. They now call on the government for protection from the results of their folly, and their call is heard—their orders are obeyed is a more fitting term.

There is one answer that can be made by labor to this open use of the federal authority on the side of scabbing. The miners and the railwaymen can join forces and make a common fight a reality, an actuality instead of a phrase.

Were they in a position to do this American labor could feel much safer.

In the words of a well-known advertisement:

"Eventually, why not now?"

Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Sabotaged by Enemies

BOSTON.—Deliberately false stories, to the effect that Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti have been liberated or are on the point of being liberated, are being circulated outside of the United States, the defense group in this city learned from recent foreign publications.

The intention of the authors of these lies is obviously to confuse, and if possible, disrupt the magnificent international protest evoked by the death verdict in Dedham, Mass., last year.

"El Picapedrero," of Montevideo, Uruguay, for instance, carried a two-column article on its front page under the caption, "The Value of International Solidarity: Sacco and Vanzetti Are Liberated."

The Committee has sent communications to several of the leading labor publications in the world indicating the true status of the case.

Draft Urged As Strike Ranks Grow

By CARL HAESSLER
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

CHICAGO.—Walkouts July 17 by the 8000 railway employe members of the International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen and Oilers were the second authorized additions to the 400,000 striking shop crafts men who quit July 1. Clerks on individual lines had quit on call previously to the firemen. The maintenance of way officials continued to oppose a strike of their men.

Timothy Healy, international president of the firemen and oilers, declared the strike was in protest against the 2-cents an hour cut in wages ordered by the railroad labor board. His organization will act in close touch with the six unions already out under the leadership of B. M. Jewell, president, railway employes' department, A. F. of L.

Policy Shifts

Government policy toward the strike shifted a point with the intimation from Washington that the transportation might be restored under war powers with drafting of the strikers. Whether it was intended to pay the wages current before the slash and to concede the other demands of the strikers before summoning them to work under military conditions was not disclosed. Union chiefs refused to comment beore official announcement of the government plans.

Parasites Want Draft.

Before the government plan to draft the rail employes back to work became public, business men in Chicago were discussing the details and justifications of the plan. The owner of a large automobile accessory plant declared the roads could not be operated by the military with strikebreakers and that transportation by motor trucks and airplanes was utterly inadequate. He then said Harding had the authority to declare a state of war, draft the strikers to their jobs and treat them as mutineers if they disobeyed. Advised that such a course would mean the death of the Republican party he replied that on the contrary the party would get his vote for the rest of time.

National guard units are on duty in West Virginia, Michigan, Indiana, Missouri and Kansas.

The rail executives in their reply to Chairman Hooper's peace suggestions balked at every point except that they agreed in return for peace not to violate the board ruling against "farming out" shop work to contractors. They also agreed to abide in part by the thansportation act which makes provision for national adjustment boards to deal with all questions except wages. The roads will agree to regional but not to national boards.

"The differences are fundamental," Hooper afterwards said.

Strike More Effective.

Reports at railway employes, headquarters by wire from many points indicate growth of strike effectiveness. Denver telegraphed that a new woman's auxiliary of the shop craft unions had been formed with 2736 members who adopted resolutions of solidarity. Fresno, Cal., announced the railroads were unable to move fruit worth $200,000,000 in the San Joaquin valley because they could not get the skilled men to handle the shipments. Resolutions by locals demanding that Jewel make no concessions and stick by the original demands to the end are frequent. Clifton Forge, Va., and Spirit Lake Ida., shops are typical of this attitude.

The railroads are procuring additional injunctions and are obtaining guards for strikebreakers free of expense by applying for U. S. deputy marshals. The Northwestern and Burlington roads here received large squads of deputies. The New York Central and Erie, which had given the men rough treatment before the strike, demanded deputies, as did the Nickel Plate and Chicago and Western Indiana.

Railroaders Say Victory Is in Sight

By LAURENCE TODD
(Federated Press Staff Correspond.)

WASHINGTON.—"It's no longer merely a strike; it is a scramble to get aboard the bandwagon of the railroad shopmen's victory," declared Fred Hewitt, editor of the Machinists' Journal, after surveying reports from Atlantic seaboard and southern territory showing that the walkout is becoming a stampede away from the railroad jobs.

"Organization, and the experience we have had in longterm strikes on various roads since the A. R. U. strike of 1894," said P. J. Conlon, directing the machinists' end of the strike on all roads south of Washington, "have prepared us for this showdown with the roads. We were ready, and we were not going to be frightened by threats of the use of troops. We had only to stay off the job, and remind people that the troops cannot repair many locomotives. Today this strike is complete in every quarter, and the managers are beginning to acknowledge that they must settle on a reasonable basis. Their autocracy has hit a snag."

Fairfax Harrison, president of the Southern Railroad, who is endeavoring to persuade his fellow railroad executives to settle with the shop unions, is quoted as having declared that if the other roads refuse to settle, he then will be forced to make a settlement with his own employes.

"So far as the Southern is concerned," Harrison is reported to have confessed to a friend, "We were licked the day the men walked out."

It appears that for some days before July 1 the men in the Southern Railroads shops were employed in taking defective locomotives down, preparatory to repairs, and that the few men who started on the job or were recruited as strikebreakers have been unable to set them up again.

"We would be glad to see the postmaster general get his mail trucks into action, and leave the railroad situation to be worked out between the men and the companies," said said Conlon. "Dragging in the question of carrying of the mails merely confuses the issue. If Mr. Work can transfer all the mails to motor trucks and get along without the railroads, we hope he will do so. Those trucks will not carry the commerce of the country."

Editor The Worker:

The sale of all socialist and radical literature has been prohibited by the police authorities in this vicinity.

There have been raids and almost all soap boxers have been arrested, others have been warned not to speak.

All street meetings by radicals have been barred, but the religious fakirs go undisturbed with their special concessions.

Eighteen members of the S. L. P., seven Socialists and a dozen members of the I. W. W. are under arrest and a general drive against the radicals seems to have been inaugurated.

Bail as high as $5,000 has been demanded for arrested comrades.

TAFT, Cal.—The Ku Klux Klan of this town, responsible for many outrages in the Kern oil fields, has formally disbanded. It is reported that many of the klansmen are turning to Imperial county, where the cantaloupe season is beginning.

HERRIN, Ill.—Three union miners are now dead in consequence of the bloodshed here June 21 and 22 which followed the killing by company men of two strikers. Guy Hudgins, a member of the union, died of his wounds July 13. Sheriff Thaxton has promised to assist Attorney-General Brundage in tracing those responsible for the outbreak. The coroner's jury has already fastened the greater part of the blame on the Southern Illinois Coal Co. and William J. Lester, its president. Grand jury inquiries will await further evidence, Brundage says.

SEATTLE.—Thousands of young nurses in all parts of the country are being held in the grip of no-wage slavery. Long hours, arduous work, and no pay is their condition in many hospitals, in the opinion of the national nurses' convention in session here recently.

SEATTLE.—Another group of workmen, including many Americans, are on their way now to Russia to work in the Kuznetz basin. A still larger group, composed of farmers for the Crimea and mechanics for Moscow and Petrograd are due to leave shortly. A former group, now in Russia, in a letter to comrades here, tell of the improving conditions in Russia and express enthusiasm in their work.

Song of Labor

By ISIDOR KREININ

March on comrades, March on forward
Ye who work, and ye who bleed,
Ye who toil and always suffer,
Victims of your masters' greed.

Rise and halt the wheels of fortune,
And demand them for you all;
Raise the banner of deep crimson,
Forward! till all tyrants fall.

Letters Pass Between Steinmetz, the Inventor, and Lenin, the Revolutionist

Revolutions do many peculiar things but the most interesting and instructive is the manner in which they expose the fundamental difference between creators and exploiters.

Capitalist society does homage to the accumulator of wealth; Communism in even its early stages honors the creator.

The really great creative minds of the world see in the coming order the opportunity for constructive endeavor of which they have dreamed; the opportunity to harness the natural forces to the service of mankind without being hampered and throttled by the exigencies of the profit system.

Thus it is that we find the following correspondence passing between Charles P. Steinmetz, the greatest electrical expert in the world, and Nicolai Lenin, the greatest revolutionist in the world.

From Steinmetz to Lenin:

Dear Mr. Lenin:

I am taking the opportunity of the return of Mr. Lussof to Russia to express to you my admiration of the great work which is directed to the building up of socialism and economic reconstruction—the work which Russia carries on under such hard conditions. I wish you full success and express my full confidence that you will succeed. And really the great undertaking started by Russia must end with success. For we cannot permit that we should be defeated.

I shall be very glad if I am able in accordance with my best abilities to assist Russia in the technical sphere and particularly in the matter of electrification in a practical way and with advice.

Yours truly,

Charles Steinmetz

From Lenin to Steinmetz

To Charles Steinmetz.

Dear Mr. Steinmetz

I thank you with all my heart for your friendly letter dated the 16th of February, 1922. I must admit to my shame that I first heard of your name a few months ago from Comrade Krgiganovsky, who was the chairman of our state commission for the preparation of a project for the electrification of Russia and who is now the chairman of the commission for the preparation of the general plans. He told me of the high position you occupy among the electric technicians of the whole world.

Comrade Martens acquainted me now a little more with your work since his return. From his information I understood that your social and political views made you sympathize with Soviet Russia in the beginning.

On the other hand you are the chairman of the American Society of Electrical Engineers in one of the advanced countries in electrical science.

You convinced yourself of the necessity and the inevitability of supplanting capitalism by a new social order which will establish a systematic economic life and will secure the welfare of the whole mass of the people on the basis of electrification of whole nations. The number of representatives of science, techniques, arts, who convince themselves of the necessity of supplanting capitalism by a new social and political order and whom the terrible difficulties of the struggle in Soviet Russia against the whole capitalist world do not repulse, do not frighten but on the contrary bring them to the conviction of the inevitability of the struggle and the necessity to take part as much as possible in order to aid the new society to overcome the old is growing slower than many expected, but is gradually and irresistibly becoming greater.

Especially I would like to thank you for your offer to aid Russia with advice, direction etc. Because of lack of official and legal recognized relations between Soviet Russia and the United States it is very difficult for us and for you to realize your proposition in a practical way.

I take the liberty to publish your letter and my reply in the hope that many people who live in America and in the countries bound by trade relations to the United States and Russia will assist you (by information thru translation from Russian into English, etc.) to realize your intention to aid the Soviet Republic. With best greeting.

N. Lenin.

HOCHELAGA

There's a vision in the clouds tonight—
Shades of the primeval;
I see the fires blazing, bright,
I hear the songs and revel;
The pilgrim moon shines calmly
On the river flowing slow
Past the lights of Hochelaga—
(Three hundred years ago).

The loaded spits are sizzling,
The braves are squatting round
About the smoky wigwams,
Bows and arrows strew the ground:
The busy squaws prepare the feast,
The cooking-fires burn low,
In stockaded Hochelaga—
(Three hundred years ago).

A night bird calling to his mate
In the wild, uncharted deep;
Shut and secure the picket gate,
The village sound asleep
Within the piled enclosure,
Safeguarded from the foe;
Quiet, dreaming Hochelaga—

—Harold Colvin-Salla.

ON MEMORIAL DAY

EDITOR, THE WORKER:—I am writing to let you know about a political taken near Findlay, Ohio, for being brave enough to say, I cannot kill my fellow man, and I will not go to war.

I will now tell you how the American Legion celebrated Memorial Day. Coming back from the cemetery, where the boys that fought as they thought for democracy, lie buried, the legionnaires stopped under the cell window of our political and proceeded to abuse and call him vicious names.

When they had celebrated in this way for a time, the sheriff, whose name is Hay, and who belongs to the American Legion, let his fellow legionnaires into the jail. The political prisoner was forced to go out of his cell among them. He was brutally treated.

When leaving the jail one of the legionnaires remarked to a bystander, a personal friend of the writer, "Well we gave that . . . a razzing, I guess."

When asked what was meant by a "razzing," he said, "Well, we lined up along the corridor and made him run the gauntlet, and we all took a poke at him."

A short time after this the prisoner's brother-in-law arrived at the jail and asked to see the prisoner.

The sheriff told him he could not see him while he had anything to do with it.

The prisoner before the draft worked as a clerk in a Findlay bank. His name is Charles Evert Nemeyer.

I would like to have this published in The Worker. I want to do all I can to give this case publicity.

The prisoner had a mother who was widow. He was her sole support. This case is somewhat isolated and the prisoner is not well known.

I understand that, the sheriff also tried to force Nemeyer to make some kind of confession, by grabbing him and jamming him against the cell wall, and by handling him most brutally.—H. W. A., Toledo, Ohio.

WORLD CONFERENCE STRESSES NEED OF FAMINE WORK

FROM THE WORKERS INTERNATIONAL FAMINE RELIEF CONFERENCE TO THE AMERICAN WORKERS

"COMRADES, THIS THIRD WORLD CONFERENCE INTERNATIONAL WORKERS' FAMINE RELIEF COMMITTEE DOES NOT CONSTITUTE FINAL CHAPTER GREATEST INTERNATIONAL ACCOMPLISHMENT OF WORKERS OF WORLD. IT MARKS BEGINNING OF YET GREATER UNDERTAKINGS A DNIEVACH UNDERTAKINGS AND ACHIEVEMENTS IN BEHALF OF SOVIER RUSSIA. ALL AFFILIATED RELIEF COMMITTEES AND THEIR WORKERS ARE CALLED UPON TO CONTINUE FULLEST COOPERATION. THE DELEGATES."

International Tool Drive for Soviet Russia Gaining.

Workers all over the world are collecting tools and machinery for Soviet Russia. A big drive was conducted in Germany and England and netted a large amount of machinery.

The drive in America is just getting under way. All the propaganda and publicity material has been sent out and the comrades are putting all their energy, enthusiasm and vigor into the work.

Unique Methods of Carrying on the Work.

The machine that is capturing the fancy of the F. S. R. branches is the tractor. Each town is promising to purchase several of them "to have one working in Soviet Russia for us."

YONKERS is buying a tractor, which it will exhibit in a window for a month and then use for propaganda in the streets. NEW YORK will buy one or more tractors as a start, using the same methods of reaching the people in the streets. ROCKAWAY, N. Y., is adopting the same method.

Reports are coming from towns all over the country. The Tool Drive has caught the imagination of workers everywhere, and they are realizing that by participation in the reconstruction of Soviet Russia they are not only helping to feed Soviet Russia today, but are helping her to prevent further disaster.

Workers of Soviet Russia Will Know Who Their Friends Are.

In addition to giving the person or organization contributing a Certificate, and sending the lists of contributors to Soviet Russia to be kept in the Archives of the Soviet Government, the Friends of Soviet Russia is making arrangements to have a plate attached to every machine bearing, in English and Russian, the name of the contributor, so that the peasants and workers of Soviet Russia will know who their friends are.

Famine Scout Clubs.

Sometime in April of this year, two little leaflets were printed. One, an application blank, containing instructions for organizing a Famine Scout Club, the other the story of DROUTH AND BLOCKADE, told in language simple enough for the littlest child to understand.

These two leaflets were used to launch the children's organization of the F. S. R.—The Famine Scout Clubs of America.

In three months—from mid-March to mid-June—1400 children—workers' and farmers' boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 16—have joined the Famine Scout Clubs of America.

These children have sold many thousand copies of the little booklet: "Children's Stories of Soviet Russia," as well as Famine picture postcards and buttons by the thousands. They have raised money by presenting playlets, dealing with the problems met by Soviet Russia. Thru their own initiative they have invented ways of raising funds to feed their hungry little Russian Comrades. Picnics, outings, entertainments, house to house collections, are some of the activities they engage in.

Up to date there are over 120 clubs listed, with a membership of from 4 to 40, or more in each club. Within a period of 3 weeks the membership rose from 500 to 1400.

The remittances have gone steadily up with the membership. From the middle of May (when there were only about 500 children organized), to the middle of June, the membership had practically trebled.

Remittances for April were $37.25, for May [illegible] for June (to the 16th only) $429.25.

The spirit the Famine Scouts reveal in their work is not unworthy of the most devoted of our grown-up comrades.

The clubs are distributed thruout the country. 18 States are represented, including one in Canada. There has also been a club organized in Samana, Dominican Republic.

The states represented are: California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Wisconsin, with a club in Washington D. C.

The star state is New York, with 40 clubs in Greater New York (City) alone.

VARIOUS ACTIVITIES.

CHICAGO held a most successful tag day on June 26th, having the co-operation of three other organizations. The greater part of the work, however, was done by the Friends of Soviet Russia and the Trade Union National Committee for Russian Relief. More than $30,000 was collected and a mass of experience gained that will serve the comrades in good stead in all relief activities.

Similar joint drives and tag days are to be undertaken in other towns in the near future.

MINNEAPOLIS and ST. PAUL have arranged a joint picnic, at which Wm. Z. Foster will be the speaker. Foster will also speak later in the month at Seattle, San Francisco, and Portland.

The Women's Division of the F. S. R. at ERIE, Pa., recently held a concert and dance, netting a nice sum for relief.

The Ukrainian, Lithuanian, Russian, Hungarian and Polish branches of CHICAGO held an international concert a short time ago, the net receipts amounting to $320.

PEABODY has been quite active and made a nice remittance.

PHILADEDPHIA has already sent two tractors and two ploughs and is ordering two harrows.

NEW YORK is arranging a big meeting in support of the first concession that has been granted American workers in Soviet Russia.

Dinner Pail Epics
by Bill Lloyd

"Stone walls do not a prison make," one poet wrote for his own sake, and now Ralph Chaplin comes to sing that Federal walls are not a thing which can crush out a poet's song, while suffering a grievous wrong.*

For no one really seems to know what Chaplin did that he should go to Leavenworth for twenty years, and leave a wife and child in tears. Yet that was sure a Wilson trick that came upon us pretty thick, in days when our boys crossed the sea, to bolster up democracy.

Chaplin in prison walls is free to write his songs for you and me. From out his prison's sickly air his song is lifted to declare that liberty shall never die, but be made perfect by and by.

I only wish that poets all were free to sound a clarion call. How many poets, body-free, dare tell the truth to you and me? How many of them sell their stuff to magazines for just enough to be respectable and good, as poets never really should? How many of them write to please and cover up all foul disease with which society is ailing, and therefore see their ideals failing?

We ought to raise a great big shout and get that poet, Chaplin, out, together with some hundred more, who're now shut in by prison door. Of politicians we've enough, but poets are different stuff. They are the men who're given wings and float above all common things.

War profiteers should go to jail, instead of which we put in pale idealists, poets, and their kind, and things are all front-way behind. It's time we straightened some things out, I'll say it is, without a doubt.

Miners Respond to Hardy

The coal diggers altho to-day in the midst of the greatest struggle of their career as an organized body against the organized force of the entire capitalist class, still find time to pause for a moment and stretch their hands across the big pond bidding cheer and aid to their famine stricken brothers in Soviet Russia.

Of the mining towns of Bellaire, Neffs, Barten, Yorkville and Dillonvale, Ohio, this is especially true.

Bob Hardy toured this section with the illustrated lecture on the Russian Famine for The Friends of Soviet Russia.

In Bellaire the Miner's Theater was secured free of all charges for the occasion and 900 of the 1000 seats were filled by miners, their wives and children in the afternoon. In the evening a duplication of the lecture took place gathering a crowd of 400.

The net proceeds of these two meetings was $245.63.

A noble response coming from that part of the American working class that is to-day facing starvation themselves due to the damnable persecution of the coal operators.

SAN FRANCISCO.—Following the lead of the Building Trades council, and as part of the new drive to secure amnesty for Mooney from Governor Stephens, the San Francisco Labor council has petitioned the governor for Mooney's and Billing's release.

An Interesting Pamphlet

"YOUTH UNDER AMERICANISM" is the name of an intensely interesting and well written 64-page pamphlet that is being issued by the Young Workers League of America.

This is the first book that has appeared in this country dealing directly with the economic, social, and political status of the American youth, issued by the revolutionary movements here.

Almost every phase of the conditions of the youthful workers in America is dealt with in this publication. Here especially is taken up the class nature of the educational system. No one who desires to be informed on social questions can fail to get this pamphlet. It is absolutely essential to an intelligent understanding of the status of the young in this country.

Price, 15 cents single copy; bundle order rates, 10 cents per copy.

Order from Young Workers' League, Room 405, 799 Broadway, or your local book store or literature agent.

MOSCOW, RUSSIA.—Within the past 60 days 100 new locomotives have arrived in Russia from Germany and been assigned to various lines. It is expected that during the summer some 100 additional locomotives will arrive from Germany.

Benefit Performance For Sacco-Vanzetti

Rarely have duty and pleasure been so hapily joined as in the big benefit performance for the defense of Sacco and Vanzetti, commencing at the National Winter Garden, Second Avenue and Houston Street, on Friday evening, August 4.

A richly varied international program, comprising 15 all-star acts by leading actors and concertists of the English, Jewish, Russian and Italian stage, will be presented every evening thru August 13, with special matinee performances on Saturdays and Sundays.

The need for funds in the fight to save the two Italian workingmen from the electric chair is especially pressing at this moment, and the series of high-grade entertainments at the National Winter Garden is being counted upon to relieve the situation. But the committee in charge is making its appeal not alone on the merits of the purpose of the benefit, but on the merits of the actual performance.

"The great satisfaction expressed by those attended our benefit concerts for Sacco and Vanzetti in Brooklyn and Brownsville," said A. G. Wittner, who is at the head of the work, "is what led us to undertake this extended engagement in New York. I can say in utter sincerity that a more colorful, entertaining program than we have arranged is not to be found on the boards of any vaudeville house in the city, barring none."

All seats being reserved, and a heavy demand being anticipated, arrangements have been made for the sale of tickets in advance. They may be had at the Workers' Defense Union, 81 East 10th St.; Henry Fruchter, care N. Y. Call, 112 Fourth Ave.; Rand School, 7 East 15th St.; Freie Arbeiter Stimme, 48 Canal St.; Freiheit, 47 Chrystie St.; Forward, 175 East Broadway; Italian Chamber of Labor, 241 East 14th St.; Italian Defense Committee, 208 East 12th St. Balcony seats cost 50 cents and orchestra $1.

All inquiries should be directed to A. G. Wittner, representing the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee, 81 East 10th St. Telephone, Stuyvesant 6488.

HOW ABOUT WAGES?

WASHINGTON.—Prices were higher in May than in April, according to a report from the department of commerce on 42 production movements for the entire country. Only four of the 42 showed a decline. Prices "have shown the greatest increase for any month in more than two years. Prices on the average have not fallen below about 40 per cent over the pre-war level," says the statement. "They are now nearly 50 per cent above that level."

"The Lusk Aftermath"

By BENJAMIN GLASSBERG

Immediately after the appointment of the Advisory Cou by the state commissioner of education to investigate the loya of teachers in New York City, the Teachers' Union bega vigorous attack upon the Advisory Council and the Teach Council which had recommended its appointment.

The Teachers' Union took advantage of this opportunity renew its attack upon the Lusk law which attempted to straight-jacket fifty-seven thousand teachers in the state.

Fighting reaction in education is no new thing for the Teachers' Un During the war, when every 100 per cent American thirsted for the bl of a radical, the Teachers' Union defended with all of its resources a nu ber of its members who were charged with disloyalty.

It was soon apparent that the Teachers' Union was not stand alone in its fight against the Advisory Council and the secret trial of teachers.

The Central Trades and Labor Council condemned the participation of Hugh Frayne, eastern representative of the A. F. of L., in the deliberations of the Council and summoned Frayne to appear before it.

The New York Board of Education then climbed aboard the band wagon. It adopted resolutions declaring that the Board "certainly would not have favored and it does not now approve of such secret inquiry as is being prosecuted. There is no need of it."

The Board made it clear that it could very well take care of the investigating of radicals itself. The Board went on to declare that it had reasons for believing that it would be advisable to reorganize the Teachers Council as a wholly unrepresentative body controlled by a few teacher-politicians in the system. The Board of Education never took any notice of these attacks. Then the impossible followed.

One of the most respectable teachers' associations in the city, the High School Teachers' Asociation, now lodged a strong protest against the Advisory Council in a letter to State Commissioner Graves. It protested against the procedure followed by the committee.

"Damaging statements are read," said the letter, "which reflect very unfavorably upon the reputation and character of the teachers under suspicion. These teachers are not permitted to know who make the charges against them. Not to permit the accused to answer his accuser face to face is a violation of the first principles of justice."

Altho the Association urged the abolition of the Advisory Council, it assured the Commissioner that it did not doubt that he had at heart "the best interests of the children of the teachers and of the entire community."

But to return to the Central Trades and Labor Council of New York. This body had opposed the enactment of the Lusk law from the very beginning. It was represented at the Albany hearings to voice its protests against the Lusk bills both before the Legislative committees and before the Governor.

But at the special meeting held to consider the question of Frayne's membership on the Advisory Council, and to which Frayne had been invited to be present, the Central Labor body failed to maintain the position it had held so consistently.

Frayne delivered a long defense of his position and of his membership on the Council. He invited the Central Trades and Labor Council to appoint a committee to attend a meeting of his fellow-inquisitors, saying, "If organized labor, thru a representative committee, after careful investigation, finds that labor should not be represented on this council, I shall be glad to resign."

In spite of a very bitter attack upon Frayne's position by the representative of the Teachers' Union, Frayne's invitation was accepted by a narrow majority.

At the session held on June 2, the Central Trades and Labor Council was, however, not represented. Evidentally the A. F. of L. leaders had pulled a sufficient number of strings to enable Frayne to escape defeat, but they were not able to keep the body in line.

The strongest local unions represented in the body protested so strongly and so vehemently against any recognition of the Inquisit Committee that the Central body was unable to go thru with proposal to attend a session of inquisitors. In the end Labor's ord of opposition to the efforts terrorise the progressive, the th ing, and the radical among teachers remains clean.

It is a distinct disappointment Labor everywhere, however, the Central Labor body did take a truly militant stand; tha did not demand the abolition of Advisory Council, and the expuls of that labor faker, that Bolshe fighter, Hugh Frayne, from ranks of organized labor. The la faker must go. And Hugh Fra is one of the most reprehensible the whole motley crew.

All signs point to the early mise of the Advisory Council. opposition its brief activity aroused may in turn result in complete wiping out of the L laws whose one aim was to crip the radical movement in Americ

Social Revolutionary Defendants Are Last Remnants of Party

By ANISE
(By Mail)

MOSCOW, June 18.—In the Great Hall of the Unions, once a noblemen's club, under candelabra of gilt and crystal and between great pillars of marble, the Communist revolutionaries that succeeded are holding trial of the social revolutionaries that failed. The charges are murder plots and actual assassinations in attempting to overthrow the present government of Russia.

The chief event of the past week was the withdrawal of Emile Vandervelde and the other foreign defenders from the court.

From the beginning of the trial Vandervelde openly questioned the right of the court to try the defendants; and some political discussion took place on his point. Then the defense demanded the right to keep their own official stenographic record. They frequently threatened to leave. Finally, however, one of the foreign defenders, Rosenfeld, stated in court that except for the stenogram, the defense was now granted all necessary privileges.

Two days later the foreign advocates were absent from court, and at 11 o'clock in the evening (for that is the hour of adjournment in Moscow courts) one of the prisoners rose to state that the accused had freed the foreign defenders from their duties. The lack of the stenogram was again brought in as reason. The judge informed them that they could have as many stenographers as they wished at the reporters' table, but that only official court record could be recognized.

The trial now proceeds with Russian advocates. The atmosphere is informal. Prisoners may question any witness and not infrequently heated discussions take place between some of the defendants and others who have turned state's evidence.

Many of the counts mentioned in the indictment are admitted by the defendants. Gotz, the chief figure, admits responsibility for the junker uprising in January, 1918. Other witnesses describe the forming of district committees and military bodies to overthrow the Soviet government. Strong evidence seems to tie them closely with assassinations.

Under these circumstances, it is perhaps better for the chances of life of the prisoners that Vandervelde has withdrawn from open part in the trial. His presence was reviving all the old tensions, and making the fight between Communists and social revolutionaries seem again a really militant fight in Russia. The plain fact is that the social revolutionaries are dead in Russia; there is no party doing anything except the Communist party.

It is the central committee of the social revolutionary party, sometimes called the party of Kerensky, which is now on trial. During its brief term of power, its ranks were open to all comers as are political parties in the United States, but unlike the Communist party in Russia which strictly safeguards its membership. The result of this open policy was the flooding of the social revolutionary party with adventurers of all kinds, seeking safety or advancement. Many of these committed assassinations, and pillage, some took part later in systematic banditry on the various frontiers.

The question at issue in the trial is how far these acts of murder have been individual and spasmodic, by scoundrels attaching themselves to the social revolutionaries for protection, and how far they have been authorized by the central committee of the party.

SEATTLE.—To counteract huge militaristic parades and festivals which marked the celebration of Independence day here, the Central Labor council has indorsed a demonstration for No More War days, July 29 and 30. The program will be under the auspices of the local Women's Trade Union league.

The Workers Party and Conference For Independent Labor Political Action

The conference of the representatives of the remnants of the Socialist Party of New York and the few units of the Farmer-Labor Party held last week in Beethoven Hall, having under the leadership of the S. P. and F. P. demagogues turned down the request of the Workers Party of America for affiliation on the basis of a united front, Local Greater New York of the Workers Party has issued the following statement:

The act of the so-called conference for Independent Labor Political Action is not only failing to invite all working-class political parties and unions, but actually refusing to admit the Workers Party of America, the largest working-class political party now existing in the United States, is sufficient evidence of the bad faith and ridiculous presumption of those who called the conference.

This conference, hailed as a new development in the labor movement of the city showing the determination of organized labor to carry on independent political action, turns out to be on a back-room political job of a few "leaders" without any followers. It is only an effort of a few bankrupt leaders of the dead Socialist Party to secure in a new disguise sufficient support to rehabilitate themselves. The use of the name of the local Farmer-Labor Party (existing practically only on paper) is merely an excuse for deserting the corpse of the Socialist Party which died under them.

The Socialist Party which in 1919 had a hundred thousand members in the United States has had its membership reduced to less than 7,000 in the entire United States in the last three years. With this reduction in its membership has gone a reduction of its political influence upon the working masses of this country.

The Farmer Labor Party was a timid pretense from its very beginning. It has not been able to gain even such pitiful strength as the Socialist Party once had. It consists, at present, of a handful of members.

Realizing that they had run their course so far as securing support under their own names these two organizations have joined in a deal to create the impression of the birth of a new labor political organisation having the support of organized labor in the city of New York.

Thru manipulation of the names of the few members of unions who belong to the Socialist Party and the Farmer-Labor Party the appearance has been given to the "Conference for Independent Labor Political Action" that it is a body representative of organized labor in New York City. Actually it is but a fusion of the remains of the Socialist Party and the ghost of the local Farmer Labor Party. Hopeless of landing their leaders in office thru campaigns under their own party names these two organizations have fused under a new name in the hope that thus they can put a few job-hunters into public office.

The Workers Party of America has been barred from this Conference because the leaders of the Socialist and Farmer Labor Party know that the Workers Party would not be a participant in any deal to betray the workers of the City of New York for the benefit of an office-seeking group.

The workers of this country face a crisis such as has not before existed in this country. They are face to face with the most bitter struggle against the employers in the history of the last quarter of a century. In this struggle the employers are using the might of the government to compel the workers to accept lower wages and worse working conditions. Injunctions, industrial courts, Lusk Committees, and the State and Federal troops are the weapons with which the workers are being beaten into submission.

With such a struggle raging it is imperative that the whole strength of the workers be organized in the fight. The Workers Party is ready in all sincerity to give its heartiest support to a genuine movement for independent political action of all working class organizations on the basis of a United Front. But we find only a manoeuver of the politicians of the Socialist Party and Farmer Labor Party in a job-hunt to betray the interests of the working class.

The Workers Party of America supports the policy of the United Front of labor. Its aim, however, is not to create a United Front of job-hunting labor politicians but of the working masses who are suffering under the whip of the employers and the government. Its program is not only to rally those working masses for a common struggle in the coming elections but to mobilize the whole power of the workers for the struggle against the employers.

The Workers Party proposes that the working people shall enter into the election campaign in support of candidates from the ranks of the working class. It also proposes that the working people shall unite industrially and politically to fight their everyday battles against the employers.

It proposes that labor—organized and unorganized—shall get behind the striking miners, railroad men and textile workers.

It proposes that thru mass meetings and mass demonstrations the working people shall call a halt upon the use of the power of the government against the striking workers thru injunctions, courts and soldiers.

It proposes joint action in the strikes by the workers to halt the aggression against labor by the employers and the government.

It demands united action of all workers to prevent vicious czarist censorship of working-class educational institutions.

It demands that the government shall furnish relief to the unemployed by paying union wages to those unable to secure work, the cost to be borne by the industries of the country.

The program of action proposed by the Workers Party deals with the problems which the workers are facing to-day. The Socialist and Farmer-Labor Parties are afraid of these problems. They are content to have their platform filled with high-sounding phrases dealing with pretty reforms to be achieved in the sweet by and by.

Although the few real representatives of organized labor who found their way into the so-called Conference for Independent Labor Political Action demanded that the Workers Party be invited to send delegates, the labor politicians in this conference dared not permit the entrance of a political group standing on the platform outlined above which refuses to sacrifice the interests of the workers to office seeking.

A WORLD LANGUAGE

Decisions of the Study Commission of the Third Internationale for the adoption of an International Language. (From L'Humanite, Paris, March 28th, 1922.) It is known, that the two last congresses of the Communist Internationale have treated the question of an international language. A "Study Commission" was nominated by the secretariat of the Internationale and confirmed by a resolution of the third World Congress (July 12th, 1921).

The Study Commission recognizes unanimously, that the general adoption of an Auxiliary Language by the propagandists would very much facilitate the task of Communism, but it regrets to state, that the time is not yet opportune for its general and official introduction into the Communist Internationale.

To all comrades and organizations that have expressed the explicit desire to propagate the international language in accordance with the decision of the Study Commission, this one recommends that the propapanda be based upon the study and teaching of Ido, which must be considered as scientifically superior, more easily perfectible, even with its defects, and which consequently has the greatest chances to be finally adopted officially.

This recommendation expresses the opinion of all members of the commission except one, who would have abstained from any recommendation.

HANS ITSCHNER,
Secretary of the Study Commission,
Secretariat of the Communist International.

The President is Jos. Pogany, former People's Commisary of Soviet Hungary.

In accordance with the above quoted statement, we, the Workers' Ido Society of Pittsburgh, Pa., as the only radical Ido organization in America hereby extend an invitation to our Esperantist comrades to form with us such a common organization, with the understanding, that both dialects are to be officially used and that both dialects are to occupy equal space in our organ, and furthermore, that the organization is to recognize and abide with the future final decision of the Third Internationale.

Only in this way can we form a united language front.

Esperantists and other workers approving this plan, please communicate at once with the secretary of the Pittsburgh Workers' Ido Society, A. Rostrom, 7616 Tioga St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Nuorteva Is Commissar of Education for the Commune of Karelia

Santeri Nuorteva, well known in America for his activity as director of the Information Bureau of the Finnish Revolutionary Government and as secretary of Ludwig Martens, the representative of Soviet Russia, is now working in the Karelian Workers' Commune as Commissar of Education. When Nuorteva went to Russia, there he was immediately appointed director of Western and Scandinavian departments of the Commissariat of Foreign Affairs. In March, 1921, a great sensation was created when the news was received that Nuorteva had been arrested. All kinds of rumors were broadcasted, but, nevertheless, no official statement could be had.

In February of this year, Nuorteva was released after a thoro investigation of his case. This investigation revealed that all the accusations against Nuorteva were fabrications and falsifications invented by his old political enemies. Nuorteva was declared free, all his party rights were restored and he was completely vindicated. On account of his long confinement pending the examination of the case, Nuorteva was granted a vacation in order to secure rest in a sanatorium. However, he thought the best vacation to be "working among the Finnish and Russian workers in beautiful Karelia" and, for the time being, he is now in charge of the schools and educational system.

The Finnish organ of the Karelian Workers' Commune, "Karjalan Kommuni," interviewed Nuorteva. The paper says among others:

"During our interview with Nuorteva, he declared himself especially contented with the fact that after a long time he is again able to work together with the Finnish comrades—and it certainly appears that there is plenty of room for effort in Petrozavodsk (capital of the Karelian Workers Commune).

"All's well that ends well," he said referring to his experience of the past year. "I never doubted that all the misunderstandings would be cleared up. I do not entertain any bad feeling for what happened. In the Revolution every man should regard himself as a soldier and must be capable of bearing whatever unpleasant circumstance may befall him. To the Finnish and American Noske-papers, which, I understand attempted to utilize my imprisonment as a weapon against communists, I am tempted to say quite bluntly that I have not asked nor do I desire their sympathy for my sufferings. When these journalists attacked the communist press of Finland and America for their failure to defend me publicly when I was imprisoned, it only showed that those gentlemen do not in the least comprehend what is meant by communistic discipline. While the highest executive power of the proletariat is examining a certain matter, we calmly await the outcome with the confidence that its decision will strike at the truth. This it has done in my case also and now I stand more firm and certain in our ranks than ever before, with the realization that I will remain a communist even tho suffering may fall to my lot."

LOWELL, MASS.—A wage slash affecting 3000 cotton workers in the Merrimac Manufacturing Co. mills in this city went into effect July 10. At a meeting of more than 100 representatives of labor organizations here plans were laid to organize the cotton operatives to resist.

Oil Workers' Organizer Is Tortured Brutally

CHICAGO.—Demand for investigation of the torturing and tar and feathering of William Bugher, organizer, Oil Workers' Industrial union, near Shamrock, Okla., has been made in a telegram sent to Gov. J. B. A. Robertson of that state by Harry Feinberg, secretary, General Defense committee here.

Bugher is in a critical condition following a beating by three men who kidnapped him from the porch of the Hotel Erin in Shamrock, a town in the oil fields 22 miles southwest of here. In a lonely woods they stripped him naked, and fastened his wrists to a tree-limb above his head. They asked him why he belonged to the I. W. W. He said: "I have a right as an American to belong to any organization that is not against the government." He explained that the I. W. W. newspapers were accorded second-class mailing privileges by the federal authorities. Each of Bugher's captors then flogged him with a split strap, which cut into his flesh with every blow. They finished their work by tarring and feathering him.

Cold rain began to fall as they left. For two hours Bugher struggled before he freed his wrists and tore the bandage from his eyes. Thru the darkness he stumbled back to Shamrock. At the Hotel Erin he was told that he had 30 minutes to leave town. Bugher took a train to another community, where friends are caring for him.

Workers Party Festival

TO BE HELD JULY 30

The Summer Festival and Picnic of the Workers Party, to be held at Dickert's Park, on July 30th, has aroused great interest among the comrades and sympathizers of the Local New York of the W. P.

The picnic has been arranged to raise funds for the coming campaign and everyone is pitching in to make the fair successful.

The language federations are organizing mass singing of their members—and comrades of the language branches are requested to come early to the Park in order to take part in this event. Games, dancing, bowling, athletic exhibitions, and other features will make the picnic the greatest affair of the year. Park opens at 10 A.M. Tickets at the gate 50c.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Financial secretaries must return their report blanks showing receipts and expenses of the branch since its formation at once. No branch can be considered in good standing unless the financial secretaries take care of this matter without further delay. Comrades must settle up for tickets outstanding.

Aiding the Enemy

A political party affiliated with the Third (Communist) International is an outlaw organization in the United States. Membership in such an organization is prima facie evidence of intent to overthrow the government by force and violence. Nothing more than evidence of such membership is necessary for conviction in any court in the land according to numerous decisions.

Otto Branstetter, secretary of the Socialist Party of America, apparently believs that there are not enough class-war prisoners in the United States and that the Department of Justice is laying down on the job.

In an earnest endeavor to increase the activity of the department, which has been some what hampered by charges of bribetaking preferred in the senate against the head of the department, Otto Branstetter has issued a circular in which he announces that the Workers Party of America is part of the Third International and the "legal" expression of the Communist Party of America.

The Socialist Party is not affiliated with the red Third International and its attitude towards the yellow internationals is also somewhat vague. Under the circumstance outlined above, however, its latest announcement leaves little doubt that it maintains at least a working arrangement with the black international of spies and agents-provocateurs.

Branstetter's statement to the press seems to be timed to fit in with the refusal of the New York conference to accept the affiliation of the Workers Party of America and is undoubtedly an attempt to excuse the betrayal of the United Front policy by playing upon the prejudices of workers whose minds are poisoned by the propaganda of their masters.

The Workers Party carries its messages to the American workers and the workers have the opportunity to judge the party by its acts and utterances.

They have already judged the Socialist Party and its latest utterance will serve only to make intelligent workers regret that its decaying corpse was not buried deep enough to prevent its noxious odor making more poisonous the fetid atmosphere of capitalism.

"Figures Don't Lie But Liars Figure"

Some one has said that there are three kinds of liars: "Liars damned liars and statisticians."

The Railway Labor Board is the finest example of the truth of this statement that has yet come to our attention. Its ruling reducing the wages of railway labor is based on the premise that hourly wage rates have risen faster than the cost of living since 1915 and that the purchasing power of railway wages is now higher than in 1917.

In 1917 the cost of living had risen about 35 per cent while wage increases ranged from 6.7 to 17.9 per cent. To pick 1917 as a starting point is so obviously unfair that a body basing its case on this kind of misrepresentation can only make itself ridiculous. This is the one task in which the board has had wonderful success.

In addition to the above monumental error the board neglects to take into consideration that the 48-hour week has been inaugurated since 1915 and the number of paid hours in a working week decreased.

We have stated many times that wage reductions and wage increases are never based, except in the most general way, upon the evidence submitted. It is the easiest thing in the world for workers to prove that they are not receiving a wage that allows a decent living standard but it is another thing to get it. This is always a question of the power of their organizations; any raise above a mere subsistence level depends on this.

The case of the employers, based on the evidence, is always weak and this attempt of the railway board to fill the stomachs of the railwaymen with figures is only another instance of the fraudulent nature of the wage system.

The railroad workers have made the only reply possible. More power to them.

The Gethsemane of the Intellectual

Maxim Gorky's last work, "Ecrits de Revolution," published in Paris, records the path of uncertainty trod by intellectual leaders the world over when th eRussian revolution thrust itself into the old scheme of things.

The book, containing as it does Gorky's writings and speeches covering the three years period from 1917 to 1920 affords an opporutnity of tracing the change that took place in his attitude toward the revolution.

> In November, 1917, Gorky described Lenin as "a boss," "a Napoleon of Socialism," "a Russian barin" with "certain moral traits of the fallen barin class." He called Lenin "a slave of dogma" and of using the working class as material for experiments. Under Lenin's leadership during this period Gorky maintained that he was "destroying the best elements among the workers and arresting for a long period the normal development o fthe Russian revolution."

By July 20, 1920, Gorky's views had changed completely and, according to the review of his book in The Freeman,

> Lenin had become in Gorky's eyes "a great man and an honest man" to whom "nothing that is human is foreign" and whose "whole aim in life is the happiness of humanity"; "a Puritan" whose "private life is such that in an age of great religious faith he would have been regarded as a saint"; an "idealist" who addresses a meeting of workers "in tones extremely simple, with a tongue of iron, with the logic of an ax," without "offensive demagogy or any banal searching for fine phrases"; and, finally, "the man who is striving to transform the potential energy of the slow-footed masses of Russia into effective energy."

Gorky ddi not recognize the revolution for what it was from the very beginning. He did not know what revolutions were and like almost every other intellectual in the world who sincerely desired an end of economic slavery obscured their vision of its final goal and almost without exception they have spoken only to denounce it. The honest ones were mistaken and as for the others history has already assigned them their place. Gorky acknowledges his mistake but the fact that a Gorky can err so grievously in the dark hour of revolution shows that when that hour strikes the workers stand alone.

The friends who went with them in the early days of the struggle will know them not.

Did You Help—Or Hinder?

It IS a pertinent question, purposely so.

We put it so because it is IMPORTANT.

Your answer also is important. Important to THE WORKER and, we hope, also to you.

DID YOU HELP THIS PAST WEEK IN THE WORKER DRIVE FOR 25,000 NEW READERS?

There can be but ONE answer to that question.

YOU DID—or you did not!

If you did help, if you got some subscribers, if you made other workers acquainted with THE WORKER, if you bought some sub cards—THAT'S HELP. And we have your answer.

But, if you got no subscribers, if you purchased no sub cards to sell, if you made no new readers acquainted with THE WORKER, if you sold no papers, ordered no bundle—well, that is not help, that's hindering.

You don't have to positively sabotage this work in order to hinder its progress. Just negative action, refusal to DO YOUR PART, neglect to perform your duty—that also is a hinderance.

Every Workers Party member, every WORKER reader is not only expected to perform his part of the work of getting these 25,000 new readers, each have been requested to get a certain number of subscriptions.

Special letters of instructions have been sent you. You have been given a small bit of this work to do. We have not asked you to do more than you can do. BUT WE EXPECT THAT YOU WILL DO THE WORK REQUESTED.

We expect that of each and every one. The success of this drive for new readers depends upon your accomplishing at once the little task demanded of you.

If you do it right away, we will know YOU ARE HELPING. If you do it right away, success will be yours and ours. We believe you are going to HELP!

Wasted Sympathy

Every time some assassin of the workers meets the end to which he has condemned thousands there is a loud outcry from the capitalist press in which join the yellow misleaders of the workers who are pacifists except when hangers-on of the rulers get a taste of their own medicine. The death of the Czar and his degenerate nobles produced columns of sob stuff in the press of the world. Even the Kaiser is coming in for his share of sympathy since the German workers have shown signs of becoming impatient with the treacherous group which succeeded him in Berlin. The shooting of Sir Henry Wilson by two young Irish workers has been no exception to the rule; Ramsay MacDonald and Arthur Henderson have joined with the British capitalist and liberal press in deploring the occurence, denouncing the perpetrators, and in offering their sympathy to his bereaved family.

While the Black and Tans were murdering and torturing in Ireland under the leadership of Wilson, these gentlemen and their kind were either silent or given to uttering carefully worded interviews designed to offend no one responsible for the outrages.

Commenting on this matter the British Communist says:

> Political Assassination is, ninety-nine times out of a hundred, political folly. It inflicts the minimum of material damage and confers the maximum of moral advantage upon the cause and class against whom it is directed. It is, in its very desperation, a confession of weakness and despair.
> The Imperialist Press is busy using the corpse of Henry Wilson as a battering-ram wherewith to shatter all that is left of hope for an Irish Workers' Republic; official Imperialism has used his corpse as the centre of a pageant into which military might and the Royal Family were interwoven in equal parts.
> Worst of all the leaders of the British Labor Party, fresh from sharing strawberries and cream with the accomplices in the murder of Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg—and with their pockets stuffed with indignant perorations in defense of the would-be murderers of Lenin and Trotsky—use the coffin of Henry Wilson as a rostrom from which to deliver a daily bulletin on the state of their soul.
> If we could have prevented the killing it would not have happened. But being done, we say flatly that the people who invented the Black and Tans, who, after torture, murdered, legally and in cold blood young Kevin Barry—who rejoiced, as the "Daily Mail" did, when Liebknecht and Luxemburg were foully slain—who shrieked with joy (as they all shrieked) at every fresh report of the murder of Lenin—these are the last people on earth who should pretend to moral indignation at the end of Henry Wilson.
> We say in cold blood—"To hell with humbug!"

The British Communist is right; we have all to many opportunities to shed tears over the corpses of murdered workers to waste any time over the demise of a professional butcher whose hands were red with the blood of thousands.

Secretary of the Navy, Roosevelt, the reigning prince of the Roosevelt dynasty, speaking at the convention of the Elks recently, demanded the punishment of those responsible for the Herrin affair.

Our information is to the effect that those directly responsible are now beyond the reach of even the supreme court.

those of pronounced reformist tendency, but that does not mean that behind O'Connor and De Valera were all the revolutionists.

Many of the strongest and best of the revolutionary workers sided with Collins because they were sick to death of romantic flourishings and Republicanism which led nowhere. They believed that England would never grant the full Republican program of O'Connor and De Valera, and they knew that neither of these generals had the power to force her to.

They believed that the institution of the Free State had exorcised the spirit of nationalism sufficiently for them to begin their task. They wanted to get on with the social revolution and not be held up any longer by romantic idiots.

Middle Class Behind Collins

It was because there was some truth in that point of view that Collins' success was ultimately assured. Collins could never have succeeded by British ammunition alone. He is an Irish revolutionary, and his power lies in that. If he had become a British policeman, he woul have gone the way of the Black and Tans—as he may do yet. But, for the moment, he has a real and irresistible Irish power behind him. That power is the power of the Irish bourgeois. The Catholic hierarchy, the farmers, the trading community, the employers and merchant class as a whole, with a large section of the professional classes, are solidly for Collins. The nationalist demands of the Irish bourgeoisie—which ultimately boil-down to sufficient political independence to be quit of the economic subjection and tutelage in which England has carefully left Irish industry—was actually and in fact conceded by the treaty which Collins signed.

Pact Helped Irish Exploiters

The bourgeois class, when in its revolutionary stage as in Ireland, is singularly acute and quickwitted, and the generality of the middle-class revolutionaries quickly penetrated thru the disguise of oaths to the king and imperialist ceremony to the real fact of the concession of economic independence. It is for this reason that, so long as Collins maintains a sufficiently stiff demeanor to the London authorities, he will find his support continually growing and stabilizing.

De Valera Irish Mazzini

Compared with Collins', the power of De Valera is small and evanescent. De Valera is the Mazzini of Ireland. In every revolution there are to be found leaders who take their program literally—who will have nothing but the exact demands that they have written down in their program. Honest, sincere and courageous, they are prevented by these very qualities from being of further use to the class they lead.

When the Italian middle classes achieved their aims—national unity and bourgeois liberty—underneath the House of Savoy, Mazzini would have nothing to do with it. He stood out for an Italian Republic. So, too, De Valera has stood out against compromise for an Irish Republic. So, too, just as Mazzini's followers wavered, dwindled and disappeared, De Valera's supporters in Ireland will gradually disperse, as the bonds of tradition and emotion which hold them are weakened by time.

Abhors Class Struggle

For—again like Mazzini—De Valera is forbidden by his principles to appeal to the only class which could fill up the ranks of his army—the revolutionary workers. All taint of Socialism, all Bolshevism, is abhorrent to him. He never was, never will be a leader of the workers. When the truce was first called, both De Valera and Collins sent round instructions forbidding all strikes and ordering the I. R. A. to disperse any strike pickets. When Rory O'Connor first issued his call for volunteers from the Four Courts he appealed simply for "plain men who were sick of politicians."

Workers' Instinct Correct

Nevertheless, altho revolutionary Communism is probably no stronger in the councils of the rebels than with Collins, the class-conscious mass of the workers tended more and more to De Valera's side. The few confessed Communists there were attempted to aid him, and the relics of the Citizen Army came out on his side.

It was more instinct than logic that led them there, for the old argument that the national question must be cleared utterly away by a Republic before the social revolution can be thought of has worn very thin by now; what they were impelled by was the sight of O'Connor and De Valera actually fighting the British Empire.

Collins as Defender of Empire

By whatever means, it was the case that Collins was actually defending British capitalist imperialism and De Valera and O'Connor actually combatting it. They felt—and their instinct was fundamentally correct—that they could not do wrong in joining the side which, for whatever reason, was fighting British capitalist imperialism.

The Tragedy of It All

But the tragedy of this has been that the question should ever have been presented to them in those terms, and as a choice between two such leaders. Worker has been shooting down worker, revolutionary killing revolutionary. The signing of the Treaty, which some thought was a sign of the defeat of the British Empire, has turned out to be Lloyd George's master-stroke.

The Irish Republican threat, which was draining the whole power of the Empire, has been wiped out of existence. A combination of craft and force has made the ablest leader of the revolutionaries take up the task of crushing his fellows.

Setback for Revolution

Whatever happens, the Irish revolutionary movement has been put back for years. Had O'Connor and De Valera won, or if any of the other Republican revolts, that will break out soon, succeed, only one result can follow. They will break up the Free State Government, maybe shoot Collins, dissolve the Free State troops—and then the British and Ulstermen will strike. De Valera will have to fight them as he had to fight before the truce—but this time the discipline and morale of the I. R. A. will have vanished, half of his old colleagues will be dead by his own act or on the enemy's side while throuot the Irish people will be fixed the expectation of defeat

Collins' Future Fate

If ever prophecy was fairly safe, it is to say that the Republicans could never stand up to the terrific machine Sir Henry Wilson left behind him. If Collins wins, things will be little better. Faced with the necessity of holding down the Republicans, dependent upon British munitions, and unable any more to threaten to break the Treaty and rejoin the Republicans, he will be forced more and more into the position of Churchill's policeman and his apparent independence will disappear.

Eventually, London will find in him a more efficient and respectable substitute for the Black and Tans.

Of the two solutions, the odds at the moment, I think, are on the second. But either is disastrous.

Boycott of Jap Goods and Jap Soldiers in Siberia

EDITOR'S NOTE:—This appeal of the Japanese Communist Party to the Japanese soldiers in Siberia shows the fight that the Jap Communists are making against the aggression of Japanese imperialism in the territory of the Republic of the Far East. The Japanese delegates at Harding's Washington Disarmament Conference pledged Japan to immediate evacuation of Siberia. This pledge has never been fulfilled. It is now declared that this evacuation will take place in October. In the meantime the fight of the Japanese Communist Party continues. It declares as follows:

Japanese Soldiers in Siberia!

Do you know that in April 6,000,000 British workers passed a resolution of the most far-reaching effect upon the Japanese workers and peasants? The resolution calls for the boycott of things Japanese all over the world. This grave resolution is aimed at the Japanese imperialism in Siberia altho the British workers fully realize that the boycott will hurt the welfare of the Japanese workers by the increase of unemployed in Japan. As long as you, the soldiers of Japan, are in Siberia and murder and pillage the Russians the boycott will continue.

Soldiers in Siberia! As long as you remain in Siberia the workers of the entire world will boycott Japanese goods in their respective countries and this will continue as long as you stay and fight against the Russian Red soldiers. This means that as long as you stay in Siberia, the Japanese workers, and indirectly the Japanese peasants, will suffer from increased unemployment, depression and hard times in industry by the fall of foreign trade. As long as you maintain the present dangerous position in Siberia your brothers, sisters and families will suffer more and more

The boycott of Japanese goods by the proletarians of the world will no doubt bend the stiff neck of the Japanese militarists and capitalists, but this will first hurt your families at home and you are by your conduct bringing all these misfortunes upon Japan! When we point out these facts and the consequences of your staying in Siberia you should decide and act decisively for the interest of yourselves and Japan. There are only one or two ways of getting out of this unfortunate situation. The one is to quit your post as soldier and go back to Japan or go to the Soviet Russian side, throwing down your arms and becoming a peaceful worker. The other way is to organize the Soviet of the Japanese Soldiers in Siberia and to start the Bolshevik Revolution in Japan. In this the Russian, Chinese and Koreans will support you in Siberia. You can handle the comparatively few officers of the army; either arrest and keep them in a safe place, or do whatever you like, disarming them first so that you can proceed with your new revolutionary work for the real interests of Japan!

Down with Japanese Imperialism!

Down with capitalism and the capitalist government of Japan!

Long live the Soldiers' Soviets!

Committee of the Communist Party of Japan.

Debs Urges Industrial Unionism for Rail Men

"Labor should take a tip from capital and organize by industries instead of by crafts. My views are combated by presidents of local unions, by grand officers of international unions and by business agents, some of whom are crooked and others who are not, but all of whom are afraid they will lose their jobs and in some cases the princely salaries they draw. They don't like me for that reason.

"There is a curious contradiction in the fact that while wages have been radically reduced the cost of living has remained substantially the same and this is the primary reason for the industrial revolt of the workers which now threatens the country."

BUILD THE WORKER CONFERENCE

All delegates of N. Y. City CONFERENCE are requested Branches to THE WORKER to be on hand promptly at 8.30 P. M. at The Toiler Book Shop, 208 E. 12th St., Friday evening of this week.

At the last meeting held two weeks ago only one-half the registered number of delegates attended, yet the meeting was a very great success and the work of building up THE WORKER circulation in this city was begun.

At Friday's meeting further plans will be made and future work outlined. All Branch delegates must therefore be present to take up their duties.

Be on hand. Be prompt. Bring an idea with you.

AN ORGAN OF REVOLUTIONARY WORKING CLASS EXPRESSION

Vol. V. No. 234. [illegible] SATURDAY, AUGUST 5, 1922 [illegible] Price [illegible]

Miners, Shopmen Stand Pa

Coincident with the control of the railways by the Government under the Esch-Cummins law telegrams are pouring into the strike headquarters of the shop crafts at Chicago demanding no ment except on a national basis and a return of seniority rights. Every day brings added evidence of the demoralization of traffic,—300,000 miles of transportation out of commission, due to the celling of trains, is the admission of the railway executives themselves. Lack of cars has decreased coal production in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 tons.

Three Years Under Treaty of Versailles

Calling the workers of the world to a renewed struggle against the "Robber Peace of Versailles," the Executive Committee of the Communist International has issued a proclamation to the workers of the world on the third anniversary of the signing of this so-called "Peace Treaty." It is as follows:

Workers of the World!

For three years mankind has lived under the capitalist peace which was imposed upon it by the decisions of the Versailles Conference. This peace means the continuation of the fight of the imperialist robbers among one another upon the backs of the working class, a fight which demands of the latter no less sacrifice than the bloody slaughter on the fronts of the world war.

In the victorious countries millions of unemployed are starving because the capitalist suppressors cannot agree among themselves as to the best form for the further exploitation of the proletariat. In the defeated countries the workers are perishing because they must bear the double yoke of their own slave-drivers and the foreign oppressors who cannot extract sufficient surplus value from them through extended working hours to pay for the cost of the world war.

The world war was paid for in 15,000,000 dead and 40,000,000 wounded. The number of victims of the robber peace will be even greater if the working-class does not find the strength to burst the chains of capitalist rule and oppression.

The working-class missed the favorable moment when it was relatively easy to overthrow the bourgeoisie by a bold attack. When in 1918 the world war ended and the ruling capitalist classes of all countries shook before the revolutionary strength of the Russian Revolution, when inspired by the current of revolutionary enthusiasm the working classes of Germany, Austria and later Italy fought in an elementary fight for power, it would have been possible to seize power with bold courage but for the treachery of the social-patriotic war politicians.

Weary and bled white in four years of murder, the workers long for peace and quiet. They do not realize that a peace which is decided among the ruling capitalist classes means for the proletariat a hell of suffering and a sea of misery ever as terrible as the sufferings of the world war.

The bourgeoisie has recovered from the first fears with which it was filled by the end of the war and the Russian Revolution. With the active assistance of the traitors to the working class during the imperialist war, the ruling classes have everywhere got the power and the power of the state again firmly in their hands. Everywhere the bourgeoisie used all the means at its disposal against the working class to shift the cost of the world war upon the latter's shoulders and to throw them under yet greater oppression and increased exploitation than before the war.

The trivial victories gained by the proletariat from the bourgeoisie shaken by the end of the war and the Russian Revolution have long since been lost. Wages are cut and working hours are lengthened. Wages will be still further lowered, far under the minimum of existence and the working hours must be ex-

Socialist Party Backs Berger Endorsement of LaFollette in Wisconsin

The national executive committee of the Socialist Party, meeting at Buffalo, N. Y., endorsed the stand of the Wisconsin Socialists in refusing to name a candidate against Robert M. LaFollette, Republican candidate for re-election as United States Senator.

This is a victory for Victor L. Berger, showing that he is in control of what remains of the Socialist Party.

It is a slap at New York Socialists who had adopted a resolution condemning the failure of the Wisconsinites to nominate a candidate against La Follette.

In endorsing the Berger-Wisconsin Socialist position, the Socialist Party national executive committee repeats Berger's position, declaring that "the national executive committee takes cognizance of the explanation of the Socialist Party of Wisconsin as to the reasons for its failure to name a candidate in opposition to Robert M. La Follette.

"The committee realizes that the situation in Wisconsin was very exceptional, and declares that the action of the Wisconsin comrades is under no circumstances to be regarded as a precedent, and that the Socialist Party is definitely committed against any support, direct or indirect, of any candidate for public office on the ticket of either of the old parties."

The Socialist Party seems to be drowning in a tidal wave of precedents that it refuses to recognize as such.

The Hague Conference

By KARL RADEK

The French memorandum of the 2nd of June as well as the English answer of the 12th of June roused a discussion in the French press, which together with the above-mentioned notes, throws a certain light upon the conference that is to take place at the Hague.

First of all, it is interesting to note that the English memorandum emphasizes the sovereign rights of the Russian Soviet Government, and warns France to make no encroachment upon these rights. We greet this part of English memorandum as a significant step forward from the first memorandum which was presented to the Russian Delegation in Genoa, and which would have meant nothing more than the capitulation of Russia, that is, the attempt to make Russia a colonial country.

Campaign Issues Met by Workers Party in Lively Sunday Session

The New York City Convention of the Workers Party, held in the Labor Temple, Sunday, July 23, was a strenuous session.

Thirty delegates to the District Convention were elected, candidates for the coming election were picked and resolutions designed to frame the party policy were adopted between the hours of 10 A. M. and 12 P. M.

On two resolutions, one dealing with the United Front, the other with principles and program of the party, the debates were long and heated; more than five hours were consumed in disposing of these resolutions alone.

The decision on the United Front put the Convention on record as sympathizing with the creation of a labor party recruiting its membership from the unions and the affiliation of the Workers Party, without sinking its identity, with such an organization.

Improvements in the party program were ordered; the delegates were instructed to have it made more concise, embodying in clear phrases the aspirations and tactics of the revolutionary workers.

The list of candidates and other details will be found on page 5.

SYDNEY, N. S. Wales.—On the score that union wages were too high, the Australian federal government dispensed with union seamen on the oil carriers of the Australian navy. In their place enlisted men were signed on to do the work, something new in Australia.

Court War on Miners Not Ended

CHARLESTON, W. Va.—Erroneous reports carried by the old established news services that the indictments in the West Virginia mine war of August and September, 1921 have been dropped by the state are contradicted at the district offices of the United Mine Workers here.

"The indictments still stand in the Charles Town cases," said Fred Mooney, secretary, District No. 17. "The prosecution has intimated that beginning with August 7 they will try the son of Rev. J. E. Wilburn and following that they will try Walter Allen for treason. Wilburn the father, was found guilty of second degree murder for the death of John Gore. A motion that the verdict be set aside will be ruled on by the judge August 7. There are rumors of tampering with the jury.

"Wilburn was the second man to be tried. William Blizzard, a sub district president, who came up on a treason charge, was quickly acquitted."

There are over 100 miners under indictment in the Charles Town cases. The erroneous report that the indictments had been dropped arose from the fact that indictments returned in Mingo county against individuals who could not be found have been quashed.

C. C. C. Meeting Postponed

tation would be completely tied up.

MINERS ALSO SOLID

The coal miners are likewise standing pat and hoisting of the Stars and Stripes on the tipples of mines patrolled by soldiers, state police and gunmen, not brought the miners back on the job.

The strike of more than three months duration which not a pound of coal has been produced in union properties affected by the strike has cut down the surpl to the vanishing point.

It is now admitted that even the 48 vessels placed in co mission by the Shipping Board to import coal from Engl cannot handle more than 500,000 tons per month even tho it produced and loaded by the English miners and longshore without protest; trouble is sure to develop there is the opi
of even the most enthusiastic proponents of the plan.

The facts of the case are that all available sources of c supply fall several million tons short of filling the demand. Th are no breaks in the ranks of the union miners and even in form non-union fields the "Harding plan" of coercion by bayonets a machine-guns has not had the expected result.

The United Mine Workers can, if they choose, pull out th pumpmen in the union territories who have been allowed to main on the job so far—and flood the mines.

The alacrity with which the suggestion of President Har looking toward the mobilization of state and federal autho behind the railroads and the coal owners was complied with by the governors of the various states has shown the strikers in both industries that all branches of government are the property of the capitalists of the United States and that organized power alone can force consideration. Never in the history of America have the class lines been so closely defined.

That both the shop crafts and the miners are refusing settlements on anything but a national basis is proof that American labor is learning the necessity of united action.

Most remarkable of all features of the gigantic industrial revolt is the indisputable fact that in the face of all the anti-union propaganda and the active hostility of the capitalist press the rather indefinite thing called public sentiment is swinging more and more to the strikers. In many instances the sending of troops into industrial districts where their presence was not requested by the civil authorities, has aroused deep resentment and outspoken protest.

So far as the mass of the people are concerned there is a perceptible inclination to let the railroads stew in their own juice; there was no frantic outburst of applause when Harding issued his proclamation outlawing the shopmen. The patriots over whose coal mines waves the flag find that there is no stampede to the protection of its folds. There is a growing resentment against the little group of financiers whose ownership of the railways can no longer be concealed.

Altogether the situation is one to bring much joy to the hearts of those who have despaired of the American workers and looked forward to many dreary years of uninterrupted control by the finance-capitalists with no protest from the wage-earners.

MASSACHUETTS MOBILIZES

BOSTON.—With only the thinnest camouflage, everything is being fixed for the use of state troops against the railroad workers on strike in Massachusetts. President James H. Hustis, Boston & Maine Railroad, and Governor Channing H. Cox were in conference, discussing ways and means of protecting railroad property.

The newly organized state constabulary and all other units of the state police force have been ordered mobilized by Governor Cox to safeguard "the inalienable right to work." The order does not apply to the national guard.

July 15-16 about 175 enthusiastic classconscious workers turned out for the house-to-house collection arranged by the Miners' Relief Committee. Perhaps there is no more convincing proof of the solidarity of workers than this demonstration of dogged determination to help the striking miners of West Virginia in the face of innumerable obstacles. During two days of hot weather, when most people had left for the beaches or cool places, these self-sacrificing workers remained in the stuffy city, gathering pennies and nickels, dimes and quarters, tramping from house to house, upstairs and downstairs, from restaurant to restaurant, from one meeting-hall to another. They went everywhere asking for support for the brave miners.

Forward Obstructs

To make the task of the collectors more difficult, the Jewish Daily Forward, which pretends to be a working-class organ, came out with an attack on the Miners' Relief Committee, exhorting the public not to give the collectors any money. The Police Department aided the Forward in its attempt to discredit the volunteers, arresting some and terrorizing others. But still the collectors persisted. Until late into the night they worked, never stopping to rest until their boxes were full.

As a result of this splendid spirit $2100 was collected. All money has as yet not been turned in. [illegible] of this amount was immediately sent to John Gatherum, Secretary of District No. 29, United Mine Workers, Beckley, West Virginia.

Organization of Jap Labor Is Helped As Industrialism Grows

By GERTRUDE HAESSLER

(Staff Writer, Federated Press)

TOKIO, Japan.—In the face of the fact that Japanese workingmen are continually winning their numerous strikes, or effecting very favorable compromises, comes the startling statement of Mr. Iikei, writer on labor subjects, that only 10 per cent of the 1,500,000 Japanese industrial workers are organized.

"Japanese workers organize spontaneously in a crisis," he said, "and when that crisis is past the organization dissolves. That, probably, is the secret of their success. There is no worship of a form of organization—no danger that the workingman will lose sight of his goal by becoming infatuated with the machinery that is to win his goal. The spontaneity of every rally to arms in a labor struggle—be it merely a sub-rosa movement of sabotage, or an open strike with pickets and the usual casualties—carries the men over the top. When a man is discharged without reasonable cause the entire plant is inactive until he is reinstated, for every workingman in the place walks out with his discharged comrade. There is no union to direct the strike—the crisis is there, it is faced, and when it is over, work is quietly resumed."

The organized ten percent form the Japanese Federation of Labor which is modeled after the A. F. of L. Suzuki Bunji, the president and leader, is a friend of Samuel Gompers, follows the same conservative policies that the American leader does, and probably feels just as insecure in his position, for there is the same radical insurgency movement.

There are also persistent attempts, says Iikei, to establish industrial unions, but so far they have not gained much strength, due, no doubt, to the fact that industry is very young in Japan.

The police do all they can to oppose any sort of labor activity. The Metropolitan police bureau and the federal bureau of the interior is supporting a movement which closely resembles the Ku Klux Klan of America, and which breaks up labor meetings with daggers, fists, knives or clubs, with impunity and sometimes with the assistance of the police. It is composed of gamblers, owners of houses in the red light district, and other disreputable elements, as well as of discharged soldiers, Shinto priests, and firemen.

Some of the terms familiar to the American labor struggle have been taken over, translated into the Japanese labor language. These are "strike," "lockout," "open shop," "blacklist," "scab," "strikebreaker," "capitalism," "proletariat," etc.

"You mustn't expect too much of the Japanese laborer," said Iikei, "for you must remember that industrialism in Japan is very young. But we learn quickly, and we expect soon to outstrip the American labor movement in progress, for the movement in your country is getting to be too slow for us."

1. Line up Branch members with 20-week subscriptions.

2. Distribute 20-week "sub" cards among branch members for soliciting purposes and collect from week to week.

3. Keep weekly account of how many are sold by branch.

4. Criticise Worker at Council with a view to help make it a better selling paper.

5. Arrange for theatre benefits in order to aid with funds.

In reporting on the first week's drive for 20-week subs, Chairman Elmer T. Allison declared that it was the greatest thing that has ever happened to THE WORKER, that 490 "subs" were received during the first week, and it is expected within the next few weeks that 1,000 "subs" per week will be received. The drive will be kept up as long as it brings results. New York comrades were not among those to respond to the drive, and Comrade Allison urged that action be taken.

The Branch representatives reported as follows:

Harlem-Jewish: Out of a meeting of 35, 25 "subs" were obtained. Advised that speakers be sent to branches to talk about The Worker, in order to stimulate interest.

English-Downtown: Sold 14 20-week "subs." Shall make an effort to reach all branch members with these cards.

Spanish: Ready to co-operate with Worker Council.

Bronx-English: More than half of membership already subscribers. Many cards distributed. Good co-operation. Many newsstands in the Bronx are taking The Worker. Confident that paper can be placed on newsstands successfully.

Russian-Bronx: Elected five members to distribute Worker and Iskra simultaneously. Obtained several newsstands. Carried recommendation that each member subscribe to two copies of The Worker.

English, West Side. Obtained quite a goodly number of newsstands. However, these were forced to discontinue the sale of The Worker upon threat of violence by enemy forces. Excuse given for discontinuing to carry The Worker was "No demand." Representative pointed out that it is the duty of the membership to create a demand by calling attention to The Worker at Union meetings and among fellow-workers in shops. Representative also advised that when placing the publication on newsstands, comrades should request dealers to display at least one copy.

The recommendation that each member subscribe to two copies of the Worker was carried.

Yorkville-German: Successful in newsstand work. Anxious to co-operate with Worker Council in every way. Sold over 100 Workers at the last meeting.

Harlem-English: Successful on newsstands.

Yorkville-English: Many good possibilities of selling The Worker in this section as there are numerous union meetings held in the different labor halls located there.

Finnish Harlem: Willing to co-operate in every way.

English Astoria: One comrade willing to use car to distribute The Worker in Astoria. Branch desirous of co-operating in every other way with Worker Council.

Lithuanian Williamsburg: All English-reading members will subscribe. Two men elected for newsstand work.

One open-air meeting a week will be held for the purpose of selling 20-week "sub" cards and building up and boosting The Worker.

Motion made and carried that first meeting for that purpose be held Friday, July 28th, at 10th Street and Second Avenue, and that Dunne be the speaker. The comrades who volunteered to take care of this meeting are Laikin, Benjamin, Gold, Allison and Weinstone.

Another meeting was arranged for Thursday, August 3rd, at 110th Street and 5th Avenue. Comrades Zuckerman, Heimowitz, Golub, and Amir volunteered to take care of that meeting.

It was suggested, in reference to the question of how to increase the interest and attendance at conferences, that speakers be obtained to discuss with the comrades vital issues of the day, as related to a revolutionary organ of the working class, that special letters be sent to branches reporting delinquencies, that publicity be given to these conferences in the party organs, and that delegates secure assistants in order to assure efficiency in getting the work done. Recommendations accepted.

The next conference of the Worker Council will be held Friday, August 4th, in the John Reed Garden, 208 East 12th Street, New York City. —Bertha Kuppersmith, Secretary.

All-American Federation

By Y. RAMIREZ

American workers hear of the Pan-American Federation of Labor only at rare intervals. When they do hear of it they do not learn much about it. Most members of the A. F. of L. are not even aware that the A. F. of L. pays all its bills. There are some vague references to international solidarity, but just what the Pan-American Federation of Labor is doing and whether or not it has been able to win the confidence of the Latin-American masses are things about which Mr. Gompers prefers not to speak.

Purpose of Organization

The idea of a Pan-American Federation of Labor is a big one. It implies the uniting of the toiling masses throughout the length and breadth of the western hemisphere in a single great federation for the struggle against wage slavery. Such an organization could develop a truly formidable force. There is a solid economic basis for it. The workers of North, South and Central America have real interests in common, even aside from their general community of interest in the world proletarian movement. The United States is no longer simply a nation; it is an empire, and the whole of Latin America is gradually falling under its control. There is but one national capitalism with which the workers on this side of the Atlantic have to contend, and that is American capitalism. A single net of exploitation is enveloping them; the same problems are confronting them forcing them to seek a closer association among themselves.

Workers Fail to Perceive

In the United States the workers do not perceive this yet. It is not clear to them that Wall Street gathers strength from its investment in Latin America to resist the demands of the workers here. They do not understand where the bosses manage to get their raw material when there is a strike on in this country. They do not realize how many scabs are shipped regularly back and forth across the Mexican border, as the needs of the exploiters may require. They do not know about the system of engancho, whereby Cuban workers are induced to sign contracts that they cannot read and are brought into the United States in gangs to work in scab industries. Latin America seems strange and far away, while the wolf of Wall Street is so near. It is hard for us to appreciate that Wall Street is an All-American problem.

The workers of Latin America do realize it. They have reason to. In many cases they work for American concerns, often directly under Yankee supervisors. When a Mexican goes on strike it may be against Doheny, or Standard Oil, or the Copper Trust, or the Harvester Trust. Cuban workers labor to wrest a living wage from the United States Shipping Board, the American Tobacco Company, the Sugar Trust. Letters from Argentina tell of the bitter struggles in the meat packing industry, where Swift and Armour have more than $35,000,000 invested. In Central America, as in the islands of the Carribean, there is the United Fruit Company—and the banks.

Controlled by U. S. Banks

Oh the banks! How many little revolutions have they made and frustrated in Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica! ("The Republic of Brown Bros" they call Nicaragua.) Who does not know of the exploits of the National City Bank in Haiti and Santo Domingo? In Peru the customs houses are under the "supervision" of American bankers. Bolivia is being looted to cover a loan of $24,000,000 recently floated by a New York syndicate. American banking capital has long dominated Mexico, where Americans own more than two-thirds of the national wealth, and now the committee of bankers headed by Mr Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co. (in which American capital prevails) has obliged Finance Minister De La Huerta to sign an agreement handing over the National Railways of Mexico to private capital.

Banking capital is not merely Brown Bros., nor the National City Bank, nor even J. P. Morgan & Co. It takes in all of these and much more. Banking capital exerts its influence in Latin America, as in the United States, not only directly through established banks, but also indirectly, through control over funds invested in industry. It is the great unifying force that binds all capitalism together in a single feudal hierarchy dominated by one group of money-lords. Banking capital, señores, is Wall Street.

Wall Street Reaching Out

Wall Street is reaching out its hands for all of Latin America. Those countries that have not yet been subjected economically are sure to go the way of the others. Wall Street has millions of eager dollars crying out for investment and those dollars are finding their way into all the Latin American fields of exploitation. Before the war, American investments in Argentina were negligible; by the end of 1920 they had invested in Argentina government and municipal securities alone, and at the present moment a loan of 06,475,000 gold pesos is pending.

In Mexico, Cuba, Central America, the Carribeans, and a substantial part of South America the process of penetration has already gone so far that there is no hope for independent economic development. Wall Street is the omnipresent exploiter of the Western world, grinding down American and Latin American workers with equal impartiality; playing off one against the other, just as the capitalists at home play off one section of the workers against another. The Latin-American masses know this and feel it.

There is one other thing that the Latin-American masses know better than we do. They know that the United States Government is owned, controlled and administered by American capitalism, that is Wall Street. Again experience has been their teacher. It was the menace of American battleships in Havana harbor that broke the Cuban general strike a little more than a year ago. (Inside the United States the militia generally performs such functions—but we have a navy too.) The menace of those battleships is back of General Crowder at this minute as he sits in Havana, ordering Cabinet changes and obliging the Cuban Government, against the expressed will of both houses of the national legislature, to accept a $50,000,000 loan from American bankers.

American marines maintain "law and order" in Central America and the Carribeans. The Government at Washington holds out its hands to Juan Vicente Gomez, the brutal dictator of Venezuela, whose subservience to American capital apparently makes his many crimes against the liberty of his people unimportant. Time and again we have seen that in the systematic looting of Mexico, Wall Street is supported by a State Department that does not hesitate to resort to armed intervention when occasion may demand.

United Under Single Tyranny

Cuba and Panama are just as truly colonies of the United States as is Porto Rico. Haiti, Santo Domingo and Nicaragua are under military occupation. Honduras, Guatemala, Costa Rica, Venezuela, Colombia and in an increasing degree Peru are American satrapies. Mexico has struggled gallantly in the past to preserve her national identity but she has had to succumb. And the American empire pushes steadily southward. So we all stand together, united under a single tyranny and a single capitalist machine.

Against the common enemy the working masses of Latin America are ready to fight shoulder to shoulder with us. They have indicated it time and again in innumerable demonstrations of solidarity. With the United States leading, a powerful Pan-American Federation of Labor could be built up. There is not the slightest doubt of it.—But such an organization, to have the confidence of our Latin-American brothers would have to really voice the aspirations of all. Otherwise it could never be more than a name, without adherence and without effective existence.

Must Recognize Class Struggle

In the first place it would have to recognize the fact of the Class Struggle. Not by any strength of the imagination can the Latin-American workers be brought to believe that their interests are identical with those of the capitalists who are exploiting them. Secondly, it would have to act along the lines suggested by the Class Struggle, not only against the capitalists but against their governmental power. It would have to take a resolute stand against American imperialism, systematically showing up everything that Wall Street and Washington are doing in Latin America, and preparing the workers for the idea of organized proletarian resistance.

Acid Test of Sincerity

The fight against imperialism must be a real fight. Unsupported expressions of abstract solidarity only make our Latin-American comrades suspicious. They have had their fill of American labor patrioteers who feel it their duty to rush to the defence of the American flag in any critical situation. With United States troops actually on Latin American territory, the fight against imperialism becomes an acid test of the sincerity and class consciousness of the organized workers of this country. Our own interests support the position of Latin America in this matter, for the stronger American capitalism is allowed to make itself, the harder will it be for the American working class to overthrow. Other important bases for federation would be anti-scab action, international strike agreements and a system of interchangeable union cards.

Does the present "Pan-American Federation of Labor" meet these requirements? Obviously it does not. In a later issue the author will try to show why it does not and what can be done to vitalize it and make of it a real bulwark against capitalism in the Americas.

Communists in the Labor Unions

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE

There are certain individuals who, because of a disposition for study and leisure to indulge it, have acquired more than the average knowledge concerning the history of social development, the struggles of the exploited masses and the revolutionary nature of the conflict that rages in society.

Equipped with this knowledge they feel that they hold the key to all the problems that bedevil the workers and they are very impatient with the mob which continues to butt its head against a stone wall and apparently refuse to see that most of its efforts are wasted.

It is because of the impatience of the so-called intellectual with the workers, his contempt for what he terms the petty nature of the [illegible] struggle for more bread and butter, that until recently almost all revolutionary political movements were of a sectarian character. The truth was in the possession of a few, they had the word and the light and they would not risk contamination; their trust was too sacred for that.

When the Russian revolution upset all the established theories of revolutionary tactics and demonstrated that just as important as unsullied intellectual purity was the participation in the every-day struggles of the working masses as the most active and skillful section of the organized workers, a striking change took place in all revolutionary movements.

The New Humility

Intellectuals began to manifest a humility that was in striking contrast to their former lofty disdain for those who had not received the revelations and consequently could not quote verbatim from the revolutionary classics; in the unions now the theoreticians meet the workers to whom they formerly talked from outside and they appear to think that in so doing they are carrying out both the letter and the spirit of the slogan "Go to the masses."

The great mass of mankind, however, does not learn by listening to and analyzing speeches no matter how many truths they may embody, nor by reading literature no matter how ably written and how timely.

The mass of workers especially learns only by experience, by the constant impact of the thousands of bitter facts connected with their daily tasks of earning a precarious livelihood. Those who aspire to leadership in the class struggle will find that the workers will judge them by their deeds rather than by their words. If they can frame policies that meet the immediate needs of the workers in the organizations of the workers they will automatically acquire—indeed, it will be thrust upon them—leadership and the responsibility that goes with leadership.

Theory Not Enough

Being theoretically sound it should be easy for Communists to convince the workers of their right to responsibility. They know and understand the real basis of the conflict; understanding the mechanism of the social system they can predict, in a large measure, the outcome of the various struggles in which the workers are forced to engage from time to time. They cannot, however, depend upon their theoretical soundness alone to win the workers because few workers have the time and many have not the mental capacity to make decisions by pure reasoning. To those who fight and get results will leadership go and to no others.

Good union men who are Communists will have little difficulty in extending the influence of the party because the American worker, in forming an opinion of movements, attaches much importance to the individuals who represent them. A Communist who can give cards and spades to Marx and beat him hands down, but who makes grave mistakes in the union can do the party more harm at the present stage of its development than all the attacks of the reactionaries.

Learn from the Enemy

Just as the employers marshal their best tacticians for the war upon the workers in the industries so must the Communists train their fighters for the work on the industrial field. Into the party must be brought the best brains and courage of the labor movement; the party workers who have special ability for industrial work must be trained to skill and efficiency. Theory and practice must be combined to build a machine that can withstand all the attacks from the actual enemies of the labor movement and those whose lack of understanding lends aid and assistance to the enemy.

The workers must be made to see that Communists do not seek strategic positions merely because they desire to hold and wield power but because they can serve the interests of the working class better than those who see in the labor movement only an opportunity for personal advancement.

Work all the Time

There is no magic in the word Communism that will cause the workers to rally to its standard. The service that the Communists render to the labor movement will be the yardstick by which the workers will measure the value of the Communist Party, and it is that alone that will determine its influence in the class struggle in the United States.

Communists have a year-around task; they do not come out only at election time and appeal to the workers for votes but their work must be more intensive every day than were the election campaigns of the Socialist Party in the old days.

It is for this reason that the activities of Communists assume more importance from the standpoint of the individual member than those of other organizations calling themselves revolutionary. It is upon the activity of the membership and the value of its activities to the labor movement that the party is judged. Inactivity is inexcusable and is worse than making mistakes; we can learn from our mistakes, but from inactivity we cannot even learn. The criticism of our opponents, their pleasure at our mistakes, must be taken as incidents in the struggle.

Different Types of Workers

All Communists are not good theoreticians nor are all good practical workers; success cannot come if positions of responsibility are filled in haphazard fashion. There are some gifted comrades who combine these qualities, but they are few and far between and the supply will always be small. Just now it is more than ever important that workers should be assigned tasks for which they are fitted, but to do this is particularly difficult when theorists want to be down in the daily struggles and practical workers want to write theses.

The mistakes made so far have largely been due to the selection of workers who were inexperienced in the particular field to which they were assigned, the many spheres of party activity require large numbers of specialists that cannot always be secured and makeshift selections have to be made. Time is the remedy for this condition which could only occur in a party that is trying to do something.

Conclusions

All this is by way of saying that Communists must take the labor movement for what it is and not for what is should be or what they would like it to be, intellectual egotism is out of place in the labor movement, and in all probability our past mistakes will do much to make us realize that in the unions there is no protecting halo around the head of Communists which makes them immune from the penalty of mistakes.

In the unions a Communist is only a union man, and the unions will be communist in sympathy only insofar as communist policy, as carried out by the workers of their unions, fits in with the needs of the organized masses.

Miners Ask Suspension Be Made Real Strike

POTTSVILLE, Pa.—Local 1954, U. M. W. of A., Minersville, Pa., at a meeting held recently at Mine Workers' Hall, adopted the following resolution:

Whereas, The miners have been kept in continuous enforced idleness for the past three months, and in spite of this fact 99½ per cent voted in favor of a general coal strike against the exploiting coal barons who are determined to reduce wages to a degree far below a decent standard of living, and

Whereas, The union officials rejoiced in the fact that the miners thus displayed their patience and submission to their so-called "chiefs" by declaring themselves in favor of a strike in spite of their present ordeal, and

Whereas, The general scale committee of the U. M. W. of A., in whose hands is placed the matter of either sending the miners back to work or keeping them in further unemployment, has failed to report anything as yet, and Men of his calibre are needed in the revolutionary movement and every effort should be made to take his case up to the Supreme Court of the United States. The attorneys are already working on the case, but unless we get the necessary funds it will be impossible to go on.

Harry Winitsky's case is up before the Appellate Division. He is out on bail now. After almost two years of jail, his spirit is untouched and he is as much of a fighter for the freedom of the workers as he ever was. In this time of open shop campaigns, enforced strikes, lockouts, reduction of wages, etc., he is needed in the ranks of the workers, a fact which the class-conscious element in their midst is bound to recognize and therefore do all in their power to help secure his release.

Comrade C. E. Ruthenberg will speak on the United Front at July 30th picnic of Local Greater New York, Workers Party of America which will be held at Dickert's Park 018 Boston Road.

Comrade Ruthenberg has made this his subject at picnics at which he spoke all over the country, and they have been great successes.

Other features will be—

Mass Singing—singing by the German chorus, the Jewish "Seventh International" chorus and other language choruses of the International and other revolutionary songs.

Games—Comrade Schafron, who is noted for his excellent work in arranging games will take charge of this feature of the picnic. There will be the sack race, the potato races, the three-legged race, watermelon contest and others for men, women and children.

Other Features—Dancing, bowling, buffet, etc.

Police Interfere with Rochester, N. Y. Meetin

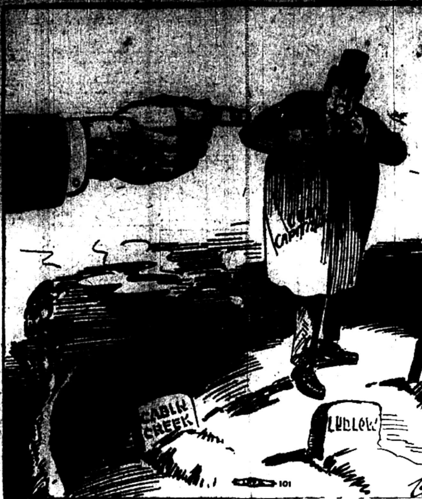
Two policemen attempted to stop a Rochester, N. Y., street meeting which was being held by the Workers Party with M. R. Salzman, who is touring District 2 as the speaker. Previous to the meeting the comrades secured a verbal permit from the chief of police.

Salzman was in the midst of a talk in which he pointed out to the workers in the audience the actions of the government in the coal and railroad strikes. He showed that all of the forces of the government were being used against the workers in the strike. He told of the powers of the government and how they were being used against the workers at all times because the capitalists controlled the government. It was at this point that the defendant of "law and order" attempted to stop the meeting. He must have feared the audience of over two hundred workers who saw the truth of what Comrade Salzman pointed out, for he let us continue the meeting after some of the workers in the audience asked, "What are you trying to muzzle him for?"

The speaker continued his talk and showed that the only way for the workers to put an end to the miserable conditions under which the workers are compelled to live was to overthrow capitalism and for the workers to establish in its place a government of Workers' Councils.

A collection of $6.50 was taken up and $1.55 worth of literature was sold.

TEN WORKERS SHOULD READ THIS COPY OF THE WORKER; KEEP IT IN CIRCULATION



The American Federation of Labor and Our Task

By A. B.

There is no doubt that the most important organized force of the workers of the United States is the American Federation of Labor. Its construction is a rather loose grouping of international unions each of them having its own rules and discipline.

The A. F. of L. found its beginning in the upper layer of the working class of this country, that is, it originated among the skilled workers, and on the basis of craft interests. Even today the dominating element in the Federation is skilled labor. Tho capital has combined into gigantic trusts and corporations during the last few decades and the craft interests of the workers have been swept away largely, the Federation, as such, retains its original form and thus has become unable to effectively fight back the constant onslaughts of the ruling class.

On account of the craft form of its organization, unskilled labor has not been able to get the upper hand in the Federation. Hence the great masses of the common laborers are still outside of the organized ranks and are left at the mercy of the well-organized exploiters.

Magic of Conferences

At the head of the Federation stands the well-world-known reactionary and faithful labor lieutenant of the capitalist class, Samuel Gompers.

At the last convention, Gompers again reiterated his policy of collaboration with the employers by stating that all we ask from the employers is to sit with us around the same table and talk things over. "We want conferences," is the final word of this bourgeois lieutenant. The capitalists are crushing the organized workers with courts, rifles and machine guns. Gompers repeats the same old story about "sitting around the table"!

Only Thing in Sight

In spite of all its shortcomings, the A. F. of L. was, is and for quite a long time to come will remain as the organized power of the working class in this country. All the desperate efforts of various elements to smash it from the outside have miserably failed. The destructionists themselves have been destroyed and the Federation still remains as a factor in the labor movement of this country tho its leadership is most reactionary and corrupt. Only the American Communists, under the guidance of the tactics of the Third International, have begun to seriously consider this latent organized power of the workers and are struggling to awaken it from within, to make it a fighting organ against the bourgeoisie.

The results of these efforts are very small as yet, but they are beginning to appear. One after another unit of the Federation begins to rise against the reactionary policies of Gompers' machine.

Cincinnati Convention

The Cincinnati Convention was held at a most critical moment for the labor movement of America. Unemployment is rampant; about 00,000 textile workers have been fighting a deadly battle with their enemy for the last five months; about 600,000 miners were heroically holding their line against the onslaught of the coal barons, and the railroad workers were on the point of a national strike. On the other hand, together with the growing unrest of the workers, capitalist dictatorship becomes more and more cruel, more and more despotic and terroristic; a general offensive against the labor organizations is the order of the day. On the eve of the convention the U. S. Supreme Court handed down the decision in the Coronado coal case which put the unions at the mercy of the employers. This serious situation demanded something more than a negative policy of defense.

Do-Nothing Policy

What plans did the convention lay down for the Federation with which to meet the perennial problem of unemployment? None! In what way did it decide to help win the textile strike? Coal strike? None, except that it passed resolutions of "sympathy" and "encouragement." What was done to meet the railroad strike issue? Nothing! What about the notorious decision of the Supreme Court? Did the convention decide to call upon all labor organizations to use their mass power to smash the conspiracy of the ruling class against the unions? Nothing of the kind. After a long and painful listening to the report of the gang of lawyers on this question the convention put itself on record to carry on an agitation for an amendment to be passed by Congress prohibiting the enactment of any law which would deny the right for workers to organize, to deal collectively or to strike.

First of all, even if such an amendment could be passed it does not mean that the employers would not be able to destroy the organization after it has been organized. To-day the workers have a right to organize, to deal collectively or to strike. They are allowed these rights only as long as they do not use them to defend their own interests. As soon as they begin to properly use their organizations to fight back the attacks of the masters these rights vanish like a drop of water on a red hot stove. But let us grant that this amendment will be beneficial to us. It was admitted by the reactionaries themselves that it will take at least 20 years to get such an amendment passed.

Even the agitation for this amendment will not be carried under the banner of workers' independent political action, but thru Gompers' reactionary policy, "Reward your friends and defeat your enemies," which means to continue to support both the Democratic and Republican parties.

Therefore, the labor organization having over three million members did not give a concrete answer to any of the questions. Absolute bankruptcy!

Loss of Membership

Another sad fact has been disclosed by the convention concerning the status of the Federation. It was reported that the Federation had lost 740,893 members during the last year, while during the two years it had lost 915,105 members. (In 1920 the Federation had 4,000,000 members, while this year it has only 3,165,635.) It shows that under the leadership of the present administration the Federation is not only not gaining membership, but it is losing with such rapidity that it threatens the very existence of the organization. We mention here only a few of the international unions whose membership has tragically declined.

The United Textile Workers of America in 1920 had 104,900 members, now they have only 80,000. The formation of the Amalgamated Textile Workers of America and the One Big Union have not helped the textile situation. In place of one organization, to-day we have three of them, every one of them very weak and fighting among themselves. This fact alone should convince every class-conscious worker what a crime it is to create a new union alongside of one already in existence. This is the result of what we call "tactics of dual unionism."

The International Seamen's Union last year had 103,300, now it has only 49,200.

The Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workers' Union in 1919 had 63,300, now it has 20,000.

The Oil Field and Gas Well Workers' Federation had 25,000 in 1921, now—6,100.

Unorganized Steel Workers

The Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers had 31,500 in 1919, now 16,000. Let us stop here for a moment! It may be safely said that iron and steel workers are the most exploited and oppressed stratum of the working class of this country. They are almost all unskilled workers. Their work is hell. As statistics show, they are practically unorganized.

This gigantic army of absolute wage slaves went on strike in 1919 and heroically battled the Steel Trust. Finally they were crushed, crushed with rifles and machine guns and thanks especially to the leaders of the coal miners, who betrayed the fighting and bleeding steel slaves. And as soon as the strike was over it seems no one was interested in organizing them. Gompers' machine was busy spreading poisononus propaganda among its membership about the affairs in Soviet Russia, but it would not even lift its finger to carry on the intensive and extensive organization work among these hundreds of thousands of exploited workers.

Suicidal Policies

In brief, we say: The present policies of the A. F. of L. are rapidly leading it to its grave. Over this fact only the American bourgeoisie, their tool, Samuel Gompers and the misled I. W. W.-ists can rejoice.

The American communists and all other militants take this question very seriously and see in it only a great blow to the labor movement of this country.

They know that it is their supreme duty to stop this disintegration and save the Federation from destruction. It is their task to make the Federation a great organ of the class struggle.

Intensive Work Necessary.

Only thru our intensive work within the Federation will we be able to smash its present reactionary machine, save it from disintegration and disruption and make a fighting organ of the workers. The Cincinnati Convention showed the necessity of such work.

Of course, it is not an easy task. The reactionaries will use every imaginable means to hamper our efforts. They will not hesitate to employ splitting tactics in order to isolate us from the masses. We repeat, it is a hard task. But it must be done. Every effort for proletarian revolution, for communism is a hard task, full of dangers and sacrifices. Mistakes will be made also, but only those do not make mistakes, who do not work. As our work develops we learn more and more how to get at the root of the problems and how to solve them.

Let us get to work of making the Federation a real organ of the class struggle.

Veterans of World War Back F.S.R.

At its national convention, at Minneapolis, the World War Veterans passed the following resolution endorsing the Friends of Soviet Russia:

"We, the World War Veterans, in regular convention assembled, having heard the appeal for help that was sent out from Soviet Russia, calling upon the workers of the World to stand behind the workers in Soviet Russia, to help fight the famine that is endangering the lives of millions of workers in the first workers' republic that was ever established in the world;

"And whereas, the Friends of Soviet Russia being a famine relief organization, organized last August, and composed of the most progressive workers in the United States, and has the endorsement of all the most progressive working class organizations and the affiliations of thousands of labor unions;

"And whereas, the Friends of Soviet Russia is the only relief organization that collects famine relief without any conditions or restrictions from Soviet Russia;

"And whereas, this organization has collected over $1,000,000 in food, clothing and medical supplies, and sent them direct to Soviet Russia;

"And whereas, this organization needs the support of all the workers in the United States, in order to save the lives of our unfortunate brothers and soldier workers in Soviet Russia,

"And whereas, thousands of labor unions have lined up their forces behind this organization in order to strengthen and show their solidarity to the workers in Soviet Russia,

"And whereas, the World War Veterans is an organization fighting the battle for the soldier workers in their struggle against the autocratic forces of the world, and for the emancipation of the working class throughout the world;

"Therefore, Be It Resolved, that we appeal to all posts of the World War Veterans throughout the United States and Canada, and to the Soldier Workers throughout the world to give their support both morally and financially to the Friends of Soviet Russia, in their gigantic and heroic efforts in saving the lives of these millions of workers of Soviet Russia."

Women's Division Activities

The Women's Section of the FSR is very active. The branch in Everett, Wash., has been especially energetic. Los Angeles reports the following activities.

"We have several hundred children's dresses and coveralls cut and being made up by our girls. We gave an indoors picnic last Saturday and I think that we'll clear over $100. We are also giving an outing. With the proceeds we are buying materials, gingham and flannel and are making children's dresses and coveralls. We have organized a few shops where these clothes are made."

Stamps from Soviet Russia

We have received a number of rare stamps and also those of restricted issue, among them being some of the Kerensky regime and the Denikin issue; also several issues of famine stamps.

These stamps will be very valuable in times to come and will be very much sought after.

The Friends of Soviet Russia can procure a limited number for stamp collectors and others interested. All the proceeds from the sale of these stamps are to be used for famine relief and industrial and agricultural reconstruction.

The steamship "Rockaway Park" sailed for Reval carrying 32 bales weighing 6½ tons.

Friends of Soviet Russia has collected to date $720,000, and $450,000 in clothing, food, medicines and tools.

tended to 10 or 12 hours if capitalist reconstruction is to succeed.

From the capitalist standpoint this is the only way. He who desires capitalist reconstruction must desire the death of millions of workers who have become superfluous and must also be ready to have the survivors submit to such working conditions as prevailed at the beginning of the capitalist system.

The ruling class of England wishes to distribute the burden of the war and of the peace equally over the world, because this would be most favorable for its rulers and its capitalist reconstruction.

The ruling class of France threatens new wars to squeeze the cost of the world war from the bankrupt conquered countries. It hopes in this manner best to maintain and extend its power. The American bourgeoisie waits as spectator for the moment when the mad dervish dance of the European peoples rushing against one another to destruction has arrived at such pitch that their seizure by American Capital promises a profitable substitute for lost profits.

In the vanquished countries the bourgeoisie is reconciled with the victors; exacts tributes for these and profit for itself. The capitalists in every single country, however, fight among one another for the greatest share of exploitation.

That is the Peace Treaty of Versailles!

The working class in every country is the object and the victim of the exploitation of the possessing class and is delivered over to the violence of its government.

This is possible thanks to the leaders of the pre-war labor movement and the disinclination for fight on the part of the proletariat. The treachery of the trade union bureaucracy, and of the leaders of the Second International has not sufficed to make the majority of the working class aware that they must rid themselves of these leaders if they are to free themselves from capitalist suppression and exploitation.

The Communists, who during the war began to organize an intense struggle against it, who overthrew the Czar and the bourgeoisie in Russia, and who in various western European countries fought at the head of the elementary revolutionary struggles of the proletariat, were not strong enough to conquer the bourgeoisie in Western Europe, as the latter had for their best supporters the leaders of the Second International and the trade union bureaucracy of the Second and 2½ Internationals.

The Communist International has done everything in its power to lead and organize the fight against the bourgeoisie. If this fight has not been victorious it is because the majority of the proletariat has not yet decided to follow the Red Flag without hesitation.

The Communist International has [illegible] Communist International has appealed to the workers of all countries to close their ranks against the employers' offensive, in spite of all differences of opinion as to the struggle for power by the proletariat. The Communist International laid aside all thoughts of the past and invited the leaders of the Second and 2½ Internationals as well as the Amsterdam International to confer and act in common in building the united front.

The representatives of the Second International have sabotaged the calling of the World Congress of the militant workers of all countries. The representatives of the 2½ International have helped them to do this. The trade union bureaucrats of the Amsterdam International paid no attention to the invitation sent them.

The representatives of the Second International threatened at the first session of the Berlin Conference of the three Internationals to break off negotiations, in case the Communist International were to raise the slogan of the fight against the Treaty of Versailles. Instead of organizing the fight against the bourgeoisie, they organized the fight against the Workers' and Peasants' Power of Russia. They ranged themselves with the counter-revolution, which with arms and with das[illegible] [illegible] in order to facilitate the unity of front of the world proletariat. In spite of all these concessions, the Second International with the aid of the representatives of the 2½ International broke up the Commission of Nine.

In Germany, the most active section of the counter-revolution is gathering to overthrow the coalition government of the petty bourgeoisie, to take over the government power itself and, if possible, with the aid of a part of the Entente bourgeoisie to raise anew the monarchy and clear all militant workers out of the way in a new St. Bartholmew's Eve.

In France Poincaré is preparing new military adventures against Germany and Soviet Russia.

In Bulgaria, Wrangel's parasitical White Guard bands are being organized at the behest of France. In Poland and Roumania the bandits are preparing for new pillaging raids against Soviet Russia.

In the Scandinavian countries, in the other neutral countries and in Czecho-Slovakia, the proletariat, hard hit by the crisis, has been defeated in its wage fights, in the fights for its existence.

In England and in America, economic life cannot be resuscitated. The English bourgeoisie does not [illegible] keeping down the workers and [illegible] in its own country, but is conducting a bloody civil war against revolutionary Ireland, Egypt and India.

There is only one way out of all this misery. It is the united front of the proletariat, whose very existence is threatened, against the capitalist peace which means the destruction of the working class. The workers must unite, in spite of the sabotage of their treacherous leaders, in the common fight against the strengthening of the counter-revolution, against the employers' offensive, against wage reductions and lengthening of working hours. This fight, which in the beginning must be for the daily needs of the proletariat united in the common fight.

Three years after the signing of the Versailles Treaty we call on the world proletariat once again, to close their ranks nationally and internationally against the "Robber Peace of Versailles," as we called on them to fight against it on the 28th of June, 1919.

Long live the common fight against the common oppressor!

Down with the Peace Treaty of Versailles!

Down with counter-revolution in every country!

Down with the bourgeois governments!

Long live the Workers' Government!

The Executive Committee of the Communist International.

Karl Radek Writes About the Hague Conference and Its "Bargains"

The unmistakable language of the Soviet Delegation finally convinced the English Government that Soviet Russia was neither Old Turkey, nor Old China. The English Government defends the sovereign right of the Soviet Powers to nationalize every sort of property, and it announces that any encroachment upon these rights is a contradiction to the conditions of Cannes.

The Paris Temps, the leading organ of French imperialism, answers that the sovereign right of every Government to nationalize is connected with the right of foreign capitalists to be indemnified for their nationalized property. If the existing Government has no means of paying these indemnities, then its sovereignty must bow to the money-bags.

Capitalist "Right"

We have here a classical example of capitalistic "right" in general whether it concerns a person, citizen or nation. "Where there is money there is right," announces the Paris Stock Exchange sheet. We shall not waste any time answering the capitalistic metaphysics of right with revolutionary metaphysics. Instead of discussing the differences between proletarian and capitalist "right," we will rather talk business, for we think that even the French capitalists are interested not so much in abstract right as in concrete interests.

Force Has Failed

It is true that at present the Soviet Government is not able to pay cash to the French capitalists for their offended innocence, even if such an act were motivated by the desire to be "just" in the capitalistic sense. But if we are unable to pay indemnities in cash, you gentlemen are unable to support your beautiful rights, your "holy" rights, by force. You have been sufficiently convinced of that.

You are able to support your claims only by means of a financial boycott. But in the first place, your financial boycott will not last forever, for if Russia is in need of foreign capital, foreign capital will not for the sake of past profits shut the door to future profits, and the English Government is right when in its memorandum, it points out that if no business relations are established with Soviet Russia in the name of the bourgeois governments, various capitalist groups will enter into business with it for the sake of concessions.

Secondly, Soviet Russia is an agricultural country. One or two good harvests, and its position will be strengthened; then it will make less concessions than it does today.

In such a case there is no capitalistic humanity which was offended by the proletarian revolution in Russia, whose legal point of view, as expressed in the memorandum of the 11th of May, the French Government simply seeks to reject and the English Government kindly to ignore (as befits noble lords). At the Hague the facts must be learned and practical conclusions drawn from them. And here is what the facts teach us.

What the Facts Are

In the first place, altho the Soviet Government possesses no bagfuls of gold, it will not agree to the restoration of property that was in the hands of foreign capitalists. The greater part of the Russian metal, coal and oil industries was in the hand of foreign capital. The restoration of such conditions would mean that the Russian Government would be left without coal, without iron and without oil, and that it would have to buy all these things. This would mean that the Russian Government would have to burden the Russian peasant with huge taxation. The return of the former foreign-owned industries to the foreign capitalists would destroy the industrial foundation of the Soviet Government, the basis which enables the Soviet Government to direct the economic development of Russia. It is useless to make demands which the opponent cannot satisfy if he is not to commit suicide. The enemies of Soviet Russia did it many a wrong, but it is not yet known that Russia intends to commit suicide. For this reason, it is better to drop all talk of restoration.

Restoration Impossible

Secondly, such a restoration is impossible because in many cases the property in question has either been destroyed or would be absolutely worthless to the owner. It is not rational from a technical point of view. So for example, the destruction of the property relations in the coal mines of the Don basin and of the oil industry in Baku, may be looked upon as a great technical step forward which may become a source of income that will lead to the improvement of the industries in question. For this reason, the demand that these be returned to their former foreign capitalist owners seems to be an act of stupidity or the game of banking interests that seek to buy out the rights of the former property owners in Russia and at the same time to negotiate with the Russian Government and get concessions from it favorable to their respective Stock Exchanges. That is why it is unpractical from an economic point of view even to speak of the return of this property.

"Rights" vs. Practical Questions

Thirdly, the question of indemnity as well as the question of debts are more questions of the possibilities and the paying capacity of the Russian Soviet Government in the future. If the experts of the capitalistic countries wanted to distinguish themselves from the diplomatic know-nothings who unfortunately so often speak in the name of these countries, then instead of wasting time in idle talk about property rights they would ask the Soviet Delegation, "What branches of industry does the Soviet Government intend to keep for itself and what other branches of industry it is ready to lease?" Secondly, they would ask the Soviet Delegation for the most favorable conditions upon which the former foreign property owners in Russia could receive their old undertakings on a concessionaire basis, if the Soviet Government were to decide to keep these in its own possession; or on what basis it would grant new concessions. It should be clear that the Soviet Government, being interested in the attraction of foreign capital, would not proceed to boycott the old owners who are already en rapport with their former activities. Thirdly, the experts would state on what conditions and to what extent the capitalist groups which they represent would be willing to furnish credit to the Soviet Government. If they really desire to work in Russia and not merely to receive "rights" which would become the object of speculation on the Stock Exchange, they will and must understand that even for their own benefit it is necessary to improve Russian transportation and the Russian financial apparatus.

Principles Will Not Change

Fourthly, in the question of debts we must use concrete language based upon concrete facts. Russia is financial bankrupt. A bankrupt always pays only a certain percentage of his debts, and he pays them not at once, but only after a certain time has passed during which his creditor helps him get on his feet, for otherwise the creditor, with all his „rights," would have about the same chance of getting a settlement as an ordinary corpse has of seeing his own ears by looking into the mirror. The Soviet Delegation is going to the Hague to speak business for the simple reason that it is a Delegation sent by a proletarian Government, and that it consists of Communists. It knows that it is useless to argue with capitalist representatives about principles. In Genoa it announced its principles while the capitalist representatives, instead of talking of their robber appetites also announced their principles. In the Hague, however, the Soviet Delegation will only talk business. The only question is whether the representatives of the capitalist world will display as much interest in business. Should it do so, however, it will be possible to strike a bargain without giving up principles.

Erie Road Recruiting Scabs Among Chinese Sailors on Ocean Ships

By HARRY GODFREY

(Federated Press Staff Correspond.)

NEW YORK.—With more railroad workers in this district joining the shop crafts strikers daily, the Erie Railroad has resorted to the use of Chinese coolies as strikebreakers in its Jersey City yards. Between 150 and 200 Chinese, recruited among unemployed seamen here and in other Atlantic coast ports, are working in the places of laborers who have quit in sympathy with the shopmen.

The strike in this section is progressing most favorably, according to John J. Dowd, chairman of the strike committee. He declared that of 443 foremen in the local yards, 251 have joined the strikers.

In addition, the Long Island railroad is feeling the pressure of the strike increasingly. Large numbers of electricians, boilermakers and other mechanics are quitting the Long Island power plant, and many skilled mechanics of the New York Central lines have joined the walkout.

Rail service in and out of New York, particularly commuting service, is beginning to show severe effects of the strike. Trains on the Long Island are uniformly late, and the Erie has been forced to cut down the number of trains now running.

District Two Speakers Arousing Enthusiasm

The speakers on tour for District No. 2 of the Workers Party are surely coming in contact with and arousing the spirit of the working masses in the states of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

Schenectady, N. Y., July 23, 1922.

Dear Comrade Lindgren:

Your New York speakers had a magical effect on our townspeople, as if they came from a far-away planet of the solar system.

For an hour and a half the crowd listened quietly to Comrade Mrs. Amter's sharp exposure of the capitalist system and her fine enthusiastic enunciation of our ideal society of the future.

Our good citizens, of course, are stoics, and they manifest this psychology especially when a collection is called for, but this time they even withheld all opposition and heckling. Comrade Amter's eloquence was too much for them, and some were moved to the extent of actually participating in the collection.

In a former meeting, arranged by you, a policeman tried to show his authority by disrupting the meeting, but at this meeting somehow or other the policeman stood way back in the crowd without a murmur of protest and was so short that he could hardly be noticed.

Did he become class-conscious after the first two meetings that were held here?

Yours with fraternal greetings,
Charles Hildebrand,

Communist Principles Explained in Statement on Expulsion of Fabre

NOTE.—One of the clearest statements issued by the Communist International on the duties and obligations of individual members and national organizations to the world party is contained in the declaration of the executive committee of the Comintern on the expulsion of Henri Fabre, of France, editor of the Journal du Peuple.

The Fabre case was investigated by a commission consisting of Trotzky, Bukharin, Jordanoff, Ambroghi and Brandler, and the decision was based to some extent upon the case of Paul Levi, of Germany, expelled by the Third Congress of the International, also an editor. The statement in full is as follows:

The Communist International is based upon principles clearly outlined by its Congress and its organization is based upon discipline approved by all its members.

Nobody is obliged to affiliate with the Communist International. This affiliation means giving up all individual interests for the sake of the common interest of the International, which is insolubly bound up with the interests of the world proletariat.

Harlem West Side Branch, N. Y., in Action

The Harlem West Side Branch of the Workers' Party of America is now organized and preparing to grapple with the problems facing it in the work among the colored workers of Harlem. At a meeting at Branch headquarters, 147 West 136th Street, the following comrades were elected as provisional officers of the Branch: Comrade Huiswoud, Organizer; Comrade Briggs, Recording and Financial Secretary; Comrade Pierre, Delegate to the City Central Committee; Comrade Silverman, Literature Agent; Comrades Moore, Campbell and McKay, elected to Propaganda and Educational Committee; Comrade Hirsch, elected F. S. R. Agent. Comrade Pierre was elected Fraternal Delegate to the City Convention, the Branch waiving its right to a regular delegate on the grounds that such a delegate would represent no one but himself in view of the fact that the Branch was just organized and the comrades had had no opportunity to discuss the questions that would come up at the convention.

It was decided that regular meetings would be held every second and fourth Fridays, at 8.30 P.M.

Comrade Jack Jampolsky presided, representing the Organization Committee. He suggested that the Branch immediately take up the work of raising its Headquarters Fund and reported that nearly one hundred dollars had been raised so far through the efforts of the Section Committee.

Demonstration for Rail Strikers in Williamsburg

All comrades and sympathizers who are going to the Workers Party picnic this coming Sunday, at Dickert's Park, should be at Empire Hall, Lorimer and Ten Eyck Sts., Brooklyn, at 9 a. m.

The trip to the picnic grounds will be made by trucks decorated with signs proclaiming our unity with the striking railroad workers. Make this a big demonstration. The Williamsburg comrades have prepared a few trucks to take care of the crowd. A minimum fare will be charged. Be sure to be there.

NOTICE

The tractor bought for Soviet Russia by the Rockaway branch of the F. S. R., is now on display at 73—19 Boulevard, Hammels. An open air meeting will take place July 29, Saturday evening, at Boulevard and 77th Street. Comrades are urged to help. An important branch meeting will take place Thursday evening, July 27, at 1 Rose Court, Beach 53rd, Edgemere.

Minutes of the C. C. C. Local Greater New York

Executive Secretary was absent because of other important party work. Comrade T. O'Flaherty acted for the Secretary.

Chairman —Comrade Rubin.

Recording Secretary —Comrade B. Israel.

Minutes of the previous meeting read and accepted.

Credentials of Delegates—Comrade Wilenkin seated as delegate—Bronx Russian Branch.

Communications —A protest was lodged by the Russian branch against the action of the Local Executive Committee in the S. P. and F. L. P. Conference. The Russian branch delegate was informed that the action was taken by the National Executive Committee.

Attention was called to the new leaflet issued by the National Office entitled "Hands Off, Uncle Sam" and the delegates were advised to urge their branches to purchase same and give them wide distribution.

Excerpts of City Executive Committee Minutes

Communication from the National Industrial Department advising that the Voice of Labor is putting out special editions on the railroad and miners' strikes and requesting that we purchase them for distribution.

Motion that we call this to the attention of the branches and that the City Central Committee determine how many to order and that we forward this communication to the Industrial Organizer for action.

Elections.—Arrangements in progress. Political Committee to meet on nominations of candidates.

Miners.—Up to the present time the Miners' Relief Committee has collected $2,700. Subscription lists printed and are ready for distribution. Circular letters sent to unions, also to branches. Complaint that the co-operation and enthusiasm should be better than it is. All arrangements made for Tag Day.

Open-Air Meetings.—Secretary reported arrangements being made one meeting per week in each section to be increased as it becomes better organized. Five platforms are being made for the branches.

Section Committee Report that reorganization is not being pushed at the present time awaiting the call to be sent out on the formation of campaign committees. This will give them a definite object to start on.

Industrial.—Industrial Organizer reported department being organized. Motion that sub-committee be elected to act with the Industrial Organizer as the Industrial Committee.

Motion that minutes and communications regarding industrial work to branches, etc., contain only routine matters or matters of a general character. Carried.

Picnic.—All arrangements being made. Comrades are urged to send in their money in advance as many expenses have to be paid now. Comrades not paying in advance are to be ready to settle up at the picnic.

Comrades are further requested to bring material for raffling.

Spanish Labor Protests

BOSTON.—The National Confederation of Labor in Spain, at its recent convention held in Zaragosa, adopted resolutions demanding a new trial for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, the two workingmen awaiting electrocution in Massachusetts on a murder charge.

The Spanish delegates to the forthcoming all-European conference in Berlin, called by the Italian Syndicalist Union, are also instructed to bring up the question of concerted action by international labor in behalf of the condemned Italians.

This information is conveyed in a letter from Zaragosa under date of June 20, just received here.

Discriminate Against Colored Labor

BRISBANE, Queensland.—The Queensland arbitration court has ruled that colored labor is not to be employed in the sugar refining mills of that state if white labor is available.

With Our Readers

FROM BUFFALO

The workers of Buffalo are giving strong support to the street car men who are out on strike demanding the recognition of their union. A few weeks ago the International Railway company decided to cut the pay of their men. The men voted to go out on strike. The I. R. C. then withdrew their decision, but the men decided to strike anyway and demand the recognition of their union. The company then called upon the city for protection and it was both, cheerfully and illegally given. It is against the law for any man who is sent by the government to protect property to put his foot on the property of the people he is supposed to protect. Nevertheless, the policemen are riding on street cars in violation of the law. It only proves what we radicals have been telling the workers all the time, that all laws are made in the interest of the capitalist class, and that they could disobey them whenever they desire, while, on the other hand if the workers just once disobey a minor law they are immediately persecuted.

Workers Solid in Strike

The strike has been a fierce one from the day it started and it is to be said to the credit of the workers of Buffalo not one man, woman or child has stepped onto a street car since the strike began. On the street cars there are either three, four, or five men. A SCAB motorman, a policeman and a company thug. Where there are four or five men those over three are paid by the company to ride in the cars in order to fool the people and make them think that people are riding in the cars. However, it does not work because the workers are wise to the company's game and they refuse to ride on cars manned by scabs. The workers have time and again stoned the street cars and during the night they placed obstacles in the way of the cars. The workers attack the scab cars every time they see one and even the sawed off shot guns in the hands of the police could not stop them. The state troopers composed of the worst gangsters in the state of New York were sent into the city. They patrol the city on horseback with guns in their hands and machine guns in their autos. The street car company tells the people thru the newspapers that there are many people riding in the street cars, but the workers know it is not true and they continue to support the strikers.

Permits for Y. M. C. A.

We asked for a permit to hold an open air meeting. The mayor told us that he would not let any one speak on the streets during the strike. Nevertheless the Y. M. C. A. held meetings in the middle class section in which they condemned the strikers. They will prevent our meetings now. They will call in the State Troops now but because of and in spite of them the workers of this country will in the very near future rise in their might and teach the master class of this country that the government belongs to those who are the overwhelming majority of the population and who do the useful work in this country—The Working Class of this country.

Summer Festival and Picnic of the Workers Party

The Summer Festival and Picnic of the Workers Party is rousing such great interest that many prominent men and women in the local say they will join the great crowds that will spend their day at Dickert's Park, 1018 Boston Road, next Sunday. Among those expected to attend are C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers Party, who will make a short address on the United Front, Rose Pastor Stokes, Michael Gold, Robert Minor, J. Louis Engdahl, Ludwig Lore, M. J. Olgin and Dr. Hendin.

The unique features of the picnic will be a Watermelon Contest and the Seventh International. Another attractive feature will be mass-singing by all the language choruses, in which the Seventh International will participate.

Lunch can be had at the Picnic. Tickets are 40 cents in advance, tickets at the gate, 50 cents. They can be purchased at:

The Local Office, 208 E. 12th St.; Volkszeitung, 15 Spruce St.; The Worker, 80 E. 11th St., Room 405; Laisve, 455 Grand St., Brooklyn; Workers Party Branch, 143 E. 103rd St.; Workers Party Branch, 67 Chrystie St.; Workers Party Branch, 1347 Boston Road; Workers Party Branch, 296 Sackman St., Brooklyn; Workers Party Branch, Lorimer and Ten Eyck Sts., Brooklyn; Finnish Hall, 764 40th St., Brooklyn; Hungarian Home, 350 E. 81st St.; Iskra, 208 E. 12th St.; Ellers, 11 E. 1st St.

SAN FRANCISCO.—It is stated that Charles M. Fickert, who sent Mooney and Billings to jail for life, is to run again for district attorney, and that his old backers, the bail bond brokers, are raising a campaign fund to insure his success. One man has pledged $10,000 to make Fickert district attorney again.

TEN WORKERS SHOULD READ THIS COPY OF THE WORKER; KEEP IT IN CIRCULATION

Worker "Sub" Campaign Has Readers' Enthusiastic Support

THE WORKER campaign for 25,000 new readers is making the most encouraging progress. New subscriptions by the handfuls reach THE WORKER office daily. The list of readers grows by leaps and bounds. Thousands of workers who have not heretofore read this paper now receive it weekly thru their own subscriptions and from their friends.

THE WORKER receives in every mail the most encouraging reports of the subscription campaign from every part of the country. We can say without question that this campaign is the most popular and the most successful in the history of this paper. Scores, and we are sure there will be hundreds of comrades and readers who have not taken active part in such work are now giving the most enthusiastic support to this campaign of placing THE WORKER into the hands of other workers.

Many readers are paying outright for the five or ten cards sent them, knowing that they can dispose of them easily within a few days. Others sell the cards immediately and remit at once. Others have sent in already for a second or even a third supply of cards having disposed of the first so readily.

From every part of the country the readers express the same encouraging sentiment—that the 20 week WORKER sub cards sell as fast as they are offered to the workers. Even in strike regions where miners and other workers have been on strike for many months the workers find it necessary to subscribe for THE WORKER. From their slender means, in some cases such being strike relief funds, they take a 50 cent piece and purchase a sub card. This is an indication of the popularity of THE WORKER among the militant workers who are now making a standing fight against the bosses. It is a tribute to the value of this paper in these workers' fights.

A few notes from our readers concerning this campaign appear in another column of this issue. We hope you will read them. And, if you are one of those who have not yet sold your cards, or paid in advance for them, or ordered a bundle to sell on your job—we hope these letters will inspire you to DO WHAT OTHERS ARE DOING—making this subscription campaign a huge success.

This is THE WORKER readers' campaign. We in the office cannot make it. Its success depends solely upon the efforts of the readers and Workers Party members. If it succeeds it will be due to your efforts. If it fails it will be due to the inactivity of our readers. But it will not fail. It has already, in the first days, secured the unqualified support of hundreds of comrades. Add to this support your own. Give this campaign your enthusiasm, your efforts. Sell the subscription cards sent you. Order more. Get every worker in your shop, on your job, in your union to subscribe. THIS will make the campaign successful.

"Worker" Makes Big Hit with Australian Comrades

"The Communist," official organ of the United Communist Party of Australia, says it is now receiving "The Worker" regularly and has the following to say about it:

"The Worker," the official organ of the Workers' Party of America is now arriving regularly. This paper used to be "The Toiler," and was taken over by the Workers Party when it was formed last Christmas in New York. It is one of the best Communist papers we have seen, and any Communist here who would like to keep in touch with the American movement should become a regular reader.

The last issue contains the announcement of the release of Ben Gitlow, Ruthenberg, and Ferguson from Auburn and Sing Sing prisons, where they have been in goal since 1919 for being Communists. "The Worker" is a large six page paper now, well set out, and attempts to cover the whole position of Communist activities, not only in America, but in Europe. The last issues contain full accounts of the American miners' strike.

CALGARY, Alta.—That no further coal mines be opened in Alberta until wider markets have been secured and that mines failing to pay wages consistent with Canadian living standards be suspended, is the burden of a resolution adopted by the Alberta Federation of Labor.

THE SUBSCRIPTION RECORD TELLS US—

That the first week after we sent subscription cards to our readers to sell, FOUR HUNDRED AND NINETY were returned filled out with the names of new readers.

What will the next week show?

It depends on you.

Fordson Tractors Will Tour City in Tool Drive

Responding to the urgent appeal from the Russian workers for help in reconstructing Russian industry the Friends of Soviet Russia have started a Tool Drive all over the country. In New York City the drive will get under way July 24 and continue until August 9th.

During these two weeks three Fordson tractors, purchased by the F. S. R., will travel all over the city, stopping in various places so that the public may inspect them. Big meetings will be held on street corners and in public places and prominent speakers will address the crowds on industrial reconstruction in Russia.

The object of the Tool Drive is to supply the workers and peasants of Russia with tools and machinery which will enable them to overcome the threatening danger of famine. The tractors, which are used extensively in agricultural production in the United States, will give the Russian workers all the advantages and benefits of American industrial technique, making possible a steadily increasing supply of food for the famished millions in starving Russia.

The very basis of modern industrial production is machinery. Without it no economic reconstruction is possible. To build up a real Workers' Republic, tools and machinery are indispensable. The duty of class-conscious workers is to supply their struggling brothers and sisters in Russia with the necessary equipment. Contributions for the purchase of tools should be sent to the Friends of Soviet Russia, 208 East 12th Street.

CONVENTION NOTICE

All delegates to the convention of District No. 2 of the Workers Party of America are requested to report promptly at 2 o'clock on Saturday, July 29, at the Labor Temple, 243 E. 84th St.

All central committees or unaffiliated branches who have not as yet paid for their special convention assessment stamps are requested to do so before the opening of the convention.

Berry Picking in Oregon

PORTLAND, Ore.—Berry picking is in full swing. A good family man with 13 children helping can earn as high as $2.75 a day if he exercises strict economy and they all pick from sunrise to sunset.

Sharp, of the Fancy Leather Goods Union, to Tour District No. 2

Peter C. Sharp will be the fourth speaker to be toured by District No. 2 of the Workers' Party.

He is a member of the executive board of the Fancy Leather Goods Workers' Union and has been an active participant in the organized labor movement in New York.

His subject will be "The Industrial Crisis," a subject that he is familiar with and can handle with exceptional skill.

He will speak on the following dates:

August 5, New London, Conn.; 6, Norwich; 7, Rockville; 8, Collinsville; 9, Hartford; 10, New Britain; 11, Meriden; 12, New Haven; 13 and 14, Waterbury; 15, Ansonia; 16, Bridgeport; 17, Norwalk; 18, Stamford; 19, Albany, N. J.; 20, Passaic, 21, Newark; 22, Linden; 23, Elizabeth; 24, Stelton; 25, Perth Amboy.

Workers Party Athletics

By Kalle Aronen, Secretary of the Finnish Athletic League.

As we workers have an Athletic International, which brings together workers' athletic organizations all over the world, it is absolutely necessary to organize an Athletic League in the Workers' Party. This is the only way to get into the Workers' Athletic International. Of the organizations that are now in the Workers' Party a great many have athletic organizations such as football, tennis, baseball, boxing, wrestling clubs, etc., which are working without united action.

In the Finnish Socialist Federation, we are connected with the athletic league known by the name "Assovuitto" or American-Finnish Socialist Locals Athletic and Gymnastic League, which is composed of about twenty athletic organizations, bringing the total membership to about 400. This league is formed of only the Finnish Socialist Federation Workers' Party members. The year of 1921 the league cast a vote, "Whether the I. W. W. Finnish Athletic Organizations may join the League?" "Yes" side won but to this day none of the above mentioned members have joined our league.

"Assovuitto" has its own by-laws and rules which some time ago were controlled by the middle class but as the years rolled by there have been changes to proletarian classes or opposing sides. "Assovuitto" by-laws have a section which forbids the league members to take part in any of the bourgeois or so called middle class contests. This item has kept a number of challenge proletarians out of our league.

"Assovuitto" is particularly in need of a Workers Party Athletic League. Without the league the contests have been only among the Finnish Athletes, without any chance of co-operating with the English comrades. Through the W. P. A. L. we would be able to be in touch with the International Workers Athletic Leagues of other countries. Then we will be able to send our delegates to the Workers' Olympic Games.

PORTLAND, Ore.—Hordes of Mexicans are being imported to institute the nine-hour day in Klamath Falls camps and mills. About 200 Mexicans are working where 2,000 Americans, now on strike were employed.

WASHINGTON.—"The army cannot break this strike, even if the cabinet would like it to do so," was the comment at Machinists' headquarters upon Secretary of War Weeks' announcement that troops might be called out to guard railroad property.

British coal is being imported to help break the miners' strike. It would never do, of course, to admit that the American worker under his glorious government needs aid from the workers of any other nation. Let Sam say it for you, boys!

Violating Free Speech

The police department of Pittsburgh, Pa., has refused to gran street speaking permits to the Workers Party.

Permits were granted the party in May and June. But ther the coal and railroad strikes began to grip the nation, and Pennsylvania especially its coal and iron metropolis, was hard hit.

The police department was forced in this crisis to decide as between the friends and the enemies of the Quaker State profiteers

The Workers Party was honored by being classified as an opponent of capitalist "law and order" and refused permits. Other political parties, including the Socialist Party, have had their permits continued.

In explanation of his decision, Superintendent of Police J. C. Calhoun wrote to the organizer of the Workers Party as follows:

> At the present time we feel that your meetings would tend to stir up strife and disorder, and that a proper regard for the peace and good order of the city requires us to refuse to permit them.
> Two great industrial disputes are pending involving the interest and welfare of many people. Calm and thoughtful consideration of the issues involved is needed, rather than the discussion of them in open street meetings attended not only by persons in interest, but by a great number of other people having no direct interest in the matter.
> During this unusual condition we will grant no permits for your meetings.

Speech is free in Pittsburgh if the "peace and good order" of capitalist exploitation is not interfered with.

"Calm and thoughtful consideration of the issues involved" must be reached by the workers, says the police in effect, thru reading the inspired press of the mine owners and the steel barons and by listening to the "democracy" loving orators of the Socialist Party.

Communism is thus proclaimed, even by the Pittsburgh police, as the uncompromising enemy of capitalism, and the utterances of the Workers Party will receive increased attention from the awakened workers on the battle line in the coal and railroad strikes.

It is shown that 233 of 356 wayward working girls who came under the supervision of the New York Probation and Protective Association received less than $16 per week. The capitalist press stated that this proved that wages and waywardness had no connection. It is hard to be logical when the facts are against one

A Few Political Bedfellows

La Follette is now receiving Hearst support, in addition to that of the Socialist Party, in his campaign for re-election as United States Senator from Wisconsin.

Richard Barry has a special article in the August issue of Hearst's International Magazine in which the question is asked "Will His (La Follette's) Enemies Get Him?" and the answer is given, "No!"

Part of the Hearst-Barry argument is that the La Follette economic policies, championed in Wisconsin and in Washington never did injury to the interests of private property, in fact the capitalists liked them once they really got acquainted with them Thus Barry writes:

"An ex-official of the Northwestern Life Insurance Company of Milwaukee said to the writer, 'Some of us who fought La Follette in the early days became his beneficiaries after his insurance and railroad regulation acts got to working. I doubt if any responsible insurance or railroad official today in Wisconsin would like to go back to the conditions we fought so hard to maintain and which La Follette forcefully wrested from us.'"

And then to prove how conservative La Follette really is Barry says that the Wisconsin newspapers fighting his re-election have never heard of Charles Oster, the French deputy and political writer, who made a study of American government a decade ago.

Barry says that in reply to a question from Louis Brandeis about his relation to French politics, Oster said, "At home I am called a conservative—I am there in favor of ideas like those of your Senator La Follette."

La Follette's basic idea is government regulation. All the big profiteers have to do is to control the different commissions that "regulate." And they do this very easily, so that the various Wisconsin "commissions" hit the workers over the head repeatedly and just as effectively as the rail workers were hit by the Railroad Labor Board's decisions.

Berger's Wisconsin Socialist Party has now embraced La Follette and his "regulation" nostrum after fighting both the republican politician and his pet schemes these many years.

Thus we find Berger and his "Socialists" lining up with the private insurance and railroad interests in supporting La Follette.

We also find the "Socialists" in the same political camp as Hearst on the La Follette issue, with William Randolph Hearst who is being urged for high political honors by "Fingy" Connors, the labor hating Buffalo millionaire.

Yellow "Socialists" will gasp at the claim that the chasm between Vic Berger and "Fingy" Connors can be bridged. But politics, especially the kind being played by the Socialist Party, has performed more difficult feats.

The Combined Barnum and Bailey and Ringling Bros. Circus had better look to its laurels. The politicians and the fall elections are upon us. Let the workers decide where they stand by studying the attack of the profiteers, the interest takers and the yellow Socialists on Communism and the Workers Party.

"The father is poor, while his brother is well to do," is the explanation given for the sale by W. H. Gillard, widower with six children, of Greenville, S. C., of his pretty six year old daughter, Inez, to his brother, J. H. Gillard. But do not expect a shower of editorials from the kept press on "capitalism breaking up the home." The profit-inspired attack on Communism will continue just the same.

The Fine Art of Framing Workers

The memory of developments in the Mooney case has taken the keen edge of interest in such revelations as the recent one in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, a full account of which appears in another part of this paper.

Proof that a state's witness upon whose say-so two sons of labor were condemned to die, is a habitual criminal, a pathological liar, a thorogoing scoundrel, is no longer a matter for surprise to those acquainted, even casually, with latter-day methods of dealing out justice to the working class.

Probably proof that a state's witness in a labor case was not one or more of the breeds enumerated above would come nearer being sensational.

What will the courts of Massachusetts do about it? They are now officially apprised that "Carlos E. Goodridge" who "positively identified" Sacco as on the scene of the murders charged against him and Vanzetti is not Goodridge at all. He is Erastus C. Whitney, an inmate at different times of Elmira Reformatory and Auburn State Prison in New York, and vacationing in civilian life only because the New York authorities have not succeeded in finding him.

The admiration of the courts may be roused by the talents of this man of many names, many wives and many crimes. Their tender hearts may be touched by the man's pitiable inability to tell the truth, his positive passion for perjury.

But what will they do to right the wrong done to Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, the victims of this man's diseased and perverted instincts?

The State cannot claim ignorance of the man's character when it put him on the stand. It was as a self-confessed criminal that "Goodridge" first came into the Norfolk County court. District Attorney Katzmann and his associates knew him first in that role. It was while in court under an adopted name and newly-raised whiskers that the gentleman from Elmira and Auburn saw Sacco, and in some mysterious fashion became a witness against him.

The friends of the two Italians have charged from the beginning that "Goodridge" was put on probation instead of being imprisoned in order that he might testify effectively against Sacco. The circumstantial proof in support of this charge is at least as strong as the circumstantial proof on which Sacco and Vanzetti are being sent to the electric chair.

The proofs of corruption and perjury in this case would long ago have brought a dismissal in a country where the courts have not lost all sense of shame.

The purchasing power of union wages, despite all increases is six percent less than in 1907. Fifty years more and the workers will owe the employers money at the end of each work day.

Intellectual Decadence in the I.W.W.

It is with a genuine feeling of regret that we feel it necessary to comment on a mis-statement in a recent issue of Industrial Solidarity. In an article signed "Blair" the following sentence occurs:

> The Communist leadership, divorced from industry, blind to the realities of capitalist development, and confused in thought accepts the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic as the last word in revolutionary accomplishment. Believing himself the only true apostle of Marxian Socialism and the Communist Party the only orthodox, organized exponent of Marxian economics, the Communist proclaims that the Russian "Communist state is a communist industry."

We do not know from what source the author of the two statements above gets his information but it is certainly not from the spokesman of the Communist International or the Soviet government. Bucharin, Radek, Lenin, Trotzky and all the other theoreticians of the Russian revolution, being Marxians, have from the first proclaimed that the dictatorship in Russia is a transitory thing but necessary during the period between revolution and Communism. There is not a single word that can be quoted to prove the statement that Communists look upon the Soviet government as the "last word in revolutionary accomplishment."

The same is true of the second statement. No single utterance can be cited to show that Communists believe the Russian Communist state is "communized industry." They do not so believe and their authorized spokesmen have time and time again declared that Russia is passing thru a transition period, that Communism will come when Russian industry is rebuilt. All Marxians acknowledge the necessity of such a transition period following the seizure of power by revolutionary workers.

This careless use of the truth is not surprising in the official organ of an organization which has lately put the seal of approval on "educational" articles which claim that capitalism flourished in ancient Babylon, that machines are intelligent and a lot of other middle-class nonsense we have not the space to mention.

We have seen the Industrial Workers of the World in too many hard-fought battles to get any pleasure from chronicling the decadence of the organization. Truth compels us to state however, that its recently developed penchant for middle-class intellectuals, indulged in despite its public denunciations of the tribe, coupled with a muddle-headed officialdom which operates on prejudice instead of reason and a lack of international affiliation that is only 100 per cent Americanism in disguise, all combined have discredited this once militant organization.

The dissemination of misinformation in such articles as the one we quote from has become the rule rather than the exception and would not have been tolerated in the organization as it was in the days when it was fighting the boss instead of aiding him.

The A. F. of L. convention refused to back the Railway Mail Clerks in their fight against the spoils system. That organization is now voting on withdrawal from the Federation.

There is more than one way of splitting the labor movement.

Rights of Ownership

Reports in the capitalist press state that with few instances governors and coal operators have enthusiastically accepted the "Harding plan" for the settlement of the coal strike.

The flag of the United States of America therefore, waves proudly above the coal properties stolen years ago from the community and now awaiting an influx of scabs who are to be encouraged and protected in their task of betraying the real producers of coal by the presence of armed forces of the state and nation.

The good citizens may look with loathing upon this use of the flag and military, yet it is the proper function of both.

The capitalists of the United States own this country, its people are their slaves, and part and parcel of their property is the flag and those who force obedience to their dictates.

In the coal fields of Western Pennsylvania, flying from the coal tipples, the flag is appropriately placed.

Ownership of a firm or corporation carries with it the privilege of using its labels. The same holds true of government. Its owners can use its emblems, its weapons and its prestige for any purpose they care to.

This is what the capitalists are doing now in the coal and railway strikes.

Instead of voicing certain complaints the workers must prepare to oust the present owners. Their privileges and powers will then pass to the workers. They can have the mines, the railways and all the other resources of the nation. They can have their flag to symbolize their ownership and their army with which to protect that ownership from the attempts of the dispossessed capitalists to wrest it from them.

To-day—the dictatorship of the capitalist class.

To-morrow—the dictatorship of the working-class.

The natives of the Tonga islands, a British possession, have raised the cry of "Tonga for the Tongans."

They have no right to do this because they are a weak nation.

More Unity Needed

The longer the railway strike lasts the more apparent becomes the irrefutable logic of amalgamation into an industrial union for the railway workers.

Magnificent as is the display of fighting spirit and solidarity on the part of the shop crafts it is not sufficient to effectively meet the present situation.

Federation into a railway department has been a tremendous step in advance but the defection of the officials of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way and the Signalmen in return for petty promises of consideration at the hands of the railway board, has proved that a centralized authority is vitally necessary for effective fighting.

The contention that the membership is unwilling to fight no longer holds because the action of the officialdom of these organizations, their betrayal of the other railway crafts, was taken despite almost 100 per cent strike votes returned by the rank and file. Their postponement of strike action has already resulted, especially in the case of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way workers, in thousands quitting their jobs without strike sanction.

Craft lines have been broken in this strike, the need for centralized authority shown and the weakness of mere federation proven. It is up to the militants to pound away for speedy action to build a solid front in the railway industry.

Whatever the shopmen gain will not have been the achievement of individuals but the result of a partial unification of forces.

As always, historical developments in the struggle confirm the theories of the student-fighters in the ranks of the workers.

The only new thing about the "Harding Plan" for settling the coal strike is the ammunition of the soldiery.

Urge All Labor "Strike!"

Many Demands Made on the A. F. of L. for a Nation-Wide Walkout

Campaign on to Rally All in Big Strike

The movement to enlist all labor in the United States in a giant nation-wide strike was started by the Central Labor Union of Omaha, Nebraska.

The resolution adopted has been sent to every central union in the United States and should be acted on immediately. The resolution is as follows:

Omaha, Neb., July 20, 1922.

WHEREAS, The Textile Workers in New England, the United Mine Workers of America, and the Railway Department of the A. F. of L. are engaged in a strike as a protest against the reduction of the American standard of living, and

WHEREAS, Many other strikes, authorized and unauthorized, are spreading and are fast becoming universal, and

WHEREAS, The President of the United States now informs us thru the medium of the public press that it is HIS purpose to use the full power of the Government, both military and judicial, to intimidate and oppress a free people and to bend them to his will, that the American standard of living must be reduced, and

WHEREAS, the doors of the U. S. Treasury have been thrown open for the relief of Big Business as represented by the Railroad owners, and

WHEREAS, We are facing a condition bordering on slavery,

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED:

That we, the CENTRAL LABOR UNION OF OMAHA, NEBRASKA, in regular session assembled this 21st day of July, 1922, do call upon the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. to immediately set in motion the machinery which shall bring the full power of labor to bear in one grand national protest against the slavery conditions that are being imposed upon us, and to call a National Strike at the earliest possible date in order that this warfare upon American homes may cease and a free people be permitted to live in peace, and be it

FURTHER RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the A. F. of L. and all its departments, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, the Order of Railway Conductors, and to every Central Labor Union in the United States, for their endorsement and support, and be it

FURTHER RESOLVED, That we pledge our lives, our liberty, and our sacred honor to the establishment, maintenance and defense of a living rate of wages in the U. S. of A., and be it

FURTHER RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions be given to the public press.

Mexican Labor Demonstrates Before the U. S. Legation at Mexico City in Big Protest

While workers in all parts of the world are showing their sympathy with the striking miners and railroad workers of the United States, the demand is growing in this country for a nation-wide sympathetic strike of all labor.

The American Federation of Labor headquarters at Washington has given out the text of several resolutions adopted recently by various labor organizations urging a national strike of all organized workmen.

Samuel Gompers, president of the A. F. of L., announces that no comment would be added except that they were "examples of numerous other resolutions of similar character."

Among the organizations quoted by Gompers were the Central Labor Union, Omaha, Neb.; East St. Louis Central Trades and Labor Union; Central Labor Union of Council Bluffs, Iowa; Federated Shop Crafts, Dunsmuir, Cal.; Waycross (Ga.) Trades and Labor Assembly, and Central Trade Union, Knoxville, Tenn.

The growing solidarity of the workers in other lands is being shown at the same time thru first action taken by the British miners to halt coal shipments to this country, thru demonstrations of the railroad workers of Mexico, and in a cablegram sent to the mine strikers here thru "THE WORKER," by the Japanese miners, who are themselves in the midst of a big conflict.

The cablegram from Japan reads as follows:

"TOKIO, Japan, July 29, 1922.

EDITOR, THE WORKER,
799 Broadway, New York City.

MINERS OF JAPAN WISH MINERS OF AMERICA DECISIVE VICTORY IN STRUGGLE WITH THEIR EXPLOITERS. WE ARE WITH YOU FOR THE SOLIDARITY AND THE TRIUMPH OF ALL THE WORLD'S WORKERS OVER OUR OPPRESSORS.

MINERS FEDERATION OF JAPAN."

Thousands of Mexican workers took part in a parade on August 1st, thru the main streets of Mexico City in sympathy with the striking railroad workers of the United States.

One banner asserted that the cause of the rail workers of the United States was the common cause of the Mexican workers.

One of the many large red banners in the parade was inscribed with, "Communist Party of Mexico, Section of the Third International."

The procession halted in front of newspaper offices and government buildings, while numerous speakers addressed the multitudes voicing the adherence of Mexican workers to the cause of their "brother Americans who are at death grips with the monster money power."

All railroad activities, with the exception of passenger trains, were halted for an hour thruout the republic, and parades similar to that in the capital were held in many cities.

The paraders wended their way to the United States Legation, where a demonstration was staged and a request made of George T. Summerlin, the American Chargé d'Affaires, to meet a delegation of labor leaders who wished to file a formal protest against the American rail executives. Mr. Summerlin declined the request. There were no disorders.

Welsh Miners Act

The Council of the South Wales Miners Federation at Cardiff, Wales has approved a resolution from the Rhondda district in favor of preventing the export of coal to America. President Hartshorn of the federation explained that the matter had been referred to the International Committee.

It was resolved to communicate the action of the South Wales Federation to Frank Hodges, National Secretary of the miners' union, stating the opinion of the South Wales Council and urging that the International Committee should take steps to prevent the export of coal to America.

SHOE WORKERS HELP

Workers in the Albert Shoe Factory, Brooklyn, have taken up a collection of $20.25 for the striking miners of West Virginia. The 21 workers in one department have pledged themselves to contribute $1 each weekly for the relief fund as long as the strike lasts.

Friends of Soviet Russia in Denial of Charges by "Forward"

The Friends of Soviet Russia, thru its national office in New York City has issued a statement in which it categorically denies the charges made by the Jewish Daily Forward. In reply it demands a public retraction of the charges made. The statement is as follows:

Public Retraction Demanded

A newspaper in New York called the "Forward" and pretending to be the mouthpiece of militant workers recently made a malicious, venomous attack on the Friends of Soviet Russia, 201 West 13th Street, New York City.

The basis for the attack was an interview between a reporter of the paper and Dr. Jacob W. Hartman, treasurer of the Friends of Soviet Russia.

The charges and insinuations are so gross, so false, that some other motive than interest and solicitude for the starving in Soviet Russia is basic to them. Without, however, going into that issue at this point, the Friends of Soviet Russia will take up the charges and insinuations themselves and expose them for what they are worth:

Reporter Creates Confusion

1. During the interview, the reporter was told that there are two organizations: the Friends of Soviet Russia and the American Federated

WORKERS PARTY URGES BRITISH WORKERS NOT TO SCAB ON U. S. COAL MINERS

The Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party of America has forwarded the following cablegram to the workers' organizations of Great Britain:

MINERS FEDERATION OF GREAT BRITAIN BRITISH COMMUNIST PARTY
LABOR PARTY OF GREAT BRITAIN
BRITISH TRADE UNION CONGRESS

The Coal miners of the United States have for four months stood like a stone wall against the attempt of the bosses to destroy their splendid fighting organizations. Their fight against a wage reduction and the weakening of their organization is the fight of the whole American working class. If the miners are beaten the bosses will force a bitterer industrial slavery upon all of us. Victory for the miners seems certain if the British workers refuse to scab against them by furnishing the American capitalists with coal. We urge that you do all within your power to induce British workers to refuse to handle coal for the United States. Hail to the international solidarity of the workers.

CENTRAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE
WORKERS PARTY OF AMERICA
C. E. Ruthenberg, Executive Secretary.

Coal Miners to Speak on West Va. War

One of the most interesting meetings ever held in New York City will take place Tuesday evening, August 8th, in Beethoven Hall, 210 East 5th Street.

On that date three coal miners from Beckley, West Virginia, will relate the facts of one of the most absorbing chapters in the history of the class struggle in America.

They will tell a story which covers two decades of bitter fighting.

The coal miners are fighting on the front-line trenches of the class-war in America, and their struggle against the coal operators epitomizes in the sharpest, most concentrated form the present phase of the class struggle in the United States—the workers on the one hand fighting a life-and-death battle to protect themselves and their organizations [illegible] barons, backed by the Government and the Steel Trust, trying to reduce the miners to the status of serfs.

Besides the three miners, among those who will address the audience will be John Gatherum, Secretary of District No. 29 of the United Mine Workers, Lawrence Dwyer, of the same organization, M. J. Olgin, editor of the Freiheit, William F. Dunne and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn.

The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Miners' Relief Committee, 208 E. 12th St., New York City. Contributions for the relief of the miners may be sent to Louis Gruss, Secretary Miners' Relief Committee, 208 E. 12th St.

THE BATTLE FOR BREAD

There has been launched by the progressive labor movement in Pittsburgh an organization to be known as the Pittsburgh Miners' Food Relief Conference, which will gather food and send it by truck to the mining camps to feed the destitute miners and their families.

Special effort will be made to direct the relief work to the miners where companies and soldiers are attempting to break the strike at the present moment.

The persons and organizations interested in joining the Conference, as well as people who will give food should notify J. A. Hamilton, Secretary, 35 Miller Street, Pittsburgh, Pa., at the earliest possible moment. Food may be left at the Labor Lyceum, Cor. James and Foreland Sts., Pittsburgh, Pa., or phone calls may be made to Grant 9855.

It is a battle of bread versus bullets. No class conscious worker can refuse to help.

Our Candidates

The convention of the Workers Party, District No. 2, selected candidates for the fall elections in New York State as follows:

GOVERNOR: William F. Dunne, New York.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR: Ludwig Lore, Brooklyn.

SECRETARY OF STATE: Roy Raymond, Buffalo.

CONTROLLER: Robert Verhagen, Schenectady.

ATTORNEY GENERAL: Rose Weiss, New York.

STATE ENGINEER: Dr. Benjamin Hoffman, New York.

STATE TREASURER: F. H. Shulman, Buffalo.

U. S. SENATOR: Alexander Trachtenberg.

The state [illegible] for New Jersey and Connecticut will be [illegible] by special [illegible] conventions called in [illegible] two states.

[illegible]

An [illegible] on the Irish situation has been [illegible] by the Communist International [illegible] the stand of the Communist Party of Ireland in the present crisis. The declaration denounces the Irish Labor Party. It is as follows:

The Irish proletariat is again being faced with a fateful decision. After prolonged peace negotiations English Imperialism is again preparing to coerce the Irish people by force of arms.

After all the efforts of the English bourgeoisie to maintain its domination by force of arms had been frustrated by the heroic self-sacrificing defense of the Irish people, it was obliged to come to an understanding with the Irish bourgeoisie. For the semblance of an independent Irish Free State the representatives of the Irish capitalists, Collins, Griffith and Co., sacrificed the fruits of the long and successful struggle, and received in return, as a Judas reward, the right to exploit the Irish workers together with the English bourgeoisie.

The party of the small peasants and of those workers who are not as yet class-conscious, represented by De Valera, saw through this game. However, the election compromise which this party has arrived at with the Irish exploiters shows their lack of determination to fight against the latter. The working elements of this party, and above all the Irish Republican Army, which consists mostly of proletarian elements, are justified in being indignant at this pact, and in seeing in it the beginnings of a future betrayal.

The Irish Labour Party is fully aware that every attempt at emancipation on the part of the Irish workers will be hopeless until the party will direct its struggle against the twofold oppression of the English imperialists and the Irish capitalists. Nevertheless, the Irish Labour Party is much too opportunist to continue the revolutionary traditions of Connolly or Jim Larkin. In all questions concerning real independence and the Irish Republican Army, the Irish Labour Party does not go beyond fine phrases. Instead of demanding complete independence, it clings to an ultra-constitutionalism, just like its twin-sister, the British Labour Party. Instead of supporting the Republican Army under arms, it advocated an army "under the control of the people." Confusion and indecision exists in its own ranks, and prevents it from being the leader of the Irish Proletariat.

It is only the young Communist Party of Ireland which has the courage and the determination to point to the right path, and to say

"It is only after the yoke of the English imperialists has been shaken off that the struggle against the Irish exploiters will have any chance of success! It is only after the establishment of real independence that the class struggle will be able to develop untrammelled by any nationalist question."

The attitude of the proletarian majority of the Irish Republican Army is a proof that the Irish Communist Party, notwithstanding its short existence, is on the right path and represents the will of the Irish working class. The clearer and the more determined it pursues this path, the sooner will the English and Irish capitalists understand that the large majority of the Irish people the workers, are not inclined to have filched from them the fruits of a long and self sacrificing struggle for the semblance of the independence which is being offered to them.

The English capitalist class is fully aware of this, and at a moment when it sees that the Irish workers refuse to be swindled on this question, but demand from England a real free state, it will again land its troops in Ireland, and is ready to renew the war rather than grant an independence which would interfere with its plans of exploitation.

Workers of Great Britain! Your duty now consists in frustrating this predatory campaign of your bourgeoisie! Do not allow the Irish people to be subjugated once more by English capitalists!

Workers and Peasants of Ireland! You must be fearless and determined in your struggle for the liberation of Ireland, and thus continue your fight for your own emancipation. But you must bear in mind that liberation from the yoke of the English oppressors is only a prelude to the great final struggle for the abolition of the reign of your own exploiters. In this struggle the Irish Communist Party and the Communist International will assist you with counsel and action.

Long live the Irish people freed from national oppression!

Long live the Irish proletariat!

Long live the solidarity of the English and Irish exploited workers!

The Executive Committee of the Communist International.

TEN WORKERS SHOULD READ THIS COPY OF THE WORKER: KEEP IT IN CIRCULATION

[illegible] to Debs

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

[illegible] of the Social Revolutionary Party, which gave and still gives the lie to its own name as the party of the "revolutionary democracy" of the small manufacturers.

Debs responded to Tchernoff in a protest to Lenin, still in agony as the result of an attack by a Tchernoff Party inspired would-be assassin. Debs urges Lenin "against the execution of any of the Social Revolutionaries or the unjust denial of their liberty."

Debs, therefore, takes his stand temporarily on the side of Tchernoff, the enemy of Communism, and against Lenin, one of the spokesmen of the Russian worker and peasant masses in their struggle to abolish the rule of capitalist exploiters and landlords and usher in a Communist Society.

The controversy that Debs thus enters into by taking his stand on the side of Tchernoff is as big as the class struggle itself.

This statement will therefore be confined to a few questions asking Debs if he is really acquainted with the nature of the source from which he draws his inspiration. These questions are taken, with a few changes in wording, from matter sent out thru the International Press Correspondence. Here they are:

Is Debs aware of the fact that at the end of 1921 Colonel Makhin published in the Revolutionaya Rossia an article on the methods of organizing an armed peasant revolt against the Soviet Government, of blowing up the railways of Soviet Russia and of the massacre of the Red Army? (The Revolutionaya Rossia is Tchernoff's organ.)

Is Debs aware of the fact that during the Kronstadt revolt there appeared an article in the Revolutionaya Rossia from the pen of Victor Tchernoff calling upon the peasantry to rise. "And you despots, Bolsheviki!" this article reads, "your days are counted; IF YOU CARE FOR YOUR LIVES CLEAR OUT OF THE WAY. The people is rising and judgment will be pronounced."

Is Debs aware of the fact that Tchernoff's journal, in view of the Kronstadt rising, stated: "Those who do not support the people of Kronstadt are allies of the blood-stained Field Marshall Trotsky and his hangmen. We have made up our minds. We are with the Kronstadt people against their oppressors and hangmen."

Is it known to Debs that the Ninth Congress of Tchernoff's Social Revolutionary Party passed the following resolution: "THE ARMED STRUGGLE WITH THE BOLSHEVIK POWER IS INEVITABLE and therefore the active elements of the people must be organised."

Has Debs knowledge of the fact that Victor Tchernoff wrote the following in his journal on this decision of the party: "The Social Revolutionary Party takes up the struggle against the Bolshevik despots on all fronts."

Is Debs aware of the fact that the French government financed the enterprises of Tchernoff's Social Revolutionary Party; that this took place in the territory of Soviet Russia thru the medium of the Danish Embassy, and that at present it is being done thru the Czecho-Slovak government at Prague?

Is it known to Debs that Tchernoff's Social Revolutionary Party supported Antonov's uprising and that the latter executed hundreds of revolutionary workers?

Is Debs aware of the fact that in Samara and Kazan, when Tchernoff's Social Revolutionary Party was in power, there the Bolsheviks were killed off with beastly cruelty?

Is Debs aware of the fact that Tchernoff's Social Revolutionary Party committed robberies and expropriations on the territory of the Soviet Republic with the connivance of its Executive Committee, that the stolen money was handed over to a member of the Executive Committee (Rakov) and that the Eighth Congress of the Social Revolutionary Party sanctioned the expropriations?

Is Debs aware of the fact that Tchernoff's Social Revolutionary Party received from the French military mission explosives in order to blow up the railways of Soviet Russia?

Is Debs aware of the fact that the "shock troops" of Tchernoff's Social Revolutionary Party prepared an attempt upon the lives of Trotsky and Zinoviev, and that the Executive Committee of that party approved of individual terrorism?

Is Debs aware of the fact that Tchernoff knows that Volodarsky, Soviet commissar, was murdered with the approval of the Executive Committee of the Social Revolutionary Party, and that the assassin, Sergeyev, a member of the Social Revolutionary Party, received orders for this deed from Gotz, a member of the Executive Committee?

Is Debs aware of the fact that Tchernoff's Social Revolutionary Party negotiated with the Ivanov counter-revolutionary organization with the object of inducing the German Northern Army to attack Petrograd and deliver power to a bourgeois government?

Is it known to Debs that Tchernoff's Social Revolutionary Party delegated as participant in these negotiations Colonel Postnikov, who got into communication with the commandant of the German Army with a view of obtaining information?

Is Debs aware of the fact that Tchernoff's party was also receiving financial support from the Ivanov counter-revolutionary organization?

Is Debs aware of the fact that Tchernoff's Social Revolutionary Party co-operated with Filanenko's counter-revolutionary organization and was also receiving financial support from the latter?

Is Debs aware of the fact that Tchernoff's Social Revolutionary Party was organizing party cells within the Red Army and that on many occasions it prepared mutinies, for instance, even immediately after the October (1917) revolution, when the members of that party led an army against Petrograd?

Is it known to Debs that Avksentiev, Kerensky and Tchernoff participated in this movement?

Is Debs aware of the fact that Lydia Konopleva communicated with the Executive Committee of Tchernoff's Social Revolutionary Party upon the intended plot against Lenin? Does he know that on behalf of the Executive Committee, Tchernoff and Gotz negotiated with Konopleva in this matter? Is he aware of the fact that the Executive Committee approved of the plan? Is he aware of the fact that the Executive Committee sent its member, Richter, to Moscow, in order to prepare for assassination?

We wonder how many of these facts were known to Debs when he sent his Tchernoff-inspired cable of protest to Lenin.

We feel that the workers of this country ought to know if Debs thinks the lives of Tchernoff's counter-revolutionists are more sacred than the lives of Russia's Communist workers and peasants still waging the war for the preservation and strengthening of the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic, and for the protection of the beginnings of the world social revolution

When Tchernoff overthrew the Soviet Power on the Volga in 1918, it ended with the crowning of Admiral Koltchak as Monarchist Dictator of Siberia.

Behind the cable that Tchernoff sent Debs there lies the hope for the overthrow of Soviet Power thruout Russia, and the rule of another Koltchak over the whole of Russia.

The history of the early days of the Bolshevik Revolution showed the Communists too gentle with their force-loving adversaries. The Bolsheviks were not in love with the use of force. They used it only when necessary to win and preserve the workers' revolution.

The Proletarian Dictatorship is still figthing for its life in Soviet Russia. It has only reached the doorstep of Communism. Capitalism thruout the world, aided and abetted by the Tchernoffs, has made war, is making war and will continue to make war to its last breath against the emancipating rule of Russia's workers.

But Communism replies to Capitalism with its own weapons, the only weapons Capitalism knows, and with the spread of the social revolution over the world, the workers everywhere are compelled to take their stand.

We, therefore, ask Debs if he is acquainted with Tchernoff and his Social Revolutionaries; if he knows the facts as set forth above.

And, knowing, we ask him if he still stands with Tchernoff and the counter-revolution, or with Lenin and the world social-revolution?

We are sending Debs a copy of this article.

We shall be glad to publish his reply.

[illegible] they should or should not demand the recognition of the Soviet Power. [illegible] But the gentlemen of the Second and 2½ Internationals almost look upon themselves as upon heroes because they actually decided to demand the recognition of the Soviet Power. Legal recognition means actual relations with Russia, and no matter with what hatred the capitalists look upon the first proletarian government, they must recognise it. And they do recognise it for the simple reason that they are in need of trade with Russia. Trade with Russia is impossible on a large scale without definite and binding treaty relations with the Soviet Government.

Lesson Taught by "Amalgamated"

If the demand for the recognition of the Soviet Power at the time of intervention and the armed struggle against it had any revolutionary significance at all, it now appears as the slogan of those capitalists who desire trade with Russia. The Second and 2½ Internationals are only the mouthpieces of these capitalistic circles, to the extent that they are not actually forced by the workers who sympathize with Soviet Russia but are not in a position to turn their sympathies into action. An example of how to recognise Soviet Russia in contrast to the "recognition" of the heroes of the yellow International, was set by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

"The New Republic," a radical bourgeois weekly published in New York, reports that the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Federation at their Fifth Convention decided to issue a loan of one million dollars which is to serve to organise a clothing cooperative that is to aid in the construction of industry in Russia. In this cooperative the representatives of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and those of the Soviet Government will work on a basic of equality. The representatives of the Soviet Government will for their part, furnish the factory room and the raw materials. Only workers and labor organizations may become shareholders. The cooperative is obligated to spend all profits exceeding ten per cent for extension purposes.

Urges Creative Work

The bourgeois weekly from which we cite this news also brings excerpts from the speech delivered by Comrade Hillman, president of the union. "Many people speak of world economic reconstruction, but if we should leave the work of reconstruction in the hands of those cliques that caused the war and have now concluded "peace," we shall accomplish nothing but the formulation of a banal phraseology, and new formulas which, where they to be carried out, would only result in one part of the world ruling the other. Were this to happen life would become ten times as difficult as it is now. The working class of our country as well as the workers of the other countries should rise and make it clear that the work of establishing peace in this world is not only for a few officials and Ministries of Foreign Affairs but that the vital problems of millions of men, women and children are to be solved by the masses of all countries. The working class of the world should take upon itself the economic rebirth of Russia which has set the example for creative work."

The bourgeois weekly reports that the Clothing Workers' convention listened to Hillman's speech with great interest and accepted his proposal.

The aid which the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America decided to furnish Soviet Russia should serve as an example to the proletarians of other countries. The American clothing workers have pointed the way that is most beneficial to Soviet Russia, and which if followed should contribute considerably to the liberation of the Russian workers from the yoke of foreign capital. Such a step would lighten the work of preserving the social conquests of the revolution and would accelerate the economic development of Soviet Russia which in its turn would be in a better position to aid the European proletariat in its struggle of liberation.

Betrays Famine Victims

Forced by the attitude of the working masses the gentlemen of the Amsterdam International were compelled to collect money for the famine sufferers of Russia. For every crumb of bread which they furnished Soviet Russia, their agents left behind them a trail of venomous propaganda against the Workers' Government during their stay in Russia. It suffices to mention the activities of Brantel, member of the Austrian Social Democracy, who after arriving in Georgia with medicaments from the Amsterdam International and spending two weeks there, published a long pamphlet (without knowing either the language or the local conditions) in which he speaks like an expert and points out that Bolshevik regime in Georgia destroyed all the treasures of this little paradise, clear thru to the Georgian mountains which the senile Kautsky used as a crutch for his geographical handbook.

Hillman, the president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, is not a Communist. He is an honest American worker having arrived in Russia not for the purpose of making revelations but for the purpose of aiding the Russian workers, made an excellent study of the conditions under which we are living, and then returned to America to organize the relief work. The Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union is not a Communist organization; it is a union of workers suffering under the dictatorship of capitalism. This union is not part of the yellow A. F. of L. headed by Gompers, but in times of need it furnishes more aid to the other unions than some of the biggest labor organizations. This is due to the spirit of solidarity that pervades it.

Commends Spirit Behind Aid

That is why after the Amalgamated Clothing Workers had heard Hillman's report, they declared: "We helped the famine sufferers by sending them $500,000, but that was only temporary relief; we must aid in a way that will do away with the famine in Russia altogether."

The Russian workers will receive this news with great joy, not only because $1,000,000 means material relief but also because the spirit in which the American clothing workers have given this money is the spirit of the Russian workers.

LOVE THE FLAG

Once upon a time the members of the crew of a certain ship were ordered to appear on deck, arrange themselves stiffly in military formation, and salute the flag which flew at the masthead. It happened that of the crew, twenty men either were sleeping, or had not received the order, so they were not present at the ceremony. Wherefore the commanding officer fined them each one day's pay. Sailors and seamen must be taught to love the flag of their country—and what simpler and more convincing way to make them love it than to punish them for omitting to make certain required signs before it?

Was this, perhaps, in Germany and before the war? Or in the Russia of the czar? Not at all. It was on the American vessel Minnekahda—a cargo ship and not even a navy vessel. And the incident occurred on the fourth of July, the date which is celebrated as having witnessed the birth of freedom in America. And by some strange prank of fate, the Minnekahda is known in shipping circles as the "ship of democracy."

However, when the ship arrived in port here, the twenty men went before E. W. Voorhies, shipping commissioner, to protest against the fine Mr. Voorhies considered, and then he gravely told them that if each of them would submit an affidavit pledging loyalty to the flag and their captain the latter "might be persuaded" to modify the punishment.

A big demonstration was held by Japanese workers on the release from prison of Hiroshi Sekiya, chief of the Ashio branch, National Federation of Labor, who was sentenced to 10 months' imprisonment for the part he took in the strike of the miners last August. The procession was orderly and peaceful until the police interfered, and in the struggle which followed several persons were injured.

RUSSIA

By ARCHIE SINCLAIR

Out of the terror of Tzarist oppression,
Out of the darkness of fear and despair,
Rises the tide of the workers' possession;
Up from the depths their mental stagnation,
Scorning the mandate of Cossack and Tsar,
Bursting their bondage of want and privation,
As heroes in peace and as victors in war.

Long had they suffered in exile and prison,
Patiently bearing each insult and threat,
Patient no longer at last they have arisen
And formed in the Kremlin a new Soviet.
After the night comes the dawn of the morning,
Joy comes to those who have known deep despair.
The watchwords of Freedom their standards adorning
Wave o'er the birth of the New Proletaire.

BACKING THE GAMBLERS

Allan A. Ryan, for years known all over the country as one of the boldest speculators (or, in plainer language, one of the most reckless gamblers) in Wall Street, failed recently for $18,000,000. Some time before his failure he was forced out of the New York Stock Exchange.

Yet the Guarantee Trust Company loaned him $4,000,000, the Chase National Bank $3,456,429, and the Mechanics and Metals National Bank $1,402,963, to gamble with.

The security he furnished, in the case of the Chase National Bank loan, is said now to be worth only $667,756.

These deals took place while the farmers of the country were being refused sorely needed loans by the banks, and about the time that John S. Williams, then controller of the currency, made the open charge that the Federal Reserve system was lending its funds to New York banks which in turn were lending them to stock gamblers.

Dunne Heads State Ticket in New York

Effective state campaigns this fall will be conducted by District No. 2 of the Workers Party, in the states of New York, Connecticut and New Jersey.

This was made very apparent with the selection of candidates and the drawing up of a program at the District Convention held in New York City.

William F. Dunne, of the Worker, heads the New York state ticket as candidate for governor. The full ticket appears on page one.

Convention Selects Delegates

The convention also selected 20 delegates to the national convention of the Workers Party, framed various recommendations to the delegates selected, and chose an executive committee for the district.

Suggestions for a basis for the national program were made as follows:

Industrial

1. Advocacy of the industrial form of organization.
2. Fight against the open shop.
3. Against compulsory arbitration and labor arbitration.
4. Fight against the use of courts, in issuing injunctions in labor disputes, and by other means of strangling the labor movement.
5. Against the use of federal and state troops, state constabulary and private guards in labor disputes.
6. Against child labor.
7. Program, on the United Front.
8. Immigration: We recognize that the immigration of workers from foreign countries is due to political persecution or economic conditions. We favor the unrestricted admission of immigrants to this country, and call upon the labor unions to organize and assimilate the workers into organizations in this country.

Political

1. Attitude on Parliamentarism.
2. United Front Election campaigns: The Workers Party recognizes the necessity of united action of all working-class organizations politically and stands ready to join them in such common action in election campaigns and other political activities on a program based on the class struggle and acceptable to the Workers Party.
3. Demand for release of class war prisoners and abolition of all criminal syndicalist and anarchy laws.
4. Race issues.

Basis for Campaign Manifesto

The basis for a campaign manifesto for the Workers Party was suggested in part as follows:

"The workers of the United States are face to face with a most serious crisis. Gigantic strikes, unparalleled in the history of the country are taking place. The miners, railroad workers and textile workers, resolved no longer to tolerate the miserable conditions that the bosses have imposed on them, have gone out in mighty protest. The employers, organized in a unit, are carrying on a vicious campaign to reduce the living conditions of labor to the lowest level possible. Step by Step, they are robbing labor of the positions gained by the most self-sacrificing struggle of thirty long years.

"The workers of the country must either stop these attacks by effective resistance or sink helplessly into a state below that of chattel slaves. As long as labor is divided, it will be able to accomplish nothing. Unless labor in America presents a solid, united front to its united and brutal enemies, the employers, it is threatened with untold misery.

Incapable of Carrying Out Reconstruction

"For four years since the end of the war, the best capitalist brains in the United States in full control, have proven incapable of readjusting the economic process. In their greed for profits, they have let loose a terrible attack to crush labor and make the laboring masses pay the entire costs of reconstructing industry.

"Heedless of their own laws, indifferent to method, backed up in their every act by the courts and the force of the government, they have made a concentrated onslaught to make labor pay for capitalist destructiveness.

"Indifferent to consequences, the American capitalists, together with their British, French and Japanese associates are making feverish preparations for a new war. The Washington Conference, Genoa and the Hague, have intensified the antagonism. The struggle for supremacy is on and the laboring masses again will have to pay the price. For there can be no real improvement in the condition of the workers until organized and under the leadership of a militant party, the workers overthrow the capitalist class, take power from its hands and erect a mighty Soviet Republic, a government with complete power in the hands of the working class.

International Solidarity

"In all countries of the world, except Soviet Russia, the capitalists have lined up in a solid front against the workers, determined to crush their aspirations either for emancipation or the improvement of their conditions. Ignoring national boundaries an international capitalist front has been created against which the workers of the world must draw up their lines in a spirit of international solidarity. Without this they cannot resist their own further degradation.

"The workers must demand that their governments keep "hands-off" in all disputes between capitalists and workers in foreign countries.

Soviet Russia

"Soviet Russia is the first government that is an expression of a working class which has freed itself from capitalist domination. Hence the capitalist governments are united in the determination to destroy this first great achievement of the working-class.

"International solidarity demands that the workers of all countries support Soviet Russia as against the intrigues of the international capitalist governments.

"It demands as the expression of the Russian workers and peasants, that the Soviet Government of Russia be recognized by the governments of the world, and that workers' organizations continue to give their support to the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia in their efforts to build up their country.

Delegates to National Convention

Delegates for the National Convention of the Workers Party were chosen as follows: Benjamin Gitlow, Harry Winitsky, Henry Askeli, Roy Raymond, L. E. Katterfeld, Israel Amter, Rose Pastor Stokes, Robert Minor, Patrick McClellan, Joseph Brahdy, Otto Houswood, Edward Lindgren, Marcelle Scherer, A. Bimbo, A. Jakira, Fred Shuman, I. Pitkowitz, William F. Dunne, Dr A. Wilenkin and Frank Basky.

The five alternates selected were: Mrs. Kate Gitlow, Paul E. Scott, Belle Robbins, J. Kossove and C. Mitchell.

The district executive committee was chosen to consist of the following: Fred Shuman, Joseph Brahdy, Israel Amter, A. Bimbo, Patrick McClellan and Belle Robbins, with alternates as follows: I. Pitkowitz, Otto Houswood and Roy Raymond.

State Convention of Connecticut

A state convention for the purpose of electing candidates for state offices in Connecticut will be held on [illegible] August 6, at 11 [illegible] at the New Haven Labor Lyceum, 38 Howe St., New Haven, Conn.

Each branch is instructed to be represented by one delegate for every 25 members from each branch of the Workers Party of Connecticut.

An added feature to this convention will be the election of a state campaign committee for the purpose of handling the campaign for the coming elections.

State Convention of New Jersey

A state convention for the purpose of electing candidates for state offices in New Jersey will be held on Saturday Eve, August 5th, at 8.30 o'clock at the Newark Labor Lyceum, 704 South 14th St., Newark, N. J.

Each branch is instructed to elect one delegate for every 25 members, from each branch of the Workers Party of New Jersey.

An added feature of this convention will be the election of a state campaign committee for the purpose of handling the campaign in the coming elections.

The "United Language Front"

An article, "A World Language," was published in "The Worker" by the "Pittsburgh Workers Ido Society," in which this society invites all Esperantist comrades to form an "United Language Frant."

In regard to the article, we, the "Esperanta Laborista Centro," New York, are anxious to join hands with all our fellow-workers, especially with those who realize that an "Auxiliary World Language" must be established by and for the revolutionary workers of the globe.

We appeal to all Esperanto groups "de radikala pensmaniero," including the Esperanta Grupo "Untauen," Philadelphia, and to all S. A. T. members throuout the United States and Canada to join, and to organize a "Language Front" in North America. Kdo. Amiel, Esperanta Laborista Centro, has been appointed to open communications with the "Pittsburgh Workers Ido Society," and therefore we kindly ask all Esperantists and others to address the "Esperanta Laborista Centro," Labor Temple, 243 East 84th St., New York City.

[illegible] National Convention Workers Party, Aug. 2[illegible]

The agenda for the national convention of the Workers' Party, to be held at Chicago, August 2[illegible], has been made public by the national office of the party. It is as follows:

1. Report of the Central Executive Committee.
2. Report on the Economic Conditions and Class Struggle in the United States.
3. Program of the Workers' Party.
4. The Workers' Party and the International Working Class.
5. Election Platform of the Workers' Party.
6. Soviet Russia and the American Workers.
7. Freedom for Class Struggle Prisoners.
8. Educational Work of the Party.
9. The Party Constitution.
10. The Party Press.
11. Election of Central Executive Committee.

The Central Executive Committee of the party will recommend to the convention that the system of having a comrade, or where there is a minority view a representative of the majority and minority report to the convention on each point on the agenda.

In anticipation of the adoption of this plan the C. E. C. has elected committees to prepare resolutions on each point on the agenda. The first three items, Survey of Present Conditions in the United States, Party Program and International Relations has been referred to a committee consisting of Comrades Allison, Engdahl, Minor, Ruthenberg and Trachtenberg. The Election Platform, Soviet Russia and Class Struggle Prisoners is before a committee consisting of Comrades Lovestone, Lore and Engdahl; Education, Allison, Wolenkin and Glassburg; Press, Dunne, Minor and Allison; Constitution, Askeli, Weinstone and Katterfeld.

Adopt Statements on the Shop Delegate System and Industrial Organization

The statements on the questions of industrial organization and the shop delegate system were adopted by the convention of District 2, Workers Party, New York, Connecticut and New Jersey, as follows:

INDUSTRIAL ORGANIZATION

1. We favor the unity of labor on an industrial basis and pledge our wholehearted support of the principles of the industrial form of organization.

Our delegates to the National Convention are instructed to present this resolution and work for its adoption.

2. We favor the amalgamation of existing unions industrially and inter-industrially and call upon all our members within the unions to support every movement tending toward such amalgamation.

3. We recommend that all members of the labor unions favoring industrial form of organization and amalgamation combine in every union in order to more effectively work for these ends.

4. The Workers Party can never hope to become a powerful factor among the proletarian masses in the country unless it gains the support and confidence of the proletarian masses. This confidence and support the Party can gain only by participating in the daily struggles of the workers. In order to so participate it is absolutely necessary for the party members to become active members of all labor organizations. In those organizations they must, by their superior intelligence, loyalty and activity in behalf of the workers gain their support, we therefore recommend that every member of the Workers Party who is a wage worker shall stand instructed to join the union of his trade or industry within ninety days of receipt of this instruction and that new members shall comply with this ruling within the probationary period, such compliance to be one of the tests of eligibility to membership in the Party; that every member of the Party shall actively participate in all industrial meetings of the Party as also all activities of his union. Failure to comply shall constitute sufficient cause for expulsion from the Party.

5. In order to systematize, coordinate and effectively carry on the industrial activities of the Party we recommend that the Party organize an industrial bureau to supervise and conduct the industrial activities of the Party.

SHOP DELEGATE SYSTEM

Whereas, craft unionism and its resultant independent craft union autonomy prevent in many instances the united action of the workers on the job, and

Whereas, there should be a medium thru which workers can concentrate their power and present a solid front regardless of technical or organizational distinctions,

We, the Workers Party, place ourselves on record as favoring the Shop Delegate and Shop Committee form of organization and adopt this principle as one of the means of bringing about unity of action and a better understanding among the proletariat in industry.

[illegible]

Make Use of This Very Excellent Material for Party Study Classes

Rupert Clews, of Chicago, sends us material for a study class that we are glad to give space to in The Worker.

It is pointed out that the efficient functioning of a party depends on the intelligent activity of its members.

All members should have a clear understanding of the program of the Workers Party, of which they are a part, and of their role as members.

Thru short talks and questions, in a study class, this goal is easily achieved. Members of such a study class, of course, should carefully read "The Program and Constitution of the Workers Party," issued in pamphlet form by the National Office, Workers Party, 799 Broadway, New York City, and should attempt to answer the following questions:

What tasks must a class-conscious workers' political Party perform? Why was the Workers Party of America formed? From what elements? What other parties are in the field? Wherein do they differ from the W. P. of A.?

What is the present condition of the world proletariat? Of the American proletariat in general, and in particular, of the industry in which you work? Which agencies of the ruling class are being used against you?

IMPERIALISM.—What is it? Show the existence of American Imperialism, its methods, its treatment of the natives. What can the W. P. of A. do to fight against American Imperialism?

SOVIET RUSSIA.—The attitude of the W. P. of A. toward Russia. The attitude of other parties.

UNION ACTIVITY.—Show that labor is retreating. What is the attitude of labor leaders? What stand does the W. P. of A. take toward the Red Labor Union International? On industrial Unionism? On dual unionism? What is dual unionism? How are W. P. of A. members organized for union work? What is the duty of these members in the union?

ELECTIONS.—Why does the W. P. of A. participate in election campaigns? What issues does it raise? Does it fight for immediate demands? Wherein are they different from the immediate demands of the Socialist Party? Which demands are proposed for the 1922 Congressional Campaign?

AGRICULTURE.—How strong are the proletarian elements in agriculture? In what condition are farmers to-day? Why have farmers' organizations failed? What does the W. P. of A. propose to do in this field?

RACE PROBLEM.—What is the present status of the negro in America? What stand does the W. P. of A. take?

It is suggested that the members, after reading the "Program," discuss these questions among themselves, in order that the class may be of greatest benefit to all who attend.

For Sacco and Vanzetti

All preparations are completed for the biggest venture in working class theatricals that New York City has ever seen,

Friday evening, August 4th, at the National Winter Garden, Second Av. and Houston St., the first of 15 All-Star Super-Vaudeville Performance will open, and will run for ten days.

The affair is being given for the benefit of the Sacco and Vanzetti Defense Fund.

The idea of giving these shows for the Defense Fund has been indorsed by many large labor organizations of New York. Among the organizations that have indorsed the venture and who are co-operating to make it a success are: The International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, Amalgamated Metal Workers, The Food Workers' Union, The Workers' Defense Union, Italian Defense Committee, The United Labor Council.

All of these organizations have bought blocks of tickets and plan to have their members attend performances in a body.

[illegible]

[illegible] THE WORKER has received an official report on the election results from the party [illegible] with the request that it be published. This report is as follows:

On behalf of the Party Executive of the Finnish Socialist (Communist) Labor Party I beg to inform you as to the present political situation in Finland following upon the general election just closed.

Following upon the civil war of 1918 there was a general election in 1919 when the sole labor party, the Social-Democratic party, got 80 seats out of the 200 in the Diet. According to the Finnish constitution new elections have to take place every three years. Accordingly we had a general election this year, taking place on July 1st and 3rd. The results of this election were in some respects unexpected. The Labor party had got split into two fractions in 1920, the left wing giving up the old Social-Democratic party and forming a new Finnish Socialist Labor Party with a Communist program. This new party took for the first time part in a general election. In spite of its dominating the workers' organizations in Helsingfors and also the trade unions over the country, its general influence could not be very great as the old party had retained all the property, all the printing houses and most of the labor papers over the country. At present the F. S. L. P. possesses only two dailies against some twelve dailies of the S. P. That means an enormous handicap in propaganda which the F. S. L. P. only with difficulty has been able to counteract effectively.

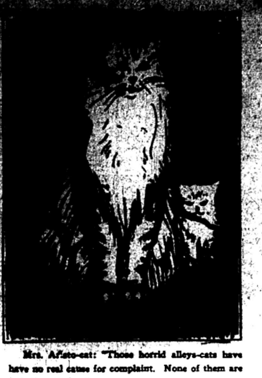
Also there is to observe that practically the entire staff of the F. S. L. P., including the party executive and innumerable editors of the papers and local officials, are in jail sentenced for various sorts of so-called "high treason." The party, therefore, is at present led by quite young, mostly inexperienced men who have to struggle against the greatest difficulties to keep the party machinery going and to organize the masses. That, too, meant a very serious handicap in our election campaign.

Generally we expected some 18 seats to the new Diet. That would approximately have corresponded to our means of propaganda and real party strength. The election brought us nevertheless 27 seats leaving only 53 to the Social-Democrats out of the 80 they had had hitherto. That was certainly a considerable victory for our young party. Its importance is the greater as it showed our greatest strength to be in the chief coast towns of Helsingfors, Abo, Wasa and Uleaburg, whereas the strength of the Social-Democrats was in the country, in the inner provinces and generally in the economically most backward parts of Finland. Our party dominates wholly in the south, the south-west and the north of the country. It flourishes accordingly wherever there is a real industrial proletariat. That means that the F. S. L. P. is the only real labor party in Finland, the Social-Democratic party drawing its strength chiefly from the petty-bourgeois elements and the small peasants which are very numerous here.

It is observed that had the two Labor parties formed a coalition as provided for in the election law, some ten more seats could have been won. Such a coalition was proposed by the F. S. L. P. Therefore some 45,000 Labor voters voted to no effect and their votes were lost.

Another unexpected result of the election was the defeat of the centrist bourgeois parties and the victory of the extreme right represented by the Swedish Party and the Finnish Coalition Party. The class character of the new Diet will therefore be very pronounced and the struggle within it very sharp. That means of course that the Diet will be of little use for legislation and peaceful development. Very probably the present "non-party" government will in September, when the Diet assembles, be followed by a reactionary bourgeois coalition government formed by the Finnish Coalition Party, the Swedish Party and the right wing of the centrist Agrarian Party. This coalition will have a sufficient majority in the Diet and will probably do its utmost to repress every radical Labor movement in this country.

Such are the prospects for the near future. Our representatives in the new Diet will be confronted with the greatest difficulties. With one exception all of them are entering the Diet for the first time and have no experience in revolutionary parliamentary work. All the party leaders and the most effective members are in jail without any possibility to get out for some years and to influence the party work. Therefore the party tries its utmost to get informed about the parliamentary experience of the brother parties in other countries and will be most grateful of any assistance it may get from distinguished party members abroad.



Mrs. Aristo-cat: "Those horrid alleys-cats have have no real cause for complaint. None of them are actually starving."

Earmarks of the Traitor

Samuel Gompers recently journeyed to New York City to celebrate the anniversary of his arrival in this country.

We have no facts as to the real nature of the celebration, but during its height the president of the American Federation of Labor blurted out some of the strangest working-class philosophy we have heard in a long time.

Gompers claimed that the big strikes now raging in this country are mere family quarrels that will soon blow over.

The statement will make startling reading for the suffering miners, railroaders and textile workers now on strike.

The wives and children of these strikers, many of them living in tented colonies, from which they are often driven by the employers' Cossacks, will no doubt understand how it was possible for Gompers, from his luxurious suite in the sumptuous Hotel Pennsylvania to talk glibly as follows:

> "I believe an adjustment of these strikers will bring a better understanding between the employer and the employe. It is like a family quarrel, you know. Sometimes when you get mad at your family you say a lot of hard things and they talk back, but the affirmations of each side, even if overestimated, bring to the light of day the things for which each side is struggling, and the grievances which each is nursing. You have a rattling good row. You know all about what your brother or sister is thinking regarding you. Then thru the turmoil the light of understanding is shed.
> "From my knowledge, I am convinced that never in the history of organized labor and capital has there been such an effort on both sides to view things from a really human standpoint. It is the few employers who are driving bargains and propagating false information about whom you hear. The great mass of employers no longer regard their men as mere machines. They realize that they are human beings and the wise employer is interested in their problems.

We hear the cry of starving children coming from the hills and mountains of West Virginia where civil war has raged these many years between the coal miners and their exploiters.

We can hear the snarl of the mine barons as they goad on the old party officials of Illinois in an effort to send the brave coal miners of Herrin to the gallows.

We hear the beat of hoofs of the militia cavalry along the valleys of the New England states where rule the profit-hungry textile barons.

All this and more gives the lie to Gompers.

As a "labor lieutenant" of capital Gompers has spoken well. As an official of labor he has spoken as a traitor.

The class struggle ends only when capitalism has been swept away and a classless Community Society instituted in its place. Until that day there can be no "satisfactory settlement" of the problems confronting labor.

Mark, August 20th

By NERMA BERMAN

August 20th has officially been declared an International Holiday. On that day all politics, conferences, confabs, etc., must be set aside and everyone, including old workers, young workers, would-be workers and even the intelligentsia are to meet at Elmhurst Park, Elmhurst, Long Island. Industrial workers may be preferred but trade unionists are not excluded. Political differences, tho recognized, will not be disputed.

Pleasures are in store for all groups, types and temperaments. Games for the sports that will make the old Olympic games look like a farce. Futuristic stunts for the ultra-moderns and a good old Virginia Reel for the old-timers.

For lovers of nature the shady nooks of Long Island; for lovers of art beautiful oil pointings, for adventurers a touring car. Never mind the how and the why! Lovers of prominence and prestige can shake hands with our governor. Hymns for those who'll have them, and sympathy for all others.

Remember, every trade, profession, nationality in New York City must be well represented at the Midsummer Outing of the National Defense Committee for the relief of class-war prisoners, Sunday, August 20th, at Elmhurst Park, Elmhurst, Long Island. For the love of comrades, we must make this affair a success!

World's Champion to Perform at Young Workers' Picnic

Jack Schwartz, 43 years old, champion rope skipper of the world, the man who startled the athletic world a short time ago when he broke the world's rope skipping record in Madison Square Garden, will be one of the many attractions at the Young Workers' League Picnic in Ulmer Park, August 6th.

Isidor Kadisch, strongest YOWL in the country, will also be in the [illegible] for this occasion. He has [illegible] to carry platforms to six different Young Workers' open-air meetings in one night and never miss a breath when arriving at the last corner.

It has been proven that he is the only hard working youngster in the movement who can lift a 180-pound member of the Workers Party clear above his head. He will give the participants in the picnic an exhibition of the powerful development of his muscles.

Comrades Alpa and Young Al will be contestants in a wrestling match.

It has also been stated that there will be a tug-of-war between the intellectuals and the proletarians.

This affair, besides being a means of great enjoyment for the workers in our vicinity, will also be a means of placing the Young Workers' League of New York on its feet financially.

Room 405, 80 E. 11th Street.

[illegible] labor leaders also on the committee, such as Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, [illegible] secretary of the Joint Board of Furriers, etc. The function of the Federated Committee is to pool the purchasing of food and other supplies for Soviet Russia. Early in the campaign for relief this was found essential. Not only the Friends of Soviet Russia, but also the Cooperative Socialist Publishing Co., the United Cloth Hat and Cap Makers of North America, Joint Conference Russian Relief Ass'n, Joint Board of Furriers, N. Y. City, Workingmen's Mutual Aim Ass'n., New York City, International Fur Workers' Union of U. S. and Canada, Long Island City, Children's Milk Fund, N. Y. City, Workmen's Circle No. 457, Grand Rapids, Mich., St. Nicholas Society, Kenosha, Wis., as well as a large number of individual contributors, including the Temple Israel Sunday School, Cambridge, Mass., sent their funds to the Federated Committee for the more economical purchasing of supplies for the famine-stricken in Soviet Russia.

2. Altho the reporter of the "Forward" was referred to the auditor of the organization, he did not think it important enough to gather the information desired. He was likewise informed that the financial statement of the Federated Committee would be published in a few days. In his heat to make an "exposure" he could not wait for its publication.

The Forward Lies

The financial statement of the Federated Committee up to May 31 appears in the August 1 issue of "Soviet Russia." This statement, audited [illegible] the proper action from us.

3. The Friends of Soviet Russia, according to the "Forward," is conducting a "union-smashing" campaign in conjunction with a "union-[illegible]" press. This charge is so stupid that it hardly needs answering. Thirty-eight central labor bodies have endorsed the Friends of Soviet Russia. These include the Chicago Federation of Labor, the Detroit Federation of Labor, Los Angeles Central Labor Council, the Minneapolis and the St. Paul Trades and Labor Assembly, Philadelphia Central Labor Union, Rochester Trades and Labor Council, Seattle Central Labor Council and Illinois State Federation of Labor, Montreal Trades and Labor Council and Toronto Trades and Labor Council. Many of these central labor bodies, especially the Chicago and Detroit Federation of Labor, are among the most energetic and progressive organizations in the country.

Many Unions Affiliated

In addition, thousands of local unions are affiliated with the branches of the Friends of Soviet Russia, of which there are 250 in the United States and Canada. The United Mine Workers, the Painters and other labor organizations have made large contributions to the Friends of Soviet Russia.

It is not the province of the Friends of Soviet Russia to interfere in the internal affairs of unions. The Friends of Soviet Russia has a distinct mission—to collect funds for relief and reconstruction of Soviet Russia. It is self-evident that sup- [illegible] Workmen's Circle, the German Workmen's Sick and Death Benefit Association and innumerable fraternal organizations are earnest supporters of the FSR. Churches and Sunday Schools have made large contributions. The FSR, as a non-partisan organization, has the support of every section of the American population.

Papers Give Energetic Support

5. Support of the FSR in its various campaigns has not been confined to any particular type of labor paper or journal. The "Appeal to Reason" conducted a splendid campaign for the Roll Call and Tool Drives of the FSR. Socialist papers in the middle and far West, such as "Debs's Magazine," the "Davenport Tribune," the "Arbeiter Zeitung," Chicago, and other labor and liberal papers, such as the "Butte Daily Bulletin," "New Majority," "British Columbia Federationist," have given energetic support.

6. Eugene V. Debs, twice, in the name of the FSR, called on the American workers to help the organization in its magnificent work. His magazine continues its support in the full knowledge that the FSR is the sole organization in America performing this most essential task.

7. The papers mentioned above and particularly the more radical papers have been the best supporters of the FSR, the reason being obvious. These organs, and especially the more radical papers, have among their readers the workers of this country who really and sincerely sympathize with the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia. These papers are the type that do not, on [illegible] those papers were able to collect despite "earnest" efforts.

8. The FSR has inserted paid advertisements in all papers and periodicals from which it believed material returns could be obtained. "The Nation," "New Republic," "Pearson's," "Freeman," "Liberator," "Labor Age," "Christian Century," "World Tomorrow," "Birth Control Review," and the radical papers have carried FSR advertisements.

The New York Branch of the FSR has inserted advertisements amounting to many hundred dollars in the "Forward" and the "New York Call," despite the hostile attitude of those two organizations to the FSR and despite the fact that they published far more reports and publicity on the activity of the American Relief Administration than of the all-inclusive working class relief organization, the Friends of Soviet Russia.

Will Continue to Advertise

It has been, and will continue to be, the policy of the FSR, as it must be of every organization endeavoring to do its work efficiently, to advertise for financial support for the relief and building up of Soviet Russia in those papers and among those people who experience has shown are the only real friends of Soviet Russia. [illegible] all relief propaganda.

This is all the more imperative since it has become evident that not only famine relief must be provided for Soviet Russia, but also reconstruction aid. Funds must be collected for purchasing tools and machinery of every character, farming, industry, etc. An explanation of the present condition of things in Soviet Russia must be made to interest the American workers in the concessions that are soon to be offered. True friends of Soviet Russia would applaud all the efforts that are being made and can be made in this direction.

Aids Amalgamated's Plan

10. Organizers and speakers of the FSR are men and women interested in Soviet Russia. They are men and women sincerely endeavoring to help the Russian workers and peasants. Would the "Forward" have the FSR send out men whose aim it is to disrupt the work, discourage assistance and encourage the capitalists and their governments in further machinations against the government of the workers and peasants? The record of the "Forward" and other papers of its type affirm this contention.

11. The Friends of Soviet Russia is giving full support to the Russian American Industrial Corporation, an [illegible]

The "Forward" has lined up solidly with the haters of Soviet Russia. It has long been known, especially since the return of the editor of the "Forward" from Germany, where he gleaned such wonderful and precise information regarding the attitude of the workers and peasants of Russia toward their Soviet Government that Mr. Cahan has been a bitter hater of Soviet Regime. His paper has not hesitated to print the most malicious lies about the Soviet Government. It has conducted a campaign of misrepresentation as vile as that of capitalist organs openly bent upon the destruction of the Soviet Government. It has been far more insidious propaganda, since it came from the pen and mouth of professed "Socialists" and "representatives of the working class."

But little by little, the Socialists and proletarians who could not but sympathise with the workers and peasants and who were determined to leave the decisions to the form of government that was desirable in Soviet Russia to the citizens of that country—gradually the number of these has grown and they have left the fold of the readers of such pseudo-socialist papers as the "Forward."

All of One Pattern

Realizing that they are losing their hold on a certain more advanced sec- [illegible] and its confreres HATE Soviet Russia and are stabbing it in the back by vile insinuations against an organization that has proven not by words alone but by DEED to be a true friend of Soviet Russia.

The capitalist governments, the reactionary labor leaders, the yellow labor parties and their press form a solid phalanx in attacking Soviet Russia.

The Workers Will Know

The workers of this country will know how to treat Mr. Cahan and his kind. They will magnify their aid for Soviet Russia and stand solidly with the Friends of Soviet Russia in its campaign for the relief of the famine-stricken and the upbuilding of agriculture and industry in Soviet Russia.

Mr. Cahan, however, shall not escape so easily. It is highest time that an end be put to statements whose purpose it is to create distrust and disrupt constructive work. Mr. Cahan has stated that he "cannot prove" his charges and insinuations. The Friends of Soviet Russia demands that the "Forward" either prove its charges and insinuations or make a public retraction. Should it fail to do so, the "Forward" will have to bear the consequences.

FRIENDS OF SOVIET RUSSIA,
A. B. Martin, National Secretary.

American Ideals for Women vs. Communist Ideals for Women

By JEANETTE D. PEARL

The obscure agricultural state of Kansas came prominently to the foreground thruout the entire press of the country when it brought into life the Court of Industrial Relations.

This court undertook to mollify labor and to crush strikes. The joy of the master class was unbounded. Gleefully their press sang the praises of that court, but their jubilation was short-lived.

Kansas had also given birth to a Howat, and the submission that that court sought to impose upon labor was not so easy of realization. Workers were intimitated, arrested, convicted and imprisoned for defying the court's ruling.

Kansas is fast turning from an agricultural state to an industrial one. This turning is not proceeding fast enough to satisfy aspiring capitalists. A very great hindrance to that aspiration presents itself in the organized strength of the miners who before their last strike were reported to be organized 100 percent strong.

Capitalists aided by their politicians set out to destroy the miners' union so as to cow the rest of the industrial workers who were beginning to show signs of discontent.

Probe Labor Conditions for Women

This discontent began to alarm the far-sighted ones. The condition of labor in Kansas is such as to threaten the life of industry—labor is being starved too much—and labor efficiency in production as a result of too great an exploitation, becomes a question of importance to the master class.

The far-sighted ones decided to investigate the condition of labor under which women work in order to work out a minimum wage scale and assure continuation of production.

The Industrial Welfare Commission, the Department of Labor of Kansas together with the Women's Bureau of Washington set to work their social workers for an "investigation" of "Women's Wages in Kansas," in order to make recommendations to philanthropic capitalists on behalf of down-trodden labor, to allay the rise of discontent and to give an upward impulse to commerce and industry in the state of Kansas.

The investigation was conducted in the year of our Lord, June, 1919 to June, 1920. The report proceeds: "It is not possible to get general wage figures for women employed in many industries thruout the country, but even the limited figures available, show that the Kansas wages are far lower than those prevalent elsewhere. They are not only lower than the communities where the rates are known to be high, but they are lower than the average rate for the country as a whole."

Capitalists Violate Own Laws

That investigation was conducted during our period of prosperity. The reporter admits that "the wage conditions are probably the best that have ever existed in the State. The Peak was reached and passed. A survey taken now would probably show a standard of wages for women even less satisfactory that that which existed during June, 1919 and June, 1920." During that peak, the investigators found that nearly 30 percent of women in industry were earning less than $600 a year. A little over 40 percent were earning from $600 to $900 and about 30 percent earned over $900 or more. The report reveals that even the miserable standard of $11.00 a week established by the Kansas minimum wage awards is far from accepted in the industries of the State, but then the master class needs not live up to its own laws—laws are for the workers.

"The appalling size—nearly one-fifth of the women included in this survey—(of over five thousand women) were receiving less than $9.00 a week, and the fact that more than one half of the women were receiving less than $12.00 a week, discloses a very serious situation for the women workers of the State."

Recent budget studies (by social workers) show the approximate cost of living for women to be:

22.10 " " " Wash.
19.49 " " " D. C.
16.65 " " " N. D.

Woman Uses Brother's Room

No figures were given for the cost of living for women in the State of Kansas. But that cost as calculated for other states cannot even be realized by the women workers of Kansas. The reporter speaks of "pitiful economics" in stretching an $8.00 or $10.00 wage to meet the barest necessities of life. One woman unable to pay room rent, used the room of a brother who worked nights and was home only in the day time, when she was away.

The report also exposes the contention that women workers were generally young girls who work a few years and then drop out. Nearly 60 percent of the women interviewed were twenty-five years of age and over. Forty percent of them were either married or widowed and a very large proportion had family obligations. Practically every woman who lives at home, not only contributes to the upkeep of that home, but gives of her personal service in making that "home" a place to live in.

One group of women interviewed disclosed 13.4 percent married women working and these had husbands and children. The husbands of 42 were not working and the investigator naively states "presumably because they were ill or temporarily out of work." (Our emphasis.) Wives and mothers are not only forced into industry, but many women are compelled to supplement their husbands' income by either taking in work at home or going out to work by the day.

Workers Always in Debt

The spending of that "income" affords another tragic page in the history of the workers' lives. The denials, the stinting and the poverty of it, are heartbreaking. A large number of these girls are forced to run up bills. "That's how they get along. They all have bills all over town," one of them observed, "and you know people figure on making something off you if they give you credit. Yes, the girls are always in debt.' Another case reported shows the leopard spots of capitalism. "My brother lost his eye because acid got into it when he was soldering cans. He never got any compensation, and it cost us so far nearly $700. We are all in debt."

The report concludes with that, "There can be no denial that the wages of more than half of the women are less than sufficient to maintain a satisfactory standard of life for one person. Indeed nearly one half of the women reported in the survey were earning less than the $11.00 a week which has been set as a minimum for the manufacturing industries by the Kansas Industrial Commission. Besides their own support many of these women have been shown to be carrying additional burdens in the form of complete or partial responsibility for the maintenance of the family.

"In the industries of Kansas these responsibilities, and the large share taken by women in upholding the standard of life, have been ignored. This report shows the women wage-earners to be in many instances the responsible heads of families, and in many more instances important contributors to the maintenance of others. If the cost of living is to be the basis of a living wage for women, these facts must be taken into consideration. When this is done a more adequate standard can be assured which will not only protect the women from exploitation but will also make possible in the State a standard of living more in keeping with American ideals."

The working women of Kansas have need of such American ideals. No one must make the mistake that these women investigated were "ignorant foreigners." Ninety percent of these women were native American born white women and five per cent were colored. These women are subsisting on less than $11.00 a week, working from 40 to 56 hours daily in industry and all kinds of hours out of industry. They are educated Americans. Now what is capitalism going to do for them? For one thing Kansas has intrenched itself with a Court of Industrial Relations. Merchants are publicly testifying that girls can dress on $90.00 a year and feed on sixty cents a day.

Miners' Solidarity an Example

The miners' solidarity stands a living example to these outraged and exploited women, beckoning them to organize and solidify their ranks. Any wonder that the master class aims to undermine the power of the miners? Any wonder that the more intelligent workers prefer jail and persecution to obeying the dictums of the industrial courts.

The report reveals the bankruptcy of capitalist civilization, the hypocrisy of their American ideals and their blood lust for profits. Here is their boasted sacred womanhood, wifehood and motherhood, not only forced into the factory for exploitation but degraded even in its standard of living. Oh! The boasted ideals—the sacred family life, the holy family—how capitalism rends asunder all the ties of the worker to serve its profits.

The marriage haven stands exploded. Industry is no longer a temporary makeshift for women, but has now become a permanent institution and an additional one to family duties and obligations. This permanent institution, wage slavery, women are now directly facing with even more harrowing brutality than that of men workers. The women too must find a way out of this brutality, this morass. It is only in the clean atmosphere of communism, where womanhood will be respected, where motherhood will be sacred and wifehood will be honored.

Women of Kansas, women of all States, Communism calls to you! Form ranks with your exploited brothers. Support the strength of labor by organizing economically and politically for Communist ideals.

Women must strive not for a minimum wage and with it the perpetuation of wage-slavery, but for Industrial Freedom and the maximum enjoyments of life, for all workers.

The legislature of the State of Coahuila de Zaragoza, in Mexico, has passed a resolution calling on the President of the United States to release Ricardo Flores Magon and Librado Rivera, two Mexicans now confined in the Leavenworth penitentiary for 20 and 15 years, respectively, for publishing a manifesto and discussion of world problems in their Spanish paper "Regeneration" during the war.

CONSTRUCTION WORKERS ATTENTION!

If you are going to Soviet Russia you must do several things first:
You must join the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia.
You must learn to speak Russian.
You must acquaint yourself with conditions in Soviet Russia today in order to avoid disappointments. A class is being organized to teach the Russian language. This class you must join if you can not speak Russian.
The Construction Workers of Soviet Russia have undertaken the greatest construction program ever launched in any country. America has the men to do this job.
Thousands of American workers will go to Soviet Russia in the next few years. Will you be one of them?

Workers and Peasants of Republics of Guatemala and Mexico Exchange Greetings

The Communists of Guatemala to the Communist Party of Mexico

Comrades! We and the whole revolutionary proletariat of Guatemala thank you for your brotherly words.

You have pointed out the aims and intentions of our exploiting classes with great clearness. We are again called upon to shed our blood for the avaricious interests of individual cliques. The revolutionary cloak used by these men is to serve the purpose of deceiving the workers and peasants.

The Cabrera Government brought us nothing but clubbings, ruthless exploitation, barracks in which all of us were treated like beasts, and prisons in which our comrades were eaten up by vermin.

And what did the bourgeois Government of Herrera bring us? The deception of all our hopes; the bloody scorn of a party for which we had bled on the fields and in the streets of Guatemala.

And then after the victory of this party, when the proletariat made its just demands, it was answered with machine guns. When we protested against the extradition of Mexican fugitives who sought asylum in our country, our leaders were thrown into prison. We then organized, and the peasants and workers of Guatemala united to fight for the Communist ideals. Our organizations were persecuted; our wives and children were killed in the streets of the capital, and many workers were shot down. Comrades, we have suffered defeats, but our enemies have not succeeded in crippling us. Herrera was overthrown.

To-day Orellana tells us that this Government is a "liberal administration", and his program contains many beautiful and good promises for the working people. But what is actually taking place? Revolutionary workers are continually persecuted. In the country, the government troops are shooting the rebellious peasants like dogs. Our leaders have not yet been freed from prison. Nothing has changed.

Comrades! As long as the unfortunate agrarian worker of Central and South America is subjected by a double yoke,—by a national, cynical bourgeoisie on the one side, and by the unscrupulous foreign exploiters on the other,—we must unite more closely and fight together in order to throw off our fetters with our united strength! Only then will we be able to [illegible] of freedom, the land of the workers.

Long live the [illegible] of the American proletariat!

Long live the Communist Party of Mexico!

Long live the Communist International!

The Communist Party of Mexico to the Workers and Peasants of Guatemala

Comrades! You have overthrown the Cabrera Government whose tyranny was limitless. Power fell into the hands of the petty bourgeoisie, whose head, Herrera, sought to convince you of the victory of the "principles of liberty". But what was the aim of the petty bourgeoisie and how did it realize the principles of liberty? It was the extension of the capitalistic freedom to industrialize your country and to transform the land-slaves of yesterday into the wage slaves of to-day. Or did the Herrera Government perchance bring you any other liberties? Did perhaps, the slave-whip fall less cruelly upon the wounded backs of your wage-slaves? Did perhaps the persecution of those of you who openly announced their revolutionary ideas, become less intense? No, Comrades!

But in spite of all this, the petty bourgeoisie could not hold its positions. The counter-revolution came and Herrera fell, just as Cabrera did.

The generals, the worst element in our Central American republics, hirelings of the economic and political lust for grab of American imperialism, began a new bloody comedy and helped their friend Orellaña to the presidency.

Orellana claims to possess the absolute and "upright" sympathy of the United States. We of the Latin-American countries know only too well what this "upright sympathy" means. It signifies victory for those who most unscrupulously betray the interests of their own country to North American capital. Orellana is victorious and numerous American industrialists are already paying your country a visit.

But what does your overthrown petty bourgeoisie do in the mean-time? It seeks friends and "upright sympathy" for itself.

Comrades! The present Mexican Government conducted by Obregon is ready to give it this assistance. The new Mexican bourgeoisie has learned from the Wall Street model. Why should not the growing high finance of Mexico possess a policy of conquest of its own? If the United States can acquire an economic and political guardianship over Mexico, why should not Mexico do likewise in Guatemala?

Ammunition, weapons and generals are being sent to your borders. A new revolution is to be enacted. Your petty bourgeoisie once more begins to talk of its "principles of liberty". They seek to provoke you into a new civil war, for the purpose of increasing the profits of individual financial groups.

Comrades, do not permit yourselves to be deceived by "Democratic", "Liberal" and "Socialist" promises. We, your Mexican brothers, who have been convinced by decades of bitter experiences that the liberation of the proletariat can be accomplished solely thru the power of the workers and peasants themselves, warn you of the impending event.

Take the arms that are offered you, but take them to fight for our own interests. Take them to overthrow the generals; take them to liberate yourselves from the rule of the landowners; reserve your bullets for this work!

The Mexican proletariat will fraternally support you in this. Our workers and peasants will rise against the imperialistic attempts of the "Socialist" Government of Obregon.

Brothers of Guatemala! Workers and peasants of Latin America! We call you to the mobilization of the revolutionary masses of all American countries!

Long live the united front of the American proletariat!

Long live the Communist International!

Long live the World Revolution!

Greet Representative of Karelian Workers' Commune to America

One of the most successful of recent working-class events in New York City was the banquet arranged by friends of George Halonen, representative in this country of the Karelian Workers' Commune, held at the Labor Temple on 84th St.

A host of 150 comrades greeted the representative of this workers' government that rules over the red border state between Red Russia and White Finland.

Many of those present are prominent not only in the labor movement of this country, but also in Europe.

C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers Party, acted as chairman.

Charles Recht, legal representative of Soviet Russia in this country, spoke on proletarian diplomacy, relating his experiences with the proletarian diplomats of Red Russia, and of their intercourse with the capitalist diplomats at the Genoa Conference.

Ludwig Lore, editor of the Volkszeitung, spoke on the character of the workers' representative, expressing the hope that soon the American workers will have an opportunity to welcome a workers' representative from Soviet Germany.

George Halonen, in his speech, thanked the American workers and their spokesmen, for their good will and the enthusiasm shown towards Soviet Karelia and Soviet Russia.

Then he read parts of the Declaration of Independence of the Karelian Workers' Commune, granted by the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic.

Halonen also spoke briefly on the history of Karelia and its people, and their system of self-government, assuring the American workers that the Karelian and Russian workers are not fighting and working for their own but for the cause of the international proletariat.

Many telegrams of congratulations were received. Among them we may mention the following received from the chairman of the delegation at Washington of the Far Eastern Republic (Siberia). It is as follows:

"Heartiest wishes and greetings from delegation of Far Eastern Republic.—Yazikoff, Chairman."

NEW JERSEY IYPSL DECIDES TO BREAK WITH YWL.

The New Jersey Independent Young People's Socialist League at its convention at Newark, on July 30th, decided to break away from the Young Workers League and remain independent. This decision was reached after an hour's debate by a handful of picked delegates.

It will be remembered that the IYPSL of New Jersey answered the call of the Young Workers League for a convention to organize the class-conscious revolutionary youth of this country into one single organization. After agreeing to the convention call and participating in the YWL convention, where they were seated as regular delegates these delegates on their return worked their hardest to keep the Jersey Yipsels from amalgamating with the YWL.

The IYPSL of New Jersey boasts of 90 members. Elizabeth heads the list with 45 members, Newark 20 and Patterson 25. The Executive Committee of IYPSL boasted that it had successfully reduced on account of its independent policy, the membership of 900 in 1920 to 90 in 1922.

Persecution in California

Following the policy of the police of this city in arresting every one connected with any radical activity, two members of the Workers Party have been arrested and charged with criminal syndicalism, the charge being later changed to "vagrancy."

Previously a number of Socialists, I. W. W. and others were arrested and charged with various offences, the purpose of which seems to be to discourage any sort of activity of the workers not in line with the well-being of the exploiters. X. Y., Inglewood, Calif.

Growth in Subscriptions Shows Readers' Interest in Campaign

The second week since the real beginning of the campaign of THE WORKER for 25,000 new readers shows a very substantial increase in the number of subscriptions sent in over last week.

This proves the readers of this paper are taking hold of the problem of making THE WORKER a greater influence in American proletarian life. They, in response to our call to them to help in this campaign, are responding in a way that proves their interest in the problems facing the workers. It also proves they are of that part of the working class which believes in fighting for the cause it believes in. It proves, too, that they know how to tackle this problem and to solve it in the only way it can be solved, by actually doing the things which mean increased circulation—they go and get the subscriptions.

The response is magnificent. In another column you will find the figures showing the increase in the number of subs received over last week. This is the best evidence possible to prove the popularity of this campaign among our readers.

We must keep up this weekly gain. We should reach the THOUSAND-A-WEEK MARK this coming week. We should not fall below that mark until we have rolled up the full 25,000 new readers. We can do this. There is absolutely no reason why we should not accomplish this task. WE MUST DO IT.

These two past weeks prove to us that workers WILL subscribe for THE WORKER, that they WILL give the price, that there are many, many thousands who are not only willing, but will gladly become readers if our present readers will but go to them with a copy of the paper, and ask them for the 50 cents for 20 weeks.

We wish we could publish all the letters we receive from comrades who are helping. THEY would open the eyes of the doubtful, the negligent, the disinterested. Many, many letters say in so many words: "Thank you for sending me these five cards to sell."

This is the spirit that will win success in this campaign. This is the spirit in which we must tackle our problems. We must look upon our work in the revolutionary movement as a privilege. We must take joy in being granted the privilege of working in the greatest movement in the world's history.

The increasing of the circulation of THE WORKER, which means enlarging its influence among the masses, is one of the privileges which the revolutionary movement gives you thru your adherence to this movement. Use this privilege. Do the concrete things which make the movement grow. SELL YOUR SUBSCRIPTION CARDS. ORDER MORE. DON'T STOP UNTIL WE HAVE THESE 25,000 NEW READERS.

Some Cheering Words from the Fighting Front

From a Striking Railroader

"Enclosed find $3.00 for the ten cards sent. Don't know if I can dispose of them just now but will try. My husband with others are now on strike in the R. R. shops and all must be careful of their funds, much as they would like to have and need the information in The Worker."—S. M. C., New Mexico.

"Herewith find $2.50 for the five cards sent me. With good will for the cause you fight for."—A. O., Rochester, N. Y.

"I just received your five cards yesterday and have sold them all."—J. J. J., Cleveland, O.

"Enclosed find check for $8.50 for sub cards. This will make 30 new subscriptions we have sent you. Not bad. If every Workers Party member would do as much The Worker readers would go into big figures."—M. B., Yukon, Pa.

"I am sending you the money for the sub cards received a few days ago. Wishing you great success for The Worker."—J. D. F., Etna, Pa.

"Enclosed find $2.50 for sub cards. Sold four cards yesterday. Will do the best I can for The Worker."—M. F., Bessemer, Pa.

"Enclosed find money order for $7.50 for 15 sub cards. Hoping you have success in the campaign."—P. A. M., Woodlawn, Pa.

"I am in receipt of your letter with five special 20-week sub cards which I am trying to sell. Enclosed find check for $2.50."—R. C., Philadelphia, Pa.

"The Worker subscription cards have been received, and I will notify you that I have succeeded pretty well in selling them. Money will be forwarded within a week or so."—A. Z., Boston.

One of our livest BUILDERS is a comrade on vacation at the Workers Unity House, Forest Park, Pa., the summer resort owned and operated by the International Ladies' Garment Workers for its members. "Enclosed please find order for $11.60 for nine subscriptions and for 182 Workers which I sold," she writes.

Comrade J. S., of Baltimore, mails six sold cards and says: "When I have sold the ten cards I will order more."

"Am sure glad to help you and hope the rest will do the same," writes Comrade E. D. E. of Wellsburg, W. Va.

"I am for The Worker because The Worker is for the World Revolution. Keep it that way," writes Comrade S. G. S. of South Tunnel, Tenn. And he remits for the sub cards.

HE'S A COMMUNIST

The Communist member of the Polish Diet, Dombal, has been sentenced to penal servitude for six years, with the loss of all citizens' rights and of his right to sit in the Diet.

The sentence is passed on the grounds that he "belonged to an association which has as its object the overthrow of the existing order of government."

According to the evidence in Court, as far as it has been published in the Polish papers, it has not been possible to prove that Dombal has preached or practised rebellion against the Polish Government, and the Court could only convict on the grounds that he was a member of the Communist Party. The whole indictment and sentence is framed on this fact.

The City Central Committee of Local Philadelphia has been carrying on a campaign of street meetings for some time past and has been meeting with a cordial reception. The speakers report that the audiences are attentive and the spirit shown is very friendly. Good sales of literature are reported and numerous "subs" to the WORKER have been sold.

Meetings are being held regularly on the corner of Kensington Ave. and Cambria St., on Friday nights and on Front and Dauphin Sts., on Saturday nights. Both these corners are located in the heart of a strictly workingclass district, the great textile center of Philadelphia.

In past years the Socialist Party had one of its best branches in this part of the city, the 33rd ward. In 1912, when the first great "Purification" took place, it was necessary to expel the entire branch because it was "RED" and would not swallow the Berger-Hillquit dope. Since that time despite various re-organizations the Socialist Party could never regain its membership.

The workers in this district are to a large extent militant and class conscious. The program and tactics of the WORKERS PARTY will get their endorsement whenever we make it known to them.

It's up to us to GO TO THE MASSES!! If you can speak, we need speakers, if you can act as chairman, we need chairmen. If you can sell literature, we need literature sellers, if you can hand out leaflets here's your chance. If you can only stand around you can lend moral support and help to get a crowd started.

The Picnic Committee of the C. C. of Local Philadelphia is working hard to make a huge success of their MID-SUMMER PICNIC to be held at Schutzen Park, 83rd and Tinicum Ave., Saturday, August 12th. The National Office has been requested to furnish one of our best speakers for the occasion. All branches that have not elected delegates to the committee must do so at once. Tickets are at the Headquarters, 218 N. 13th St., ready for distribution.

The City Convention of Local Philadelphia will take place August 4th, Friday, 8 P. M., at Headquarters, 218 N. 13th St.—M. Kushinsky, Secretary C. C. C.

Russia To-day and Yesterday

The Rockaway Branch of the Friends of Soviet Russia are holding an open-air meeting Saturday, August 5, 8.30 P. M., Boulevard and 84th St., Rockaway Beach. J. Louis Engdahl will be the principal speaker.

A Class in Russian

A class in Russian is being organized by the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia. All interested are requested to communicate with M. Kesselman, Executive Secretary of the New York Branch of the S. T. A. S. R., 240 East 23rd Street, New York. Office hours: 6 to 10 P. M.

Arrange World-Wide Celebration of Youth Day, Sunday, Sept. 3

International Youth Day will be celebrated by the Young Workers' League of America on Sunday, September 3. On that day the young workers' organizations in all parts of the world will demonstrate their loyalty to the struggle to build a better world for the workers.

Branches of the Workers Party are urged not to arrange any party affairs on Sept. 3d but to co-operate with the Young Workers' League in making a success of their celebration.

Wherever there is a Young Workers' League organization the party units should give their full support to that organization.

In those places in which no Y. W. L. branch exists as yet the party branches should take the initiative and organize a celebration of International Youth Day, taking advantage of this celebration to organize a branch of the Young Workers' League.

With the full co-operation of the party International Youth Day can be made not only a demonstration of the loyalty of the Y. W. L. to the class struggle but will result in greatly adding to the strength of that organization.

Marshall Tour

Comrade John Marshall, who has recently been doing agitation and organization work in District No. 2 is now engaged in similar work under direction of the National Organization.

During the next ten days Comrade Marshall will visit towns in Massachusetts and New Hampshire in an effort to build up English branches in the New England District. He will speak in the following places: Aug. 3, Norwood, Mass.; Aug. 4, Fitchburg; Aug. 5, Ashby; Aug. 6, Worcester; Aug. 7, Springfield; Aug. 8, Gardiner; Aug. 9, So. Royalton; Aug. 10, Troy, N. H.

Following the New England trip Comrade Marshall will spend two months in Ohio and West Virginia visiting the towns thruout those states in which in the past strong working-class party groups have existed in an effort to rebuild the organization which previously existed in those states.

The National Organization of the party is planning similar work in each district as soon as organizers can be found for the work.

Baltimore United Front Campaign

The Baltimore section of the Workers Party has taken the initiative in building up a United Front of the workers of that city. It has secured a supply of the United Front Manifesto "Workers! Unite and Fight the Bosses," and mailed a copy together with a letter to each union of that city. The letter declares:

"Our party has begun a gigantic national campaign for the promulgation of a united front against the audacious and shameless tyranny of capital, the need of which in the present moment is self-evident to every thinking working man and woman in this country.

"The enclosed pamphlet treats the matter in a thoro and instructive manner, and we trust that you will give it your most earnest and unbiased support."

Thru this effort the Baltimore local will bring the party and its program before the mass of the unorganized workers of that city and it will undoubtedly result in building up a stronger fighting organization of the workers there.

National Defense Committee

Much publicity has been given in recent years to workers' defense organizations defending workers prosecuted because of their part in the class struggle. The work of the National Defense Committee for Political Prisoners and Deportees, to give its full name, is not, however, as widely known as it should be.

The National Defense Committee is probably to-day fighting the cases and giving relief in a larger number of instances than any other organization. Thru its national organization and branches in various sections of the country it is taking care of over a hundred instances in which members of the working class are being prosecuted for their part in the class struggle.

The National Defense Committee was organized after the Palmer raids of the end of 1919 and the early part of 1920. Its first task was to organize the defense of the nearly four thousand Communists who were arrested for deportation and of the workers indicted under state laws during the same period.

This work was accomplished in so successful a manner that out of the thousands whom the government originally held for deportation not more than ten per cent were actually convicted.

Cases Pending

At the present time the National Defense Committee and its various branches have a score of deportation cases pending in New York City, eleven criminal anarchy prosecutions in New York State, several deportation cases in New England, forty cases involving deportation and [illegible] in Philadelphia, [illegible] about a dozen other deportation cases in various parts of the country.

Owing to the fact that most of the deportees are sent out of the United States via Ellis Island and the last fight for their liberty must be made in New York City, the greatest burden of the work of defending deportees has fallen upon the New York Division of the committee, which has defended these cases in co-operation with national organization.

At the present time the New York Division is taking care of four men and two women serving sentences in the state prisons by sending them regular weekly remittances for such comforts as the prison rules permit and thru furnishing relief to the families of the prisoners. These men and women are Carl Paivio, Gus Alonen, Ignatz Misher, Paul Manko, Minnie Kolnin and Anna Leiseman.

In four instances the cases of these imprisoned workers are being appealed to higher courts, and the heavy expense of such appeals is being taken care of. Under the barbarous New York laws, altho the guilt of a convicted man or woman may still be subject to review by a higher court, bail can be denied, and this has been done in practically all the Communist cases.

Besides these there are four cases pending in the courts in which the defendants are out on bail. Harry Winitsky, who served two years of his five to ten year sentence, is subject to return to prison for the balance of his terms by the Appellate Division. The cases of I. E. Ferguson and C. E. Ruthenberg were reversed by the Court of Appeals, after they had served a year and half each, and a new trial ordered. Altho the decision of the Court of Appeals is of such a character that it is not likely that these comrades will be tried again, they are still held under indictment and $5,000 bail.

The Ben Gitlow Case

The case against Ben Gitlow was upheld by the Court of Appeals, the highest court in New York State. This means that unless a judge of the Supreme Court of the United States grants bail for Gitlow while the case is taken thru that court, he will have to go back to prison to serve the remainder of his five to ten year sentence.

To take the Gitlow case to the Supreme Court will involve thousands of dollars and the work of raising this money is placing a heavy burden upon the New York Division.

Those who desire to make contributions to help fight the New York cases should send their contributions to Nerma Berman, Secretary, Room 405, 799 Broadway, New York City.

Case of Israel Blankenstein

In Pittsburgh the capitalist prosecuting officials are showing just what they can do in violating their own rules in order to railroad a worker to prison.

In January of this year Israel Blankenstein was arrested there and charged with being an organizer of the Communist Party. After being held in prison for four months he was brought to trial and convicted thru proceedings which were as great a travesty on justice as has ever occurred in an American court room.

The judge who presided at his trial, probably feeling ashamed of the whole proceedings, has not yet sentenced Blankenstein, altho nearly three months have elapsed since the trial. The case is so bad that anyone reading the record will conclude that it is impossible for a higher court to sustain the conviction. By not imposing sentence the judge, however, makes it impossible to carry up the appeal and thus keeps Blankenstein in prison.

Bond in the Blankenstein case was fixed at $5,000. When the National Defense Committee secured this amount with the help of the National Bail Fund and offered Liberty Bonds for that amount the bond was jumped to $20,000. This was later reduced to $15,000, but efforts to secure this have thus far proven unavailing, and Blankenstein is still in the Alleghany County Jail.

More Help Needed

There is one thing that the revolutionary workers owe those who become the victims of the capitalist prosecutors. They must support the fight for the freedom of the workers who are in danger of prison or in prison. They must furnish relief to their families. They must furnish those in prison with such comforts as the prison rules allow. That much must be done.

The National Defense Committee is doing these things. It needs greater support, more funds, to do this work more efficiently. Those workers who believe this work should be done should send their contribution to the National Defense Committee, Room 405, 799 Broadway, New York City.

"President Harding Amnesty Clocks" are to be erected in cities thruout the country to fix attention on the President's promise, given on July 19, that the records of the political prisoners still in prison ought to be gone over within sixty days.

DO YOU BELONG to the Young Workers League of America

An organization of the live, thinking workers of America.

A young people's organization which aims toward making the mass of young workers in America understand their class interests.

An organization of youth which recognizes that independent working class education is the only education beneficial to the worker.

An organization of the mentally awake young workers who strive to unite the working class youth of America into a militant, fighting body against the capitalist class.

An organization of young workers engaging in the daily strifes and struggles against capitalist oppression, fighting in the battles of the workers, day by day—fighting, educating, organizing the mass of young workers.

An organization of youth supporting the adult revolutionary working class political party in America, the Workers Party of America.

A young workers' organization which recognizes that only thru the overthrow of capitalism (a system of robbery), and the setting up of a Workers' Government, a Republic of Workers' Councils, to the elimination of useless, bloodsucking drones—the capitalists—as the first step toward the attainment of a classless society, communism, can the the youth and adult—all the exploited workers—eliminate the hellishness and misery of life under capitalism.

The Young Workers' League appeals to all thinking young workers to join its ranks; to aid in the work of the education and organization of the youth of this country; to become part of a movement aiming for the establishment of a society where only those who do useful labor shall receive of the good things of life; to join with an organization fighting that equal opportunity for all shall not be a mere phrase but may become a reality.

The Young Workers' League asks all who realize that capitalist slavery must be replaced by a society founded on the willingness of men to do honest labor, to enter its ranks and work for the accomplishment of this end.

Issued by the National Executive Committee of the Young Workers League of America.

Finnish Athletes Make Big Hit at Picnic of New York Workers Party

Local Greater New York under the most favorable circumstances held its summer festival and picnic at Dickert's Park last Sunday. An ideal summer day with not a cloud in the sky brought a great number of our members to spend some pleasurable hours amongst friends and comrades.

All language groups were represented at the picnic, making one huge family symbolizing the unity and fraternity of workers.

The Finnish comrades were there with a strong contingent of athletes, who gave an exhibition in races with the following results:

100-Metre Race: 1. K. Kilpi, 12.1; 2. F. Aho, 12.2; 3. A. Kangas, 12.3; 4. O. Manno, 18.00.

12-Lb. Shot Put: 1. A. Kangas, 42 ft. 4 in.; 2. K. Kilpi, 40 ft. 8 in.; 3. F. Aho, 38 ft. ½ in.; 4. O. Manno, 34 ft. 11 in.

Running Board Jump: 1. K. Kilpi, 20 ft. 6 in.; 2. F. Aho, 20 ft.; 3. A. Kangas, 19 ft. 2 in.; 4. E. Tolkka, 17 ft. 11½ in.

Three-Mile Run: 1. W. Hellman, "Vihe," 18.58; 2. E. Hill, "Kaleva," 18.27.4; 3. O. Hack, "Visa," 19.43; 4. Hj. Norena "Vesa," 20.21.6.

The following won prizes: 1. K. Kilpi, 238.6 points; 2. A. Kangas, 235.4; 3. F. Aho, 228.7; 4. O. Manno, 219.3; 5. E. Tolkka, 196.

The exhibition of the Finnish comrades shows the necessity for forming a general athletic group of the workers.

The Ferrer School children marched into the park with their banners and sang their little songs of joy.

C. E. Ruthenberg, National Secretary of the Workers Party, and William W. Weinstone, Secretary of the Local, spoke on the theme of the United Front of the Proletariat in the struggle against the capitalist oppressors.

The Rejected Invitation

Bayonets do not dig coal. Injunctions do not run railroads. And now the Department of the Interior at Washington confesses that "presidential invitations" are just as helpless.

The coal barons, on Monday morning, July 24, patted their swollen paunches while hearty laughter shook their jowls for had not President Harding "invited" them to open their mines with the promised aid of the military, the courts and all the other powers of the capitalist state.

The results of the first week are reported by the geological survey of the Department of Interior to the effect that "there is no indication of increased production in response to the invitation to reopen mines in any of the strongly organized districts."

It is claimed that a little coal is coming out of the non-union fields. The answer to that is 100 per cent organization in the mining industry.

It is admitted that coal production is being cut down by the shopmen's strike. This should teach the workers the value of complete co-operation between the workers on the railroads and in the mines.

When labor is solidly organized with all industries co-operating, then the workers can laugh at bayonets, injunctions, presidential invitations, appeals to patriotism and the flag wavers. Even now they may smile at their exploiters. Let that smile grow.

Japan has asked for a conference with representatives of the Far Eastern Republic (Siberia). This is heralded as an admission that Russia has been successful in lining up Asia against the island empire of the Mikado.

Jules Guesde Passes

Jules Guesde, the veteran revolutionary Socialist of the days before the great war, died the other day in Paris at the age of 77.

Guesde is numbered with those revolutionists who went down in 1914 with the Second International in the tidal wave of social patriotism.

Early in his career he was sentenced to six months' imprisonment for a revolutionary article against the Empire in his paper "Droits de L'homme."

He attempted to stir up revolutionary sentiment at the time of the Paris Commune and was condemned to five years' imprisonment.

Thereafter he was often imprisoned for short periods as he co-operated with Marx, Engels and Lafargue.

Guesde denounced the Franco-Prussian War in 1870 and wrote, "Let Us Stop Shouting: 'To Berlin!' and Rally to the Cry of: 'To the Tuilleries!' in Order to Overthrow the Empire."

Guesde went to Copenhagen for the last congress of the Second International in 1910 and took his stand with that group among whom we found Karl Liebknecht and Clara Zetkin.

Zetkin is fighting today, more than ever, in the ranks of the world's Communists, a power in the Communist International.

Liebknecht was martyred in the struggle for proletarian victory, but his name is on the lips of workers in all lands, and the inspiration aroused by his deeds will go travelling down the ages.

Guesde was swept off his feet by the war hysteria. He was captured by the jingoes. He became a member of the French Imperialist cabinet of national defense. He helped bolster up that imperialism that is today the worst foe of Worker's Rule in Russia. He has gone, almost unnoticed, to a forgotten grave.

Passage of the tariff bill at Washington has been put off to give the senators a little more time to gamble in wool, "as they gambled in sugar years ago," says the New York World. No doubt the senators will excuse this on the ground that they need a little money for campaign expenses this fall.

Playing Politics with Lives

Abraham Cahan, editor of the Jewish Daily Forward and field marshal of the yellow "Socialist" attack on Communism in the United States, has now launched a malicious attack against the Friends of Soviet Russia.

The official reply of the Friends of Soviet Russia appears in another column and we ask all our readers to give it a careful study and ask others interested to become acquainted with its contents.

This latest slander is the most infamous yet invented by the yellow "Socialists" in their attack on the revolutionary workers of this country.

Cahan and his Forward are merely seeking to continue the dirty work on behalf of reaction that characterized their efforts at the conventions of the Cloakmakers, at Cleveland; the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, at Chicago; the Workmen's Circle, at Toronto, and the Furriers at Philadelphia.

The "Socialist" Cahan joins with the White Guardist Hoover in attacking the only workers' famine relief organization in the United States.

"I cannot prove it," confesses Cahan, "but I am morally convinced that more than half the money raised has been misapplied."

Cahan is also "morally" convinced that Communism is wrong and that the Communist International is a failure, and he has doubts about the existence of a Soviet Republic in Russia.

It does not matter how many facts and figures the Friends of Soviet Russia will supply Cahan, he will nevertheless be "morally convinced" of his own righteousness. And Soviet Rule may spread to all the corners of the earth, but he will not recognize it.

It is up to the workers of the nation to decide whether Cahan's criminal attempts to play politics with the lives of Soviet Russia's famine sufferers is to succeed.

We do not believe the workers will pay any attention to this latest effort of the betrayers whose alliance with reaction has already been unmasked repeatedly.

Let our slogan be, "More support for the Friends of Soviet Russia. All aid to the famine sufferers of the Russian Workers' Republic."

The Crisis in Italy

Italy is on the verge, if not actually in the grip of civil war. The government has lost all influence and the struggle is between the Communists, supported by the workers and the peasants on the one hand, and the White Guard Fascisti on the other, with a powerful military organization.

The Communists proclaimed a general strike for August 1, "as the final fight of the workers against the Fascisti and for a Workers' Government."

The Italian Communist Party is definitely calling for the overthrow of the capitalist state and the establishment of soviet rule.

In one declaration, issued thru the official organ of the party we find the following: "Workers, Peasants and Soldiers! Be ready to fight to the last for your liberation. You must fight to create a government of workers, peasants and soldiers that will be able to guide the fight against armed reaction to the last."

The workers are warned, in this proclamation, against the compromising "Socialist" measures that betray labor's cause.

In another proclamation recently published in "L'Ordine Nuovo," the official organ of the Italian Communist Party, the Italian workers, peasants and soldiers are called upon to be ready to take up arms in their own struggle.

It is pointed out that the present crisis opens a new phase of revolutionary developments in Italy, declaring, "It shows how near the moment is when the Italian proletariat will show to the world that it is able to take the government into its own hands. The strenuous resistance of the workers of Noverese and Liguria (cities in Northern Italy) has been the bulwark against the Fascisti of Italy."

It is urged that the workers thruout Italy organize on a national scale for the same stubborn resistance to the murderous Fascisti who declare "revolvers will proclaim the doom" of the present general strike unless it is broken by the government.

The Communists insist that the "proletarian organizations are in a position at the present time to effect an organization on a national scale that will mean the basis for the triumph of the Italian proletariat."

While this struggle develops between the Communists and the Fascisti, the King, with his politicians, is frantic in his efforts to organize a new cabinet in place of the fallen De Facta government.

It is among these politicians, seeking to perpetuate the capitalist state, that we find the "Socialists," especially Turati, spokesmen for the coalitionists in favor of entering a government with representatives of the non-Socialist Parties.

This situation makes the present Italian crisis the most interesting since the workers of Italy seized the metal factories, two years ago, and began spreading their power to other industries until they were halted by the betrayal of their leaders.

Present developments are filled with hope and pregnant with great possibilities. The final clash must come, sooner or later, between the Red Guard of the Italian working class and the White Guard Fascisti of Italian capitalism.

In that struggle the Italian workers, thru their numbers, their organization, their agreement upon a definite Communist program of action, must win.

Gompers is busy. The Seattle, Wash., Office Employers' Union has been suspended for the same reason that this treatment was handed out to the New York organization. Sammy seems to have taken Mitchell Palmer's place as a "red raider."

Decision Is Not Final

The British Communist Party refuses to accept as final the decision of the Edinburgh Conference of the Labor Party barring it from affiliation.

It has issued a special edition of The Communist, its official organ, setting forth its position before the workers of Great Britain.

It charges that it is the middle-class theoreticians of the British Fabian Society and the Independent Labor Party who are splitting the labor movement; who, as the Communist Party grows stronger, grow even more bitter in their hostility to the Communist Party's claim to affiliation.

The Communist charge that it is the Sidney Webbs, the Ethel Snowdens and the J. Ramsay MacDonalds, who, with Frank Hodges, of the Miners' Union, as their enthusiastic ally, are straining every nerve to secure an "industrial peace" with the ruling class and a political truce with the middle class.

The rank and file of the trade unions are urged to be on their guard and to support the Communist Party in its struggle.

The Communist has no ends to serve other than those of the working class.

The National Coal Association, an organization of coal profiteers, has issued a statement declaring that the affair at Herrin, Ill., was a union conspiracy. We wonder if the coal barons expected us to believe they would plead guilty to the charge of the coroner's jury that the trouble started when the mine bosses tried to open their mines with strikebreakers.

Six hundred German marks for $1; 2,000 Hungarian crowns for $1, and Raymond Recouly, of France, in this country pleading for help to the tune of "Aid us or we fall," saying the French franc will go the same path as the German mark. And judging by the cost of living the American dollar isn't worth very much either.

The Moscow Trial

It is believed that another week will see the end of the trial of the Social Revolutionaries at Moscow. At this writing the closing addresses are being made.

There is a unanimity of sentiment that the Soviet Government has proved its case against these counter-revolutionists.

Prosecutor Krylenko summarized the testimony against the defendants. He showed the connection of those on trial with the various plots charged against them, including the assassination of Volodarsky and Uritzky, Soviet Commissars in Petrograd in 1918, and attempts to kill Premier Lenin and War Minister Trotsky.

Krylenko contended that all of the Soviet's charges had been proved including terrorist acts by the Social Revolutionists, the systematic robbery of state institutions, destruction of state property, organization of uprisings among the peasants and assistance to foreign interventions.

It is the opinion of even Walter Duranty, the correspondent of the New York Times, that the condemnation of the majority of the accused is certain. He points out that the Soviet government had three purposes in bringing the Social Revolutionaries to trial. These are as follows:

> First, to make it clear to the Russian people, especially the peasants, who naturally supported the Social Revolutionary program in 1917 of "land and peace," and to the rest of the world that the Social Revolutionaries were led by their desire to overthrow the Bolsheviki to "betray the people's revolution" by conspiracy with the French and other Entente powers, with Kolchak and other reactionary leaders, and finally by assassination.
> Second, to show that the Social Revolutionary leaders betrayed and disavowed their subordinates to save their own skins and are therefore unworthy of public support or sympathy.
> Third, to put on record for future historians the inside facts about the revolutionary struggle in the years 1917-19.

These purposes have been achieved. In Duranty's own words, "It is certainly true that the proceedings demonstrated the truth of the statements enumerated."

Duranty adds that it was wise for the yellow Socialists of the Second International, Emile Vandervelde, of Belgium, and his co-workers, to abandon the case when they did. The Times correspondent says that Vandervelde and Co.

> "thought that the Bolsheviki would be willing to let them have an easy success in this case as payment for the Second Internationale's adhesion to the "united front" of European workers for which the Soviets launched their campaign in the Spring or believed that they would be defending a gallant group of political prisoners. If the first supposition is correct, they made a psychological error; if the second, they soon found that the defense had not a leg to stand on, either politically or logically.
> One instance of many will show this. One of the accused who turned State's evidence related how an important woman member of the Social Revolutionary Party, Ivanova, also on trial, in the Fall of 1918 attempted, with him and two others, to wreck a train bearing Trotzky to the Czecho-Slovak front in the Province of Samara. The witness gave a detailed account of how the conspirators were awaiting a signal from a confederate that the train was coming, so that they might tear up the rails and hurl the train over a culvert; how they made a fire in a neighboring hollow; what they said, and how the attempt failed because Trotzky took a different route. All Ivanova could say in her defense was that she did not remember it.
> The prosecution did not succeed in getting from the Social Revolutionary leaders a direct admission that their Central Executive Committee planned and directed terrorist attempts, but it established beyond a reasonable doubt that the committee was aware of and approved them.

It is for the liberty and lives of these miserable counter-revolutionists, whose hands are stained with the blood of many true revolutionists, that the yellow "Socialist" press, headed by the Call and the Forward, and yellow Socialist labor leaders of the type of Benjamin Schlesinger, of the Cloakmakers, are offering up their frantic pleas.

Schlesinger will not vote for the recognition of Soviet Russia in a convention of the American Federation of Labor, but he bewails the fact that Soviet Russia does not give heed to his plea on behalf of terrorists and assassins.

The Call thinks that the bars ought to be let down to all these enemies of Soviet Rule because "Russia is not now being attacked by Czarist generals, Allied imperialists or subjected to a famine bockade."

In other words, seemingly, the Call would have us believe that the social revolution will have clear and peaceful sailing from now on.

It is upon this fond belief that the yellow Socialists build their pacifist programs and decide their servile tactics, that result in coalitions with bourgeois parties, combinations of strength against the rising power of Communism.

The Moscow trial has established more effectively than any other agency so far that the social revolution is in the keeping of the Communist International.

And the realization of this fact by added masses of the workers will bring new adherents in large numbers to the standards of the world Communist movement. The support of the yellow Second International grows weaker and weaker.

World's Workers Act

The kept press has been busy for weeks creating the impression that coal will be shipped in large quantities from British mines to help break the strike in the United States.

This little bubble has burst with the announcement that, under protest from the Welsh coal miners, steps are being taken to halt the shipment of British coal to this country.

This awakening of the British workers to their international obligations was forced by the activities of the more radical elements.

In another column we publish the protest and appeal of the Workers Party to the Communist and Labor Parties of Great Britain, calling for the solidarity of British with American labor.

We also call to the attention of British labor the spirit shown by the Workers of Mexico and Japan, on behalf of the railroad strike as well as the miners' struggle.

As their struggles widen, the workers of the world are learning to act more and more in unison.

Hail the day when all labor, the world over, will stand shoulder to shoulder, in one giant army for the abolition of capitalism. That day is on its way.

Both Trotzky and Semashko now vouch for Lenin's complete return to health. But the yellow press correspondents will be silenced for only a few days, when they will again have Lenin at the brink of the grave.

[illegible], April 1.—Samuel Gompers, in sanitarium here, sent out the following appeal to all the unions of the American Federation of Labor:

"Comrades,

"Having read last week's Bolcoms a feeling was created within me to help the starving people of Russia. I realize how wrong I was hitherto in denouncing the Soviet Government. Hence, to compensate for the injustice I've done to the only workers' republic, I urge upon all of you to show your overwhelming generosity and give and give and give for the starving people of Russia . . . three cheers.

THE JOYS OF ORATORY

A Tammany politician was once speaking before a small village assembly up-state. In the course of his speech he introduced some expression which disgusted his hearers, who thereupon started moving away. The orator seeing this, put up his hands and said:

"Pause, friends!" But the answer he got was from a local wag, who cried, amid laughter:

"Aye, an' real dirty ones they are, too!"

Kidnap Foster in Colorado!

Secretary of the Trade Union Educational League Driven from Rockefeller-Owned State as "Undesirable"

"No Law Was Consulted," Is Cossack Declaration of Adjutant General who Planned Attack on Militant Labor Leader

Samuel Gompers, and his reactionary machine in control of the American Federation of Labor, is now receiving hurry-up support from the militarists and junkers of Colorado, and probably other western states, in his war upon the Trade Union Educational League, and its secretary, William Z. Foster, also editor of the League's official organ, The Labor Herald.

This is the big interpretation to be placed on the kidnapping and forcible ejection of Foster from Colorado, on Monday night, August 7, by so-called "State Rangers," the legalized Cossacks of this Rockefeller-owned and controlled state.

"No law was consulted," was the brutal declaration of Adjutant General Hamrock, who insisted that "it was for the best interests of the state" that "this dangerous radical" be ousted.

This is the state of the Rockefeller Colorado Coal and Iron Co., of Ludlow and Cripple Creek, of the kidnapping of Moyer, Pettibone and Haywood, rushed to Idaho to face framed-up charges for murder, of which a jury declared them innocent.

Foster was kidnapped at his hotel in Denver, shortly after his arrival from Salt Lake City, Utah, where he had spoken on his return trip from the Pacific Coast. He was taken in an automobile and rushed to the Kansas state line, according to Adjutant General Hamrock.

Foster's baggage was confiscated in the hunt for "radical" literature. The "law and order" Hamrock, in speaking of Foster, said, "We have characterized him as an undesirable in Colorado, and we decided to have him keep right on going without any stop in Denver."

All efforts to get a statement from Foster by telegraph had been futile up to the hour of going to press.

It is reported, however, that he spoke at a meeting held at Alliance, Neb., on Tuesday night, and that he was on his way to Lincoln, Nebraska's state capital, where Sheriff Ira Miller announced that Foster will be intercepted and "investigated". At the same time Governor McKelvie was said to be taking a hand in the situation.

State authorities were ordered by Gov. McKelvie to attend addresses Foster may deliver in Nebraska with a view to determining if they violate any laws.

"Foster will not be molested previous to making addresses, but his utterances will be under close surveillance of proper officials," the governor stated.

"We will not be influenced here by the attitude of Colorado authorities, but will be governed solely by our interpretation of the laws of this state relative to free speech.

Colorado Lawyer Opens Attack on the Governor

Severe arraignment of Governor Oliver H. Shoup and Adjutant General Patrick Hamrock was made by Carl Whitehead, prominent Denver attorney, as the result of the expulsion from the state of William Z. Foster.

In a letter to Shoup, Whitehead charged that the Governor had "prevented by armed force peaceable assemblage of the people; seized men and deprived them of their liberty without due process of law;

THE INTERNATIONAL SCABS

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

The International Miners' Congress, the world organization of miners affiliated with the Yellow Second (Amsterdam) International of Trade Unions, is now meeting at Frankfort-on-the-Main, in Germany.

It has taken up and acted on the biggest question confronting this organization, the miners' strike in the United States, and what has it done?

It has voted to contribute 32,000,000 marks, or $44,500, or, in British money, 10,000 pounds sterling to aid the American miners.

This money is to be subscribed by the various national miners' unions, which means that it will probably never be paid over. The resolution adopted also expressed sympathy with the American miners in their struggle.

But that was all!

No effective action was taken to halt the growing stream of scab coal that is flowing toward this country from England, Germany and other European countries.

THE CONGRESS OFFICIALLY DECIDED AGAINST RESTRICTIONS OF COAL SHIPMENTS TO AMERICA, THE ONLY WORTHWHILE ACTION PROPOSED TO AID THE AMERICAN MINERS IN THEIR FIGHT.

Yet this action is typical of this section of the Yellow Amsterdam International of blacklegs and counter-revolutionaries. It has proven itself true to its blood relation.

THE WORKER has already told how the miners of Wales had urged upon the Miners' International the stoppage of coal shipments to the United States. But this was an urge from the men in the mines.

Last week we published a cablegram from the Miners' Federation of Japan, voicing their solidarity with the struggling American miners.

We told of the militant demonstrations of the workers in Mexico, not only on behalf of the miners' strike, but also for the striking railway shopmen.

These are small indications, to be sure. But they are big with meaning, indicating the ferment that is going on among the masses.

We draw attention to the fact that this action on the part of the Miners' Congress comes three months after the start of the strike in this country.

The day the strike was declared, on April 30, last, the Workers Party officially cabled to the British Communist Party, the British Labor Party, the British Trade Union Congress and the British Miners' Federation, urging that every effort be made to stop the shipment of scab coal to this country. It is from British mines that most scab coal comes.

This was soon followed by an appeal to the workers of all countries, issued by the Red (Moscow) Trade Union International, urging world action by all miners and transport workers on behalf of the miners of this country.

The Red International, with its affiliations in different countries, was for action, immediate and effective.

The Yellow International, in its official congress, comes with a charitable dole and smirking sympathy three months after the fight started.

The workers of America, especially the miners, have had no better exhibition of what the two internationals stand for.

Solidarity on Pacific Coast Wins Victory

(By The Federated Press)

SEATTLE.—New Zealand seamen recently won a unique victory here when they were freed of charges of mutiny in a strike distinctive of the growing International Brotherhood of Dock and Sea Workers.

When the crew of the British tramp Waitemate put into Anacortes, a small port near here, they found union longshoremen engaged in a struggle for the existence of their union with the Waterfront Employers' union and the Associated Industries. With the port completely tied up, the ship's master ordered the seamen to begin loading the cargo waiting on the Anacortes dock.

To a man the crew refused to scab on their American brother workmen. A tug was then ordered down from Vancouver, B. C., to tow the Waitemate into that harbor and bring the seamen before an admiralty court on charge of mutiny. The crew of the Canadian tug refused to tow the New Zealand vessel when told of the situation and the tug was forced to return to its home port.

Attorney George F. Vanderveer of the legal bureau, Central Labor Council, was appealed to by the striking Anacortes longshoremen to help the crew, which was to be brought before federal shipping authorities for disciplining. Vanderveer obtained a settlement for the seamen which provided that all charges were to be erased from the ship's log, the crew to be given full pay for the time lost and a subsistence allowance for the days they were ashore in protest.

Hold Party Convention at Scene of Socialist Split Three Years Ago

Preparations are practically completed for the holding of the Second National Convention of the Workers Party, beginning in Chicago, Monday, August 28, at the Machinists Hall, 119 S. Ashland Boulevard.

This is the convention hall in which the 1919 conventions were held at which the Socialist Party split in to two factions.

Thus the same hall will shelter the convention of that group which left the Socialist Party because of its refusing to change its program so that it would become a factor in the every-day struggle of the workers.

There will be 75 delegates present with 10 additional fraternal delegates from the Party's foreign language sections.

Meetings of the Party's central executive committee will be held incidental to the holding of the convention.

Zinoviev Tells How the Italian Socialist Party was Destroyed

Editor's Note:—The favorite charge of the Second International against the Communist International is that it is an organ for splitting and destroying working class organizations. This method of attack is effectively met by Gregory Zinoviev, chairman of the Communist International, in the accompanying article showing how the Italian Socialist Party has been destroyed. This article is especially timely during these weeks when the struggle between the Fascisti and the Communists in Italy is growing in proportions and taking on the nature of open civil war. Zinoviev writes as follows:

By GREGORY ZINOVIEV
Chairman, Communist International

Proletarian parties, workers' organizations and all those who have the interests of the proletariat at heart beyond mere words, look at the fate of the Italian Socialist Party and try to find out how the I. S. P. was destroyed.

Only two years ago, the I. S. P. was a powerful and blooming Party. Only two years ago this Party seemed to be climbing upwards.

Witness Pile of Ruins

And now we are witnessing the complete disintegration of this party; instead of one, well-knit and strong organization we see a pile of ruins.

The most pessimistic prophecies of the Comintern proved true even sooner than was expected. As a Socialist Party the I. S. P. has gone out of existence, never to return.

How did this come about?

Two years ago, before the Leg-

n Red Russia

Editor's Note:—The agricultural relief unit, headed by Howard M. Ware, secretary of the American Federated Russian Famine Relief Committee, and sent to the Famine Regions of the Workers' Republic by the Friends of Soviet Russia, is now at work tilling the fields in the Province of Perm, at the headwaters of the Kama River, one of the tributaries of the Volga. What this agricultural unit hopes to accomplish is told in the accompanying article.

By HOWARD M. WARE

PERM, Soviet Russia.—Our entire equipment has now arrived here. Plowing has begun. Twenty-five thousand bushels of seed are on the way. May the next harvest be a heavy one, should be every worker's wish.

The Unit is to be located on a 15,000-acre farm, 12 versts south of Vereshag, in the Ural District. The farm is to be known as the "American Friends of Soviet Russia Farm." The Unit will supply the food products derived from its operations to the workers through the local government.

Immediately upon its arrival in Moscow, the Unit attracted considerable attention. The Unit will not return to America till next spring.

Russian Workers Appreciative

The members of the Unit have been given every possible assistance since their arrival. The Russian workers are very appreciative of the efforts that the American workers have made and are making in their behalf.

The Friends of Soviet Russia thus enters upon the second stage of its famine relief work. Our efforts must now be directed to permanent equipment which will enable Soviet Russia once again to plant its fertile plains and once again to become the bread basket of Europe.

The Brave Peasants

There can be no doubt of Russia's ability and courage, when one hears of peasants who live on acorns and roots and save their seed grains for planting. Picture, if you can, those Russian farmers literally starving—yet plowing in the seed—hoping against hope for next season's crops.

It is in answer to the needs of such men that the F. S. R. is directing its efforts. These men need tools—particularly agricultural tools—and they need also comrades who come with fresh enthusiasm to initiate their brother farmers in the newer methods of American agriculture.

The F. S. R. has organized its first F. S. R. Agricultural Famine Relief Unit.

The primary object of this F. S. R. Unit is to plow and plant winter grains in the very heart of the famine valley.

All Able Farmers

The personnel of the Unit is well adapted to the work. Most of them come from America's Northwest—the Dakotas and Canada—broad and husky as the West makes them.

There is Charlie Heck, for instance, as hardy a farmer as ever tamed a tractor, and who by the way tamed the old-line politicians as one of the original organizers of the Non-Partisan League out in North Dakota in 1916. All have been farmers in the grain country.

All together—and that means eleven men, including one doctor, a Russian whose first job in America was on a farm—they are a husky modern set of American farmers whose varied experience and cheerful courage fits them for the inevitable hardship and the job of handling a complete modern grain-farming equipment.

In the organization of this equipment, the F. S. R. has kept its primary object strictly in mind—that is, actual production of food on a large scale. It has however equipped the Unit so it may be of the utmost service in assisting the Russian Department of Agriculture in demonstrating and teaching modern machine farming.

Plan to Teach Russians

Fifteen thousand feet of moving picture films, showing internal operation of engines and the construction and operation of farm tractors and agricultural machinery in the United States, are part of the equipment.

They plan to teach specially qualified Russians, by actually working beside them, every detail of American methods. It is the replacement plan. The Farm which the Unit will establish will at the end of the season be turned over together with all its products to the Russian comrades who have learned to handle its equipment.

To grasp fully the completeness of this Unit and what it is capable of, it is necessary to outline just what machinery these Americans take with them. First of all come the twenty big farm tractors, each pulling three fourteen-inch plows, capable of plowing at the rate of 3 miles per hour speed, and so turning over 20 acres per hour or 200 acres per 10 hour shift.

Carbide lights go with each tractor, so that it will be possible to run two shifts—keeping the tractors in operation at least 18 hours per day, with an average of 300 acres turned over each 24 hours.

Protect Precious Moisture

This can be accomplished, beside the harrowing after each tractor, to preserve the precious moisture which the dry air sucks out of the fresh furrows.

In America a sturdy farm team of two good horses and a modern walking plow and one man do well to turn over an acre and a half per day. In Russia the weakened horses and men, with worn out and antiquated plows, would do far less.

Surely the very difference in acres per man accomplished by the Americans and the Russians whom they teach to run tractors will have great educational effect on the community generally. Nor must the amount of actual food produced be overlooked—considering delays, breakdowns, etc.

In fifty days of work the Unit should plow fifteen thousand acres. Ordinarily the Russian peasants, with primitive equipment, average 10½ bushels per acre. With improved machinery, deep early plowing and modern methods of conserving soil moisture, and lastly, with improved seed, the yield will at least equal the old figure.

Able to Grapple With Difficulties

On that basis more than 200 thousand bushels of grain should be harvested in the summer of 1923 from the direct effort of this Unit. That means over one million pounds of grain—enough to fill the bread ration for eight to ten thousand people.

It is easy enough for a "Book-taught Bilkens" to sit down and push a pencil over a paper farm and make wonderful "records." The F. S. R. Unit is not organized or equipped for fancy farming.

The calloused hands of its personnel and the aggregate experience of the Unit as a whole fits it to grapple with the inevitable difficulties to be encountered in Russia.

One of its most important parts is a complete machine shop—especially equipped for repairing tractors.

It is this necessity for repairs that Russia feels most. Almost every one reports having seen tractors standing idle—not in Russia alone but in the United States. Spare parts and repairs are inevitable requirements. The Unit is prepared. The Tractor Company has sent one of its best field men along as official veterinarian to our iron horses. He has our acetylene welding outfit, a lathe, drill press, forge benches and vice and over $2,000 worth of spare parts to work with.

Demonstrate Modern Methods

Besides the twenty Case 15-27 tractors, modern power lift drills, gang plows, cultipackers, disc harrows and spike harrows, there are included one Ford car and one Ford light truck, also a Fordson tractor to pull the fuel tanks and wagons about from tractor to tractor as they work in the field.

There are tents for sleeping, eating and storage. Foods, dishes, medicines all are included in the equipment which is planned to feed and house twenty men for six months on the job.

Each is fully aware of the personal risks involved. Each knows the danger of typhus and cholera. But all are convinced that real famine relief on a permanent constructive basis necessitates a fair demonstration of modern methods.

In this spirit they go to teach by doing rather than by talking. They realize that farmers the world over believe only when they see results.

A Gift of the American People

Captain Tertelat, chief of the Distribution Office of the Food Remittance Division of Herbert Hoover's American Relief Administration, issued an order to all the employees to report to work on May 1, notwithstanding there was no particular urgent work on hand.

This was done for the purpose of ignoring our international proletarian holiday.

The employees, realizing that this mockery of labor, a mockery they have often been subject to, not only being compelled to work on various Soviet holidays, but also unusually long hours—they worked nine and ten hours daily, instead of eight, without extra compensation—decided not to appear for work on May 1.

As a result they were summoned on Tuesday, May 2, before a high court of their exploiters, in the persons of Captains Tertelat and Renshaw.

First of all, the department manager, Comrade Herman, was peremptorily dismissed from service, charged with not appearing for work on May 1 and not requiring the other workers to appear.

The employees of the parcels department protested against the dismissal of Comrade Herman, declaring that they knew that they were expected to come to work.

Herman informed them about that but they did not appear in accordance with a decision taken at a general meeting of the employees.

In the presence of the employees the high-court exploiter Captain Tertelat made the following statement:

"In the first place I want all of you to understand that I am the boss here, and not you. In the second place I don't recognize any group protests, nor any of your group decisions.

"I ordered you to come to work on May 1, and I am not accustomed to have my orders disobeyed— I alone can fix the day and time to work in this place.

"In case I consider it necessary for you to work on any particular day, you have no right to meddle with my orders and you are obliged to obey without a word.

"If I order you to work until six or seven o'clock in the evening or even longer, you must do so, for the working days are fixed here by me. I do not know or recognize any other orders, nor shall I submit to any such."

After this dictatorial harrangue of the American exploiter, Comrade Herman stepped up before the employees to thank them for their solidarity. Captains Renshaw and Tertelat made an attempt to prevent him from speaking, threatening to strike him and throw him out. They refused to pay him the customary two weeks' wages in advance, declaring that this rule did not apply to such as him.

The above leaves little room for doubt that the Americans, like all other European capitalists, are flocking to Russia, not because they are anxious to aid the famine sufferers or to improve the condition of the workers. Oh, no! They are forging chains for the working class and preparing a noose to strangle it.

Therefore, workers, be on your guard!

If, because of economic exigencies and our dreadful afflictions, we are compelled to work together with capitalist Europe and America, we must be on our guard and retaliate at the first attempt to fetter or strangle us.

Hurrah for May 1, the international proletarian holiday! We shall not permit it to be dishonored.

SEATTLE.—District No. 10 miners, thru Secretary Ernest Newsham, have appealed to Welsh and Scottish miners and transport workers not to allow the shipment of British coal to America to break the strike of the United Mine Workers. The appeal was directed to the British Miners' federation.

PITTSBURGH.—The Miners' [illegible] Conference, organized by workers [illegible] to assist the miners in their struggle against the bosses, sent its first truck-load of food to the strikers last week.

The food was delivered to [illegible] No. 4 mine at [illegible] Station, the mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Co., which the operators of the entire Western Pennsylvania hoped to see start the stampede back to work. This is a large mine with several hundred men still in the camp.

A large number of miners were evicted and following President Harding's proclamation, Governor Sproul sent out two troops of militia cavalry, and a troop of state constabulary to the mine. A machine gun and a whole army of thugs are also on guard.

After this small army had arrived an American flag was hoisted on the tipple and the whistle was blown loud and long. The striking miners marched to the tipple in regular file, saluted the flag and turned around and went home again. Some bosses and four strikebreakers worked two hours and then the mine was shut down.

It was tragic to see these starving workers handle the food the Miners Relief Conference sent to them. The evidence of support gave them new courage for the struggle.

Food is being donated to the Conference by many workers. The Jewish bakers' union, with 80 members in their local, have agreed to furnish eight hundred loaves of bread a week.

Other workers desiring to make contributions should notify Secretary Hamilton, Pittsburgh Miners' Relief Conference, Bell Phone Grant 9853.

Re-organize World War Vets in New York State

The World War Veterans, an organization of honorably discharge soldiers, sailors and marines who served with the Allied Entente during the war of 1914-1917, is now being reorganized in New York State.

Jack Bradon, National President of the organization, has held a meeting of some of the former active members in the organizations at which meeting officers were elected as follows:

State President: James Hasten, 294 Lorimer St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
Secretary-Treasurer: Sanford S. Beldner, 344 So. 8th St., Brooklyn, N. Y.
President Post 603: Herman Springer, 43 Cornelia St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

The World War Veterans have been active all over the country and are known for their reputation in activities on behalf of progressive political, economic and social issues which they have advocated.

The new organization will begin its drive for membership and on the issue of "NO WAR WITHOUT REFERENDUM OF THE PEOPLE." Those who desire to join the organization are requested to get in touch with the State Secretary Treasurer Sanford Beldner, 344 E 8th St. Brooklyn, N. Y.

TEXTILE UNIONS UNITE

Delegates representing nine independent textile unions have united at New York in an alliance known as the Federated Textile Unions of America.

One hundred and fifty thousand members are represented. At the first convention of the organization James Tansey, of Fall River, Mass. treasurer of the fund, reported that thru the new organization more than $200,000 already has been raised for the relief of the New England textile strikers.

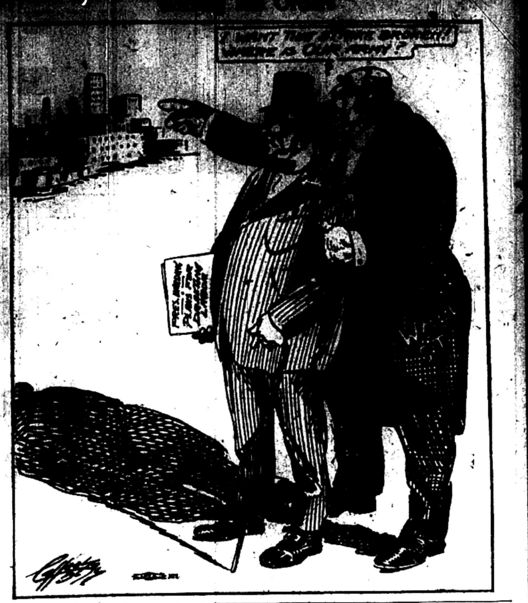
The union, of which the Amalgamated Textile Workers is the largest component body, is an industrial union so far as matters affecting all are concerned, but in all other matters the affiliated bodies retain their autonomy.

The full strength of the organization will continue to be directed toward the relief and assistance of the New England mill operatives who have been on strike since last winter it was announced, and this will be continued along with a continuation of the union's work of solidifying the ranks of its affiliated organizations.

OFFICE WORKERS APPEAL

The New York Office Workers' Union, known as Bookkeepers', Stenographers' and Accountants' Union, Local 12,646, has appealed to the executive council of the American Federation of Labor against the action of Hugh Frayne, national organizer, at the direction of President Gompers, suspending the union's charter on the ground of alleged "communist" control of the local.

CHICAGO.—Con Shea, one of the five defendants in the murder conspiracy case growing out of the killing of a policeman by unknown men May 10, has been released. The prosecution admitted that there was insufficient evidence.



International Youth Day

Young workers, boys and girls, apprentices and young rural workers march thru the cities and thru the towns, and with them march adult workers and children from the children's sections.

IT IS A GREAT DAY FOR THE YOUNG COMMUNIST ORGANIZATIONS. Not only in the cities of America, but everywhere thruout the world, wherever the Communist ideas have secured a foothold, the young workers' organizations live, grow and are active. No language and no race prejudices divide them.

ONE idea unites us and one knowledge—that we are all members of an oppressed class which is being deprived of the fruits of its toil, which struggles for victory and the emancipation of the exploited youth and the entire working class.

Our INTERNATIONAL DAY OF YOUTH, which we celebrate for the eighth time this year, arose out of the daring deeds of young revolutionaries in 1915 who rebuilt the International in the midst of an ocean of blood; at a time when yellow Socialists were voting war credits and their youth sections were appealing to the workers to go and fight and save their countries. At that time the still class-conscious elements of the labor movement, and especially the youth, met in order to imbue the working class again with the consciousness of its strength and to revive the old ideals.

The ground had to be fought for step by step; the few who took up the struggle were despised, abused, persecuted, outlawed. But their appeal was not in vain—ever more workers, young and adult, rallied around the banner of this revolutionary vanguard.

With every succeeding year the DAY OF YOUTH became a greater demonstration against the WAR, against militarism and capitalism. The efforts of the capitalist governments and their social-patriotic lackeys against these demonstrations grow in intensity.

But the revolutionary idea could no longer be suppressed. The pressure caused by the ruthless exploitation of all economic resources, and the urging effort of agitation became greater and greater and at last the safety valve flew off—REVOLUTION!

The ever increasing exploitation and the merciless sacrifice of young workers by greedy capitalism prompted, as far back as December, 1916, the International Union of Socialist Youth Organisations (as the Young Communist International was then called) to incorporate in its program the principle of a struggle for improved economic conditions.

Just as the Young Communist International was born in the midst of a terrific struggle, thus was its great historic militant day, the DAY OF YOUTH, the outcome of a determined fight.

The Revolution rallied thousands of new fighters around the banner of the Young Communist International to which became affiliated one organization after the other. And today the Young Communist International is, together with the Communist International, the only world-wide International.

The storms of our time, the waves of politics ebbing to and fro, determined the features, the activities and the role of the Young Communist International. Wherever there were no parties or only weak parties we issued on this day political slogans and demonstrated for political struggles. To-day, when the role of the Young Communist Organizations in the revolutionary labor movement has been altered and the Second Congress has laid down the principles for reorganising our work, the International Day of Youth and the Propaganda Week preceding it will have to be adapted to our new work.

> International Youth Day, September 3rd, 1922

> Labor Organizations, Branches of the Workers Party, Young Workers Leagues, and other radical organizations are requested not to arrange affairs for Sunday, Sept. 3rd.

> Join them for the solidarity of the working class.
> International Youth Day Committee
> Young Workers League.

The Days of Youth in the past have all been celebrated under slogans advocating the struggle for the political victory of the masses of the proletariat — Dictatorship, of the Proletariat! Down with the bourgeois democracy! For the Red Army! Against pacifism—these and others were our slogans at that time when we had placed ourselves at the head of the Communist Movement.

This Day of Youth will be ushered in under the slogans of winning over the masses of juvenile labor, of world-wide mobilization for economic struggle and of putting a stop to further pauperization of the youth. These slogans will be supported by the Workers Party.

All our forces must be mobilized for the preparation of our International Day of Youth. The Week of Propaganda must result for the Young Workers' League in an increase of membership and in the strengthening of their press.

We seek to win over the young workers, the apprentices—they like us are being denied a full life.

The Eighth International Day of the Youth demands much of you, young workers; it is shown by the gigantic economic struggles of the proletariat, the slowly forming united front of the exploited thruout the world. NOW IS THE TIME TO GET READY. REDOUBLE YOUR EFFORTS DURING THE PROPAGANDA WEEK FROM AUGUST 28TH TO SEPTEMBER 2ND. AND CLOSE YOUR RANKS FOR A MIGHTY PROCESSION ON THE EIGHTH DAY OF YOUTH, OUR INTERNATIONAL DAY OF STRUGGLE ON SEPTEMBER 3RD.

The world still rests on bayonets, but the power of the capitalist diplomats cannot prevent it from being sooner or later submerged in a fresh ocean of blood. The conflicts are being smoothed down from conference to conference. We must not allow ourselves to be bluffed, however. Our safeguard be OUR ANTI-MILITARIST PROPAGANDA. This day of Youth must remind us of our duty. DOWN WITH THE BOURGEOIS CAPITALIST ARMY and FOR THE RED ARMY must be our slogan.

Russia is not yet freed of the dangers of the capitalist barbed wire fence. Therefore we must every day renew our pledge to the Republic of Russian Workers and Peasants.

The ever intensifying economic crisis and the increasing pauperization of the proletariat and especially the youth resulting therefrom compels us to cry out aloud. WE SHALL NO LONGER TOLERATE IT! FULFILL THE DEMANDS OF THE YOUTH! PUT A STOP TO OUR PAUPERIZATION!

FORWARD, EVERY ONE!

THE GOAL LIES CLEARLY AHEAD OF US!!!

ANTONINI UPHELD

The following resolution was adopted by the Italian Dress and Waistmakers' Union, Local 89, I. L. G. W. U., at a regular meeting held on Saturday, July 29, at 8 W. 21st Street, New York City, N. Y.

WHEREAS, The stand assumed by the delegates of the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union at the American Federation of Labor Convention, held in Cincinnati, Ohio, with regards to the resolution in favor of recognition for Russian Soviet Government was in direct contradiction to the unanimous decision reached at the Convention of the I. L. G. W. U. held in Cleveland, Ohio, and

WHEREAS, Delegate Luigi Antonini was the only one of the entire delegation to adhere to the mission confided to him, be it

RESOLVED, That this meeting, duly assembled, express its congratulations to Brother Antonini for his good work and at the same time expresses its deepest reproaches to the other members of the Delegation, and especially to the head, President Schlesinger, for having deliberately trampled upon the mission assigned to them and become part and parcel of the conspiracy detrimental to the Russian Proletariate who, as the First Republic of Workers, should receive the unconditional support of the Labor Masses of the other nations, and be it further

RESOLVED, That the above resolution be given wide publicity in the Labor Press.

Oresti Grassi, Secretary.

Workers Join Demand for General Strike

Added support for the united front program of the Workers' Party comes in the form of action taken by Local Union No. 992, Illinois Mine Workers, and by the Zeigler Labor Trades Council, of Zeigler, Illinois.

This town is named after one of labor's bitterest enemies. This was the last stronghold of the foes of the coal miners' union in Illinois, but it was finally forced to capitulate.

It is therefore doubly significant that the workers in this Illinois coal mining section should enlist in the nation-wide effort for united action on the part of all workers.

The resolutions adopted at Zeigler as reported in THE WORKER last week, have already received considerable support from many sections of the nation. This matter should be taken by the workers everywhere. The resolutions are as follows:

Zeigler, Ill., Aug. 2, 1922.

WHEREAS, The Textile Workers in New England, the United Mine Workers of America, and the Railway Department of the A. F. of L. are engaged in a strike as a protest against the reduction of the American standard of living, and

WHEREAS, Many other strikes authorized and unauthorized, are spreading and are fast becoming universal, and

WHEREAS, The President of the United States now informs us through the medium of the public press that it is HIS purpose to use the full power of the Government, both Military and Judicial, to intimidate and oppress a free people and to hold them to his will, that the American standard of living must be reduced, and

WHEREAS, The doors of the United States Treasury have been thrown open for the relief of Big Business as represented by the Railroad Owners, and

WHEREAS, We are facing a condition bordering on Slavery,

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, That we, Local Union No. 992, United Mine Workers of America, at Zeigler, Illinois, in regular session assembled this 21st day of July, 1922, call upon the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. to immediately set in motion the machinery which shall bring the full power of labor to bear in one grand national protest against the slavery conditions that are being imposed upon us, and to call a National Strike at the earliest possible date in order that this warfare upon American homes may cease and a free people be permitted to live in peace, and be it

FURTHER RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the A. F. of L. and all its departments, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, the Order of Railway Conductors, and to every Central Labor Union in the United States, for their endorsement and support, and be it

FURTHER RESOLVED, That we pledge our lives, our liberty and our sacred honor to the establishment, maintenance and defense of a living rate of wages in the United States of America, and be it

FURTHER RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions be given to the public press.

Local Union No. 992, U. M. W. of A., A. Berry, Pres.; Alex. Stargis, Sec'y, and Eugene Prudent, Financial Sec'y.

The resolutions were carried unanimously by the Zeigler Labor Trades Council, A. F. Scaggins, Treasurer.

searched homes and seized papers and effects without warrant."

Foster was taken to Greeley, Colo., by rangers and his Bertillon measurements taken, despite his protests.

Civil Liberties Union Protests

The American Civil Liberties Union from its New York office telegraphed to Governor Shoup of Colorado, protesting against the expulsion of William Z. Foster from the state by Adjt. Gen. Patrick J. Hamrock of the State Rangers.

Colorado is under the dictatorship of Gen. Hamrock and his Rangers, Roger N. Baldwin, director of the American Civil Liberties Union, said in a statement.

"We have investigated the conditions in the coal mining camps where these Rangers no longer permit freedom of assemblage or speech," Baldwin said.

"The deportation of Foster is just an incident in a series of high-handed tactics in dealing with organized labor and its spokesmen."

TEN WORKERS SHOULD READ THIS COPY OF THE WORKER; KEEP IT IN CIRCULATION

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE

The refusal of the railroads to abide by the decision of the Railway Labor Board has not resulted in their being deprived of the protection of the military. They have admittedly flouted both the presidential authority and that of the labor board, but their plants and strikebreakers are under the solicitous supervision of troops and United States marshals.

This is the outstanding fact in connection with developments of the last week in the strike of the shop crafts.

It proves to the hilt the utter subserviency of the administration to the organized financial and industrial interests, and if further proof were needed it is furnished by President Harding himself when he calls upon the strikers to return to work and leave the question of seniority to the same labor board which has proved such a useful tool to the railway employers.

His latest pronouncement is a shameless swallowing of the one which preceded it and to which the strikers agreed.

The railway executives balked at its provision for the return of the men with full seniority rights and it is only too evident that president Harding has revised the original document to meet the objections of the representatives of railway capital.

Agreement Showed Weakness

The agreement by the representatives of the strikers to recognize the authority of the labor board in response to the request of the President showed either a weakness or a lack of understanding of the real issues of the strike, but the railway executives have turned this weakness into strength so far as the public is concerned, and they have also strengthened the morale of the strikers whose position had, temporarily, presidential sanction.

Harding's Somersault

The greatest issuer of proclamations who ever held down the presidential chair has now turned a complete somersault, displaying an agility surprising in one of his age and sedentary habits.

He now calls upon the striking shop crafts to surrender unconditionally; to return to work with no guarantees except that the labor board will take up the question of seniority when it gets good and ready; this simply means that the organization of the railway crafts would be completely demoralized and that if a decision were ever handed down the unions would have no power to enforce it.

The unmistakable evidence of the solidarity of the government and the railway executives seems to be stirring the officialdom of the railway unions to something resembling action.

There apparently has been a lingering hope in the hearts of the union officials that the recent primary contests and the results thereof would react sufficiently upon the administration to induce it to bring the railway executives into line for a settlement that would satisfy the men and leave the labor board still in control of the situation.

The one mistake in this viewpoint was that it looked upon the Harding administration as a cause instead of an effect; the penalty of this inexcusable ignorance was not long in coming as we have seen.

The railroads, however, are in bad shape. The strike of the shop crafts is becoming more effective daily and the results of the withdrawal of the skilled men are cumulative. Equipment poorly repaired soon breaks down again; more demands are made on the capacity of the irresponsible scabs and the rolling stock continues to go from bad to worse.

The trainmen, conductors and engineers are dissatisfied and undoubtedly do not render the service furnished in normal times. The transportation industry is a highly organized, complicated machine that is easily disarranged and hard to coordinate under the most favorable conditions. To-day it is demoralized as every railway man knows.

Playing for Time

If this condition exists long enough for the population to accept it as normal, if the railways can have months in which to train their scabs, the shopmen will lose their strike. To-day they are winning! The desperate efforts made by the government to save the faces of the railway executives prove this.

Conferences are now being held between the heads of the non-striking railway unions; at the same time conferences are also held by the heads of the unions on strike. Here is the division that brings cheering warmth to the hearts of the capitalist class.

There is no such division in their ranks, and they know that with the maintenance of way men, the telegraphers, the clerks, the signalmen, the engineers, the trainmen, firemen and conductors on the job the shopmen cannot win tho they may preserve their organizations.

Slow to Learn

It takes a good deal of punishment to make any impression on the average trade union leader of the Unied States.

New ideas have a hard time penetrating the osseous formation which protects the brain-cells of these individuals from what they regard as a danger — new forms of organization.

One of the most shameful pages in American labor history is being written by the organizations which are not on strike. Not a day passes but that the capitalist press chronicles some concession received by some section of some of these organizations in return for their staying at work a little longer while their fellow workers struggle on.

Stock Excuse Lacking

Nor can the usual excuse of the apathy and selfishness of the rank and file—the eternal excuse of leaders—be given this time.

With the exception of the four brotherhoods who have not had the matter placed before them, the rank and file of the other railway organizations have shown their willingness to strike with the shop-crafts. A cowardly and treacherous leadership, like that of Grable of the Maintenance of Way union or utter ignorance of the seriousness of the situation, is responsible for the dragging out of the struggle. It could be ended in 24 hours, even with the loosely federated form of organization if officialdom was not bound by a tradition of responsibility and ready to agitate for a general strike.

One Serious Obstacle

One thing, however, more than anything else, stands in the way of a successful inauguration of this logical and militant policy. It is that these leaders know one another too well to trust one another. They have all truckled too much to the capitalist government to be able to break with it entirely and always they fear the double-cross from one of their own kind.

Because American labor in this critical period has this kind of leadership—if it can be dignified by that term — the railwaymen particularly are engaged in a tedious conflict for which there is no necessity—and no end in sight; for the simple reason that when the shopmen go back to work the guerilla warfare of the railway barons will be resumed with other organizations as the victims.

Meanwhile the members of unions not on strike work under the protection of the scab-herders jointly with the railway executives and stockholders whom the capitalist government protects even tho they do not obey its mandates.

Perhaps some day the labor leaders will come to understand that only workers are required to obey this government of ours and that forcing such obedience is its sole function.

This of course would not be respectable and is hardly to be expected from labor officials who hailed the creation of the railway labor board as a victory for the workers.

Sept. 2, Date of Big Picnic to be Given by Local New York F.S-R.

A motion picture show in the evening, movie stars, the Clef Club Orchestra, opera singers, good vaudeville, dancing, and a fair moon, are some of the chief attractions of the big picnic arranged by the Local Friends of Soviet Russia for its thousands of sympathizers on September 2nd, at Ulmer Park, Brooklyn.

Ulmer Park is one of the most famous picnic grounds in New York State, both because of its size and beauty. The park is situated in the Bath Beach section of Brooklyn where it is fanned by cool ocean breezes and sheltered by tall, beautiful trees. In the centre of the park is a large Casino and dancing hall which can hold thousands at one time. Dancing here, to the strains of the Clef Club Orchestra, will indeed be a pleasurable sport which no one can afford to miss.

The picnic grounds will be open at 2 o'clock. From then on thousands will stream into the park to join in the fun and entertainment which will mark the affair from early afternoon until early morning.

Drinks, refreshments and all delicacies will be served by the members of the Foodworkers' Union.

Tickets are 35 cents in advance, and 50 cents at the gate. The following are stations where tickets may be purchased:

296 Sackman St; Empire Hall, Lorimer and Tenyck Sts.; 47 Chrystie St.; 360 East 73rd St.; 150 East 61st St; 143 East 103rd St.; 1347 Boston Road; 705 East 13th St; '91 West 13th St.; Liberator, 138 West 13th St.; Freiheit, 47 Chrystie St.; Obrana, 360 East 73rd St; Volkszeitung, 15 Spruce St.; Laisve, 465 Grand St., Brooklyn.

[illegible] Local Friends of Soviet Russia, composed of delegates from Labor Organizations protests against the baseless insinuations of the so-called Socialist paper and condemns it.

"Louis Lisa, Secretary."

Labor organizations all over the country are protesting against the baseless charges of the "Forward," a so-called Socialist paper in New York City.

The immediate effect of these charges has been that men and women have contributed larger sums than before to the fund of the Friends of Soviet Russia.

A few days ago there entered the National Office of the Friends of Soviet Russia a man who stated that he is making his contribution just because of the attack of this "Socialist" paper.

History Repeats Itself

The attack that Hoover made upon the Friends of Soviet Russia and various other famine relief organizations in the United States last spring was the same kind of an attack that is being made by this "Socialist" organ and was followed by the same results.

At that time too the attention of people was called to relief work and they sent in their contributions as a protest against the vile assault that was made on working class famine relief organizations in this country.

The "Forward" has lined up with Herbert Hoover against famine relief in Soviet Russia, as demonstrated most clearly in its editorial of August 5th.

Labor organizations all over the country should follow the example of Los Angeles and arrange protest meetings of every kind.

Another Big Shipment

The FSR has made another large shipment to Soviet Russia. On July 31, S.S. Eastern Star sailed to Petrograd, carrying 25,000 bushels of rye seed, 2 tractors, 2 ploughs, and 1 harvester. This shipment cost about $30,000.

The Tractor Unit for which the seed is designated will probably remain a long time in Russia, since the importance of the work it is doing has already been fully demonstrated.

What FSR Friends Write

A minister writes: "I wish I could send you more than the enclosed contribution . . . It is a great forward step and one of exceeding practical value for American friends of the Russian people to flood that country with farm machinery and railroad equipment. If this be done promptly and adequately Russia will recover quickly."

"Please send a copy of 'Through the Russian Revolution' to this comrade. He is a Russian boy serving 20 years at McNeils for refusing to fight the Bolsheviks in Siberia."

What Branches Are Doing

LYNN, Mass., is one of the liveliest little branches in the country. Recently the branch held a most successful Flower Day.

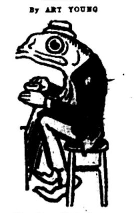
SEATTLE, Wash., a few days ago held an enthusiastic meeting with Wm. Z. Foster, as speaker. Foster instilled new spirit into the branch. The organization has arranged a Tag Day and a picnic. With energy, one can do anything.

CHICAGO has arranged an Athletic Carnival to take place on Aug. 27th.

Our collections to date: $730,000 in cash, $460,000 in clothing.

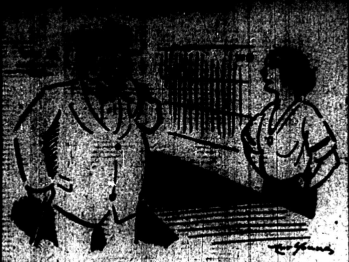
Wisdom of the Poor Fish

By ART YOUNG



The Poor Fish Says:

Of course Labor creates all wealth, so we will be richer if we work harder.



I went into a department store. I asked a thin girl if she had any more of the same brand of article, that I had bought once before at the same counter.

"No, WE are out of those," said the thin girl.

Nothing unusual or funny about this conversation, of course. But did you ever stop to think about that word "we"? If "we" means the department store owners, the principal stockholders and the thin clerk—well, we pass it along. It's a good joke, say we. —ART YOUNG.

For three months little if any coal was shipped to this country. But the yellow leadership now dares to act. It declares that many coal miners in Great Britain and Europe need work, that they have long been unemployed. They charge that American coal was sent to England during the British coal miners' strike. They plead one excuse after another.

Anticipating what has actually occurred the Workers Party last week issued another appeal to the workers' organizations of Great Britain, especially the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, urging world unity of labor in this crisis.

We repeat this cablegram, which was sent to the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, the British Communist Party, the Labor Party of Great Britain and the British Trade Union Congress. It is as follows:

> The coal miners of the United States have for three months stood like a stone wall against the attempt of the bosses to destroy their splendid fighting organizations. Their fight against a wage reduction and the weakening of their organization is the fight of the whole American working class. If the miners are beaten the bosses will force a bitterer industrial slavery upon all of us. Victory for the miners seems certain if the British workers refuse to scab against them by furnishing the American capitalists with coal. We urge that you do all within your power to induce British miners to refuse to handle coal for the United States. Hail to the international solidarity of the workers.

The mine barons of all countries will rejoice in the weakness of the miners' international union.

The same cable that brought the news from Frankfort-on-the Main also told of the placing of orders for an additional lot of 500,000 tons of coal at Cardiff, Wales, making a total of 1,500,000 tons ordered for delivery during August and September.

There is but one difference between the scabs imported to Herrin, Illinois, and the strike-breaking leadership of the Miners' International Congress.

The Herrin scabs were ignorant of the task foisted upon them; the officials of the miners' world union can advance no such plea. They have all been active for years in the Yellow Second (Socialist) International, as well as the reactionary Amsterdam Trade Union International.

Miners of America! Miners of the world! Turn to the Red Trade Union International. Join the revolutionary struggle of the workers.

Workers of America! One thing you can do this month is to send your delegates to the first convention of the Trade Union Educational League, that convenes in Chicago, August 26-27.

Organize your forces in this country. Make them an effective part of the fighting world organization of labor.

Like Military Tyrants Over Conquered People

CHICAGO.—Reports to strike headquarters from the Wabash railroad give the arrogant attitude of the militia at Moberly, Mo. The officer's statement to the people of Moberly reads like the order of an army of occupation to a conquered people. He seems to be living over his war dreams. It reads:

"I would like to have all cooperation from the law-abiding citizens of Moberly to prevent any agitation or any aggravation of the situation here.

"We are here to guard property, and we have made every preparation to do so. I have machine guns and automatic rifle positions that absolutely command the yards. The men have orders not to allow anyone on the railroad property except employes of the railroad company.

"Crossing thru the yards has been prohibited, except by persons who are now employed by the company and have business there. Citizens must use the public crossings.

"I would like the people of Moberly to see that their children are kept at home at night. Last night there was a mob assembled at the Coates St. crossing in violation of the law, and in that mob there were men with guns, because my officers saw guns. Scattered thru the crowd were 25 or 30 small children who should have been at home."

The Erie railroad is carrying out its controversy with the government in advertisements published in papers along its line, of which the following from Corning, N. Y., is a sample:

"Had any governmental authority the power to settle the strike on the Erie railroad, doubtless it would have been exercised before now. There is no such power vested in any branch of the government. Its function is to keep order, not to settle strikes. Erie railroad will settle with its employes whenever they are ready, without any outside interference, and that is the only way."

The death of C. A. Blodgett, a picket who was shot by a Burlington shop guard at Creston, Va., is reported. He leaves a wife and three small children, besides a father and mother.

DETROIT. — Further "peaceful penetration" into Canada by the Detroit automotive industry comes in the form of a purchase by Dodge Bros., automobile makers, of a tract of seven and one-half acres, with frontage on the Canadian Pacific railroad, in Windsor. Dodge Bros. across the Detroit river is Dodge Bros. Motor Co. Ltd. The new land was bought as a factory site.

Invitation to Fourth World Congress of the CommunistInternational

On the 7th of November 1922, the fifth anniversary of the Russian Revolution, the Fourth Congress of the Communist International will take place in Moscow.

The agenda of the Fourth Congress is as follows

1. The report of the Executive Committee of the Comintern.
2. The tactics of the Comintern.
3. The program of the Comintern and those of its most important sections (Italian, German, French, Czecho-Slovakian, Japanese, American, Norwegian and Bulgarian Parties).
4. Agrarian questions.
5. Trade unions questions.
6. Educational work.
7. The Youth International.
8. Oriental matters.

The Communist Parties of the following countries are requested to send their representatives to Moscow for the 7th of November:

Argentina, Armenia, Australia, Austria, Azerbaidjan, Baku, Bashkir Republic, Belgium, Bokhara, Brazil, Bulgaria, Canada, Chile, China, Czecho-Slovakia, Denmark, Egypt, Esthonia, Far East Republic, Finland, France, Georgia, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Holland, Hungary, Iceland, India, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Java, Jugoslavia, Khiva, Korea, Latvia, Lithuania, Mexico, Norway, Persia, Poland, Portugal, Roumania, Russia, South Africa, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Tartar Republic, Turkestan, Turkey, Ukraine, United States, Uruguay, White Russia.

The Communist Parties of Germany, France, Italy, Czecho-Slovakia, Bulgaria, Norway, the United States of America and Japan are requested to form commissions at once to formulate the programs of their respective parties and to get into immediate contact with the Central Program Commission appointed by the Enlarged Executive Committee. This they should do thru the Secretariat of the Executive Committee in Moscow.

With Communist greetings,
The Executive Committee of the Communist International.

By ARTHUR ROSENBERG.

The surprising victory of American Capital in Pekin, China, has called forth its expected repercussion in Japan.

The Japanese Takahachi Cabinet collapsed. Japan in fact stands at a momentous crossroads.

Shall she simply accept that America's supremacy in China seems to be assured by Wu-Pei-Fu's victory?

The downfall of Takahachi was an expression of the dissatisfaction with the fact that the Premier had not made the necessary steps in order to support the friend of Japan, Chang-Tso-Lin, who up to then held power in Peking.

Proletariat Brutally Trampled On

The events of the Japanese cabinet crisis show once again the absolute insignificance of so-called Japanese parliamentarism. The Japanese bourgeoisie still leaves the political guidance of the state in the hands of the old feudal nobility.

The little military clique gathered about the throne decides on state policy and appoints Ministers or removes them, just as it chooses. Of course the pronouncedly imperialist section of the Japanese bourgeoisie goes hand in hand with the militarists, whilst the liberal pacifist groups count for very little and the proletariat is brutally trampled down.

Takahachi's successor is Admiral Kato, who as a member of the Japanese delegation in Washington proved himself to be a very astute diplomat.

The appointment of Kato shows that the definitely imperialist section is in control just as before. Kato will make use of amiable phrases as occasion requires, but he will not give way on essentials.

The Civil War in China

The Japanese cabinet crisis has influenced the civil war in China. After his defeat near Pekin, Chang-Tso-Lin fled into Manchuria and sought to conclude an armistice with the Wu-Pei-Fu.

As soon however as Kato's ministry has assumed power in Tokio, Chang proclaimed an end to the armistice and again advanced against Wu.

Chang had doubtless received sufficient money and promises from his Japanese friends to give him fresh encouragement.

At the time, fighting is going on along the borders of Manchuria. Wu it is true, holds his own, but at any rate, the position of the protégé of American capital in the North is not undisputed. And that above all, is the chief thing for the Japanese capitalists.

In the meantime Wu has commenced his expected military activities in Southern China against Sun Yat-Sen, the President of Southern China. The democratic government of Sun which was supported by the peasants and workers and was hostile to foreign capitalists, was a stumbling block in the path of American speculators.

American Money Busy

As soon as Wu had comfortably established himself in Peking he began the necessary preparations to remove Sun from Canton. The approaching overthrow of Sun was predicted for some weeks in the American and English capitalist press. The action was entered upon in the true Chinese manner. American money circulated in Canton and caused a part of the troops stationed there to transfer their adherence. A General Chen, who up to then had served in the Southern Chinese Army, suddenly went over to Wu.

In that city of millions of inhabitants, Canton, bloody struggles are now proceeding. The fleet which remained faithful to Sun, bombarded the positions of the rebels in and around Canton. The followers of Wu, the true mercenaries of American [illegible] in the English and American [illegible] It [illegible] success for American [illegible] obtained [illegible] in China.

[illegible]

At the present, the English capitalists follow in the steps of America in all Chinese affairs. What the Americans abhors, the Englishman will also execrate.

But in spite of the general satisfaction which is manifested in English capitalist circles over the course of events in China, an appreciable blow has recently been sustained in their most vulnerable part.

The Chinese Government has declared that it cannot pay the interest on the well known Vickers loan.

This loan was contracted in 1919. At that time the English armament firm of Vickers, Ltd., supplied the Chinese government with great quantities of war material, paid for with this loan.

The firm of Vickers and its business associates in the banks then succeeded in foisting this rotten paper on the English public. Since April 1, 1922, the English holders of this Chinese loan have not received a penny of interest.

Chinese finances are in a desperate condition. China's national debt amounts to $500,000,000. The strange part about it is that a portion of the capitalist creditors of China are quite assured of their interest whilst another portion gets nothing.

A part of the Chinese loans are secured upon the most important of the state revenues, the customs, the yield from the salt tax, and the proceeds from various railways.

These revenues are received directly by the agents of the foreign bankers. The payment of interest on the loans which are covered by these revenues is therefore in good order.

The Japanese and American capitalists have succeeded in reserving these securities for themselves whilst the English with their Vickers loan are left in the lurch.

The assumption of power in Peking by Wu has not changed the wretched condition of Chinese finances. American capital had to advance enormous sums in order to bring the Chinese budget into something like order.

Increase Tax Burden

The following course has been recommended in Washington in order to render possible the payment of all the interest. The Chinese customs duties and other taxes are to be greatly increased, and the task of getting in this revenue shall be assigned to the foreign capitalists.

The ways and means by which the foreign capitalists are to come by their money affords an interesting parallel to the German reparations problem.

China is also at the extremity towards which Germany is also steering if the Entente capitalists have their way. It is the intention of American capitalists by means of new indirect taxes upon taxes, to plunder the broad masses of China.

These sums will be immediately handed over to the agents of America and thus the interest on China's debt to America will be met.

Plan Enslavement of China

If Wu should prove successful in the North and in the South it will involve a terrible enslavement of China by American capital.

But the other capitalist competitors will not permit themselves to be shut out so unconditionally. Japan takes up the struggle. France which has likewise invested a good deal of money in China is prepared to back Japan. And the English in spite of their good intentions also come by reason of their real interests, into conflict with America.

The Chinese witches' caldron bubbles and hisses louder than ever. The time is not distant when there the grouping of the European powers in the East and in the Far East will take place.

Struggle for World Power

Then there will really set in the struggle for the world market and for opportunities of exploitation between the different capitalist groups.

The United States is arming itself in any event. In spite of the Washington disarmament agreement the Senate voted $294,000,000 for naval expenditure for the current year.

America intends to spend fourteen million dollars for seaplanes. In addition to this, a considerable sum will be devoted to the erection of an American naval base in the Hawaiian Islands. In Washington disarmament was preached. But in Canton there preach the machine guns financed by America.

FIGHT WAGE CUTS

The Flint and Glass Workers' Union, in conference at Atlantic City, N. J., with representatives of the National Association of Manufacturers of Pressed and Blown Glassware, has refused to accept wage reductions varying from 10 to 25 per cent. The union officials declared they had accepted wage cuts of 14 per cent last year and could not consider a further reduction now.

[illegible] Russian Revolution

By KARL RADEK

The Paris Populaire publishes a letter of the noted Russian writer Maxim Gorki to the no less famous French author Anatole France, on the trial of the Social-Revolutionaries. Gorki writes:

"The trial of the Social Revolutionaries bears the cynical character of a public preparation for the murder of people who honestly served the cause of liberation of the Russian people."

At the same time Gorki publishes the letter which he sent to Comrade Rykov, member of the Central Committee of the Russian Communist Party, in which he writes that during the entire revolutionary period he had a thousand times pointed out to the Soviet Government the senselessness and criminality of exterminating the intelligentsia in our uncivilized land of illiterates.

Good Musician, Bad Politician

The Russian workers will pass over this letter and think no more of the matter. They will say to themselves, "Gorki, a good musician, but a bad politician," for they know him very well.

Gorki's attitude during the entire second revolution was an extremely vacillating one.

The only consistent point in his entire attitude was his vacillation. During the March Revolution he published the newspaper, Novaya Zhizn, which fought against the coalition with the bourgeoisie.

But when the Mensheviki and the Social-Revolutionaries did not want to break with the bourgeoisie, thus causing the fall of the Kerensky Government, Gorki was an opponent of the October Revolution.

Gorki's standpoint was as follows: a bourgeois government is bad; coalition with the bourgeoisie is also bad; but a proletarian government is also bad.

Monarchists Use Declaration

The articles in which he himself supported this point of view has been published in a special issue of the Suddeutsche Monatshefte, one of the leading organs of the German monarchists, probably in order to prove that in view of the mortality of all things a Monarchist-Junker government is after all the best.

When the intervention began and the Russian workers and peasants, whom Gorki represented as a horde of wild beasts, defended the independence of their country and the conquests of the October Revolution in a heroic three years' struggle, Gorki sided with the Soviet Government and published the well-known article on Lenin, in which he stated that he (Gorki) was the stormy petrel of literature and could not stand aside during this "heroic experiment."

At the same time Gorki wailed at every case where the Soviet Republic in its difficult fight for existence against its enemies in the "intelligentsia," could not handle them with silk gloves. Gorki has been living outside of Russia for the past few months, deprived of any connection with Russian life, surrounded by a clique of hysterical literati of both sexes; and when he does not accidentally spend an evening with a Russian Communist passing thru Germany, with whom he speaks in terms full of ardor, he grants interviews to the bourgeois press which is full of pessimism and represents the Russian peasant as an antediluvian man.

Man of Many Moods

The Russian workers read this and shrug their shoulders, for they know their Alexei Maximish and his changeable moods. But the foreign workers know Gorki only as a revolutionary author and his opinion has a certain weight with them, for they do not know the sources of Gorki's vacillations which are entirely justified in his nature and past. The following is written for them:

Gorki testifies that the Social-Revolutionaries "sincerely served the cause of the liberation of the Russian people." He, as a poet, is interested in the individual man just as he is created by God, sincere and without trousers.

A poet can sympathize with every strong personality. When one reads Shakespeare, his heroes are a selected gang of cutthroats and none of them belong to the Communist Party.

The only revolutionary he mentions, Jack Cade, receives nothing but curses. When we see the tragic heroes of Shakespeare on the stage we do not ask about the causes they serve, but we take them in their human strength and greatness and are deeply moved.

When one reads Denikin's book, one is no less moved and the book of one of the leading Russian Monarchists, Shulkin, "The Year 1920," is a moving document of the sincerity and the inner purity of this defender of Czarist, monarchist Russia.

Monarchists "Sincere", Too

And there is no doubt that there are thousands of monarchists in Russia, no less than in Germany, who are sincerely convinced that they are serving the cause of the liberation of [illegible] by the Entente. [illegible] Gotz with the following [illegible] "The post-office workers received a large house for their society from the Soviet Government. This house belonged to the tea millionaire Wissotzky, the uncle of Gotz."

Does Gotz realize that with the victory of his party the house would be taken away from the post-office workers and given back to the uncle?

Must Destroy "S. R." Party

This simple question illuminates the social sense of the policy of the sincere S. R.'s better than long theoretical essays. They are certainly sincere and convinced of the correctness of their policy, but that does not change the fact that the S. R.'s are the defenders of the interests of the bourgeoisie; every worker in Russia understands that, and he does not give a damn for the sincerity of the sorrowful heroes of the Russian counter-revolution, but says, "This party must be destroyed, because it is the enemy of the working people, and its illusions (therein lies its sincerity) make it even more dangerous for they only mean that it serves the cause of the counter-revolution under the banner of the revolution.

To destroy intellectuals in a poor and of illiterates—is that not a crime, asks Gorki. The Czar, the [illegible] the S. R.'s with the argument that they have learned to read and write [illegible] French poems is a comical undertaking.

Why does not Gorki understand all that? Gorki comes from the petty bourgeois class. He lived for a long time among the slum proletariat which served as the subject for his early novels.

He himself obtained the education he now possesses under the greatest sacrifices. And as often happens with self-educated men, he became a Philistine on the subject of education.

Strange, Educated Folk

How many workers are there, who after studying handbooks of astronomy, Darwin and histories of culture by the light of a candle, into the [illegible] the S. R.'s' Herald and Mass; not, however, the mass sufficient unto itself.

The Fears of Gorki

His educational philistinism gives rise to this hatred of the peasant in whom he sees nothing human. When the October Revolution broke out he was convinced that because of the preponderance of the peasantry in Russia, it would have to end in the complete extirpation of Russian culture. He was therefore an opponent of the October Revolution.

He did not believe that the workers were strong enough to lead the peasant in the struggle for liberation. Only people who had read Newcombe's "Astronomy" and could explain the second part of "Faust" could do this.

[illegible] Gorki understood that for a [illegible] but in his heart there remained [illegible] of the lack of culture on the part of the workers and the inability of the peasants to receive culture at all.

Hence his counter-revolutionary [illegible] against the peasants and his hysterical cry, "O! Protect the intellectuals", even when they desire to murder the Russian Revolution in alliance with the Entente.

Gorki sits in Berlin with his hysterical literati.

Reads White Guard Press

He reads no newspapers printed in Russia, but instead he reads the White Guard papers appearing outside of Russia with all their lies and deceptions.

All his petty bourgeois instincts awoke and dictated his letter. If Gorki should return to Russia and again live in the midst of Russian life and see the work done by the Soviet Government together with all the intellectuals who really do not want to return to the weak bourgeois culture on the backs of the outlawed and exploited masses, but who are looking forward to a new culture together with the fighting workers and peasants, he will (as often before) again blushingly smile and say, "You know very well that I understand but little of politics."

We will answer, "Good, one must take men as one finds them, particularly a poet." But even a poet must not misuse the right to write nonsense, except when he writes verse, whereupon he can explain the nonsense as a new form of poetry.

Zinoviev Tells How Italian Socialist Party Was Destroyed

horn split, this Party consisted of the following elements: several tens of thousands of advanced revolutionary proletarians, who were full of enthusiasm and ready for the fight; several tens of thousands of workers who were inclined to be revolutionary but who were politically uninitiated and inexperienced and therefore an easy prey to pacifist illusions.

Add to these two groups of several thousand petty bourgeois followers; add further, a group of Parliamentary leaders, political functionaries and trade union and co-operative officials of the petty-bourgeois intelligentsia, five thousand all told, and you have the old Italian Socialist Party as it was before Leghorn.

Before the Leghorn split there were two well defined political formations within the party. On the one side were the Communists, on the other the Reformists.

Magic Slogan of "Unity"

Both of these groups, however, were in the minority. In the center were the "Maximalists" who at that time had the majority of the Party behind them, and whose magic slogan was "unity".

When the decisive moment came this Centrist group, headed by Serrati, went over to the Reformists. That sealed the fate of the Italian Socialist Party.

The Reformists then mounted the high horse. Altho the Centrists claimed that they only offered the Reformists one finger, they were in reality bound by the latter hand and foot.

The social significance of what took place was reflected in the following: the petty bourgeois intellectual group consisting of trade union bureaucrats, Parliamentarians, journalists and lawyers, had, as we have already pointed out, only five thousand members.

But this small group was bound by a thousand ties to the bourgeoisie; it was a typical group of "labor lieutenants" in the service of the bourgeoisie.

By itself this group of petty bourgeois officials is insignificant, but as the vanguard of the bourgeoisie in the camp of the workers it can become a mighty force under certain circumstances.

Serrati Helped Reformists

And it is no other than Serrati and his fraction, who created these favorable circumstances for the petty bourgeois reformist group. A certain division of labor took place. . . . The Reformists served the cause of the bourgeoisie quite openly, while Serrati proclaimed loudly that he was against Reformism, but for unity in the workers' ranks.

And all this at a time when the Italian proletariat was fired with the spirit of revolt that found expression in the seizure of the factories; all this at a time when the bloody Fascisti were raising their heads and capital was launching its raging offensive.

The bourgeoisie aimed quickly and truly. In Leghorn the show-window was so dressed as to display the majority not with the Reformists, but with the "irreconcilable revolutionaries."

The Reformists put on the airs of solemnity, and grimacing resigned sheep, they feigned "submissiveness" to Serrati's Centrist majority.

Already at that time the majority of the trade union and cooperative officials and of the Parliamentary fraction was on their side. Having achieved the virtual expulsion of the irreconcilable proletarian section of the Party, the Reformists, with the aid of Serrati, began to reinforce and fortify their positions in the trade unions, the co-operatives, and in the Parliamentary fraction.

Reformists Now Masters

Barely more than a year has passed and the Reformists are now the masters of the situation. They succeeded in disorganizing and demoralizing the remaining section of the Party; they created the material dependance of almost the entire Party press upon themselves; all the bourgeois organizations and the trade union and co-operative officials are on their side. . . .

The moment came when the Reformists removed their mask. Having the most important positions in the old party under their control, they could afford to disregard the vacillating Serratians, and entered into open "collaboration" with the bourgeoisie.

They want more than a virtual co-operation with the bourgeoisie; they want their marriage with the capitalists recognized and legalized. Turati and Co. are not satisfied with mere ministries; they demand recognition de jure.

The Fascisti are on the offensive; they murder workers in every city, they have virtually organized a regular bourgeois army of murderers. The Fascisti are ruling Italy. But here come the Reformists and propose a very simple way of destroying the Fascisti.

"Destroying" the Fascisti

The matter is quite simple: In order to destroy the Fascisti . . . it is necessary to enter into an alliance with them; it is necessary to enter into the bourgeois ministry and share the power with the actual instigator of Fascism,—the bourgeoisie.

As long as there was the slightest opportunity for Serrati and Co. to prove that "his" Italian Reformist were "different" from the Reformists of other countries and that they had nothing in common with Millerandism, Serrati fulfilled his task not out of fear, but out of "conscience."

But very soon Turati, Modigliani and Company cruelly robbed their faithful servant Serrati of this opportunity.

Serrati can no longer claim that the Italian Reformists are "no Reformists at all." The myth of the immaculate conception of the Italian Reformists is exploded. Serrati was forced to remember his "intransigeance."

Even he, about whom the revolutionary workers of Italy long ago said: "Spit in his face and he'll say, it's God's dew," even he could not wipe his face unnoticed.

More Serrati Promises

Nothing was left for Serrati but to promise to start some sort of a fight against the Reformists.

The Reformists in the meanwhile become so audacious, however, that they refused to conciliate even an opposition like that of Serrati.

But since the formal power of the Party was still in the hands of the paper Central Committee, with Serrati at its head, the Reformists decided upon energetic action.

Whenever it is a question of combating Socialism, the reformists are energetic enough. The reactionaries in the ranks of the Reformists are men of deeds, not words.

The majority of the "Socialist" fraction in Parliament decided not to obey the Central Committee any longer. Turati and Modigliani had had enough of party "discipline." They were going to work unhampered now.

They figured as follows: 107 Populists, 80 Socialists, 35 Nittians, 25 autonomous Reformists and 20 deserters (from the Giolitti camp make a total of 267 deputies. These constitute a Parliamentary majority with which a new coalition ministry could be formed. What could the reminders of party discipline and the will of the majority of organized workers count against this estimate.

And the Reformists went to work. They who for years had been working under cover, they who had continually stroked the Centrists along the fur and had pursued a policy of "submissiveness" towards Serrati and Company, now showed their teeth.

The Parliamentary group has virtually chased the poor Centrists; it chose a new leadership and appointed the Reformist Baldesi who is an Activist and one of the leaders of the Italian Federation of Labor, as its secretary.

The Darling of the Bourgeoisie

Baldesi is the darling of the bourgeoisie and should his time come, he will persecute the Communists with a greater fury than do the police and the Fascisti at present.

D'Aragona and Company, who swore and reswore allegiance to the I. S. P., are now trampling their written agreement with the I. S. P. under foot, and are openly proceeding as an independent force. There is complete chaos in the Party. Serrati's Central Committee split almost into equal parts, 13 against 12. As a result we find within the Party groups, subgroups, fractions, subfractions, etc.

We find Maximalists, Concentrationists, Centrists, Reformists, etc., etc. Only one group, that of Maffi, Lazzari and Riboldi, three comrades who were present at the Third Congress of the Comintern and were convinced of Serrati's betrayal, are now carrying on a more or less decisive struggle against the Reformists.

The Centrists who only a year ago considered themselves the masters of the situation are now confronted with the dilemma: to enter into the service of the Reformists or to quit the Party, which?

If Serrati only possessed an iota of revolutionary honesty, he would now admit his mistake. But the chances that he would do so are about 1 to 10,000. What is more probable is that the Italian Centrists will share their fate with international Centrism.

Lesson Must Not Be Lost

They will continue to feed the Reformist mill in one way or another. The Reformist is for the capitalist, and the Centrist for the Reformist, —such is the formula verified best by the history of the Italian Socialist Party.

Is this crying lesson to be lost on the international labor movement? Is it possible that it will not serve as a lesson at least to those of our French comrades who are not yet convinced of the necessity for breaking with the Centrist or semi-Centrist elements once and for all?

Serrati chose the best and quickest method of destroying his Party. He could patent it if he so desired. He deserves a prize for having revealed the counter-revolutionary soul of Centrism in so unmistakable a light. Kautsky is the theoretician of centrism; Serrati is its practitioner and politician.

Both the one and the other feed the Reformist mill and, thru it, the bourgeoisie. One really has to be blind in order not to see this.

Of course, the Italian workers will gather enough strength and resistance to recover from the blows they have received at the hands of the Reformist and Centrist traitors. They will find a way out of the crisis that was brought upon them.

Join Communist Party

They will now begin to join the Communist Party en masse, and in a few years, the Reformists and the bourgeoisie will be laid low by the proletarian dictatorship.

The I. S. P. episode should serve as a lesson to all true Socialists, and finally convince them that the real mission of the Centrists consists in delaying and postponing the day of victory for the proletariat, in making the struggle a harder one for the workers, in increasing the number of victims, and in intensifying the misery and suffering of the proletarian masses. Let the proletarian revolutionary vanguard comprehend this and let it throw international Centrism into the garbage can of history.

Mass Meeting Here to Aid Italian Labor in War on Fascisti

Friday evening, August 18, at the Manhattan Lyceum, 66 E. 4th St., the workers of New York will rally to the support of the Italian workers in their fight against the Fascisti cutthroats.

The Italian capitalists are making a last desperate effort to crush the revolutionary, workers' movement of Italy. For that purpose they have organized the young bourgeois officers and students into the Fascisti organization, the counter-part of the American Legion and Ku Klux Klan.

These superior Italian patriots, with arms furnished by the bourgeoisie and with a government lending them its aid, are viciously attacking and terrorizing the Italian workers. They are destroying the co-operative houses and newspaper plants, intimidating leaders of the proletariat and killing revolutionary workers.

But the Italian workers are not to be cowed into submission by a show of force. They are giving blow for blow. They have organized their own legion, the Arditi del Populo, and in spite of of the fact that the bourgeois government is against them, are courageously and valiantly resisting the attacks of the Fascist gangsters. The workers of Italy under the leadership of the communists, are offering the finest example of proletarian courage.

The American workers must clearly show on what side their sympathies are; they must do all in their power to encourage their Italian fellow-workers in their struggle against the Fascisti bandits. The workers of New York will have an opportunity to do so at the mass meeting where Italian revolutionists of national reputation will make clear the situation in Italy.

We must show that we are behind the Italian workers by coming to the meeting.

Picnic Settlements

All comrades are requested to settle at once with the Local Office or in their branches for their tickets. The financial secretaries are requested to collect money and returned tickets and forward them to the Local office as soon as possible.

All branches owing for literature are requested to pay up at once. The Toiler Bookshop is now the literature department of Local Office, and the latter wishes to clear the debts of the Bookshop as soon as possible. It can do so only if the branches pay up.

"Sub" Hustlers Scrape 1,000 Mark in 25,000 Readers Campaign

The weekly increase of subscriptions received in the "25,000 new readers campaign" which THE WORKER is now carrying on mounted close to the 1,000 mark last week.

A total of 917 new subscriptions were received. We are sure to go over the 1,000 mark this coming week. Indications, judging by daily arrivals of quantities of filled out subscription cards are most encouraging. They continue to arrive in every mail in handfuls.

Every state in the Union is represented. Practically every town in which there was at the time of the beginning of the campaign one or more subscribers is now doubling and trebling its list of WORKER readers. Many NEW towns are being placed on the mail list with substantial lists of readers who have never read THE WORKER before—nor any other paper of its kind.

The campaign spreads in wider and wider circles as the weeks pass, and our readers really get into the swing of it. For this 16 a readers' campaign. To them goes the credit for its success—upon them rests the responsibility for the success we know will follow THEIR activity. To them must go the appreciation which is due for this solid achievement of building THE WORKER.

And now about this 1,000 mark—this gaining of 1,000 new readers week after week. We must hold the ground gained. We must not slip backward. We should be positively ashamed to let a single week pass during this campaign when less than 1,000 new readers are added to our list.

We know the comrades who have made the subscription drive so far successful would surely feel shame at even the smallest loss of ground. The enthusiasm with which they have sent in their sold cards—and in many cases ordered more to sell, warrants this assertion. THEY, the ones who have worked, EXPECT that others will do the same. THEY cannot see any reason for ANY one shirking so easy a task as selling five or ten 20-week WORKER subscription cards.

THEY say it can be done, THEY have done it. YOU, too, can sell as many as others. Sell the cards sent you this week. Don't delay. Get THE WORKER into the hands of America's wage workers. Sell your cards, keep the weekly record up to the 1,000 mark!

Plan to Change "Iskra" to Russian Daily Soon

All Russian Branches of the Workers Party, New York Local, are jointly arranging a picnic for Saturday, August 26, at Niblo's Garden, 3rd Ave. and 70th Street, Bronx, with the object in view to increase the fund that is being collected for the purpose of issuing The Iskra as a daily instead of weekly, as at present.

All friends of the revolutionary labor movement must assist us in this task which is so important. Do it by doing it. Come to the picnic.

Fraternal organizations are requested to arrange no affairs for above date. For particulars see "ad" in coming issue of The Worker. Tickets can be had at the Iskra Office, 208 E. 12 St., N. Y. C.

Echoes from the Fighters at the Front

"Enclosed find $2.50 for five subscription cards. I need not add that The Worker subscription campaign is excellent and you may count on my co-operation." Y. C. A., Philadelphia, Pa.

"I hope you will meet with success," writes Comrade J. J. F., of Cleveland, Ohio. With a wish like that and an enclosure of $7.50 we feel that Comrade F. is doing his part to bring success which he wishes.

Comrade E. L., of Paterson, N. J., says he has cleaned up all possibilities of getting subs in his shop having gotten 13 from the fellow workers.

So many comrades just write, "Enclosed please find $2.50 (or $5.00 as the case may be) for the cards which I have sold." Some might claim that there was not much contained—in that many times repeated sentence. But we think differently. In such words many times repeated by many Comrades from all parts of the country there is manifested the co-operation, the enthusiasm and the energetic effort which will make this subscription campaign successful and build THE WORKER into a daily.

"Enclosed find $3.50 for seven new subscriptions," writes Comrade D. S., of Yorkville, O. It takes enthusiasm and work to do that!

"I sincerely hope your campaign will be a success," says Comrade P. N. B., of Rochester, N. Y. He finds it practical to subscribe for several of his friends who have not previously read THE WORKER.

"Have received the sub cards and have up to now sent in 13 subscriptions." This heering news comes from Comrade J. H. R., of Washington, D. C.

"The awakening among the railroaders is here. That is why I am pushing AMALGAMATION literature," writes Comrade L. L., of Tracy, Calif. Evidently THE WORKER helps for the comrade sends $7.50 for sub cards sold.

"Enclosed you will find the July allotment of subscription cards and $5.00 to pay for them." This comes from Comrade G. L. C., of San Francisco, Cal. This, we take it, is getting ready for the August allotment.

"The workers in this town are much afraid of the 'RED MENACE,' but I have found a few whom Sammy Gompers and Co. have not doped. Send me some more sub cards." Comrade G. S., of Palm Beach, Fla., writes this to us in a letter enclosing a remittance for five cards sold.

Comrade T. R., of Rochester, N. Y., remits $10.50 for 21 sub cards. Rochester is scheduled to occupy a large spot on THE WORKER map judging by the successful efforts of the comrades there.

THE WORKERS OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

To all Comrades, [illegible] Free Love and the Class Struggle.

GREETING:

WE COMMAND YOU that all business and sinecure being laid aside, you appear and attend a picnic at FUHRER'S ELMHURST PARK, Elmhurst, L. I., on Sunday, August 20th, 1922, at 10 A. M., and give evidence of your intelligence in accomplishing thereby a twofold purpose, namely, helping financially, morally and otherwise in the relief and defense of the Class War Political Prisoners—victims of the capitalist class, and at the same time helping yourself to a better time than you can have anywhere else for the price; and that you bring with you and produce at the time and place aforesaid all your friends, relatives, children, wives, sweethearts, etc., etc., ad infinitum. Tickets, 35 cents.

And for your failure to attend, you will be deemed guilty of contempt of the noblest interest of mankind, and liable to humanity and posterity for all loss and damage suffered thereby, and forfeit all love, respect and affection of your fellow-men in addition thereto.

WITNESS, The Picnic, Sunday, August 20th, at Fuhrer's Elmhurst Park, Elmhurst, Long Island.

Party Aids Striking Minneapolis Shopmen

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — The Workers' Party local here has been actively participating in the work of keeping up the morale of the striking shopmen. In order to hold the strikers together and keep up their fighting spirit the Workers' Party organization arranged to have Ella Reeves Bloor come to the city to work among the strikers.

Mrs. Bloor during her week's work addressed as many as three and four mass meetings a day. Her talks were enthusiastically received and she has undoubtedly contributed to help hold any wavering elements in line.

The Party organization is supporting the strikers with all the means at its command and the result here is new appreciation of the meaning of the Workers' Party program of entering into the present struggles of the workers and help them to win those struggles against the whole system of exploitation.

SEATTLE. — William Z. Foster, chief of the Trade Union Educational league, spoke at three meetings here recently to large audiences. He pleaded for concentration of radical workers in the main labor unions of each industry in a program for amalgamation. Foster also spoke at other coast cities before returning to Chicago.

Dear Comrade [illegible] Workers' Revolution in Russia?

Gene Debs, why do these civilized people with whom you protest, Emile Vandervelde the Socialist, a member of the Belgian war cabinet, the man whose official position during the war gave sanction to the slaughter of German workers by Belgian and French and English workers; the man who saw without protest the sending of troops by the imperialists of England, France, Japan and the United States into Siberia and Archangel to murder Russian workers, to strangle their government?

Are these civilized people, Henderson and Thomas of England, the betrayers of the workers not only of England but of Ireland, India and Egypt as well?

Are the Social Democrats of Germany who led the German workers to battle for the kaiser and the war lords in 1914, and who murdered Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg, who turned Spanish Revolutionists over to the Spanish ruling class; are they the civilized people with whom you protest?

Perhaps it's the chorus of the New York American, and a thousand other capitalist imperialist organs which you join in your protest with "all other civilized people."

Gene Debs, you're in bad company. You are aligning yourself with those whom you have denounced for twenty-five years. I have heard you condemn the prostituted press. I have heard you denounce with bitterest sarcasm the traitors in our own ranks; the lawyers, the preachers, the petit politicians who had wormed their way into our ranks. And when the great world war was on and darkness and despair overshrouded our movement, when so many of us quaked with fear, I read your Canton speech which like a burst of sunlight rent the darkness asunder, and spoke to the hearts of all saying that all hope had not yet died, that still amid the darkness of Capitalist reaction and war madness there was a light that shone for us, a voice that spoke what we were afraid to speak, a torch that feared not to shine.

Gene Debs, Comrade Debs: — I was a mere boy when first I heard your magic voice. I heard you recite the valorous deeds of Louis Tikas, the Greek miner whom you termed the Lion Hearted, and the other miners at Ludlow, Colorado, who with guns in hands defended their lives and homes against the drunken thugs of Rockefeller. I heard you cry out in defiance to the lords of life and property, "I am with the workers, even to the barricades!"

I was thrilled by your magic words, and I cried within myself, "Here is the heart and soul, the flaming torch of the Social Revolution!"

Comrade Debs, are you going to disappoint me? Are you going to dishearten the thousands of other boys and girls now grown to manhood and womanhood whose lives were filled with hope by your eloquence?

The "Civilized people" with whom you protest know what crimes these "Social Revolutionaries" have committed; know that these criminals have not been incarcerated, have not been convicted and will not be executed for their views. These criminals openly boast that they have plotted the destruction of the Workers' Soviet Republic in Russia. Their acts have caused the deaths not only of a few leaders, but of thousands of the more humble in the ranks of the loyal selfsacrificing revolutionary proletariat and peasantry of Russia. The trials in Moscow have revealed these facts.

Does your great heart sicken at the execution of a handful of murderers and arch-criminals such as these? Then consider for a moment. Is it better to extend clemency to them and thus endanger the lives of hundreds and perhaps thousands of peasants and workers, and perhaps endanger the Workers' Republic by encouraging counter-revolutionary acts; or to shoot the plotters and murderers and save the lives of these thousands of workers and peasants, and give counter-revolutionists not only in Russia, but all over the world an eternal warning to beware the wrath of the proletariat?

Comrade Debs, with whom will you stand; the traitors to the working class, the Hillquits, the Bergers, the Scheidemanns, the Noskes, the Vanderveldes, and Hendersons; the reactionary Socialist and Capitalist press of the world; or the real defenders of the Social Revolutions, who have hearts that beat with your own, but whose emotions do not dictate their acts when necessity demands stern action?

Comrade Debs, you once made a sweeping declaration when it was dangerous to do so. You proclaimed to the world, "I am a Bolshevik from the crown of my head to the soles of my feet, and I am proud of it!"

That declaration shook the world! Everywhere, even in the farthest corners of Siberia where our com- [illegible]

Comrade Debs, Our Workers [illegible] America? We believe if you do, that you'll repudiate the gang with whom you temporarily find yourself, realizing that they are using your name and fame to help them in their campaign to strangle the young and growing movement, teeming with life; the movement which is destined to do the job to which you have dedicated your life, the emancipation of the world's workers from capitalist slavery.

Comrade Debs, if you don't investigate, if you continue with the old crowd, I shall bid you a last farewell, I shall wish in my heart that while you were still in the grip of our capitalist jailers that the merciful arms of death had embraced you, and saved you the calumny that most surely awaits you, if you stay where you are. I had rather had you die the flaming torch of the New Day in America.

Think it over, Comrade Debs. We are ready to welcome you back, all of us.

With the revolutionary workers of America, and the world I await your decision.

In comradeship,
J. W. Marshall.

DISTRICT 2 SPEAKERS ON TOUR SHOW FINE RESULTS

Kate Amter, "Labor's cartoonist and orator," has up to date spoken to over 50,000 people in the states of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

Even the capitalist papers along her route were so impressed by her truthful portrayal of the "War of the Classes" that they gave her considerable write-ups.

Her dates for the week are as follows:

Friday, August 11, Bolivar, N. Y.; 12, Olean; 13, Hornell; 14, Hornell; 15, Trumansburg; 16, Ithaca; 17, Geneva; 18, Endicott.

Peter C. Sharp, member of the executive board of the Fancy Leather Goods Workers Union, the fourth speaker toured by District 2, will cover the following dates this week:

Friday, August 11, Derby, Conn.; 12, New Haven; 13, Waterbury; 14, Waterbury; 15, Ansonia; 16, Bridgeport; 17, Norwalk; 18, Stamford.

M. R. Salzman is covering the last week of his tour in the state of New Jersey.

Kasherich Heads Ticket in New Jersey; Louis Wolf for U. S. Senator

The convention of the state of New Jersey, held in Newark, on Saturday, August 5, placed Workers' Party candidates in the field for the coming elections.

The thirty delegates that were present representing the Workers' Party branches in the large industrial centres of New Jersey, portrayed an unbounding enthusiasm in this function of the Party.

Dr. John J. Kasherich was selected unanimously to head the Party ticket as candidate for governor and Louis Wolf for U. S. Senator.

The state campaign committee stated today, thru its chairman, C. Chrissafides, that they are determined to put the entire machinery of the Party to work securing signatures in order to place these candidates on the ticket. The required amount of signatures in the state of New Jersey is 800.

Do You Read or Just Drift Along?

Some workers read—and learn—and take their place in the front ranks of the workers' emancipating movement.

Some don't, and remain mentally as well as physically enslaved. Forward looking and thinking workers agree that without knowledge of the character of the forces which are at war in present society no progress can be made toward solving the causes of this war.

These books will help clear your mind on many a knotty problem of the labor movement.

SOVIET RUSSIA needs machinery—vast quantities of it.

The peasants cannot harvest the crops unless they procure harvesters, binders. They cannot prepare the fields for the winter unless they are given

A German aviator has completed the first non-stop flight from Berlin to Moscow, making the 1,100 miles in 10 hours and 40 minutes, an average of approximately 110 miles per hour. It is taking the ideas of the Russian Revolution a little longer to make the distance, but they will get there in time.

The First Shipment

It is characteristic of the efficient manner in which the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America does things that the first shipment of its Russian-American Industrial Corporation should already be on its way to Soviet Russia.

This first aid toward the rehabilitation of Russia's garment industry consisted of spare parts for the better equipment of the Soviet clothing and textile factories, especially ordered under direction from Moscow.

Hardly more than two months have passed since the Amalgamated, at its Chicago convention in May, launched the plan for the raising of $1,000,000, yet more than $100,000 of that sum has already been secured. The sending forward of this first shipment should be a big incentive toward rapidly developing the speed with which this drive is approaching its goal.

Special drives are being made right now in New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Toronto, Louisville and Los Angeles, where the Amalgamated has strong local organizations. But this should not stop the workers in other sections of the country from enlisting in this campaign.

The Amalgamated has received a concession in the Russian clothing industry, giving it full power of management and perfect freedom in the sale and purchase of goods both in Russia and abroad. The success of the Amalgamated in this venture is not only the victory of the members of the Amalgamated and the workers of Russia, but it will be a triumph for the American working class.

If American labor can help conduct Russia's industries it will be on the high road to the realization that it can take over and run the industries of this country as well. It is sadly in need to-day of that confidence in its own ability.

The Communist International

The Fourth World Congress of the Communist International is called to assemble at Moscow, November 7, the fifth anniversary of the Russian Bolshevik Revolution.

Invitations have gone forth to the Communist Parties of fifty-six countries and the congress promises to be the most imposing and widely representative international gathering of workers the world has yet witnessed.

Travel barriers and communication obstructions have been broken down since the first congress was held in 1918, when allied intervention and the blockade were active in seeking to break down Soviet resistance, and force submission of workers' rule to allied imperialism.

This will not only make it easier for the delegates to reach Russia, but will make it possible for the world's workers to secure more frequent and accurate reports of the important events transpiring at the congress.

Since the Third Congress was held one year ago, Soviet Russia has had its knee upon the chest of imperialist diplomacy both at Genoa and at the Hague, while the Versailles Peace is nearer collapse than at any time since the war was ended.

We publish the call for the congress including the agenda in another column. The decisions growing out of this congress will mark another important milestone in the struggle of world labor to achieve its emancipation.

With the holding of this congress the rallying cry of, "Long Live the Communist International! Long Live the Social Revolution!" will be carried to the ears of new millions of exploited workers.

Let oppressed labor in America hurry its pace and get in step with the forward march of the aspiring masses in other lands.

A Disquieting Feature

Robert Buck, editor of the New Majority, official organ of the Farmer-Labor Party, published in Chicago, in the issue of July 29, finds a "disquieting feature" in the recent Socialist-Farmer-Labor Party Conference held in New York.

He refers to the report in the New York Call quoting Abraham I. Shiplacoff, a candidate for congress on the coalition ticket, as having said, in accepting the nomination:

"We have formed a real front against our enemies. We are going to fight the bulls in Wall Street and the bulls in the China shop of our home, the Communists, who want to tear everything to pieces."

In denouncing this declaration of Shiplacoff's, we find Buck stating that,

"The settled policy of the Farmer-Labor Party is that we are fighting the foes of the workers and we are not fighting any other working-class group whatsoever.

"If units with which the Farmer-Labor Party allies itself for united, independent political action do not join our party in this policy, it is doubtful if coalition will get us any farther than the former disgraceful backbiting of working-class political groups."

Thus the tandem Socialist-Farmer-Labor Party outfit is already having its troubles. It can't decide whether the main attack is to be on Communism, or capitalism, or both. Shiplacoff was on the Socialist Party national executive committee that started the heresy hunting and expulsions back in 1919, and he is still on the job. The Farmer-Labor Party just wants to be left alone in its peaceful and harmless pursuit of votes.

Buck admits not only that the Socialist-Farmer-Labor Party house is divided, but that it must fall. The Socialists and Farmer-Laborites have neither "united" nor "independent" political action. They have merely a loose and hostile combination for combatting revolutionary political action. And as such the workers must and will desert them in their struggle for real united and independent political action of all-America's workers.

The [illegible] the Hearst papers is as follows:

UNITED STATES STEEL CORPORATION
New York, [illegible] 1922.

CHAIRMAN'S OFFICE.

Dear Mr. Dickson,

[illegible] running in your paper.

Very truly yours,
E. H. GARY.

Mr. J. A. Dickson, General Manager,
Chicago Herald and Examiner,
Chicago, Illinois.

Hinman was formerly editor of the defunct Chicago Inter-Ocean, one of the most bitter of labor-hating sheets. Hinman is, therefore, well qualified to write "business" editorials.

At the same time there are no doubt workers who will continue to be deluded by Arthur Brisbane's "radical" editorials in these same Hearst papers.

Hearst wrote of La Follette that "big business" was not at all troubled by the latter's "radicalism," in fact it liked that particular brand. It did not hurt it.

Gary backs Hearst, and Hearst backs La Follette, and they will all be friends and rob the masses as long as the capitalist system is permitted to continue.

The only struggle that matters for the workers is the struggle of Communism for the abolition of capitalism and the victory of the workers. Join in that struggle. Join the Workers Party and participate in its activities.

The District of Columbia commissioners, who rule over the nation's capital, have decreed that the publication of newspapers is one of the least essential industries to be operated during the coal strike. Thus is the uselessness of the capitalist press unmasked by its own supporters. When the workers get in power, as now, they will consider their press as one of their most important assets.

Cahan Wants to Forget

Our readers last week were made acquainted with the attack of Abraham Cahan, editor of the Jewish Daily Forward, on the Friends of Soviet Russia.

Now comes Cahan's Forward, issue of August 5, and hands its unqualified approval to Herbert Hoover's American Relief Administration.

This is an inconsistency in an alleged working-class paper that effectually wipes the Forward from the list of labor spokesmen in this country.

Yet the Forward is consistent. If Cahan feels called upon to attack the only workers' organization for Russian Famine Relief in this country, then he surely must feel at home with the Republican politicians at Washington.

Cahan admits that "The narrow-minded politics of the Wilson and Harding administrations have wrought much trouble for the Russian people. Their open and secret support to the counter-revolutionary governments contributed in no small measure to the present condition in Russia."

Then comes Cahan's amazing declaration that, "Nevertheless, the present relief activities of the American government in Russia have made it possible to forget this. New threads of friendship and understanding are now being interlaced between the two countries."

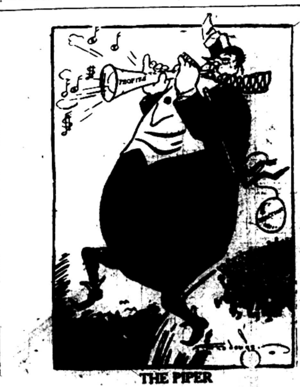
And the following: "When we remind ourselves of Hoover's work in Russia, we are quite willing to forget many of his sins here in America."

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, now ought to offer Cahan's name for the membership list of the fraternal brotherhood of so-called "labor leaders" and capitalist profiteers called the National Civic Federation.

Soviet Rule in Russia does not and will not, under any circumstances, recognize any bonds of friendship with American capitalism. Hoover confesses himself an enemy of Communism and he is honest about it. He continues famine relief because he is afraid that plagues, incidental to the famine, may leap Russia's western frontier and spread to the rest of Europe and to the United States. He would rejoice at any time in the overthrow of the workers' republic.

Not all the relief that Hoover can muster will make the workers of this country, or of Russia, forget the crimes of the Wilson and Harding administrations against the Russian Soviet Republic. Cahan may "forget" in his anxiety to conduct a "safe, sane and respectable" newspaper under the present social system. But the workers will never forget. They will march forward and achieve their own victory, the triumph of Communism over brutalizing and oppressive capitalism.

And part of that effort right now is helping the Friends of Soviet Russia stand by the Russian workers and peasants in their present hour of trial. Where do you stand?



THE PIPER

[illegible] Fear?

[illegible] United States Army of Occupation at Coblenz, Germany.

[illegible] the Bendorf Gasworks, which provides Coblenz with gas, went on strike owing to a wage dispute.

General Allen, commander of the American Occupation Unit on the Rhine, thereupon dispatched a squad of soldiers to drive the strikers back to work at the points of their guns. They arrested [illegible] leaders.

It seems that the men went back to work but struck again to force the release of their officials.

Latest reports are to the effect that the American military satraps were still refusing to release the labor officials, and that American soldiers, carrying the Stars and Stripes, were dragging the workers out of their homes and endeavoring to compel them to work. This, however, the men still refused to do.

We do not remember that the late Kaiser Wilhelm, during his reign, ever attempted to utilize such "democratic" methods in breaking a strike.

We have heard of the Cossacks of Pennsylvania and West Virginia attempting it, with varied success.

Perhaps that is what President Harding intended when he "invited" the miners to return to the coal pits several weeks ago. The troops were at the mines, the flag was raised, but the strikers did not accept the "invitation."

We wonder why Harding fears to use the soldiery in the coal mining districts of this country, as they have been and are being used along the Rhine.

What do you fear, Mr. Harding? Why do you not send the soldiers to herd the miners back to work, to kneel before the coal barons, as you are driving the workers of Germany back to their jobs, to toil under the lash of German profiteers and exploiters?

Surely the American bosses will protest at this show of discrimination. Or are you afraid that the American army isn't big enough to do the job? In that case perhaps your French counterpart, President Millerand, might let you have a few regiments of Sanegalese Colonials, and Lloyd George might ship over a few brigades of "loyal" troops, with experience in Ireland, "Black and Tans" preferred, and the King of Italy might help out with a few thousand Fascisti.

That might help bolster up your courage, Mr. Harding, in fighting the strikes of the coal miners and railroad workers.

But it would also arouse the American workers to greater resistance and give them another lesson in the real nature of the American capitalist government.

The League of American Pen Women has joined the hysterical mob that is censoring school books so that no suspicion of disloyalty will be found therein. Pretty soon there will be nothing left of the school books but the blank pages. Which may be better, perhaps, than some of the poison that the 100 per cent paytriots would put upon them.

Help get those 25,000 new readers.

Another Allied Conference

There is another Allied Conference being held in London and its dominant note, uttered by Premier Poincaré, of France, is that "The Treaty of Versailles seems to be observed less and less as time goes on."

Some say this is the thirteenth, others the fifteenth Allied Conference on War Debts and Reparations, but the object of them all has been and still remains for the Allies, as the Japanese ambassador, Baron Hayashi, points out, "to get as much money as they can for reparations out of Germany."

Against the process of bleeding her white, Germany is pleading for a complete moratorium to the end of 1924.

The conference is meeting under the shadow of Lord Balfour's plea for the cancellation of all war debts, urged first by the Soviet delegates at Genoa.

Poincaré shed numerous tears over the money that France has been compelled to spend in reparation work in her ten devastated departments. Lloyd George entered the weeping competition by quoting the Bankers' Trust Company of New York to the effect that war expenditures had been as follows: France, $37,500,000,000; Italy, $14,500,000,000; Great Britain, $49,000,000,000; this showing, he contended, that British claims for reparations were just as good as those of France.

As we go to press the French plan of bleeding Germany to the last drop was unanimously submitted to the committee on experts.

These capitalist experts have been busy ever since the armistice was declared. The Treaty of Versailles is their work. The enslavement of the workers of Europe is their job. It is up to them to keep the lid on the seething cauldron of social revolution.

How long will it take the workers of Europe to blow off the lid, sweep aside the capitalist experts and politicians and take all power into their own hands?

The present London Conference will help. It must confess itself a farce, even as the conferences at Genoa and The Hague were complete failures.

Railroad Strikers are selling their "Liberty Bonds" to pay their grocery and rent bills. The railroaders are realizing more and more that the closest they ever got to "liberty" was the name on the bond, and now they have lost that. But the present struggle will teach them to make a fight for real liberty, not the "Liberty Bond" kind.

La Parola del Populo, the publication of the few Italians still affiliated with the Socialist Party, has endorsed the attack of Cahan's Jewish Daily Forward against the Friends of Soviet Russia. We suggest the yellow Socialists take a referendum and show themselves unanimously opposed to the Russian Workers' Republic.

The best that the yellow press correspondents in Soviet Russia can do now is to proclaim that the Workers' Republic is going wet. First denial comes from the Russian Trade Delegation at London that says the report that the Soviet Government was preparing to authorize the sale of vodka is a "pure invention." Next!

Hjalmar Branting, the "Socialist" prime minister of Sweden, has added his voice to those protesting on behalf of the counter-revolutionary "S. R's." in Russia. Branting should have followed his protest with three cheers for the Treaty of Versailles, of which he is an ardent supporter.

Russian and American railroads seem to have changed places this summer. While American railroads are falling to pieces, due mostly to the strike, Walter Duranty, in an article in the New York Times, admits that Russian railroads are now as good as any in Europe.

It is said that when Christopher Columbus discovered America, our Abie was already on East Broadway peddling with slightly used toothpicks, candies and Socialism. His inventive propensity is incomprehensible; when only at the age of twelve, he already discovered himself to be a great man. Prime among all his inventions for the benefit of humanity is his recent discovery that the Friends of Soviet Russia are friendly to the Soviet Government. But even greater is his literary ability. His journalism is very colorful; it combines yellow socialism with blue laws and blackmail. He became well-famed in political circles in 1916 for preaching Zionism to the Irish. He is the author of "Why Be Rich When It's Cheaper To Be Poor," and many other works. In 1920 he received his final honorary degree from the Sing Sing University of Social Science.

We deeply regret that due to lack of space and high cost of paper, we cannot mention the myriads of other achievements of our beloved leader. (To be continued in the next issue.)

AND YET THEY'VE GONE ON STRIKE

A rich young lady was being shown around her father's plant just as a cage of miners, all black from their work, ascended the shaft.

"What are they, daddy?" she asked.

"Oh," said the baron, "they're just miners."

A minute later another cage of men came up.

"Are they miners, too?" asked the young lady.

"Yes, sure," said the coal baron.

"And do you let them out every day?"

"Yes."

"How very kind of you that is!" said the rich young lady.

QUESTIONABLE ANSWERS TO UNANSWERABLE QUESTIONS

Q.—Our profs claim that there exists no such thing as a perfect vacuum. Now, tell me, ole top, is that true?

A.—Most emphatically NO, if some of the A. F. of L. leaders' heads were vivisected, specimens of absolutely perfect vacuums would be found.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

"I've come in to give you the $2 Difference Loan to keep up the Call."

"I'm glad to see that you are so interested in the Call. Is it the sport news, fashion notes, Salesman Sam, or the editorial matter that you like so much in our paper?"

I haven't told you that I like the paper. The only reason I want it to exist is that it offers so much material for criticism" . . .

Foster's Own Story

Kidnapping and Deportation Act of Revenge for Striking Rockefeller Steel Plant 100 per cent

William Z. Foster, secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, is back in Chicago ready for the first national convention of that organization to be held August 26-27.

THE WORKER has just received his statement of his kidnapping and forcible expulsion from Colorado, the climax of his tour of almost 9,000 miles speaking on behalf of the Trade Union Educational League.

During the course of his trip he made many meetings for railroad strikers all along the line, and his presentation of the case for amalgamation of the 16 railroad unions was received with tremendous enthusiasm everywhere.

Foster was billed to deliver a lecture, August 6, on "The Crisis in the American Labor Movement," in the Painters' Hall, Denver, Colo., but before he had a chance to do so he was whisked away, deported out of the state by a party of Ranger gunmen under the command of Adjutant-General Pat Hamrock, well known tool of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Co.

The kidnappers suddenly dropped in upon Foster at his hotel about two hours before the meeting was scheduled to begin. Foster then tells the story himself as follows:

By WILLIAM Z. FOSTER

Without useless formality they took me in charge and insisted upon my leaving at once with them for an unknown destination.

There were three Rangers, all heavily armed. I demanded that they produce warrant for my arrest, but they declared such was unnecessary.

I demurred strongly at being taken into custody, but they told me shortly that unless I went along peaceably they would take me willy-nilly. So, discretion being the better part of valor, I went.

Gathering up my belongings the three Rangers, or state police, loaded me into an automobile and we sped away forthwith to Brighton, twenty miles north of Denver.

There I was put in the hoose-gow and kept over night, along with a choice collection of thugs and hoodlums.

In the morning my Ranger guard appeared again, the three of them, with instructions to deport me. They gave me back my baggage, minus the contents of one hand bag—consisting of manuscript and reference books—which they said Adjutant-General Hamrock had confiscated in the name of the State of Colorado.

Protests on my part were in vain, likewise all attempts to communicate with my friends in Denver. I was told that I was under "investigation" and being held "incommunicado."

Hurrying north by automobile some 50 miles to Greeley, I was jailed there again and "mugged" at the express orders of the sheriff.

As usual objections availed me nothing. I was told that if I did not sit peaceably to have my picture taken they would

Hague Conference Exposed Capitalist Effort to Plunder Soviet Russia Under Mask of World Economic Reconstruction

Editor's Note.—The Communist International has spoken on the Hague Conference. It calls the attention of the workers of the world to the efforts of the allied capitalists to plunder Soviet Russia under the guise of world economic reconstruction. It calls on labor everywhere to follow the example of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and aid the Workers' Republic in the rehabilitation of its industries. Let every worker read and study this historic document:

To the Workers of the World!

COMRADES: The Hague Conference has come to an end. The last attempt of the capitalist world to establish "peace" with Soviet Russia and to commence the economic "reconstruction" of Russia has been disclosed to be nothing but a cynical attempt to turn the Russian workers and peasants into slaves of world capital.

This attempt has been broken up by the determined resistance of the Soviet Government.

We know how the capitalist offensive for the reduction of your wages, for the lengthening of working hours and the destruction of the trade unions weighs upon you and deprives you of the energy to follow the other activities of the capitalist rulers of the world.

But none the less we think it necessary to call upon you to consider what the Hague negotiations mean.

Not only were the interests of the Russian workers and peasants, the interest of the Russian Revolution, concerned, altho these are sufficiently

Wall Street's Offensive Is Breaking Up

When this issue of THE WORKER was going to press the indications were that the Wall Street offensive against the coal miners and the railroad shopmen was breaking up.

The same chaos, however, is characterizing the closing of this struggle, temporarily, that featured its beginnings.

No effort is being made to have the railroaders co-operate with the miners in the settling of this great industrial controversy, just as there was no unity in inaugurating labor's defensive.

The end of the soft coal strike looms big at Cleveland as the result of an agreement signed between the officials of the United Mine Workers and the coal operators from half a dozen states.

The 1921 wage scale, the agreement provides, is to remain in effect. The miners thus won their fight against a reduction in wages. They dropped their demand for shorter working hours.

The agreement marks the passing of the Central Competitive Field—Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois—as the basis for wage agreements. In its place has been established a new and wider area including West Virginia, Ohio, Central Pennsylvania, Michigan Indiana and Illinois.

At the same time that the coal strike was reaching a settlement at Cleveland there were signs of rail peace when the heads of the railroad brotherhoods asked the railroad executives to set a date for a conference on the shopmen's strike.

Humiliation and Disgrace

It is true that American labor officialdom has never troubled itself very much about American labor's international obligations.

We find many American unions calling themselves "International" unions, but that only means that they have a few members in Canada in addition to those in the United States. Of real international affiliation they know practically nothing.

This situation is seized upon by the London labor daily, The Herald, and blamed for the lack of co-operation between the British and American miners in the struggle of the latter. The complete indictment, under the heading "THE U. S. MINERS," appearing in a recent issue, is as follows:

> During our own coal lock-out, American coal was brought eastward across the Atlantic as a weapon against British miners. Now British coal, in its turn, goes westward to help President Harding and the Big Business men to fight the United Mine Workers.
> It is a humiliation and a disgrace to Labor that this should be so. But it is useless to clamor idly that something should be done, or to denounce somebody wildly because nothing IS being done.
>
> For the grim fact is that nothing CAN be done. Action is impossible without preparation, and we have failed to prepare for the situation which now confronts us. We can gesture: but that, however gratifying to ourselves, would be quite useless to the American miners.
> What they need is not drama, but solid, well-organized, lasting support which would check effectively the strike-breaking moves of international capital. And no such support can be given by the workers of one country to the workers of another until our international machinery is vastly improved.
> It is an ironic thought that the United Mine Workers, who are now asking for International support, are not affiliated to the International Miners' Federation; and that the American Federation of Labor, of which they are a part, has seceded—with strange Gompers-mutterings of "Bolshevism"—from the International Federation of Trade Unions.
> We point that out not with any desire for recrimination, but as a typical instance of the disastrous effect of international divisions; of the folly of these squabblings between leaders of the "right" and "centre" and "left"; of the insistent need for an industrial united front.
> But we would add that a united front does not in itself make an efficient army. Generalship and munitions are also necessary ingredients of victory.

In a later issue, The Herald editor admits his mistake and confesses that the United Mine Workers of America is affiliated with the International Miners' Federation, and that it had two delegates at the recent congress at Frankfort-on-the-Main, in Germany.

Yet, even if The Herald indictment were entirely true, the fault would not lie with the American coal miners alone.

The crime is that of the International Federation itself, in that it is organized for international discussion and not for international action. Witness the late congress, where a resolution of sympathy for the American miners was adopted, and then the delegates proceeded to the discussion of the Versailles Peace. There was not even the will to action, even between the national bodies in Europe, separated merely by national frontiers.

We find that the desire for action comes alone from the Red Trade Union International. It is to be hoped that this whole problem will come before the next convention of the United Mine Workers of America in an effective manner.

Mexican Labor Gives Support to Strike of Shopmen on Railroads

By F. W. LEIGHTON

MEXICO CITY.—A telegram urging that the capitalists respect the rights and interests of American organized railway labor, signed by A. Carrillo Vargas, president, Confederation of Railroad Unions, was sent to President Harding, the Big Four brotherhoods, B. M. Jewell, railway employes' department, and to the Society of South American Railway Workers.

The Confederation of Railroad Workers, headed by Vargas, has been active in support of the American strike since its inception. In addition to organizing the nation-wide four-hour stoppage August 1 the following action has been taken:

(1) Clearest orders were issued to all affiliated members to refrain from accepting scab jobs on American railroads.

(2) Strong representations were made to P. E. Calles, secretary of interior, requesting that the government take steps to prevent Mexican laborers from crossing the border as strikebreakers. As a result instructions have been issued to all Mexican consular officials to require guarantees from Mexicans leaving for the United States to the effect that they are not going for railroad work; and to use all means possible to prevent and dissuade Mexican citizens from accepting scab jobs.

(3) Data regarding the origin and nature of the strike has been forwarded to the rail workers of South America, together with an urgent appeal for expression of solidarity by means of demonstrations and all possible methods.

Interviewed by the Federated Press, Isaac Ortiz, former head of the Confederation of Railroad Unions, and now secretary of the Mutual Society of Telegraphers and Despatchers, expressed astonishment that several millions of workers now on strike in various industries of the United States should tolerate intimidation by a few thousand soldiers.

Appeal of Workers Party to British Labor Is Published

The appeal of the Workers Party, thru the Communist Party of Great Britain to British labor, not to handle coal for shipment to the United States to break the miners' strike here, has been published in The Daily Herald, the British labor organ.

The appeal is being given wide circulation, not only among the British coal miners, but also among the railroad men and dock workers, in the hope that the mass of the workers will force effective action by their organizations.

CARDIFF, Wales.—The Executive Council of the South Wales Miners' Federation, meeting at Cardiff, Vernon Hartshorn, M. P., presiding, considered a resolution from the Rhondda district requesting that steps should be taken to prevent coal being supplied from this country to the United States during the continuance of the strike of American miners.

Hartshorn explained that the Miners' Federation of Great Britain had decided to refer the matter to the International Miners' Committee, and the secretary was instructed to inform Frank Hodges, secretary of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, that in the opinion of South Wales the international organization should take steps to prevent coal being supplied to America.

STOP COAL FOR AMERICA

At a mass meeting of Erith unemployed, numbering 900, a resolution was passed calling on transport workers in Great Britain "to refuse to allow one ounce of coal to be put into vessels here by American coal bosses."

WON'T HANDLE SCAB COAL

NEW YORK.—Members of the Marine Transport Workers' Union will refuse to assist in the transportation or unloading of British coal dispatched to American ports for the purpose of breaking the miners' strike. This announcement has just been made by the Manhattan branch of the Transport Union, which is an integral part of the I. W. W.

Extra! Police Help Strike!

LAWRENCE, Mass.—Members of the police department of Lawrence have agreed to make voluntary contributions to a fund for the relief of striking textile operatives, it was announced at police headquarters. In view of the unsavory record of the police of this city in past textile strikes, the expression of friendliness is unique.

Nine Communists were recently arrested following a meeting on the Boulevard Menilmontant, in Paris. They were charged with seditious cries and threats to the police.

Auditors Demand That Jewish Daily Forward Retract Its Falsehoods

J. B. Collings Woods, chartered accountants, who audited the accounts of the Friends of Soviet Russia, now join in the demand that the Jewish Daily Forward retract false and misleading statements contained in its attack on the workers' famine relief campaign.

This demand made upon the editor of The Forward, Abraham Cahan, follows:

New York City, N. Y., Aug. 12, 1922

Editor, Jewish Daily Forward,
New York City.

Dear Sir:—My clients, the Friends of Soviet Russia, National Office, 201 West 13th Street, New York City, have called my attention to the fact that articles have appeared in your newspaper questioning the authenticity of their published financial statements to which my certificate is attached.

From translations of certain of those articles which my clients have submitted to me I note that you report that there exists a conflict between the financial statements and my certificate. I wish to inform you as follows: Firstly, that I am responsible for the financial statements and the certificate. Secondly, that I would not, nor would any auditor of my professional standing, issue a certificate to be used with financial statements which were in conflict with the certificate. Thirdly, that no such conflict exists. Fourthly, that the financial statements are for the National Office only. The functions of that office include the receipt of contributions less expenses paid by locals and the payment of national publicity expenses for the benefit of all offices. Fifthly, that these facts are clearly stated in all financial statements and certificates published. Therefore, any report to the contrary must be based on misinformation, misquotations or a failure to understand the plain language of the published documents.

With regard to all your other charges which have been brought to my notice, I wish to state that they have no foundation in fact. They are either deliberately misleading or they are written by one who for some reason or other is incapable of understanding accounts which are carefully prepared with the specific object of giving full and clear information to the contributors of the Friends of Soviet Russia. The publication of such clear and full accounts by any organization is unusual. My clients and I would welcome constructive suggestions for bringing information to our contributors. Such suggestions, however, can only come from those who understand the technical and psychological difficulties to be overcome in a task of that sort. A comparison of my clients' statements with those issued by other organizations might help the layman to appreciate the problem we faced and the steps we have made towards solving it.

As auditor of the Friends of Soviet Russia I am at all times conscious of my duty to the public. It seems almost superfluous to add that my code of professional ethics would make it necessary for me to refuse to issue a certificate of approval and also to resign as auditor if any one of the charges you make with regard to the misappropriation of funds, extravagance, undue delay in the disbursement of funds for relief, or the subsidising of political papers were true. Following such resignation I should immediately take professional steps to deprive the organization of the possibility of obtaining any auditor of my standing to succeed me. No other course would be open to me.

In order to avoid misquotations I refrain from giving interviews, but I have received instructions from my clients to answer written questions which may be addressed to me with regard to their accounts.

I respectfully request that you retract any false or misleading statements you may have made, giving due prominence thereto and to this letter.

Very truly yours,
J. B. Collings Woods,
Chartered Accountant.

"DIVIDING UP"

TOKIO.—According to one of the Russian engineers employed by the South Manchurian railway at Dairen, the proceeds of this railway company are divided as follows: one-half to Japan, one-fourth to China, one-fourth to "Russia." The money for Russia is put into the hands of a small group of generals to be used at their discretion. It is actually used in connection with White activities and propaganda in the Far Eastern republic, and to maintain a "Russian" consul in San Francisco.

VICTORY AT MONTREAL

MONTREAL.—Complete victory after one week's walkout is the result of the strike of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers here. Practically all the clothing establishments in Montreal are fully unionized, and all the workers' demands have been acceded to.

An Answer from Debs

THE WORKER has received an answer from Eugene V. Debs to the questions addressed to him in its issue of Saturday, August 5, as a result of the cable sent by him to [illegible] on behalf of the Social Revolutionaries now on trial in Moscow. The answer is sent thru Debs' brother, Theodore, and is as follows:

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., August 9, 1922.

Dear Comrade Engdahl:—Your letter to Gene of the 3rd inst. enclosing a copy of the Worker containing a marked article addressed to him duly reached him and has been forwarded to me for attention. Gene is sick and undergoing treatment and in his condition and situation he is unable to give personal attention to matters of this kind but he directs me to make answer to you as follows: He has no statement to make. The cablegram to Moscow speaks for itself. It requires no explanation. It states his position and by that he stands. The attempt to make him appear the enemy of Lenin and the Soviet Government in face of the fact that from the hour that government was born he proclaimed himself its friend and has stood by it and defended and extolled Lenin and Trotzky in every word uttered and written, is too false and silly to merit attention.

Your indictment of the social revolutionaries is complete but there is another side and you make no mention of it.

In the conflict between the bolsheviki and the social revolutionaries the wild excesses were not confined to one side, as you would have it appear—the social revolutionaries were the victims as well as the perpetrators of outrages, and if they had been victorious and were now trying the bolsheviki for high crimes in their courts with conviction as a foregone conclusion Gene would protest against their execution as he does now against that of the social revolutionaries.

He does not believe in revenge, in capital punishment, in cold-blooded murder, and these brutal passions and atrocious crimes are all the more reprehensible in his eyes when committed in the name of law and justice by Socialists who have for years been denouncing capitalism for these identical infamies.

If we believe in bloodthirsty revenge, in cruel reprisals and savage killings to satisfy our law and ethics, we are even lower than the capitalists and their mercenary hangmen who at least make no pretense of such humane ideals as we profess and shamelessly betray the moment we succeed to power.

It will be insisted that the execution of the defendants in this case is a revolutionary necessity. Gene denies it!

He is convinced that the murder of these men would betray the weakness and fear of the Soviet Government and bring it into contempt all over the world among people who now give it their allegiance and support.

To be great enough, human enough and generous enough to punish these men with their liberty instead of the hangman's halter would be the civilized method of dealing with them, thus setting up the higher ethical standard we profess and thereby commanding the confidence and respect of the whole world.

The Soviet Government has nothing more to fear from these defendants. Let it set them an example in Soviet morality and humanity and even the bitterest enemies of the Soviet Government will be to that extent disarmed and silenced.

Gene does not defend the acts of the social revolutionaries. He pleads for their lives as he would if they were the vilest criminals on earth, and if they had attempted to assassinate him instead of Lenin his attitude would be the same.

From the standpoint of mere policy, leaving out the question of human life, mercy instead of revenge at this time would be infinitely the wiser course of the Soviet Government, and as a loyal supporter of Lenin, Trotzky and the Soviet Government he fervently hopes they will pursue that course.

Gene wishes me to say to you that personally he owes nothing to the Communists. When he was in that hell-hole at Atlanta the Communists with but few exceptions ignored him and the rest of the political prisoners, and their papers, including the one you now edit, were cold-bloodedly silent, not raising a voice nor lifting a finger to secure their release, and so far as they were concerned Gene would still be rotting, were he alive, in his dungeon in Atlanta.

You are at liberty to publish what is here said and if you do kindly send me a marked copy.

Gene wishes me to thank you sincerely for your message of personal kindness and to send you his cordial regards and best wishes, to which I take the liberty to add my own.

Yours fraternally,
THEODORE DEBS

A Reply to Debs

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

The social (counter) revolutionaries were on trial at Moscow. Victor Tchernoff, fomentor of armed uprisings against Soviet Rule in Russia, from his haven of safety in Berlin, Germany, was cabling to "Socialists" thruout the world, urging them to protest to Lenin on behalf of his fellow-criminals against the Workers' Republic, who faced conviction for their crimes and sentence of death.

One of these cables went to Eugene V. Debs, at Chicago. Debs cabled to Moscow, "protesting with all civilized people in the name of our common humanity against sentencing to death of any of the social revolutionaries or the unjust denial of their liberty."

This cable of protest prompted me to address several questions to Debs, asking him if he was really acquainted with the nature of the Social Revolutionary Party and the crimes, not only of its members, acting as individuals and as party officials, but of the official acts of the party itself in plotting the overthrow of the Soviet Republic, in planning the assassination of Lenin and Trotzky, in accomplishing the murder of Uritzky and Volodarsky, in aiding international imperialism at every opportunity to attack the rule of the workers and peasants.

Debs replies that he does not "defend the acts of the social revolutionaries," that he merely "pleads for their lives," and advances as his strongest plea that the "Soviet Government has nothing more to fear from these defendants."

During the past eight years the revolutionary movement has gone thru two testing periods, in America three. The first came in 1914, with the outbreak of the war, when professed social revolutionists turned social patriots over night.

This testing period was repeated in the United States when this country entered the war in 1917, the Socialist Party first adopting the St. Louis Anti-War Proclamation and then proceeding to betray it.

The next testing period, for the whole world, came with the Bolshevik Revolution in Russia, November, 1917, with the labor movement dividing for and against the Soviet Republic, the "sympathizers" standing in between.

When the Socialist Party wavered as it did in the convention held in Chicago, in 1918, Debs came from his home, addressed the gathering, and kept the party straight for a time. That was the summer Debs made his speech at Canton, Ohio, that won him his ten-year sentence to prison.

Humanitarian and pacifist, it was easy for Debs to be anti-war. The test of his standing as a revolutionist came in 1920, when, as the presidential candidate of the Socialist Party, he declared, "I am a Socialist, not a Communist."

Two years more have passed since then and there has been some hope of still winning Debs for the revolutionary movement. Since leaving prison Debs has not openly endorsed the Socialist Party. But he has now joined the Socialist Party, and the reactionists in the labor movement, from Schlesinger to Gompers, in an effort to besmirch the first beginnings of the world social revolution in Soviet Russia.

Where is the Debs that said in his Canton speech, June 16, 1918:

"If war is right, let it be declared by the people—you, who have your lives to lose; you certainly ought to have the right to declare war, if you consider a war necessary."

The workers and peasants, soldiers and sailors of Soviet Russia wanted peace after their revolution in 1917. But world capitalism, in Washington, London and Paris, as well as in Berlin and Vienna, wouldn't let them have it. Soviet rule thereupon call- [illegible] fully [illegible] that struggle. The stories of "The Death of a Red Regiment," "The Red Funeral," and "The Death Train of Siberia" will live forever.

The social (counter) revolutionaries, with their party, stand on the side of capitalist oppression and they must suffer the consequences. Debs says, "The social revolutionaries were the victims as well as the perpetrators of outrages." Surely Debs cannot expect the Red Army to wage war for working class emancipation with wooden cannon and cartridges that carry no bullets. Surely, in his Canton speech, he didn't expect the people to declare war under those conditions.

War demands that one takes sides. No less does the class war demand that. The Soviet delegates at Genoa demanded peace and disarmament but were rejected. They sought the road to peaceful reconstruction at The Hague but were denied it. France maintains her army. Great Britain develops the largest air fleet of any nation. World capital is still hopeful of enslaving the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia. And the Social (Counter) Revolutionary Party is one of its staunchest allies.

Let Debs read the proclamation issued by the Communist International, "To the Workers of the World!" on The Hague Conference, and he will come to its closing paragraph as follows:

"Long live the united front of the proletariat for the defense of the positions conquered by the World Revolution, and for the conquest of new ones!"

No letting down in the class war there. No easing up of the struggle to achieve the social revolution. The Soviet Republic tests its every step with the question, "Will it help the world revolution?"

The social (counter) revolutionaries were placed on trial. They were convicted and fourteen condemned to death, others being sentenced to various terms of imprisonment. The Central Executive Committee of the Russian Soviet Government decided to stay the execution of the Social Revolutionary conspirators. They will not be executed, "if the Social Revolutionary Party actually ceases all underground and conspirative acts of terrorism, espionage and insurrection against the Soviet Government. If, however, the Social Revolutionary Party will continue the same methods of struggle against the Soviet regime this inevitably will bring about the executions."

Thus the Soviet Republic, thru its highest organism, admits the danger of continued attack and retains capital punishment as a weapon against its enemies.

Capitalist nations may rest upon their arms for recuperation between wars and wax merciful for a time toward war objectors, toward pacifists. But there is no let-up in the class war until the social revolution has spread to every land and established its victory without dispute. Then, with the inauguration of a Communist Society, mercy and humanity will come into their own, not because there were those who sympathized with Lenin or Trotzky, or any other revolutionary leaders, but because the world heard the tramp of millions ready to give their all, their lives, for the winning of the New Day.

The trial of the Social (Counter) Revolutionaries in Soviet Russia has been another phase of the social revolution that has helped to clearly divide those who stand with from those who oppose the Workers' Republic.

Debs says he is willing to plead for the life of the vilest criminal, even for one who would attempt to assassinate him, but he feels that he owes nothing to the Communists. He said the Communists ignored him and the other political prisoners.

Perhaps Debs will remember that in a few hours, on January 1 and January 2, 1920, thousands of Communists were seized and imprisoned in Palmer's "Red Raids." The Communist movement was attacked because it had established new revolutionary frontiers in this country. The iron fist of American junkerdom was raised to crush the young American Communist movement. In that attack it was easy for the American junkerdom, finding new victims, to release the war prisoners, until they have now been given their freedom with a few exceptions.

But no Communist has been pardoned or released in this country. And they fill the prisons of practically every land on earth, testimony to the fact that the class war rages and grows ever more bitter.

Communism replies to capitalism with its own weapons, the weapons that capitalism forces into the hands of the workers in the struggle for their emancipation. It gives blow for blow. Woe to those who attempt, and more to those who succeed in weakening the blows of labor.

Using Force Without Stint

[illegible]

[illegible] study in the [illegible] railroad labor leadership [illegible]. Here it is:—

"The [illegible] establishment," declared Senator Borah, when the army appropriation bill was being considered in the Senate, "is that capital hopes and expects to use it against union labor."

Recently young Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., grandson of Commodore Vanderbilt, who declared that the "public might be damned" for all he cared what they thought of the way he conducted the railroads, has been discussing with his friend, General Pershing, the plans of the War Department for dealing with strikes of workmen.

Young Vanderbilt writes his observations and his confidential chats with the mighty and has them published in the newspapers.

The other day, in a copyrighted article, this young millionaire reporter imparted to a worn world whose nerves are on the ragged edge his shocker:

"I learn from positive military sources that preparations have been carefully made for defense against 'internal trouble.' The War Department, I learn, is prepared to meet any emergency within 12 hours. The weapons selected for the first line of defense are to be tear-gas grenades, light aerial bombs, calculated to do greatest damage in confined areas, riot and machine guns, and tanks."

What is this "internal trouble" against which the War Department is to direct all the paraphernalia of war, including gas?

Let young Mr. Vanderbilt tell about it:

"I learn, as well," he says, "that a complete set of military orders and instructions have been prepared for telegraphic delivery to nine corps area commanders, and that these orders contain instructions that if 'the situation warrants the troops are to SHOOT FIRST AND SHOOT TO KILL,' that there is to be NO QUARTER where a riot threatens to spread from, say, for instance, a ROUNDHOUSE OR STATION to the town itself." (The capitals are ours.)

The War Department, however, is not going to embark upon a campaign of reckless destruction. There is no limit to the number of workmen who may be killed, but property must not be injured.

"The employment of big guns is impracticable," says General Pershing's interviewer, "the purpose not being DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY as much as suppression."

There you have the government's whole program, if young Mr. Vanderbilt, who puts his feet under the tables of the mighty and enjoys their confidence, has correctly reported what he has been hearing in the reception halls where a good part of the government's business is being transacted.

The military force of this nation, which costs the taxpayers close to a billion dollars a year, is trained down to a hair-trigger finish for a struggle with workmen WHOSE HANDS ARE EMPTY, WHO ARE ARMED ONLY WITH THE RIGHTEOUSNESS OF A JUST CAUSE.

The other day Senator Borah recalled the prediction he had made in the Senate, quoted at the head of this column, and he added:

"Recent developments certainly seem to justify the view I took of a large army then and which I still hold now. One reason certain big interests supported the presidential aspirations of General Leonard Wood in 1920 was that they were confident if he were elected to the White House he would place a battalion of soldiers at the doorway of union labor wherever and whenever those interests deemed the use of armed force necessary to crush union labor."

All that needs be added to the foregoing is that the workers have a weapon more powerful than those so graphically described by young Mr. Vanderbilt.

Militarists like Pershing and Wood and John W. Weeks, and "Theodore, the Little," flourish because you and I have not been using our ballots intelligently.

As things are now, we can have the kind of government we want in this country, but if we continue to "sleep at the switch" we may wake up some fine morning and find that General Pershing has decided to remove his tear gas, the machine guns, and aerial bombs from the roundhouses and stations to the polling places.

We do not like to think of what might happen in that event. SO LET'S REGISTER AND VOTE while we are still free men.

Now what is it that "Labor," that claims a circulation of 400,000 subscribers, mostly among railroad workers, urges labor to vote for.

It's position is that of the Political Conference held in Chicago, that placed its seal of approval on Gompers' ancient policy of "Reward your friend and punish your enemies" in the old parties.

Thus "Labor" gets thrillingly excited about former Senator James K. Vardaman, Democrat, seeking election in Alabama and Congressman George Huddleston, of Alabama. In other states it will get just as excited about Republican candidates.

In fact it professes to be thoroly enthused over the race of the republican, Colonel Smith W. Brookhart, for U. S. Senator from Iowa.

It will be remembered that Brookhart is seeking the seat of that other "radical republican," the late U. S. Senator who betrayed the "radical" farmers' bloc in Congress by accepting an appointment to a life job on the federal bench from President Harding.

A few more experiences of this kind and perhaps the present blind faith of labor in individual "radicals" will be lost, and the foundation laid for an organized party of the workers.

Nowhere, at present, does "Labor" breathe a hope for United Independent Political Action on the part of the workers of the United States. It does not seek, or desire, to array the workers in a powerful political organization of their own against the Republican and Democratic Parties of Wall Street.

Under the slogan of "Reward and Punish," this paper leads the workers into the morass of old party politics, just as the organizations sponsoring this paper keep the railroad workers divided in the great transportation strike now on.

For the editorial policy of labor is determined by a committee consisting of L. E. Sheppard, of the scabbing Order of Railway Conductors, as well as William H. Johnston, of the striking Machinists' Union; of H. E. Wills, of the scabbing Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, as well as James P. Noonan, of the striking Electrical Workers; not to mention E. H. Fitzgerald and J. J. Dermody of the scabbing Freight Handlers and Station Employes, and the Railroad Telegraphers.

Yet there is hope in the fact that thru the above editorial this paper, "Labor," speaking for the more backward railroaders, realizes that the capitalist state is "Using Force Without Stint" against the workers.

It is on the threshold of realizing that railroad labor, as well as all other labor, stands in need of two things:

FIRST:—A powerful political party of labor, speaking and acting for labor alone. It is inevitable that the organized Communists should be the vanguard of that party.

SECOND:—Powerful industrial unions co-operating with each other in every effort against the capitalist state.

Many battles will be fought and sacrifices made before American labor realizes these two needs.

It is a position far in advance of the editorial plea of "Labor" that says: "SO LET'S REGISTER AND VOTE while we are still free men."

But it is an advance that must be made if labor would be free.

Railroad Brotherhoods Urged to Take Stand With Striking Shopmen

OMAHA, Neb.—Resolutions have been passed here by the Executive Committee of the Federated Shop Crafts, now on strike, urging the four national brotherhoods to join the shopmen in their struggle. The appeal is addressed to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, the Order of Railway Conductors, the Brotherhood of Enginemen and Firemen, and the Switchmen's Union of North America, and is as follows:

Whereas, The Federated Shop Crafts on July 1, 1922, went on strike against a decision of the United States Labor Board reducing the wages of said shop crafts and changing the rules to a point where they were becoming oppressive, and

Whereas, This strike has now continued and is still in full force and effect for the past five weeks in defense of a living wage for an American workman.

Whereas, When the strike is won as it undoubtedly will be, the members of all other organizations engaged in the Railroad Industry will be benefitted, and this move will stop any further inroads upon the part of the Railway Executive upon the rights of Railroad Employees, and

Whereas, We have to contend to day with the active opposition of the City, County, State and National Government, and the jail doors have been opened wide for our reception if we even speak to non-Union and unfair workmen, and

Whereas, The members of your organizations are today, working under the protection of Guards and other Police officers, and at the same time operating and handling unfair cars and motive power which is fast getting into a dangerous condition, and

Whereas, This action upon your part is lending aid and comfort to our common enemy, the Railroad Owners, by hauling scabs, guards and Deputy officers of every character for the oppression of the men who have taken up the fight for your interests as well as their own, and

Whereas, It is our opinion that should your Organization declare for a strike at this time, it would have the effect of bringing about not only an adjustment of this present controversy, but would without doubt obviate the necessity of your Organizations striking later for a remedy to your grievances. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the Executive Committee of the Federated Shop Crafts of all roads centering in Omaha, Nebraska, call upon you at this time to use your forces to make a united stand against our common enemy, the Railroad Owners, and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, the Order of Railway Conductors, the Brotherhood of Firemen and Engine-men and the Switchmen's Union of North America.

National Defense Committee Issues Will and Mandate

Know all men, women and children by these presents, that we, the National Defense Committee New York Division Workers Party, do hereby make public and declare this to be our will in manner following:

1. That all members of the Workers Party, their wives, husbands, children, sweethearts and friends attend the picnic of the National Defense Committee Sunday, August 20, at Fuhrer's Elmhurst Park, Elmhurst, Long Island, where a wonderful food fest has been arranged with plenty of drinks—beers, sodas and milk. A water melon contest is planned for. The Finnish Athletic Club will give an exhibition including racing, jumping, etc. Besides, there will be bowling, dancing and many other attractions in store. Tickets are 35 cents. Come early. The gates will be open at 10 A. M.

2. It is our solemn will that every one having the liberty of mankind and the liberation of class-war prisoners at heart make it his or her business to see that this picnic is a success as the National Defense Committee is in sore need of money for the defense and relief of class-war prisoners and deportees.

3. It is further our will that every comrade whether belonging to the Workers Party or not come early and get on some committees.

4. We hereby constitute and appoint the whole radical element of the City of New York to execute and carry out this our solemn will and mandate—to attend the picnic, Sunday, August 20, at Fuhrer's Elmhurst Park, Elmhurst Long Island.

Washington Weeping for Wall Street

By LAURENCE TODD

WASHINGTON.—Official Washington is genuinely and deeply alarmed at the failure of the Wall St. banking group headed by Morgan & Co. to break the coal and rail strikes.

It is ready to concede that nothing short of a miracle can save the coal operators and the railroad managers from humiliating rout.

In this subdued frame of mind it watches and waits for the outcome of the conference of executives of the railroad unions here, and for the stampede of separate groups of coal operators to sign the new national agreement drafted by the United Mine Workers with the operators at Cleveland.

Inasmuch as coal cannot be transported in quantity until the rail strike is adjusted, the administration is centering its attention on the railroad labor chiefs. And of all these 16 executives of the unions it is observing with the most anxiety the heads of the train service brotherhoods, by whose sanction the ominous walkout of train crews in the Joliet-Elgin zone has taken place.

President Harding has summoned Chairman Hooper of the railroad labor board here. Labor men believe that Hooper had an idea that he would be welcomed into their conference. This, they say, would be a mistaken idea on Hooper's part. They have nothing to say to Hooper, since the full restoration of seniority has been refused by the managers.

Harding's advisers tell him that the train service men can tie up traffic thruout the country without violating their contracts of employment, since the rolling stock provided for them by the companies is so unsafe as to menace their lives. The administration must meet this crisis promptly—yet it has not a plan nor the will to insist that the railroad companies yield on the seniority issue. Republican leaders visit the president and come away hopeless. Every hour of delay of settlement drags the country nearer to commercial chaos, which may provoke political and social unrest whose limits cannot be foreseen.

The coolest, calmest, most cheerful people in the city are the chiefs of the railroad labor organizations. If New York bankers continue to dictate that the struggle go forward, the train service brotherhoods will proceed to safeguard their own lives by staying off the locomotives and cars. Railroad traffic in the United States will virtually cease, until the bankers and their railroad managers come to terms.

Minnesota Amalgamation Plan for Railroads Wins Support in Washington

EVERETT, Wash.—Amalgamation of the sixteen standard railroad unions into a composite organization was the plan voted recently here by a delegate meeting of the Big Four brotherhoods and the striking shop crafts. The meeting was the third and largest of its kind since the walkout of the shopmen. Between 125 and 150 railwaymen of Seattle Everett, Auburn and Tacoma were present.

As the result of the action taken the delegates returned to their locals and called for the ratification of the amalgamation plan. Pressure will be brought to bear on the various internationals to agree to a new form of organization.

Under the plan as adopted, known as the Minnesota plan, the railroad workers would be divided into six sub-divisions, as follows: Engineers and firemen; conductors, trainmen and switchmen; telegraphers, signalmen and dispatchers; clerks, station agents, freight handlers and expressmen; blacksmiths, boilermakers, carmen, electricians, machinists, sheet metal workers and stationery firemen; and maintenance of way men.

Second Amalgamated Bank

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America are planning the establishment of a co-operative bank here for its members and other workers, Sidney Hillman, national president, has announced. The A. C. W. recently started a bank in Chicago, and its executive board, now in session here, is discussing the establishment of banks in all large clothing centers where there are locals of the Amalgamated.

SPECIAL NOTICE

Two hundred tickets for the picnic of the local Friends of Soviet Russia have been lost at the picnic of the Freiheit. Any comrade who may have found these tickets will please return them to the office at 208 E. 12th St. The numbers of the lost tickets are 1201 to 1400. If these tickets are offered for sale please report to the local office.

Foster's Own Story

[illegible]

He must be some detective not to be able to recognise a carload of [illegible] state police.

[illegible] we made for the state line and picked up the Cheyenne sheriff there.

The Rangers then turned me over to his tender mercies, after telling me that he was going to put me on an Eastbound Union Pacific train.

In passing, it may be noted that the Rangers, in addition to the dozen or two other laws broken by them in my deportation, also held me prisoner for two hours or more, covering a distance of some 30 miles in Wyoming, a purely illegal proceeding.

The Cheyenne sheriff, who had a machine driven by a scab-mechanic chauffeur from the Union Pacific shops, took me north to Cheyenne, but instead of depositing me in the jail or on a train, as I had expected, he set off along the road going in a northeasterly direction.

We travelled all afternoon, some five hours or more, making another 100 miles in addition to the 125 miles that I had been driven earlier in the day.

Finally, we came to a standstill, and he told me to get out and walk, informing me that the town of Torrington was one mile ahead.

Then he headed back to Cheyenne, warning me never to come back to the Union Pacific—which he frankly recognised as his master.

Starting along the road, I soon picked up a ride to Torrington,—which I found was six miles off instead of one—a town on a spur of the Burlington railroad far to the north of Cheyenne.

Fortunately, a train was leaving in half an hour for Omaha, where I arrived the next night ten minutes late for my meeting there.

In the great steel campaign of 1919, we organised and struck the big Rockefeller steel company plants at Pueblo, Colo., 100 per cent.

This double kidnapping of myself, first thru the state of Colorado and then thru Wyoming, was an act of revenge therefor.

But Hamrock won't get away with it entirely unscathed. The active workers in the Colorado movement are going to push this case.

Tho few, no doubt, are childish enough to expect justice to be done in the situation, yet at least, all may look for the crooked authorities of Colorado and Wyoming to be compelled to break a few more laws in their efforts to cover up their illegality in this kidnapping affair.

It will be one more occasion to show the class character of present day society.

The Crisis in Italy

EDITOR'S NOTE:—During the past few days the situation in Italy seems to have calmed down a little with the demobilization of the Fascisti. We have just received an article by Umberto Terracini, member of the Central Executive Committee of the Italian Communist Party, in which he views the beginnings of the late crisis.

Figures just received by THE WORKER show that during the past year the Fascisti have forcibly dissolved 900 Socialist municipal bodies, and have burned down 500 labor halls and co-operative stores.

The Fascisti are now said to be 300,000 strong. Dressed in black shirts, with embroidered skulls, and wearing black fezzes, they move as they will thru the country, burning, shooting, terrorizing. And they openly threaten armed insurrection should any government attempt to deal with them. Terracini's article is as follows:—

By UMBERTO TERRACINI

ROME.—At the beginning of July, after six months of government by the de Facta Cabinet, the Finance Minister made a long report on the Italian budget.

The figures he gave made a profound impression on the deputies, all of whom, irrespective of group or party, were absorbed in the struggle between the Fascisti and the Communists, and by the internal crisis in the Socialist Party.

They had completely forgotten that the state had such a thing as a budget and that it could neither live nor function if this did not respond to certain necessities.

The Italian budget was presented under these disastrous circumstances and never in the Italian Parliament were more alarming words spoken or more sombre forecast made for the future.

The deficit for the current year had increased to 4 billions and the national debt to 114 billions; new taxes are being considered and sweeping strokes of economy predicted for all the ministries. All these are necessary and can brook no delay.

The Minister indicated clearly the possibility of a state bankruptcy, if no amelioration of the existing conditions is arrived at very soon.

In the meantime the Minister for Foreign Affairs, Schanzer, returned from his trip to Paris and London, where he had been making an attempt to arrive at a solution of the various problems of international politics which pressed so heavily upon the Italian State; the Eastern problem, Dalmatia and the problem of the African colonies.

Hear of Schanzer's Failure

The news of the complete breakdown of his negotiations spread rapidly. France was irritated because Italy had always ranged herself on the side of Lloyd George against Barthou at the Genoa Conference, and England, though in need of solidarity with Italy for the solution of her problems, has contended herself with covering the Italian ministry with courtesies and promises without concluding a single one of the desired arrangements.

And just at this moment of general tension in Italian politics, the internal situation of the State became even worse.

The deFacta ministry was formed at the beginning of this year, at a time when the civil war between the workers and the Fascisti had reached the fever point and its program was formed upon the solemn promise to re-establish the normal conditions of life and to combat the systematic violence perpetrated against the proletariat.

But the composition of the ministry itself rendered this vaunted program of pacification null and void from the outset, as its members included representatives of the Right, the agrarians and the nationalists, who were the instigators of Fascism and the subsidizers of the white terrorist bands.

Launch Anti-Labor Offensive

In fact, hardly was the short interlude of the Genoa Conference over, when the violence of the anti-proletarian offensive recommenced with even greater fury.

But the period of pseudo-armistice had been extremely valuable to the Fascisti, for it permitted them to perfect their new tactics of vast armed concentration for the invasion and conquest of the towns in which the workers had succeeded in preserving a little strength, or where there were institutions of a trade union or economic character.

By these actions Fascism revealed itself definitely as a movement pledged to the destruction of all proletarian organisms, irrespective of political tendency, which were opposed to the complete restoration of the domination of the capitalist class.

It was at this time that the Italian Populist Party (Clericals), which besides a purely political organization, has also a good trade union organization among certain categories of workers such as the weavers, and among the land workers, began to feel the whole weight and danger of Fascism, as they became more and more the object of their atrocities.

The episode of the Cremona invasion contributed to the forming and stiffening of the anti-Fascisti attitude of the opposition parties and cemented the parliamentary alliance of the Socialists with the Populists. Cremona is an industrial center dominated by two proletarian parties, the Socialists and the Communists.

The various parties considered the strange manoeuvre of fomenting local disturbances in order to support or overthrow the government according to their various policies.

This explains the action of the Fascisti backed by the government in throwing their armed companies against Novara, the capital of Piedmont and against Ancona, capital of the Marks, to intimidate the opposition parties and to support deFacta who had always given them his aid and protection.

Hence also the reason for the general strike in Lombardy and Piedmont which is also being prepared in Liguria and the Roman province, where it assumed such proportions that the Fascisti government had to fall under the pressure of the masses.

The crisis has shown such a curious and unusual character that we can well believe that the disintegration of the Italian state organism is well advanced.

Plan the General Strike

As a sign of protest and distrust, 100 Populist deputies, 120 Socialist deputies, the 15 Communists, 10 republicans, the reformists and the dozen so-called democrats of all shades are initiating a general strike and abstaining from Parliamentary sessions.

This has been done so thoroly that for several days the sessions took place in the presence of only two or three members and lasted only about five minutes.

And when the government wished to announce a change of direction in its internal policy thru the medium of President deFacta, a crowded chamber refused all discussion, limiting itself to a declaration by the leaders of each group and finally overwhelmed the Minister in a flood of contrary votes.

The complete bankruptcy of ministerial activity in the various domains of foreign policy, finance, and internal affairs could have produced no other result as it was easy for each parliamentary group to find reasons for its discontent and even the Fascisti, who had been supporters of the majority, hesitated as to whether they should pass over to the opposition, after having heard President de Facta announce the police laws against violence on the part of any party.

Fascism Not Artificial

But even if the Ministry is overthrown it will be impossible, for the Italian government to pursue any other policy than that of the late ministry.

Fascism, as the Communists have recently pointed out, is not an artificial phenomenon, but corresponds to the necessities of a special period in bourgeois government, when it is obliged to defend its position by every means against the encroachments of the proletariat.

The alacrity with which the masses have responded to the general strike in the regions especially threatened by the Fascisti offensive, the insistence with which they demanded an extension of this action, even in those regions which up to the present have not been touched by the terror, are a sure sign that two years of persecution have in no way weakened the fighting spirit of the proletariat, but on the contrary, points to a new increase of energy and desire to fight.

Otherwise this situation of continual civil war which paralyzes the industries of whole provinces and breaks up groups of the most efficient workers, cannot help but make the general economic situation of the country worse, which can no longer succeed in finding markets for its goods, and loses the confidence of other countries, so that there is not the slightest hope of putting its finances on a healthy basis. The budget is in ruins and strikes a new blow at an economy already in a state of disintegration.

Only Policy Is Anti-Labor

The only possible policy in Italy to-day is anti-proletarian, similar to that followed by President deFacta; the general approval for the new cabinet is given to Orlando, who up to the last moment voted with the fallen ministry.

It is perhaps for the first time in the history of parliamentary states that the succession to a fallen ministry has not fallen into the hands of a triumphant leader of the opposition, but into the hands of one of its most fervent supporters.

But this is a manifestation of the crisis in the Italian bourgeois state, which has lost the power of normal functioning.

No party or bourgeois group dares support an open anti-Fascisti policy. Even the Socialists, who are paying for the crisis with the lives of hundreds of workers at the hands of the Fascisti, say that they merely demand a government capable of applying the law and defending the authority of the state. And they accept and promise to support a ministry headed by Orlando which claims to be animated by sentiments quite other than favorable to the working class.

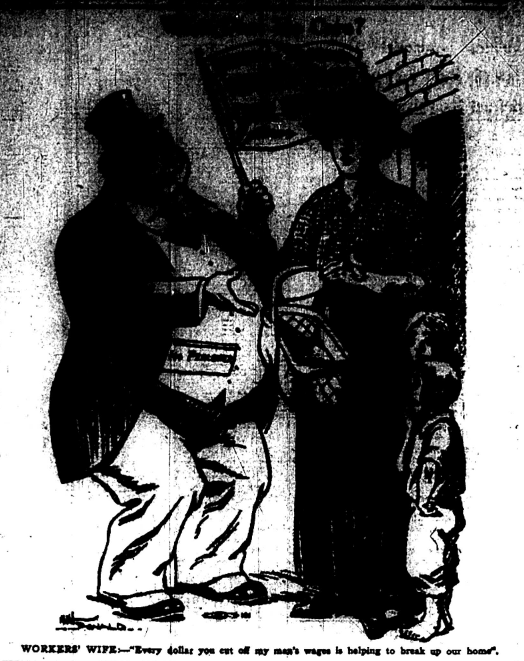
As a matter of fact, Mr. Orlando has been holding long protracted negotiations with the deputy Mussolini, the Fascisti leader, who declared himself ready to accept part responsibility in the formation of the ministry. The same Mussolini has been called to the Quirinal for consultation with the king who personally shields the commander of these companies of assassins who have turned the country into a battle field.

The deFacta Ministry was formed of representatives of all parties, except the extreme Socialists and Communists.

The new Orlando Ministry will have the same features.

The only change will be the attitude of the Socialist group, which, abandoning its traditional opposition, takes its place with the majority, casting its vote for the new government.

This is a new step towards collaboration, for which the present time is not ripe, as the masses are filled with a fighting spirit. The triumph of Social Democracy can only come in the hour when they have succeeded definitely in subjecting the workers to the organized violence of capitalism.



WORKERS' WIFE:—"Every dollar you cut off my man's wages is helping to break up our home".

AMALGAMATED GROWS

NEW YORK.—Fifteen thousand members have been added to the rolls of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America as the result of organization campaigns in the eastern clothing centers, according to Sidney Hillman, general president. These additions bring the membership to a figure between 150,000 and 160,000.

While half a million American coal miners are risking starvation in order to maintain a living wage, word cames from the British Co-operative Wholesale Society that the coal miners in its co-operative colliery at Shibottle are being given a week's vacation with pay. These miners are paid the highest union scale, are housed in handsome stone cottages co-operatively owned, and participate in the management of the colliery.

Organize Trade Union "Left Wing"

The recent tremendous growth of radical and militant spirit in the trade unions is definitely organizing. The final establishment of this "left wing" in the trade unions will take place at the First National Conference of the Trade Union Educational League, in Chicago, August 26th-27th.

An indication of the alarm with which the capitalist forces view this new development, is seen in the assault made upon William Z. Foster, Secretary-Treasurer of the new organization, while he was in Colorado.

"General" Pat Hamrock, well known as the beast who murdered the women and children of the miners at Ludlow, kidnapped Foster in Denver, before he had a chance to speak to a meeting of striking railroad workers, and sent him out of the state of Colorado under armed guard. Hamrock told newspaper men that he "didn't need any law," that his action was "above the law." He undoubtedly reflected the sentiment of his employers, the capitalists of Colorado.

Word coming into the headquarters of the League in Chicago, indicates that the Conference will be a large one. About a hundred cities, from coast to coast, have signified their intention to send delegates. Interest is rising every day, and the prospects for the national gathering far exceed the former expectations of the officials of the League.

When this gathering has definitely stated its position upon the burning issues of the labor movement, outlined its program in the various industries, and formed a National Committee which will be the elected representatives of the whole movement of the United States and Canada, a new page in the history of American Labor will have been opened.

Never before has there been such a swell of revolutionary feeling, and especially has there never been such positive and definite organization of such a movement.

With its clear-cut program or the complete unification of the American Labor Movement upon lines of a militant struggle for the interests of the workers, the Trade Union Educational League will soon remold the trade unions into fighting organizations for the working class.

Those who find it possible to attend this National Conference will be participating in a historic gathering. All militant unionists are straining every possible resource to be present. The results will be eagerly watched for thruout the country, and thruout the world.

Recruits for the Class War

On May 26 the French Government asked Parliament to "lift the parliamentary immunity" of two Communist deputies, Marcel Cachin, administrator of a weekly paper called "Le Conscrit," and Paul Vaillant-Couturier, author of an article in that paper, so that they might be indicted in the courts for Vaillant-Couturier's article. Under French law, no deputy can be tried without permission of Parliament. On June 1, "l'Humanité," a Communist daily, reprinted in full the article called "The Apprenticeship in Violence," this time signed not merely by Vaillant-Couturier but by all the 15 Communist deputies, 35 members of the executive committee of the party, nine members of the national committee of the Communist youth organizations, four officers of the party organization in Paris, 12 Communist municipal counselors, 20 Communist mayors of industrial suburbs of Paris, and 12 members of the central committee of the Republican Association of Ex-Service Men headed by Henri Barbusse. The crucial part of this article reads as follows:

"M. Briand admitted at Washington that the French army was the army of bourgeois order in Europe. This is the army in which you are called to serve. In it they intend to put you thru an apprenticeship in stupid unconsciousness and a schooling in violence. Keep your self-consciousness. Desert, morally, but retain all the material part of your apprenticeship in violence. Study each detail of your Renault tank, learn thoroly how to pilot your airplane, understand the mechanism of your machine-gun, become a good bomb-thrower.

"The labor of the working class paid for all these machines. Your class knows the risk it runs in letting you take part in these murderous studies, but it dares have confidence in you. Keep your contact with it.

"Like the worker in the service of his employer, you are in the service of your enemy, but if you strike you have a tool which may be decisive. You are armed, and on the day, Conscript, when the bourgeoisie appeals to you against your father, your mother, and your brothers, either for war or for internal defense, remember that your class advised you to accept arms only because it had need of them. Those arms belong to it."

Help Russia's Workers Help Selves, Plan

Help the Russian Workers help themselves!

That is the slogan which was adopted by the Third World Congress of the Workers International Russian Famine Relief Committee and which will rally the workers of other countries to pledge their labor and money to the work of rebuilding Russian industries and agriculture.

The Third World Congress of the W. I. R. F. R. C. adopted a new economic policy for relief in Russia, which indeed conforms to the New Economic Policy of the Soviet Government.

Furnish Economic Aid

In the main, this new policy consists of doing away with the superficial, philanthropic means of relief and attacking the whole problem and troubles of hunger and starvation by reviving the productive forces of Soviet Russia.

The worst phases of the famine are now past, but not its economic consequences.

Inasmuch as the new harvest will not wipe out the famine as is claimed in some quarters, it will certainly not do away with the consequences of the famine—the decay of agriculture and industry and the exhaustion of the population.

It can only give a breathing spell in which the friends of Soviet Russia all over the world, can work out a program to furnish real economic aid for the reconstruction of Soviet Russia's productive forces.

Thru an international workers' loan, funds will be provided whereby agricultural and industrial concessions in Soviet Russia can be taken over and operated under the direction of the Workers International Russian Famine Relief Committee.

For the first time in history, the greatest economic opportunities are thrown open to the workers of the world by a workers' state.

New Epoch 'n Relief Work.

A new epoch is beginning in the matter of relief work for Soviet Russia. The economic reconstruction of the famine districts, particularly the Volga region, must be undertaken, without, however, discontinuing the distribution of food, which should go on until the next harvest.

Hoernle, a German delegate to the convention, pointed out that there is nothing fantastic in the transition from workers' aid in famine relief to an entirely new form of practical internationalism in productive economic assistance to the first workers' government

"We may begin with small means," he said, "but we must keep before our eyes the possibilities of growth and direct our efforts to that end.

"So the workers' relief, which began as purely charitable famine relief, is the germ from which will develop real international co-operation of the workers."

Unite Isolated Efforts

Munzenberg, secretary of the Workers International Russian Famine Relief Committee, and one of the delegates, stated that the interest in the economic reconstruction of Soviet Russia among the workers of all countries is already strong, and the idea of co-operatives of production, financed thru workers' loans, is one which has arisen spontaneously in a number of countries.

To unite these isolated efforts of the workers everywhere is now the task of the W. I. R. F. R. C.

The Convention carried a very important decision with regard to laying stress upon the erection of children's homes and the care of destitute children.

The Congress undertook to care for 20,000 children, who have been deprived of their parents by the famine.

For the further relief of adults especially workers in the famine districts, a package organization will be established by the W. I. R. F. R. C. which will enable workers, or groups of workers, in other countries to send packages of food to workers, or groups of workers, in Soviet Russia.

The unemployed in the famine districts will be the special object of this form of relief.

Great Extent of Soviet Aid

Comrade Smidovich, representing the All-Russian Central Relief Committee, and one of the Russian delegates to the Convention, briefly sketched the extent to which the Soviet Government aided the famine sufferers.

He revealed that the Soviet Government applied all its resources to fighting the famine.

In addition to 170 million gold rubles directly appropriated by the government, enormous quantities of seed grain were shipped to the Volga district.

One million tons of seed grain were brought into the famine district in addition to foodstuffs, and this contributed greatly to the relief of the famine.

At the present time the Soviet Government is emphasizing constructive relief for the famine districts and again it is making available its economic resources for the upbuilding of agriculture and industry in this stricken area.

The Third World Congress of the Workers International Russian Famine Relief Committee was held in Berlin, at the call of the international secretary, Willy Munzenberg.

Twenty Countries Represented

Delegates were present from all the affiliated countries, which number about 20, with the exception of those from Argentina, South Africa and Spain, from which countries the delegates could not obtain visas.

Many delegates from international labor unions and relief organizations were also present.

A number of resolutions were passed, dealing with the various phases of economic relief in the restoration of Russia's agricultural economy and industrial apparatus, and the relationship of the workers of different countries in tackling the numerous problems arising from this most novel undertaking of the workers of the world.

The Congress of the W. I. R. F. R. C. also issued a manifesto to the workers of all countries, calling upon them to apply themselves to this new task in international proletarian solidarity with energy and devotion.

Hague Conference Exposed [illegible] Soviet Republic

([illegible])

[illegible] Conferences they [illegible] failed to call upon you to put the greatest pressure upon the capitalist [illegible] but on the contrary stabbed the representatives of Soviet Russia in the back.

Soviet Russia and Capitalist World

Soviet Russia is the first country in the world in which the workers have seized power with the aid of the peasantry.

The capitalist world attempted to destroy Soviet Russia by armed force.

At first, German Imperialism tried to do so. It was shattered to pieces before it could succeed.

Then, for two years, the Allied capitalists overran Soviet Russia with the White Armies formed by them.

The Russian workers and peasants have beaten back these attacks by their heroic defense.

Proposes Peace to World

After they had assured the independence of their country, they turned to the capitalist states with a proposal of peace.

They succeeded in concluding peace with their nearest neighbors, the Polish, Lithuanian, Lettish, Esthonian and Finnish petty vassals of the Entente who feared that, if they did not conclude peace with Soviet Russia, the latter would crash them.

Soviet Russia has signed a temporary trade agreement with England which hoped in this manner to halt Russia's revolutionary activity in the Near East.

It has also concluded such trade agreements with the small capitalist countries of the North which are compelled by their severe economic crisis to seek a market in Russia.

It has finally compelled the German bourgeoisie to conclude a formal peace with Soviet Russia.

Cowardly as Germany may be, she nevertheless realized after the collapse of all her hopes for a victory over Soviet Russia and after the bankruptcy of all her attempts to offer her services to the Entente, that—if Germany ever wants to be freed from the exploitation of the Entente—she must live in peace with the Russian people.

Why Russia Needs Peace

Soviet Russia aims at peace with the capitalist states in the profound conviction that if in peace she is economically strengthened, her im[illegible] for the future emancipation struggle of the proletariat will only be [illegible].

Soviet Russia sought peace in order to deprive the capitalists of the opportunity of prejudicing the [illegible] of workers against [illegible] with the tale that Soviet Russia is attempting to compel you to accept Communism by armed force.

Soviet Russia sought peace in order to establish the economic traffic in goods with the West which is necessary for the economic reconstruction of Russia.

Since you, workers, have not yet seized power and are not in a position to deliver machines and tools to the Russian workers, Soviet Russia must try to obtain them from the capitalists.

Soviet Russia knew that peace with the capitalist world would cause it sacrifices. Workers, if you were the rulers of the economically developed world, you would understand that your own interests demand that you support the Russian Workers' Republic to the limit, so that it could supply you with grain in exchange for your machines.

Soviet Answer to Allies

The capitalist world is Soviet Russia's sworn enemy. And Soviet Russia knew that if she were to obtain its aid she would have to make sacrifices and would be compelled to pay profiteer prices.

Soviet Russia declared its readiness to buy peace with the capitalist world at the price of extensive concessions.

The capitalist governments demanded from Soviet Russia as a condition for the conclusion of peace that she recognize the debts of Czarist and the Kerenski Governments.

They demanded the return of the factories and mines which previously belonged to the foreign capitalists and which were declared by the November, 1919, Revolution to be the property of the Russian people.

Soviet Russia answered that the debts of the Czar were contracted without the consent of the Russian workers; they were incurred for their enslavement and exploitation.

The Russian people paid these debts in oceans of blood shed in the Allied cause for the interests and the victory of the Entente stockbrokers.

Without declaring war, the Allies treacherously fell upon Soviet Russia and thru their intervention destroyed more in Russia than was ever owed them.

Their demands are therefore founded upon nothing but force, nothing but speculation on the famine in Russia [illegible] of the Russian people.

[illegible]

The Soviet Government [illegible] the Allies [illegible] Soviet Russia by means of [illegible] concessions [illegible] economic power [illegible] so as to be able to pay the debts.

As for the factories and mines belonging to the foreign capitalists, Soviet Russia declared that it will under no circumstances return these factories.

The money with which they were built was squeezed from the labor of foreign workers. And for this money the foreign capitalists have bled the Russian workers more than enough.

The Russian proletariat can not return these factories, for only thru their development will it be able to create the goods in the future with which it will rebuild the devastated country, develop agriculture and also be able to pay the foreign sharks.

Russia will not give them back because the blood with which the Revolution was saved, would have flown in vain.

Will Make Great Sacrifices

The November Revolution which made the factories and villages the property of the Russian working people was the first step of the world proletariat on the road to the emancipation from the yoke of capitalism. This step will not be retraced, cost what it will.

But Soviet Russia is ready to pay the foreign capitalists a certain compensation if they help to reconstruct Russia by granting new credits; it is ready to lease a part of the factories.

The Soviet Government was ready to make great sacrifices in order to obtain a final peace with the capitalist countries, so that the working class and the peasants of Russia could commence peaceful work after the hard battles and after famine and misery.

The Capitalists' Robber Plan

All these proposals of Soviet Russia fell upon the deaf ears of the representatives of the capitalist states, who demanded the complete and unconditional recognition and immediate payment of all the debts of the Czar and of the Russian bourgeoisie.

They demanded the complete and unconditional return of the factories and mines; they wanted to lay their hands on Russia's mineral resources in order to obtain guaranties for the payment of the debts.

If Soviet Russia were to consent to this she would not only turn the [illegible]

[illegible] the Second and 2½ Internationals [illegible] is true; that the Communist Party of Russia and the Soviet Government have forgotten the slogans of the October Revolution and are ready to prolong their existence as the watchdog of capitalist exploitation.

Soviet Rule True to Labor

Perhaps, the representatives of the bourgeoisie, who have forgotten the revolutionary past of their class, counted with such a surrender.

Perhaps, the gentlemen of the Second and 2½ Internationals expected that the Soviet Government would, after years of difficult struggle, sink to their own level and consent to make capitalist exploitation pallatable for the Russian proletariat. They were mistaken.

The Soviet Government, born of the Proletarian Revolution, the vanguard in the struggle for emancipation of the international proletariat, has remainded true to the principle of the proletarian Revolution, taking account of the slow pace of the development of your struggle.

Coolly taking these circumstances into consideration, it was ready to make such concessions as were consistent with the further existence of the proletarian dictatorship.

But it determinedly refused to renounce the fundamental conquests of the Revolution.

It refused to put the Russian working class again under the capitalist yoke and to enslave the future generation of the Russian workers.

It refused to surrender the position which was defended by the Russian workers and peasants with their lives.

Fights for World's Workers

The Russian Republic is fighting for you, proletarians of the world, by repelling the attack on the conquests of the November Revolution.

It has defended not only the rights of the Russian proletarians; it defended your rights, workers of the world!

You, proletarians of England and America, are fighting for the nationalization of the mines and the railways!

Proletarians of Germany and Italy [illegible] world powers [illegible] the return of the [illegible]

They want to show you, proletarians of the world, that their power is [illegible].

Woe to him who dares to shake the foundations of capitalism; the Socialist principles must not oppose the capitalist principles of private property.

When the capitalists determinedly refuse to grant Soviet Russia credits, they do so because they fear that the development of nationalized industry in Russia will throw out of court all their statements as to the impracticability of Socialism.

Seek to Develop Revolution

The fight of the Soviet Government against the demands of the capitalist world is not only a fight for the further development of the Russian Revolution.

It is a fight for the development of European Socialism, a fight for you, proletarians of the countries which are still capitalist; when in the near future you arise to fight for Socialism, you will be able to count on the support of a strong nation led by proletarians whose enormous economic forces will be placed at the service of the international proletarian revolution.

The restoration of Russian agriculture under the regime of the proletariat will protect you, proletarians of Germany, Italy and England, against a blockade of American capital which will be more difficult to defeat than the capitalists of Europe!

Duty of International Proletariat

It was therefore treason to your vital interests when the Second and 2½ Internationals prevented the assembling of a world congress of the proletariat during the negotiations in Genoa and the Hague.

It was therefore a Judas deed when the press of the Second and 2½ Internationals sought to make you believe that the Soviet Government had surrendered to the bourgeoisie, that it was playing capitalist politics, and that it was not your duty to support it.

Proletarians of the world, your faces must color deep red with shame when you see how you are being deceived by the Social Democratic and trade union leaders, when you see that you have left your Russian brothers in the lurch, in a difficult struggle not only for the interests of the Russian proletariat, but for those of the entire international working class!

Comrades [illegible] and fight against [illegible]

Aid, active aid of the proletarian working masses without consideration of party to the fighting Soviet Republic. The fight of the Soviet Republic will also be difficult in the future.

Of course, the good harvest enables her to take the most necessary steps for the improvement of the condition of the proletariat and the peasantry.

But you must never forget how frightfully great the misery in Russia is and how infinitesimal the aid you have up to the present rendered Soviet Russia is.

It is the duty of the proletarians of the countries with an undepreciated currency to do all in their power materially to aid their Russian working brothers.

Follow Amalgamated's Example

Follow the example of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America which has founded an organization together with the Russian Soviet Government for the improvement of the Russian clothing industry and which is subscribing a loan of one million dollars among its membership for this purpose!

But it is not only a question of economic aid. After the failure of the Hague negotiations, French imperialism will no doubt do all in its power to mobilize its vassals against Soviet Russia again, and to organize new conspiracies in Russia, where it will receive the assistance of the Social Revolutionaries, the proteges of the Second and 2½ Internationals.

The counter-revolutionary plots in Russia and the military adventures of the Entente vassals will again begin and it is your sacred duty, workers of the world, to demand energetically immediate general peace with Russia, peace without piracy, peace without burdens for the Russian people, peace which does not tie a rope around the neck of the Russian people, but grants it material assistance!

Close Up Your Ranks

Close the ranks of the proletarian united front round Soviet Russia and you serve not only the cause of the Russian proletariat and the Russian Revolution, but your own cause, the struggle for emancipation!

Long live Soviet Russia!

Down with the capitalist robbers!

Long live the united front of the proletariat for the defense of the positions conquered by the World Revolution and for the conquest of new ones!

Would Arouse All Labor in Foster Attack

William Z. Foster, secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, made his first speech, after being kidnapped and deported from Colorado, at Omaha, Neb.

The Mid-West Labor News, of that city, in an editorial headed, "Shall We Permit It to Continue," had the following to say:

"Elsewhere in this paper is published an authentic account of the treatment William Z. Foster received at the hands of the duly constituted authorities of Colorado and Wyoming.

"Taken from his hotel, held without a warrant for his arrest, he is treated as they would treat some desperate criminal, his personal effects are confiscated and he is forcibly evicted from these states.

"Permitted during the war this sort of thing has grown in this country until it bids fair to override and supplant all the personal rights that have been sacred to American Citizens since the minute men forced the British Red Coats from our shores.

"In the present case it can not be attributed to some group or mob, but is done by the duly constituted peace officers, acting under the direction of the Adjutant General of the State, and this official declares that he will continue to prevent what he terms "Radicals" from exercising their Constitutional rights within the boundaries of Colorado.

"The question that arises is, to what extent will American citizens permit this practice to be continued. Are we to permit the constitution of the United States to be set aside and this citizen or that citizen forcibly evicted from many of the various states simply because he may have different views from the powers that control our state and national governments? Are the rights of free speech and peaceful assemblage to be denied our people by the paid tools of any group or sect? In the present case Foster advocates a certain kind of Labor Organization that the employers consider radical and they being in control of the machinery of government order their gunmen to deport him. If it is permitted in this case why may it not be used against any one who may have different views than those who hold the reins of government.

"The liberty loving American citizen whether he be a working man or not, should enter a mighty protest against this injustice for tomorrow there may be in control forces who differ in opinion from him and he may be the next to feel the iron heel of despotism."

Lenin Put Out; Came Back

DENVER.—"Quick indignation is the natural reaction of law-respecting citizens to the deportation by force of William Z. Foster," declares The Observer on page one of the Denver Express, after Colorado rangers had kidnapped him out of the state.

"The attempt to palliate this unlawful proceeding by charging that Foster was a dangerous radical is too weak to hold water. Foster has been a radical for many years, but there is no evidence that he ever sought to stir up physical disorder. "His whole activity has been an effort to convert men to his way of thinking by reason, and so to win a majority to his beliefs."

Local labor men point to Arthur Brisbane's comment in his column which is syndicated to the entire string of Hearst papers.

Quoting Pat Hamrock, the ranger chief, to the effect that "no law was consulted" in the deportation, Brisbane added, "It is not wise for an official to advertise the fact that 'no law is consulted.' Better leave that to 'dangerous radicals.' Lenin was put out of Russia by the czar, or rather driven out, in exactly the same way, and spent years in Switzerland and elsewhere. But he came back."

The Textile Strike

By THE FEDERATED PRESS

NEW YORK.—In its thirtieth week, the strike of cotton mill workers in the Pawtuxet Valley of Rhode Island still is more than 80 per cent solid, according to Russell Palmer, general secretary of the Amalgamated Textile Workers of America, at the organization's headquarters here. The textile workers are striking against a 20 per cent cut in their already meagre wages, and against a 54-hour work week.

No Interest Shown by the Nations in Citizens Holding Radical Views

(Special to The Worker)

ROME, Italy.—In a long letter to Umanita Nova, the eminent jurist Prof. Carlo Francesco Ansaldi of the University of Rome scores the Italian Government for its failure to act more vigorously in defense of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, the Italian radicals awaiting death in the electric chair in the American State of Massachusetts.

So long as the world is split into many nations, he argues, each of these is obliged to protect its citizens wherever they may be. In standing aside while two of its sons are being legally murdered for their social opinions, he says, Italy is forfeiting its "international personality," and "confessing impotence" as a national entity.

He charges openly that the Italian Government is doing little or nothing because it, like the American Government, looks upon men who hold views such as those of Sacco and Vanzetti as not deserving the usual rights and safeguards. In view of this situation he urges the continuing of popular agitation thru the entire world.

"We do not know," Prof. Ansaldi writes, "whether Italy, forced by public opinion, will resolve for once and seriously, to exert itself in the care of our compatriots who go to strange lands in search of work and bread. In the meantime it behooves us to be vigilant that our country do not stain itself with the grave crime of abandoning its subjects to the ferocity of other States, a crime not only against international law, but against humanity."

Prof. Ansaldi has written articles in the leading publications here demanding a new trial for the condemned Italian workers in America.

AMALGAMATED VICTORY

The general strike of the 10,000 shirt makers in New York affiliated with the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, has been settled with a complete victory for the workers.

The strike was undertaken to compel sub-contractors to register with the union and to comply with union working and wage standards and to eliminate the so-called "social" shops which had begun to menace the conditions achieved by many years of struggle of the unions against the sweatshops.

The settlement terms provide that only such work as manufacturers are unable to do in their own shops may be given out, and that by agreement with the union; that members of firms and foremen shall not do the work of union workmen; that equal division of work shall be reaffirmed; that wages and pay for legal holidays shall remain as now; that the manufacturers' association assumes responsibility for its individual members, and that independent manufacturers shall give guarantee for the observance of union conditions.

Raid Workers Party Coast Convention

(Special to THE WORKER)

SEATTLE, Wash.—Using a liquor search warrant as a pretext, federal and local police agents raided the District Convention of the Workers' Party held near Kalama, Wash.

"Seemingly, the authorities first looked for liquor and then extended their search to less wet things," says Max Lerner, the party's district secretary, "on the excuse that they wanted to find possible receipts for liquor, or perhaps recipes.

"The search extended mostly to a portfolio which I had in my possession, and the seizure of some papers belonging to the local Kalama branch.

"The time and place of the meeting was announced in the Union Record and in Toveri, our Finnish paper. The cock and bull story of the capitalist press about the convention being secret is all tommyrot.

"All of the convention business was transacted and three delegates elected to the party convention to be held in Chicago."

Under the heading of "An Unwarranted Raid," the Union Record, the labor daily at Seattle, has the following:

"An Unwarranted Raid

"Readers of The Union Record are advised as to the total incapacity of federal officials in suppressing the dope traffic and whisky smuggling.

"While smugglers ply their trade with little or no effective hindrance from federal officials, these officials find time to indulge in wholly illegal 'raids' on peaceful political meetings, as witnessed by the raid on Sunday of the Workers Party convention at Kalama.

"That the federal officials knew that they were in an illegal exercise of authority is conclusively proved by the fact that no arrests were made.

"We hold no brief for the Workers Party any more than we do for the Republican Party. We are of the opinion, however, that there was more evidence of violation of law at the Chehalis convention of the Republican party than will be found by an examination of documents seized at Kalama.

"Reputable testimony is to the effect that many delegates at the Chehalis convention were drunk. If that is true, there was evidence in plenty to engage the attention of the federal officials who were present in goodly numbers. No arrests were made in that case. No papers were confiscated.

"There can be no question but what this latest attempt at intimidation of the workers is a feeble attempt to resurrect the war-time practice of terrorism. It is hoped that in this way attention will be diverted from the palpable failure of federal officials to apprehend 'dope' and whisky smugglers."

Women and the Revolutionary Vanguard

By JEANETTE D. PEARL

Standing in the front ranks of labor with clear purpose and firmness of aim, confident in the strength the masses inspire, the revolutionary vanguard is occupying the most strategic position in modern society.

This position of vantage, in affording Communists wide range for revolutionary activity among the broad masses, with the resultant intellectual stimulation which mass action inspires, furnish the most vital medium for intimate understanding and appreciation of life.

The revolutionary vanguard so favored is therefore obliged to studiously utilise this strategic position to the very best advantage for Communism—for the new life forming.

It must carefully prepare, so as to be fittingly equipped, for this task to which one must not only bring knowledge and understanding but patience and sympathy.

To define the nature of the class struggle, to make that definition simple and clear in terms of current events, to overcome apathy and arouse solidarity, to convert thru unity of action the defensive position of labor to an offensive front, and to direct that unity of action into the revolutionary channels of Communism, that is the task of the revolutionary vanguard.

A vanguard so trained and developed is not realized over night. It is formed only after great sacrifices and long devotion to the labor movement where only the fit survive. The weak succumb and are soon eliminated.

Only those are privileged to serve Communism who possess power to endure, are fearless of consequences and are ready to continue the fight despite the hounding and persecution of the master class, and despite the more painful misunderstanding and antagonism of one's own comrades.

It is a lamentable fact that a comparatively small proportion of working women are taking advantage of this great opportunity for revolutionary training and experience that the Communist movement affords. With few exceptions, the number of active women compared with men in the Communist movement is relatively small.

The activity of women in all progressive movements has always been, relatively speaking, rather limited. Owing to woman's maternal functions and her dependence growing out of maternity "civilization" has succeeded in impeding the progress of working women to even a greater extent than that of working men. Under primitive Communism, women enjoyed the same rights together with men and they progressed in even measure with them. Modern Communism seeks to restore the primitive rights to women with all additional advantages modern advancement offers.

The restrictions civilization imposed upon women together with the handicap imposed by nature in maternal functions and the illusions anticipated that marriage offers a haven of shelter, have all aided in retarding the progressive development of women as a whole. It is much more difficult to win women to a revolutionary cause than it is to win men. Men have had a longer social, political and economic apprenticeship. They have had more intimate contact with mass relations, therefore a larger proportion of men have a better understanding of the class conflict and can more readily be drawn into the Communist movement. That does not mean that men are superior individually. History is replete with notable contributions by women in all avenues of endeavor and the Communist movement, too is rich with the names of Rosa Luxemberg, Clara Zetkin, Alexandria Kolontay and a great many more.

The Proletarian Revolution, different from the Bourgeois revolution places no stamp of inferiority upon women as a sex and women have no occasion to seek emancipation on the basis of sex. Communism holds out to women economic freedom (and not at the expense of some woman-servant) equal opportunities in all undertakings that women can enter, freedom in the enjoyment of motherhood; freedom in the proper rearing of children; freedom and opportunity for creative labor and active participation in all phases of life.

Women are needed in the struggle coming. The revolutionary vanguard calls to all militant women of the working class to enter the Communist movement, the Workers' Party, to strengthen and cement the forces of labor and to profit from the rich experience that the revolutionary movement affords all who actively participate in the work of the coming revolution.

Women trained in Communism are needed not only for active participation in party work, but also to penetrate every existing organization of working women in order to draw women into the revolutionary movement. A close study of the psychology of women leads to the conviction that a most fruitful means for Communist propaganda can be found in independent women's organizations, launched by Communists, directed by Communists, yet having no organic connection with the Workers' Party. Such an organization can serve as a preparatory school and recruiting center for Communism. A large and successful working women's organization built up by one of the language federations in the last few years is now contemplating joining the Workers' Party.

Of the five million workers organized in the trade unions in the United States, it is estimated that not more than one-quarter of a million are women. According to the Women's Bureau at Washington, women constitute one-third of the working population in the United States. We find that the organized strength of women in trade unions is roughly from 5 to 8 per cent, instead of 33 per cent. It is evident that the prime need of working women is training in organization and the dissemination of knowledge that marriage must not preclude labor organization. The ever larger number of married women compelled to re-enter industry while at the same time carrying on the work of the home should constantly be brought to the attention of working women.

Women's lack of organization experience, their more retiring and timid nature—except in periods of stress—their backwardness to publically express themselves, owing to ages of repression, make the need of an approach hitherto not considered, if we are to win a greater number of women to Communism. It has been found that in mixed elementary study classes of men and women, the women are very reticent in expressing themselves, and that discussions become lively when class work is conducted among women separate from men. This is not the case in advanced mixed classes.

The purpose of an independent women's organization is not to isolate women but to serve as a recruiting station, to get women together by themselves in order to overcome their reticence, to encourage their participation in the daily struggles of labor, to arouse their class consciousness and align them with the revolutionary forces of labor, so they carry on the fight together with their fellow workingmen.

An independent woman's organization based upon the class struggle with rallying slogans and issues taken from the specific conditions existing in localities we seek to organize would serve as a ready bridge to the Workers Party. The plan of work should in great measure be assumed by a Woman's Committee of the W. P., but every encouragement should be given women of promising revolutionary proclivities.

Class Relief should be started at once among working women on behalf of women and children in strike zones and where ever lockouts prevail. In this connection, we can effectively exploit the latent possibilities in Labor Tag Days. Once every month at least, our women should engage in gathering funds for labor wars. The psychological value of continually repeating month after month thruout the country, just one phrase "help the strikers", would be tremendous. The effect of propaganda cannot always be measured in terms of recruits. The creation of a revolutionary psychology among the masses, so woefully lacking in this country, would be greatly stimulated by a labor tag day conducted by women thru a woman's organization. Then the social tendencies of women could very well be utilized as a further means for organization work in that women could readily raise funds thru entertainments and so finance their agitational and educational work.

An independent woman's organization confined solely to Russian relief would be of great value, but necessarily limited in its scope of action. Such an organization could not participate in the labor struggles of the day and we must exploit the labor struggles of the day. A woman's organization therefore must be built upon the broad bases of the class struggle, for active participation in all phases of the daily labor struggles, while at the same time carrying on activity on behalf of Russia.

A Workers' Relief organization of women would serve as a medium for drawing the more enlightened women into active co-operation on behalf of labor and at the same time would enable such women to reap the rich experience labor activity affords. Women trained in such an organization would soon realize that hope is not in peace and reconcilliation of the classes, but rather in the widening and deepening of class conflicts in order to more speedily terminate that conflict by abolishing class rule thru Communism. With such realization, quickened thru participation in labor conflict, women would in greater numbers be drawn into the revolutionary labor ranks and assume responsibilities of the revolutionary vanguard by becoming part of it and so hasten the day of emancipation.

Minneapolis Labor Hears Our Message

SPECIAL TO THE WORKER

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—That the Workers Party is energetically supporting the strike of railroad shopmen was made plain to the strikers of the Twin Cities last week when Ella Reeves Bloor, affectionately known as "Mother" Bloor, addressed eight large meetings of strikers in four days.

In her talk to the strikers "Mother" Bloor drove home the need for closer affiliation between the crafts, such as is provided in the amalgamation plan, which would not leave the shopmen to fight the railroad executives alone, but would bring out the four big brotherhoods and every other railroad worker at the same time.

Such an organization could soon bring the railroad owners to their knees, she declared, but as it is at present the bosses are trying to break up the railroad unions piecemeal.

If they succeed in crushing the shopmen, the brotherhoods will be next, she prophesied. She pointed out that in this, as in all other industrial conflicts, the forces of the state and federal governments were to be found squarely lined up in support of the bosses and that it would, therefore, be futile for the railroad workers to submit their grievances again to the Railroad Labor Board. She urged the strikers to stand firm until they had won a complete victory.

In addition to the strike meetings, "Mother" Bloor held street meetings in the evenings attended by large and attentive audiences. Saturday evening she held a large crowd for two hours, in spite of a drizzling rain, when she spoke on the Russian Revolution.

"Mother" Bloor also addressed the Trades and Labor Assembly and received an ovation when she declared that the unions must get rid of their reactionary leaders and close up their ranks in preparation for a life-and-death struggle with the employers who were solidly organized in a campaign to destroy the unions.

A COMMUNIST UNIVERSITY

MOSCOW.—A Communist university of the west has just been founded at Moscow, the purpose of which will be to train young men from European countries in Communist leadership. To begin with there will be six sections—Jewish, Lettish, Lithuanian, German, Polish and Roumanian.

The school will be a counterpart of the Communist University of the east, in which 600 Asiatics are receiving communistic training. During the period of their study, those in attendance are to be clothed, housed and fed at the expense of the Soviet state.

The chief subjects to be taught are historic materialism, history of the revolution, religion vs. Communism, constitution of the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic, the red army, and the dictatorship of the proletariat.

These figures represent the number of WORKER subscriptions received each week for the past four weeks.

Hundreds of readers have helped to "beat last week" in the drive for 25,000 new WORKER readers.

They helped by selling the subscription cards sent them.

They are still helping—they are ordering more cards to sell.

They are still on the job—they are going to make THE WORKER subscription drive a success.

BUT THEY NEED YOUR HELP—you who have not yet helped. To you we want to say this:

If you believe in the class struggle—

If you believe in the workers' right to produce and to keep—

If you believe in workers organizing against the organizations of the Bosses—

If you believe in the fighting policies of THE WORKER—

If you believe this paper serves the interests of the workers—

You will help in this campaign, you will sell subscription cards to every worker you can.

And, you will sell these cards TO-DAY!

Make each week count more. Sell your subscription cards!

Kuzbas Greetings from the Slopes of the Urals to America's Workers

By E. MUUKKONEN

Greetings from the slopes of the Ural Mountains. I have been here about two weeks. There is something doing all the time. First we were putting houses in shape, and then some of us have been taking an inventory of what there is in the factories, which is now almost complete. Engineer Van Hoffen, who designed the River Rouge Plant for Ford, is in charge of the work. This factory is up-to-date, but needs many repairs before it can run full blast.

I have seen machinery here that I never imagined existed. For example a 10,000 h. p. steam engine which turns the heavy railroad rail rolling mills, an 8,000 gas motor which turns the largest generator I have ever seen. Here is machinery from America, Germany, England and Russia, in fact, from all parts of the world. At present there is only one blast furnace and two open hearth ovens in operation.

If anywhere, it is here where you can see what the lack of industrial management and sabotage has done. Machinery is rusting out in the open without cover. Machinery has been smashed, windows broken, and in general everything has been upset. And over all of it is the lack of bread.

Now listen, Comrades! Send us all the working tools you have, that you can spare, if you cannot come yourself. We need all kinds of tools in factories, carpenters tools, electric supplies, and all tools in general use. If you desire to know where to send them, write to the Kuzbas office Room 301, 110 West 40th Street New York, N. Y.

You may have heard of Russian iron and sheet iron. This is the place where they make it. It is very unusual iron. It does not rust easily here, for instance, you can see iron in the roofs, which is not painted, and which hardly shows a sign of rusting. This is not galvanized tin but ordinary black sheet iron. According to Van Hoffen, this plant can be put to work full force with 3,000 or 4,000 workers, in place of the 6,000 used during the war.

We need all kinds of workers here from lumberjacks to engineers. Men that are in the woods and away from the town have housing accommodation. Any one that wants to take life easy and pick out soft jobs should stay away. But this place, otherwise, offers what they call a "chance" in America. There is nothing to prevent men here from putting their ideas across and doing big jobs. Every one is encouraged to educate themselves to the limit in doing jobs. All the time we are being moved on to more difficult jobs by our engineer.

Nature is about the same here as in Finland, the weather has been very pleasant. We are at present living in a house once occupied by Baron Tauben, who was chief of the factory in the old days. We have a few noted men here, including the ex-president of Red Latvia. He is my ideal of a man. He is a big physical man who is ready and fit for anything. He can do almost everything. He has commanded armies, ran a country, and for all that he can use a shovel when duty calls him.

You can lift your hat to men like him. Wish the best to you all where you are working on overproduction for the boss. We boys are sweating for Soviet Russia, and it does not seem like work to us, in this bright air, so unlike your gloomy shops.

ST. LOUIS.—The Central Trades and Labor Union of this city, by unanimous vote, has instructed its executive board to cooperate with and render all possible support and assistance to the St. Louis branch of the Friends of Soviet Russia.

Our Readers Tell Us—

"THE WORKER is the best radical paper I have seen." This is the opinion of Comrade V. B., of Dover, N. J. Remittance for five subscription cards accompanies the opinion.

"The workers of this city are becoming interested in reading THE WORKER and I think it is the best paper fighting for their interests," writes a bundle agent of Rochester, N. Y.

"Please send me 20 more subscription cards. I believe I can secure 20 more subscribers," writes Comrade J. M., of Pittsburg, Pa.

A few sample copies were sufficient to convince Comrade ——— that THE WORKER is the paper for him and his friends, for he subscribes and sends us a list of names of others to whom to send papers.

"Sold the last of my ten cards," states Comrade M. L., of West Allis, Wisc. This shows it can be—is being done. Are you doing it too?

Six new subscriptions arrived from a comrade at Tacoma, Wash., this week. They come just as fast in Tacoma as in New York—if you just go after them!

Short, but effective is this: "Enclosed in this letter find $8 for 16 subscription cards." It comes from a mining town in Ohio, where WORKER readers value the paper that fights for the miners.

EXCLUDE COMMUNISTS

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia.—The unity of the trade movement of Czechoslovakia has received a severe blow thru the exclusion from the General Federation of Trade unions of the Union of workers in the Chemical Industry, which has a membership of 70,000.

This union has an executive of communists, and because of its avowed desire to have the Czechoslovak trade union movement affiliated with the Red Trade Union International of Moscow, ouster proceedings were started.

This is the second exclusion of a whole organization, that of the woodworkers, as already reported by The Federated Press, having taken place about a month ago.

F. S. R. FRISCO PICNIC

The San Francisco Branch of the Friends of Soviet Russia will hold a picnic on August 27th at Lovchen Gardens near Colma, and every worker who has the interests of labor at heart will make an effort to be present. The purpose of the picnic is to raise funds for the purchase of tractors for Russia, and we expect to have a tractor on exhibition at the Gardens on the day of the picnic.

Pittsburgh in Relief Drive for Miners

The work of the Pittsburgh Miners' Food Relief Conference is proceeding satisfactorily, but the terrible distress of the miners who are actually starving has resulted in our being flooded with appeals for help.

Prospective mothers without proper medicine and food, children without sufficient nourishment and fathers going on short rations to spare their children from suffering, is the appeal daily from all over Western Pennsylvania.

We have now sent several truck loads of food into various camps, particularly where the companies were making a special effort to break the strike with the aid of soldiers, and plan to enlarge our work greatly very soon.

This week a truck was taken into the produce yards and merchants contributed free-of-charge 4,500 pounds of substantial food, in the form of potatoes, cabbage, etc.

A new feature of our work is that homes are wanted where they will keep children for two or three weeks, thus saving the parents from the increased suffering another mouth involves. We also want the names of those who can entertain a miner for a week while he is canvassing the city.

Send all food to Labor Lyceum, 35 Miller Street, or International Socialist Lyceum, corner James and Foreland Streets, Nort Side, Pittsburgh, Pa., or phone Bell Phone Grant 9855, or write to J. A. Hamilton, Secretary, Pittsburgh Miners' Relief Conference, 35 Miller Street, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Do Not Like Signs

Tom. McLaughlin, the notorious super-Cossack of the state constabulary who invented the illegal pushing of Pennsylvania citizens across the State line into Virginia, has made threats, because of the use the Conference has made of the signs on the food trucks "Bread versus Bullets."

This worthy contends that such a sign incites to riot and demands that the use of them be discontinued.

However, his protest is only giving wider publicity to the idea expressed in the sign.

"The true revolutionist should ever call into action on his side the entire sum of all the forces and factors of political and social discontent."—JAMES CONNOLLY.

Unshaken Again

"American Labor Unshaken" is the heading of a seven-page editorial article by Samuel Gompers in the current issue of his magazine, the American Federationist, reviewing the acts of the recent American Federation of Labor convention at Cincinnati.

Once more he routs the "Communist propagandists," repeating the telegrams received at Cincinnati from Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes and Secretary of the Interior Herbert Hoover, the latter addressing the head of the American Federation as "Honorable Samuel Gompers." These telegrams attacked Soviet Rule in Russia and were for the purpose of impressing the ignorant delegates with the convincing character of the case against the Workers' Republic. Few of the delegates were class conscious enough to realize that this attack was made by partisan capitalist spokesmen. So Gompers' argument was safe from attack.

The editorial also contains a telegram from William English Walling consisting of statements by spokesmen of the Second (Socialist) International attacking Bolshevism.

Benjamin Schlesinger, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers, is also given honorable mention with the repetition of an old attack sponsored by him.

All of which would show once more that Gompers has taken the Yellow Socialists under his guiding protection. He will be greatly disappointed, no doubt, if those terrible "Communist propagandists" appear in larger numbers at the next convention of the American Federation of Labor, as they surely will.

"In every branch of her economic life, Russia is showing unmistakable signs of recovery from the chaos which resulted from the European and the civil wars," is a statement contained in the Russian Information and Review, published by the Russian Trade Delegation at London. Hoover and Gompers please take notice.

The Capitalist Line-up

The military at Pittsburgh objects to the use of the slogan, "Bread versus Bullets" on trucks carrying relief in food and clothing to the striking miners.

Yet troops are on strike duty in eleven states according to a report issued August 3rd by the Militia Bureau of the War Department. The states are: Kansas, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Ohio, Illinois, North Carolina, Wyoming, New Hampshire, Georgia and Texas.

Since this report was compiled the Indiana National Guard has been called out and martial law was declared August 2nd in coal mining districts of Clay County in that state.

During the past week what the kept press calls "rioting" has resulted in the deaths of four strikers and one company guard. This would indicate that the strike breaker guards are getting good protection from the militia.

The Civil Liberties Bureau reports that three union barber shops of Waycross, Ga., have been closed by the city authorities because of their alleged refusal to serve non-union workers.

It must also be mentioned that injunctions restraining picketing or other union activities deemed to interfere with the operation of the railroads have been granted in eight new cases. In more than a dozen other instances temporary injunctions have been made permanent, or temporary restraining orders were made temporary injunctions.

All of which only adds more convincing testimony to the overwhelming evidence showing that capitalism with all its lackeys is solidly united in the war on the striking coal miners and railroad shopmen.

The Workers' Republic, official organ of the Irish Communist Party, reports that many Communists are fighting with the Republican Army against Churchill's "Free State" Army. Some of these comrades have been taken prisoners and are suffering under conditions as vile as those meted out to our working-class comrades in capitalist prisons thruout the world.

Our Boasted School System

"Don't organize!" "It is un-American!" "It is un-professional!" These and similar pleas are continually made by some of our "best citizens" when the school teachers threaten to organize and affiliate with the labor movement.

Most teachers have remained true to this "pay-triotic" plea with the result that teachers' organizations are few and weak.

The consequences are seen in statistics just issued by the United States Bureau of Education, and being used in the propaganda of the Teachers' Union of New York City.

It is shown that one-third of the public school teachers in cities of 2,500 to 10,000 population receive less than 1,000 per year, one-half of the elementary teachers in these cities receive salaries of $1,097 a year.

The result, of course, is a poor grade of teachers. An example of this is seen in the night grade schools of New York City, attended by foreigners seeking to learn the English language, or, as the publicity of our best 100 per cent organizations set forth, to become "Americanized."

In examinations for teachers for these night grade schools, among 500 candidates so few passed that it was found necessary to lower the passing mark to 49.5 per cent. In spite of that, last February, when the work should have been at its height, there were 300 vacancies.

There are those urging as a solution for this problem that Congress pass a bill that would compel the emigrant to pay for his own education.

We submit, however, that that would not better the wages of school teachers, leaving open, more than ever, the necessity for organization among teachers.

Forcing emigrants to pay for their own education might be a good thing. They would then be able to choose their own teachers. They would not have to depend on the 100 per centers approved by the Luskers. This condition might inspire the workers to organize schools of their own, on the small beginnings already made.

But that would probably be a crime against American "institutions," punishable in ways provided by those most anxious to keep labor in darkness and in ignorance.

Called to the Color

The Saturday Evening Post boasts two and a quarter million copies weekly circulation.

It is a Communist-hating, anti-Bolshevik organ, and as such it fights continually what it fears to be the Red [illegible].

So in the issue of August 12th, it has an article by Eleanor Franklin Egan, under the title of "Called to the Color," in which she says that:

> [illegible]
> "There are boys in the United States who would wear the Trotsky helmet, but they are not Americans.
> "There are boys in the United States who would march under the red flag . . . but they are not Americans.
> "And that is what I am thinking of when I say it is fortunately impossible to imagine a triumph of Bolshevism in the United States."

And the two and a quarter million white collar slaves who buy the Saturday Evening Post each week will read that and pat themselves on their ivory domes not fitted for Trotsky helmets. They will rejoice in their 100 percent Americanism at $10 per week and sleep contentedly in their hall bedrooms.

But the bond of unity between the million miners of America is growing as they continue their fight for daily bread. "Americanism" to them means armed guards, evictions, arrests, prison and starvation.

And the solidarity of the million and more railroad workers is crystallizing in the war against a wage of 23 cents an hour. "Americanism" to them also means the militia and federal troops protecting strikebreakers.

These are the struggles that grow brains that make heads that fit workers' helmets with working class consciousness in the war against exploitation.

Those helmets, insignia of the developing desire for emancipation, will be worn by increased numbers of American boys in the mines and the mills, and on the railroads, who will refuse to give up their lives to the profiteers. They will enlist in the Workers Party for victory under the red flag of Communism.

Dire necessity sounds the call to the color in the working class aspiration for power and freedom.

The Saturday Evening Post, according to habit, talks like a court organ of the puppet they once called the czar of all the Russias in the days before 1917.

It fiddles now as always at the Court of American Dollars.

While labor's struggle grows and paves the way for ultimate triumph.

Communism and the Church

The attitude of Communism toward religion is being worked out in practice for the first time in the struggle between the Russian Soviet Republic and the Orthodox Russian or Greek Catholic Church.

This struggle was given considerable notoriety, and caused a great deal of discussion as a result of the requisitioning of church treasures to provide relief for the famine stricken in the Volga Valley.

The Soviet plan for requisitioning church jewels and valuables received the endorsement of Archbishop Yevdokim, of Nijni Novgorod, while it was just as stubbornly opposed by the Patriarch Tikkon.

This division persists in the controversy that is now going on in Russia between the Reformers and the Conservatives, also termed the red clergy and the black clergy.

The Reformers, or red clergy, also labelled by their opponents the "Soviet Clergy," have adopted the name of "The Living Church" for their movement. One of their first acts has been to abolish all restrictions on marriage for bishops and clergymen, thus hoping to bring the clergy into closer contact with the masses.

The Living Church Congress is now being held at Moscow with 150 representatives from 38 of the 50 ecclesiastical provinces into which the Russia of today is divided.

This congress has adopted resolutions endorsing the revolution and the Soviet Government, which it recognizes as the Government of Russia. It now seeks to have the new church supplant the old, or "dead church."

Communism stands for the complete separation of church and state. The close connection between czarism and the orthodox Russian church made this operation especially severe as one of the consequences of the Russian Revolution.

On the other hand, Communism holds that freedom of thought must be guaranteed. Hence the axiom that religion is a private affair.

This does not mean that Communists will not struggle against religion by freedom of argument. It means that the State should support no church organization.

The program of the Russian Communists has been carried out in this respect all over the Workers' Republic and priests of all creeds have been deprived of state subsidy.

The working class and its party are struggling not only for economic freedom but also for the spiritual liberation of the toiling masses.

Economic liberation will be the easier attained the sooner the workers get their brains cleared of all the rubbish with which the exploiters have stuffed them. We have often pointed out how the dominating class straight jackets the minds of the workers thru control of the press, the pulpit and the schools.

Culture for the rich parasites, spiritual subjection for the toiling masses—these are the war cries of the profiteers.

Culture for all, liberation of the mind from the yoke of capital—this is the watchword of the party of the working class, the Workers Party, the party of the Communists.

The world will watch Soviet Russia work out this problem with the same keen interest that the development of every other great effort on its part is viewed.

All Favor Amalgamation

Now and then THE WORKER receives a communication from a reader which shows up in a concise form a current of thot among the workers which is of vital importanece in the developing phases of the class struggle toward a greater unity in labor ranks.

The following letter from a railroad worker is one of these:

"Enclosed find $2.50 for the subscription cards you sent me. I suppose you think I have been slow about this but just the same I have been working for the cause in a little different line.

"Have been appearing before the striking railroad shop crafts in the interests of a resolution calling upon their officials to call a convention of the sixteen railroad Brotherhoods for the purpose of amalgamation; and say, don't fall over when I tell you that not one union has turned me down. They have not only all adopted the Resolution but are looking to it as the only hope.

"The forces for a United Front of railroad workers are coming together."

The State of Colorado

There are some encouraging features about the kidnapping and deportation of William Z. Foster from Colorado.

It is, first of all, a tribute to the growing strength of organized labor in this state that Adjutant General Pat Hamrock should be forced to spread his propaganda that Foster came to Denver in disguise and registered at his hotel under an assumed name.

The kept press retails at great length how the trained blood hounds of the law, heeding no law, trailed Foster, with great difficulty but, nevertheless, with unerring acumen, to his hotel, and there nabbed him.

Foster has been on a tour to the Pacific Coast. This tour has been widely advertised in THE WORKER, and thruout the militant labor press. The capitalist press has also given Foster considerable notice, a hair-raising story of several columns in the Los Angeles Times, being widely copied over the nation.

There has been nothing secret about Foster's tour. All of his meetings have been made known so far as possible to the masses of the workers, who have been invited to attend and hear his lecture on "The Crisis in the Labor Movement." Foster came to Denver, as he had arrived in a hundred other cities, and registered at an hotel under his own name.

Foster has a message to bring to all the workers and he doesn't intend to hide his light under a bushel basket in doing it. But secrecy and stealth are dear to the hearts of all Hamrocks and he spread his harrowing tales to frighten the timid and prejudice the ignorant.

This incident is also encouraging in that it will help prove to more workers that capitalism doesn't change, it doesn't reform.

The State of Colorado today is still the state of Cripple Creek and Trinidad, of the kidnappings of Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone, of the savage burning of women and children of the working class, as at Ludlow.

Adjutant General Pat Hamrock was with the fiend Lieutenant Linderfelt when the latter brutally murdered the Greek coal mine leader, Louis Tikas, striking him dead with the butt end of his gun.

Hamrock was in command at Bloody Ludlow. At that time he was a "major." But that was nearly ten years ago. He is now "Adjutant General." The Rockefeller-owned Colorado, of brute capitalist force, has rewarded him handsomely.

He has been thanked and rewarded rather than punished, for the crimes he has committed against the workers.

If a few more thousands of workers in Colorado will learn this lesson of the bitter struggle of capitalism against labor then Foster will not regret the attack that was made upon him.

He will continue the fight he is making to organize the militant workers of this nation for united resistance to the exploiters, for united effort to awaken the backward elements in the labor movement.

Let the many respond.

Let labor's answer to the State of Colorado and its Adjutant General be hundreds of thousands of members for the Trade Union Educational League.

"No More War!" cry the pacifists who supported the last war. They might add, "Not until the next war."

Northcliffe Passes

Alfred Harmsworth, better known as Lord Northcliffe, owner of The London Times and a hundred other newspapers, is dead.

Thus passes another enemy of Soviet Russia and a bitter opponent of the upward struggle of the working class.

Penniless at 20, a millionaire before he was 30, and later knighted by British imperialism, Northcliffe was an enthusiastic supporter of Lloyd George's policy toward Soviet Russia when the British premier took the stand that he would refuse to "shake hands with murder."

But Lloyd George changed, both in his attitude towards Soviet Russia and in his German policy. Northcliffe thereupon became the premier's uncompromising political foe and supported the French policies to stand by the Versailles Treaty, in the case of Germany, the liquidation of the Czar's debts and the restoration of foreign-owned property, as demands against the Workers' Republic, pressed so hard at both Genoa and the Hague.

Northcliffe's attitude towards organized labor was best shown during the great railway strike of 1919 when he received a communication from the organized workmen in the mechanical departments of his papers saying:

"We wish to enter a strong protest against the treatment meted out to the National Union of Railwaymen in the columns of your press."

Northcliffe replied that, "Rather than be dictated to by anyone or any body of men I will stop publication of these newspapers."

But Northcliffe passes. The power of Soviet Russia grows and the strength of organized labor in Great Britain becomes ever greater.

In these days of rapid development of capitalism, thru the centralization in industry, Northcliffe became the owner of publications valued at $32,000,000. His life provides an interesting study of one phase of never-ending social evolution, nothing more.

Northcliffe during his life time built up a press more powerful than anything that British organized labor was able to create thru all its efforts down thru the centuries.

It has not yet realized the necessity of a powerful press to help fight its battles against its exploiters.

But, labor, in Great Britain and elsewhere, presses ever onward and will in time be the proud possessor of a press that will inspire it to victory against all the forces of capitalism.

President Harding showed himself greatly worried over the comfort of a few passengers stalled in Arizona by the rail strike, and wired the Arizona governor all federal aid possible. The comfort of the millions of women and children in the families of the rail workers never seems to trouble him. But, of course, they are members of the working class.

Benjamin Schlesinger, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, has left for Europe to attend the British Trade Union Congress as fraternal delegate of the American Federation of Labor. This is the job Gompers gave him at the Cincinnati convention in payment for his anti-radical support. Latest reports from the immigration officials are that Schlesinger's baggage will not be searched for "red" literature.

Labor speeches are feared at Denver, Colo. About the same time that Foster was being kidnapped and run out of this western metropolis, Police Chief Williams and Mayor Bailey were denying a permit for a picnic for the benefit of the striking miners and shopmen, to be held under the auspices of four Denver labor unions, if speeches were made. But the truth will filter thru just the same. Just give it time.

II. IDIOTORIAL

WE can no longer tolerate it. It is high time for action. Government officials are altogether too lenient and do not fully exercise their powers. A certain group of detestable individuals are getting the best of them. Under the guise of a political party, these members of the Workers' Party are continuously striving for a better government for the working class. They have the audacity of openly criticising such a bona fide organization as our American Labor Party. If they don't like the institutions of our glorious republic why the Hades don't they leave our country while they are still at liberty to do so?! . . .

III. NOTICES

At the last meeting of Local 13, of the A. L. P., it was decided to audit the financial books, when it was learned that the treasurer bought himself a clean collar.

The publishers of the N. Y. Call won't appeal any more for funds to upkeep the paper. They have decided instead to sell electric fans to the Esquimaux; the latter being a much easier way of raising money.

Comrade Hairquit has taken his annual haircut last week. The S. P. Local Greater New York and the Barbers' Union will celebrate the phenomenon by a monstrous banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria.

At least ten Socialists should read this copy of the Special Edition. Keep it in circulation.

Raid Foster's Chicago Office

Militant Labor Leader Says Attack Was Expected

"It's All Part of the Big Business Attack on Labor", Says Trade Union League Secretary, "Part of Day's Work"

By CARL HAESSLER

Staff Correspondent, The Worker and The Federated Press

CHICAGO.—"There was no incendiary literature in our office. We have made no incitements to violence either in the rail strike or in any other strike."

With this denial William Z. Foster, secretary, Trade Union Educational League, took the ground from under State's Attorney Crowe who ordered a sensational rail on the League's offices Sunday night, August 20, on the pretext that a Michigan Central railway wreck at Gary, Ind., in which the engineer and fireman were both killed, was due to "red propaganda."

In type over an inch high the Chicago Tribune headed its Monday edition with an eight column page one line reading: Wreck Leads to Red Raid.

On page one there was a four column cut showing a private detective and an assistant state's attorney going thru the League files in the office at 118 N. La Salle St., across the street from the Chicago city hall.

A one column cut below depicted Foster with the eyes touched up to make him look like a villain.

In its story the Tribune repeated the Denver lie that Foster entered that city in disguise just preceding his illegal deportation from Colorado by state rangers August 6th.

The Trade Union Educational League has operated peacefully and openly with full announcement of its purpose to further amalgamation of craft unions into industrial unions, one for each industry.

Its organ, The Labor Herald, has repeatedly outlined the method, namely, that radicals stay within the A. F. of L. unions instead of starting dual organizations and push their program by "boring from within."

"They have raided the painters, the building trades council, the janitors and other unions and our turn had to come," Foster says. "It's all part of the big business attack on labor. When one frameup fails they start on another. It's all in the day's work."

No arrests have been made but "there will be other action," in addition to the raid, the state prosecutor announced.

Packed House Heard Foster on the Coast

The speeches that William Z. Foster, secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, made on his tour to the Pacific Coast, got under the skins of the exploiters and their hirelings.

He was kidnaped at Denver, Colo., and deported by Rockefeller's State Rangers, and now the offices of The League have been raided in Chicago, on the eve of the holding of its first national convention.

What did Foster say in those speeches on his tour to the coast and back? We think our readers are interested and therefore publish a report of his meeting at San Francisco, as it appeared in the current issue of "Tom Mooney's Monthly". It is as follows:

Before a packed house in San Francisco on the night of July 23, Wm. Z. Foster, speaking under the auspices of the local branch of the Trade Union Educational League, told the workers of San Francisco what is wrong with the American labor movement and the cure for the disease.

Foster declared that the American labor movement is facing the strong-

Zinoviev Reviews Birth of Communist Parties in Italy, France, Germany

Editor's Note:—Ever since the Communist International was organized the Socialist reformists have sought to argue that the organization of Communist Parties in all the principal countries of the world was an artificial procedure, forced from Moscow. In this article Gregory Zinoviev, chairman of the Communist International, shows how a Communist Party is born out of the actual struggles of the workers, how it is not the work of a single act of a congress meeting on a certain day, but an effort spread sometimes over several years. Zinoviev writes as follows:

By GREGORY ZINOVIEV

Chairman, Communist International

To the French Communists:

Maxim Gorki has a wonderful story entitled, "The Birth of Man." In it, with remarkable realism and joyous virility, he pictures the birth of a child.

The event takes place on the shores of the sea. The mother is a good and robust woman of the laboring class.

The child is immediately bathed in the briny water of the sea; it is affectionately caressed, and its first cries are heard.

Altogether, it is a perfectly easy and normal delivery, but yet, na-

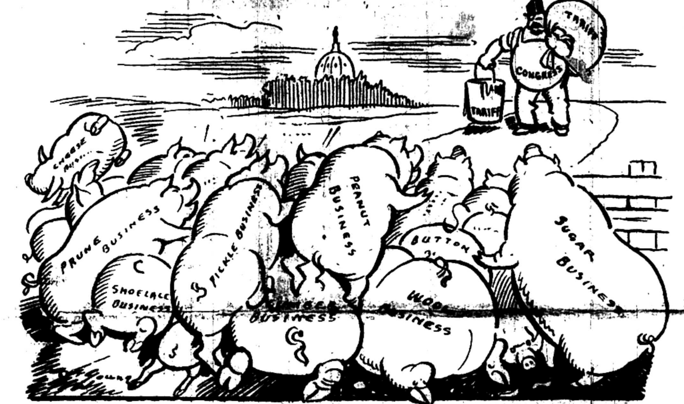
To Each According to His Wants



All the little pets of capitalism are going to be fed up big on the increased profits that will come to them thru the passage by Congress of the Fordney-McCumber Tariff Bill. At the same time the whole governmental system, in Washington, and thruout the country, is being used to break the coal and rail strikes and beat down the starvation wage scale of the American working class. This means more profits to capitalism's pet industries, lower wages to the workers. Turn to the last page and read the editorial, "Get the Difference."

International Asks British Labor Aid Mine Strikers Here

MOSCOW.—The executive committee of the Third International publishes an appeal in the newspaper Izvestia asking English labor, particularly the transport workers, dock laborers, and miners, to aid the striking American miners by not loading coal for shipment to the United States.

YOUNG COMMUNIST LEAGUE OF GREAT BRITAIN URGES BRITISH WORKERS NOT TO SABOTAGE ON AMERICAN WORKERS

In the spirit of the recent appeal to the British workers by the Workers Party to refrain from sending coal to America to defeat the coal strike, the Young Communist League of Great Britain, at its first annual Congress, recently held, passed a resolution calling upon English trade unionists and workers generally to aid the American workers in their fight to maintain a decent standard of living.

The resolution, which includes greetings to the young workers of America, and which was addressed to the Young Workers League in this country is as follows:

"That this first annual Congress of the Young Communist League of Great Britain sends fraternal greetings to the adult and youth workers of America in their present fight against their agressors.

"Further, we call upon the whole organized trade unionists and workers of Britain to refrain from assisting in any way whatever the sabotaging of our American comrades in their heroic fight to maintain their standard of living."

Shattering "Hopes" in Harding

At least just as interesting as President Harding's speech to Congress are the comments made upon it by alleged spokesmen for labor.

Harding has always been anti-labor. He was sincere in his utterances during the war when he urged that workers toil for $1 per day. When a Senator he urged anti-strike legislation, and President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor is now quite right to construe his address to Congress as an attempt to compel men to work under threat of bayonet or jail sentence.

Harding has already done as much during the progress of the coal and rail strikes, and he now urges more power to the railroad "labor" board, champion of the 23 cents an hour wage.

It is therefore rather laughable to watch Gompers' pitiful efforts to salve and scent the blunt declaration of Wall Street's president.

Read the following two paragraphs. In the first Gompers interprets what Harding really means. Then in the second he tries to tell the President he doesn't really mean what he says. Here they are:

> "The President said in substance that the decisions of the Railroad Labor Board must be made enforceable. That is, and no other construction can be placed upon it, if the Labor Board or any other board of similar functions renders a decision reducing wages further or disposing of conditions pertaining to rights and interests of the workers, they have to go to work, whether they like it or not. And if they refuse, what then? They would go to jail. In other words, the penalty of fine or imprisonment, or both, will be the method of enforcing the decisions

Illinois Big Business Digs up $25,000 to Investigate 'Massacre'

MARION, Ill.—The so-called Herrin massacre in which the fatal shooting of three union coal strikers was followed by a battle which resulted in the killing of 19 strikebreakers and company guards at the strip mine of the Southern Illinois Coal Co., will be investigated by a Williamson county grand jury which is to begin work Aug. 28.

The jury will be instructed by Circuit Judge De Witt T. Hartwell to probe the shooting by company men of the union miners June 21 which started the bloodshed and to inquire into the events that followed.

The coroner's jury of three Herrin business men and three miners found the company, of which William J. Lester, Chicago, is president, directly and indirectly responsible for the deaths and destruction of property.

C. K. McDowell, mine superintendent, who lost his life in the conflict, was named by the jury as the man who had started the affair by the killing of George Henderson, an unarmed union miner.

Lester, when urged by Col. Samuel Hunter, Illinois national guard, to cease operations in order to avoid bloodshed, replied, 'I'll be damned if I will.' He had previously broken his agreement with the union to confine operations to uncovering the veins of coal, but not to load or ship any coal during the strike.

The Illinois chamber of commerce is raising $25,000 to "prove to the world that justice still reigns and that human life is safe in Illinois," to be used to prosecute those believed responsible for the killing of the strikebreakers and company guards.

Foster in Chicago as Burns' Press Sleuths Hunt Him in Michigan

(Special to The Worker)

CHICAGO. — While "Bill" Burns was conducting his new anti-red activities in Michigan, William Z. Foster, secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, was in the office of State's Attorney Crowe here.

This nails the hysterical newspaper reports that Burns' sleuths were chasing Foster thru Michigan's woods. The Associated Press sent out the report, for instance, that Foster had commandeered a taxi in his flight thru Michigan's forests, with detectives hot on his trail.

The Chicago Journal, an anti-labor sheet here, on Monday, [illegible] wreck on the Michigan Central Railroad at Gary, Ind., was due to defective equipment.

State's Attorney Crowe, of Chicago, used this wreck as an excuse for his raid, Sunday, on the offices of the Trade Union Educational League, and it was also said to have inspired Burns in his new pursuit of radicals.

Order Bundle of Next Week's Issue

Next week's issue will contain full accounts of both the First Conference of the Trade Union Educational League and the Second National Convention of the Workers Party.

These important events will take place at Chicago, the scene of the recent raid on the offices of the League. The conference of the League will be held August 26th to 27th, while the convention of the party starts Monday, Aug. 28th.

Bundles of this issue of THE WORKER should be ordered in large quantities for sale and distribution. The workers everywhere will want to know of every action taken by these two militant organizations, one in the industrial and the other in the political struggle of the workers.

Send your order for bundles at 2½ cents per copy to THE WORKER, Room [illegible], 799 Broadway, New York City, N. Y.

British Plot in Asia Against Soviet Russia Completely Smashed

By ANNA LOUISE STRONG

MOSCOW.—The attack started by Enver Pasha on the soviet control of Mohammedan states in Central Asia is now almost at an end. News comes thru of the routing of "a band of 800 insurgents led by Enver himself." This man, who was once commander of all the armies of Turkey, leading them forth against the British empire, is now reduced to leadership of 800 guerillas, bent upon loot.

The band was chased 100 miles and 160 of them were killed. Other bands whom Enver had relied upon are surrendering rapidly. The people's commissar of Bokhara, Faisula Hojaie by name, went out to a group of these bands and promised them immunity if they at once surrendered. Four of the bands came over and put the remainder to flight.

So ends another attempt to raise trouble on the extreme borders of Russia, down near Afghanistan. Enver's old friends in Moscow claim that he must have gone over to British imperialism, his ancient bitter foe, since it is mainly Britain that is interested in preventing Russian penetration in that direction.

Enver's cry against "the robber policy of Russia" met with little response from the peasants in and around Bokhara, to whom Russia had recently given the lands of the deposed emir.

The entire Bokhara district, moreover, had recently rejoiced in the action of the central executive committee of Russia, in establishing four factories in Bokhara, for the manufacture of paper, textiles, leather and soap.

This made the talk of robber Russia fall on rather deaf ears.

I went down to see Bill Shatoff, formerly known to fame as an I. W. W. in the Colorado coal fields, now the head of the Naphtha Export Co. of Russia, which has $15,000,000 in oil for the European market and $6,000,000 for the Near East market for the next nine months.

But Bill's old principles are still with him, for the company is a government syndicate, with the Russian Soviet republic owning over half the stock and it is selling Russian oil in the markets of the world.

Bill Shatoff has had a spectacular career, tho not more so than that of many other men in Russia. He was chief of police in Petrograd's stormiest days. He was head of Siberian railways. He was general of an army in the Ukraine. He has now returned from a year in the Far Eastern republic and he had a pile of manuscripts two feet deep containing maps and diagrams of mines and mineral resources.

"I've been in most parts of the world," he said, "and I never yet saw a place that could touch Siberia for richness. All Russia, in fact, is just crying for development."

Communists Win Victory Over Socialists in Berlin

BERLIN.—A victory has been won by the communists in the election of Berlin delegates to the coming national convention of Employes in Municipal and State Undertakings.

Of 25 delegates to be elected 20 are members of the Communist party. The swing to the left is said to be due in part to the fact that municipal and state employes are badly paid.

There is also considerable dissatisfaction with the Socialists for not having supported the strike of the electric and gas workers last February. The party joined hands then with other factions in the coalition to suppress the strike.

EVERETT, Wash.—Logging camp blacksmiths have the same aversion to repairing railway cars that shopmen have, it developed when logging companies recently contracted for the repairing of railway rolling stock. The cars are still unrepaired.

BREMERTON, Wash.—Exclusive navy officers didn't like the coming of colored people with a church near their club here. A fire, declared by the fire chief to have been incendiary, burned the colored church to the ground.

Has Debs Changed?

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

Since Eugene V. Debs has taken his stand with the Yellow Socialists of the world in the plea for Russia's condemned social (counter) revolutionaries, the question may well be asked, "Has Debs Changed?"

It wasn't always that Debs waxed sentimental over the enemies of the workers. We have never before heard that he was ready to cry "Enough! Enough!" in the attack on capitalism's bulwarks.

It was usually Debs that issued the "Call to Arms" when labor was threatened, when its position was attacked, when victory seemed in the grasp of its enemies. Thus in September, 1914, in an appeal entitled, "THE GUNMEN AND THE MINERS," we find Debs proclaiming:

"The time has come for the United Mine Workers and the Western Federation of Miners to levy a special monthly assessment to create a GUNMEN DEFENSE FUND.

"This fund should be sufficient to provide each member with the latest high power rifle, the same as used by the corporation gunmen, and 500 rounds of cartridges.

"In addition to this every district should purchase and equip and man enough Gatling and machine guns to match the equipment of Rockefeller's private army of assassins.

"This suggestion is made advisedly, and I hold myself responsible for every word of it."

The workers, peasants and soldiers of Soviet Russia did exactly what Debs advised the coal and metal miners of this country to do. For nearly five years they have waged their war. That war still goes on against all enemies, including the social (counter) revolutionaries, 12 of whom have been tried by a working-class court and sentenced to death, the sentence to be carried out unless their party, the Social (Counter) Revolutionary Party, recognizes the victory of the Soviets and ceases its efforts to overthrow it.

The party of the social (counter) revolutionists has not recognized, up to the time of this writing, the victory of Soviet Rule in Russia, and its agents are active against the Workers' Republic in all the capitals of imperialism throut the world.

Yet Debs pleads for the lives of these social (counter) revolutionists, who are just as surely the "private army and assassins" of John D. Rockefeller as any gang of gunmen that ever crimsoned the hills and mountains of West Virginia or Colorado with workers' blood.

Debs pleads for their lives, in his own words, as he would "if they were the vilest criminals on earth, and if they had attempted to assassinate him instead of Lenin his attitude would be the same."

In 1914 Debs told the miners:

"You miners have been forced out on strike, and you have been made the victims of every conceivable method of persecution.

"You have been thrown into foul dungeons, you have been robbed, insulted and treated with contempt; you have seen your wives and babes murdered in cold blood before your eyes.

"You have been thrown into foul dungeons where you have lain for months for daring to voice your protest against these cruel outrages, and many of you are now cold in death with the gaping bullet wounds in your bodies to bear mute testimony to the efficacy of goveenment by gunmen as set up in the mining camps by the master class during the last few years.

"The law does not interfere with the Rockefellers when they set up government by gunmen, and have their private army of man-killers swoop down on a mining camp, turn loose their machine guns, kill without mercy, and leave death, agony and desolation in their wake, and therefore it becomes your solemn duty to arm yourselves in defense of your homes and in driving out these invading assassins, and putting an end to government by gunmen in the United States.

"In a word, the protection the government owes you and fails to provide, you are morally bound to provide for yourselves.

"You have the unquestioned right, under the law, to defend your life and to protect the sanctity of your fireside. FAILING IN EITHER, YOU ARE A COWARD AND A CRAVEN AND UNDESERVING THE NAME OF MAN."

We repeat, the workers, peasants and solders of Soviet Russia did all of that. Debs cannot say to them, "You are a coward and a craven and undeserving the name of man."

Yet what does he really say in attacking the Soviet Court for defending the revolution, and continuing the war against its enemies. The Debs of 1922 says he does not believe in revenge, in capital punishment, in cold-blooded murder, and these brutal passions and atrocious crimes are all the more reprehensible in his eyes when committed in the name of law and justice by Socialists who have for years been denouncing capitalism for these identical infamies.

Debs told the miners that, even under capitalism, they had the "lawful right" even to slay their assailants. Must the workers become pacifists and non-resistants immediately they have won the mere beginnings of the world social revolution, have achieved victory in only one country?

The social (counter) revolutionaries are merely the scabs, strike-breakers, gunmen, assassins of world imperialism in capitalism's attack on Soviet Russia. Just make the substitution in Debs' article of 1914 and the situation reveals itself. Here are additional Debs' views written eight years ago:

"If the thief or thug attacks you or your wife or child and threatens to take your life, you have a lawful right to defend yourself and your loved ones, even to the extent of slaying the assailant. This right is quite as valid and unimpaired—in fact it is even more inviolate—if the attack is made by a dozen or a hundred, instead of only one.

"Rockefeller's gunmen are simply murderers at large, and you have the same right to kill them when they attack you that you have to kill the burglar who breaks into your house at midnight or the highwayman who holds you up at the point of his pistol.

"Rockefeller's hired assassins have no lawful right that you miners are bound to respect. They are professional man killers, the lowest and vilest on earth. They hire out to break your strike, shoot up your home and kill you, and you should have no more compunction in killing them than if they were so many mad-dogs or rattlesnakes that menaced your homes and your community.

"Recollect that in arming yourselves, as you are bound to do unless you are willing to be forced into abject slavery, you are safely within the spirit and letter of the law."

And now, what does Debs say? He now declares that, "If we believe in bloodthirsty revenge, in cruel reprisals and savage killings to satisfy our law of ethics, we are even lower than the capitalists and their mercenary hangmen who at least make no pretense of such humane ideals as we profess and shamelessly betray the moment we succeed to power."

Debs called those "cowards and cravens" in 1914, who would not respond to his plea, yet he now charges that the uncompromising stand of Russia's working-class courts betrays "the weakness and fear of the Soviet Government," and says that the carying out of the guilty verdicts against the social (counter) revolutionaries would bring the Soviet Government into contempt all over the world among the people who now give it their allegiance and support. Just who these people are Debs does not state.

Just a few more quotations from Debs' position of 1914 and we are thru. Here they are:

"Let the United Mine Workers and the Western Federation of Miners take note that a private army of gunmen is simply a gang of outlaws and butchers and that they have not a solitary right an honest workingman is bound to respect!

"Let these unions and all other organized bodies of workers that are militant and not subservient to the masters, declare war to the knife on these lawless and criminal hordes and swear relentless hostility to government by gunmen in the United States.

"Murderers are no less murderers because they are hired by capitalists to kill workingmen than if they were hired by workingmen to kill capitalists.

"Mine guards, so-called, are murderers pure and simple, and are to be dealt with accordingly. The fact that they are in uniform, as in Colorado, makes them even more loathesome and repulsive than the common reptilian breed.

"Let the unions, therefore, arm their members against the gunmen of the corporations, the gangs of criminals, cut-throats, woman-ravishers and baby-burners that have absolutely no lawful right to existence!

"Let organized labor, from one [illegible]

The [illegible] assassination in the United States is the government that is in power at Washington.

This is the government that fawned upon Boris Bakhmetieff, the ambassador of the social (counter) revolutionaries, the party of Kerensky, when Ludwig Martens, Soviet Russia's representative, was deported.

International imperialism, now boasting the social (counter) revolutionaries as staunch allies, maintains its world power thru gunmen and assassination. Against that world power battle all the forces of the world social revolution. In this struggle, surely, Debs would give the workers all the privileges he called upon the members of the Western Federation of Miners and United Mine Workers to exercise in 1914.

But he seems to have changed in the case of Soviet Russia. It is, therefore, asked, "Has Debs Changed?" and further, "If He Has Changed, Why?"

F.S.R. Urges Committee to Examine Charges of Cahan Made in Forward

By HARRY GODFREY

(Staff Writer, Federated Press)

An investigation by a committee of Socialist and labor organizations, or of disinterested individuals, seems likely to be made into the whole matter of the Russian famine relief fund of the Friends of Soviet Russia.

The suggestion for an investigation has been made by the New York Call, following the publication of charges by the Jewish Daily Forward that funds collected for famine relief were being used improperly. It was insinuated that some of the funds were diverted to the support of the Workers' party, to Communist publications, and to Communist propaganda.

The Call's demand that the charges be sifted by a committee of investigation suggested that this committee include representatives of the Socialist party, the United Hebrew Trades, the Farmer-Labor party, the Central Trades and Labor council, and a few of the large unions of New York City. To this the Friends of Soviet Russia, in a statement signed by Jacob W. Hartmann, treasurer replied:

"The Friends of Soviet Russia have no information as to the degree of impartiality of these bodies," but proposes instead a committee to examine the Forward charges, to be composed as follows:

Roger N. Baldwin, American Civic Liberties union; Robert Morss Lovett, University of Chicago and the New Republic; Norman Thomas of the Nation; J. B. Collings Wood, a chartered public accountant, and Walter Nelles, attorney. An invitation has been made to all these individuals to conduct the inquiry, according to Hartmann, who says that all but the last named have already accepted.

The Friends of Soviet Russia has denied the charges and the implied charges.

Seattle Times Helps Forward

SEATTLE.—The Seattle Daily Times, reactionary mouthpiece of the lumber interests, must either retract statements that the relief drive of the Friends of Soviet Russia is fraudulent or stand suit for libel.

George F. Vanderveer, head of the Central Labor Council's legal bureau and attorney for the Friends of Soviet Russia, demanded the retraction recently of an editorial in the Times entitled, Imposing on the Gullible.

The suit seems imminent as no reply has yet been received from the Times. The editorial was published on the eve of a campaign in this city to raise money for the purchase of farm tools for Russia. The drive had the indorsement of Mayor E. J. Brown and local club women.

Why Trainmen Quit

CHICAGO.—What can be expected of Illinois troops when they go on strike duty became clear at the Pageant of Progress here thru the accidental fatal shooting of Mrs. Evelyn Tamm.

The anti-aircraft unit, 202nd artillery, aimed its guns at an illuminated airplane up in the sky and managed to hit the excursion steamer Christopher Columbus steaming along on the lake level.

The captain of the boat heard a bullet whiz past his head and Mrs. Tamm, a passenger, was pierced by another, dying in the hospital some hours later.

Train service brotherhood members have refused to work at railroad points where Illinois troops are on strike duty, notably at Joliet, on the ground that their lives were endangered by the presence of militiamen with loaded firearms.

TEN WORKERS SHOULD READ THIS COPY OF THE WORKER: KEEP IT IN CIRCULATION

[illegible]

Gompers certainly enters the ranks of the humorists. It would be a comedy indeed to watch the American Federation of Labor head insisting that a republican or democratic regime at Washington enforce compulsory labor against its idle, parasitic class. Not even the "Socialist" governments of President Ebert, of Germany; of Premier Branting, of Sweden; of President Pilsudski, of Poland; of Premier Benes, of Czecho-Slovakia, etc., etc., could do that. Only the hated Soviets have been guilty of this crime against capitalist institutions.

Thus the Call, mouthpiece for New York "Socialism," on tiptoes, ready to send its editor to the White House with an application for membership in the "Socialist" Party, in reviewing Harding's address, says:

> "Mr. Harding had the opportunity presented to him to line himself and his administration either with the forces of greed and pelf, OR ELSE WITH THE MASSES OF THE WORKING PEOPLE WHO ARE PAINFULLY STRUGGLING TO GIVE THEMSELVES A BETTER WORLD.

We repeat to the workers, Harding is an anti-working class president. His address was applauded by both democrats and republicans. It is a rank attempt to deceive to say that Harding had an opportunity to line up with the working people. He missed that opportunity long ago when he joined the Republican party.

But then, the "Socialists" and other "labor leaders" who are this year trying to get the workers to vote for democrats and republicans, no doubt realize they are up against it. They no doubt feel they are at a loss what to say when labor aks why it should vote for those who travel with Harding's bi-partisan gang of labor haters and anti-strike legislators.

Labor stands sorely in need of effective political, as well as industrial action, and it will realize that need thru supporting the organized Communist movement of this country.

Workers! Support your party, the Workers Party, and weld it into the powerful weapon that is needed to fight a winning war for your emancipation. Away with those who would deceive, mislead and betray you.

Having got a big bonus for the profiteers thru the Fordney-McCumber Tariff, the United States Chamber of Commerce will now devote its best efforts to figthing a bonus for the soldiers who helped fight the late war for democracy.

Samuel Gompers, the New York Call and Benjamin Schlesinger have so far failed to protest against the double kidnapping and deportation of William Z. Foster from Colorado and Wyoming. But, then, Colorado and Wyoming are in the "democratic" United States of America, not in working-class Soviet Russia.

It used to be that women teachers were denied the right to marry. Now we find that Northwestern University, at Evanston, Ill., will refuse jobs to men instructors who are married. This university confesses the wages paid the men is not sufficient to permit them to support a family.

The postoffice boasts that 20-year-old, Miss Nina E. Holmes, of Detroit, is able to sort 20,610 letters in eight hours. It would certainly be considered a Communist plot if it were urged that she be in school developing the ability she seems to possess at this early age.

"Awakening Magyars" is the name of the Fascisti of Hungary, similar to the "State Rangers" of Colorado, U. S. A. Their names may be different, but the object is the same, to attempt to put the working class to sleep, forcibly or otherwise, in its struggle for freedom. Let awakening labor turn the tables and show it is on the job.

The official journal of the Teamsters' Union says that, "It costs $2,000 a year to clothe, feed and house an American soldier, just twice as much as before the great war. If it takes that amount to keep a single man fit to fight, how much should be required to feed, clothe and shelter the American workman so that he may be fit to work?" Other labor papers please answer.

How time changes. It is announced that none of states bordering on Soviet Russia has dared refuse the invitation of the Workers' Republic to join in a conference for the mutual limitation of armaments. The invitations have gone out to Latvia, Esthonia, Roumania and Poland and the conference may be held at Moscow, starting September 5th.

The British Communist Party has withdrawn all its candidates for parliament, running in opposition to official Labor Party candidates, as an expression of the sincerity of its desire to maintain solidarity with the organized labor movement. It might be added that the British Labor Party does not endorse old party candidates.

The Railroad "Labor" Board tries to defend its 23 cents an hour wage by claiming it applies to only a few of the railroad workers. E. F. Grable, president of the Maintenance of Waymen's Union, says 100,000 workers are affected. If only one worker were involved, it represents the dehumanizing standard of living that the exploiters would impose upon all workers.

Another convert to industrial unionism is the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America. C. J. Hayes, the international president, reports that the conversion took place at the 11th International Convention held recently at St. Paul, Minn. This action is the result of the defeat in the packing house strike last winter. Bitter experience will teach labor the value of solidarity if nothing else can.

The Milwaukee Leader, Victor Berger's paper, is having a difficult time trying to explain to the rest of the "Socialist" press, the New Jersey Leader for instance, that he (Berger) hasn't got a deal on with La Follette, by which La Follette is to be re-elected U. S. Senator and Berger is to go to Congress from the 5th (Milwaukee) district. Perhaps Berger just calls it "a silent understanding."

We take it that President Harding found considerable delight in writing most of his speech to Congress on the coal and rail strikes. But it must have been pretty hard to confess that, "The simple but significant truth was revealed that, except for such coal as comes from the districts worked by non-organized miners, the country is at the mercy of the United Mine Workers." Too bad, Warren, you couldn't say that about the mine barons and their yellow scabs!

Diplomatic circles at Berlin are very much disturbed because the Russian Foreign Commissar, G. V. Chitcherin, has held several conferences with the Japanese ambassador to Germany, Eki Hicki. The Japanese themselves are said to be a little nervous over the arrival of Adolph Joffe, former Soviet Ambassador at Berlin, at Peking as Russia's special envoy to China. Slowly the capitalist nations of the earth admit their defeat at the hands of the Workers' Republic.

Burns Keeps Latest "Raids" Secret from Atty. Gen. Daugherty

with most of its interpretations of daily events, according to The Call, reported the affair in true Burns' style, as follows:

"Moving with military precision four deputy United States marshals, aided by Sheriff Bridgeman, of Berrien County and 20 deputies, broke up an alleged 'convention of the Communist Party of America' here to-day and arrested 15 of the 'delegates'."

More Burns' atmosphere is provided by the special representative of the United Press at Bridgeman, Mich., as follows:

"The 'meeting' was being held at the Wolfskeel summer resort. The resort stands in a lowland surrounded by four high hills. Two roads rendered impassable, due to heavy rains, permitted the only entrance to the place."

Burns reports that those arrested were: C. E. Ruthenberg, William F. Dunne, W. Reynolds, Max Lerner, Seattle, Wash.; Cyril Lampkin, Detroit; Francis Ashworth, Camden, N. J.; Alex. Vail, Philadelphia; Charles Krumbine, New York; T. R. Sullivan, St. Louis; John Mihelic, Kansas City; E. McMillin, St. Louis; Thomas O'Flaherty, New York; Caleb Harrison, Chicago; C. Nordling, Portland, Ore.; Charles Erickson,

Lawyers in Anti-Red Debauch at American Bar Meeting in Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO.—The convention of the American Bar association had those good old standbys of reaction, Taft, Coolidge, Wickersham and Gov. Allen, as the chief speakers. A telegram was received from Daugherty, asking for a renewed persecution of the "reds."

"Organizations should be established in every state, county and municipality," said Daugherty, to attack those who have been "listening to the teachings of foreign doctrines by unsound advocates who have left countries which their doctrines have destroyed."

Wickersham fulminated against the radicals, Allen praised the strike-breaking industrial relations court of Kansas, Coolidge told how he broke the policemen's strike, and Taft got hysterical about the La Follette amendment to curb the tyrannical power of the supreme court.

In the midst of the festivities the American Women's Independence committee presented a protest against the California criminal syndicalism law. It was tabled.

PRISONERS' BIRTHDAYS

MILWAUKEE.—Birthdays in September of political prisoners still confined in American prisons, are announced by the Workers' National Prison Comfort club, 2923 Chestnut St., as follows:

At Leavenworth, Kan., Box No. 7: Sept. 5, Harry Lloyd, Register No. 13164; Sept. 7, Sam Scarlett, 13114; Sept. 10, Francis Miller, 13135; Sept. 12, Sigfried Stenberg, 13143; Sept. 12, H. Strednick, 13587; Sept. 13, Roy P. Conner, 13564; Sept. 13, Pete DeBernardi, 13565; Sept. 16, Ricardo Flores Magon, 14596.

Cora Meyer, national secretary, invites friends and sympathizers to send birthday postcards to these political prisoners. Money is advisable for gifts. Special attention is called to the case of Roy P. Conner, who has spent more than three years in isolation, under rigid discipline. Communications to Conner should bear the sender's address in case his mailing privileges remain suspended.

The W. N. P. C. C. is nonsectarian and nonpolitical. All work is carried on without compensation. A political prisoner wrote: "Thanks to our friends—religious and economic. Greetings reached us from all directions: California, Washington, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Illinois, Oklahoma, Texas, New York, New Jersey, and other states, on, before and after the birthday."

HARRISBURG, PA.—The railway brotherhoods and trade unions of this, the capital city of Pennsylvania, announce the organization of the Fraternity Trust Company, a co-operative bank controlled by the workers and operated on the same plan of sharing earnings which has brought such success to the Engineers' Co-operative National Bank of Cleveland, O.

PARIS, France.—Liberation of Badina and six other Communist sailors who participated in the Black Sea mutiny during the war France sought to wage on Russia, has been authorized by a reprieve signed by President Millerand. They must now complete their term of naval service, Engineer-Lieutenant Marty, leader of the mutiny, remains in prison.

Hamrock Plans Arrest of Foster If He Returns to Denver, Colo.

State Ranger Says Warrant Is Not Needed

DENVER, Colo.—If William Z. Foster, head of the Trade Union Educational League, returns to Colorado to address mass meetings, he will be jailed immediately without a warrant, Adjutant General Hamrock has announced.

"This action," Hamrock said, "would give an opportunity to Foster and his associates to make a test case of the arrest."

The assumption on which the otherwise illegal arrest will be made, he explained, is that it is legal to arrest without warrant anyone who the authorities think would "threaten to cause turmoil and strife."

Injunction Against Hamrock

The announcement of Adjutant General Patrick Hamrock of Colorado that he would arrest William Z. Foster if the latter returns to Denver to address a mass meeting in protest against his recent deportation, is met by the announcement by the American Civil Liberties Union—which is arranging the meeting—that if necessary an injunction will be sought to restrain the adjutant general from interfering with Foster's appearance at the meeting.

In a letter to Carle Whitehead, a Denver attorney representing the Civil Liberties Union, the officers of the Union say:

"You are authorized to take any and all means to prevent interference by the Colorado state rangers with the meeting to protest against the action of Adjutant General Hamrock in deporting Mr. Foster from the state.

"We will challenge every phase of that action in the courts, and we similarly will make any test of the action now threatened by the state authorities.

"There is no authority in law for what they have done or propose to do. We are confident that redress can be secured thru the courts, as well as relief from any interference with the future meeting.

"We are expecting to be joined in this protest in Denver by a large number of citizens of Colorado who feel as we do about the issues involved and who resent the high-handed tactics adopted by the adjutant general and sanctioned by the governor."

Chooses Most Excellent Enemies

WASHINGTON.—Mary G. Kilbreth, vice-president, Woman Patriot Publishing Co. and identified in Washington as lobbyist against woman suffrage, has joined Samuel Gompers in attacking W. Z. Foster and the Trade Union Educational League. She has issued a public announcement of her discovery that Foster favors affiliation of American labor with the Red Trade Union International, and that the Trade Union Educational League, according to a declaration by Foster in a recent Red Labor International bulletin, likewise favors such affiliation.

Miss Kilbreth, then, under the impression that this is news, proves, by quoting documents, that the Communist party of Russia dominates the Soviet government; also that the Soviet government is in sympathy with the Red Labor International; also that the purposes of the Red Labor International and the Communist party are strictly revolutionary.

For and Against Foster

A number of Denver lawyers were asked by the Denver (Colo.) Express to state their views on the [illegible] of deportation of William Z. Foster. The greater percentage [illegible]. Two statements, for and against Foster, are given below.

AGAINST DEPORTATION

BEN C. HILLIARD—"Such proceedings do not comport with American institutions. In this world of darkness the ideas of any man are worth hearing, at least by those who care to hear them, as long as he does not violate the law. The deportation was absolutely illegal and I think that any court would so hold if the matter were brought before it on a writ of habeas corpus."

FOR DEPORTATION

TYSON S. DINES—"I don't know anything about the circumstances at all. I think any community has the right to rid itself of people who are unsympathetic with or disloyal to its government. Such steps should be taken only under the most careful safeguards, however, or they are likely to result in abuses. If a man is denied the rights of free speech they would have to show me some mighty good reasons for doing so."

Packed House Heard Foster

est body of organized employers in the world and with the greatest need for solidarity on the industrial and political field, is practically, numerically and structurally more backward than that of any other industrial country, that it has no vision—no goal, that politically it has not awaked to the need of working class political action, that numerically it has only one in 36 unionized, whereas Germany has one out of every five of the population, that structurally it has not yet even awaked to the necessity of industrial unionism and a united front; in short, that the labor movement of this country is bankrupt.

Foster laid the blame, not on the ignorant and corrupt leadership of many unions, but squarely upon the militant workers and their utopian policy of dual unionism.

Unions Crushed and Broken

Foster outlined the critical industrial situation existing at the present time—the Packing House workers crushed, the Textile strike broken, the backbone of the Building Trades smashed in many cities, including San Francisco; the printing trades fighting thruout the country to hold their position, the miners deadlocked in a life and death struggle, with the full force of the military, the police and the government being used against them, 400,000 railroad shopmen on strike against tremendous wage reductions and abolition of hard-won shop-conditions, the wages of the Maintenance of Way men slashed to 23 cents an hour, and with the other railroad organizations facing a like struggle and a like fate due to their lack of solidarity.

Declaring that the crisis is political as well as industrial, Foster cited the abolition and absolute annihilation of the rights of free speech, free press and free assemblage, the annulment of the Child Labor Act and the Clayton Act, designed to protect labor, the Coronado decision paving the way to annihilation of the unions thru court action, holding them liable for damages incurred in industrial disputes—in short, the absolute loss of the workers during the past year of all legal machinery for their protection, won by years of hard-fought battles.

The reason for the success of the open-shop drive, Foster declared, lies in the inherent weakness of our political and industrial organizations.

European Workers Quit Capitalism

Comparing the American labor movement with that of Europe Foster said:

"The workers of France, England and Germany have long since learned that they are definitely committed to the abolition of the capitalist system of exploitation. The workers in those countries may differ as to what the new society will be, but they are at least agreed that capitalism must go.

"It is only in the United States that there is still to be found a working class so backward and undeveloped that it still pins its faith in capitalism and strives to make that system bearable. The American labor movement shows a heinous lack of understanding of the true mission of the working class; it lacks social vision and an understanding of what it is fighting for. Originally the European labor movement suffered from most of the evils and weaknesses that afflict the American movement but of late years the European workers have abandoned their outworn system of organization and have progressed far ahead of the American workers.

"Another vital matter in which we are far behind is that of political organization. The workers of other countries have come to clearly understand that the capitalist is their enemy on the political as well as the industrial field, and accordingly they have very developed working class political organizations. But in the United States we are so far behind that we have not yet learned this fundamental lesson. Here as a movement, we are still definitely committed to the old capitalist parties and waste our political strength chasing the rainbow policy of rewarding our friends and punishing our enemies. As a consequence the American working class is a political zero, while all over the rest of the world the labor movement is a powerful factor, always to be reckoned with. In European countries the policy of rewarding your friends and punishing your enemies in a political way was abandoned from 20 to 50 years ago, which represents about the length of time we are behind in this respect.

Our Backward Unions

"As we are backward with our political organizations so we are with our trade unions. Quite generally in the industrial countries of Europe, the principle of industrial unionism is recognized. Even the most conservative labor leaders abroad are frank to recognize that the only effective way for the workers to fight the employers is with industrial unions. Tho craft unions still linger, they are looked upon as relics of the past and the movements are steadily evolving toward the industrial form. But here in the United States, the only important country in the world where such a condition exists we still cling to the principle of craft unionism and this in spite of the fact that our capitalist class is more strongly organized than any other and we have a greater need for industrial unionism than the working class in any other country in the world.

Unions Numerically Weak

"In the matter of numerical strength of our unions, which is a most vital matter, we are also about the tail end of the procession. In most of the industrial countries of the world the great masses of the workers are organized. This is notably the case in Germany and England, the former country has 13,000,000 trade unionists and the later 7,000,000, whereas in the United States we have only a paltry 3,500,000. We have barely organized the fringe of the workers and unless some way is found to stop the open shop drive this small organization is liable to be wiped out.

"The open shop drive and the stripping of the political rights of the workers are the natural results of our lack of social vision, our primitive organization, our antiquated craft unionism and the numerical weakness of our labor organizations.

"It is a supreme crisis and the need of the hour is a concerted drive on the part of the intelligent element among the masses to rouse the latter to a realization of the perils confronting the movement. What is needed above all is for the militants, those who understand what ails labor, to initiate a wide-spreading drive to clarify the aims of the working class, to wake up the masses politically and industrially and to inspire the trade union movement particularly, with a militant spirit and to give it the scientific structure of industrial unionism which will enable it to fight successfully against the exploiters who are seeking to crush it. The fate of the American labor movement depends upon whether or not the militants within its ranks arouse themselves to action."

Russian Trade Office Here

The Russo-German company called "Derutra," organized in Hamburg last year for the purpose of transporting products ordered by Russia abroad, is about to open a New York office to handle its American business, according to Clifford N. Carver, 39 Water Street, a director in the organization who has just returned from a conference of the "Derutra" board in Hamburg and Berlin. The company's plans provide for the transportation, forwarding and warehousing and handling of business between Russia, Germany and the United States especially.

Foster Goes to Denver to Defy Foes

William Z. Foster is to be the principal speaker at a mass meeting in Denver to challenge his deportation from Colorado at the direction of Adjutant General Pat Hamrock, according to an announcement by the American Civil Liberties Union.

The Union declares it will use every means in its power to obtain redress thru the courts for the lawless action of which Foster was the victim. The meeting in Denver will be for the purpose of making a public protest against the action of the Colorado state rangers, and to give an opportunity for a further test of their authority.

Appeal to the Courts

Carle Whitehead, the Denver attorney of the American Civil Liberties Union, has been requested to institute such proceedings in the courts as are possible under the Colorado law, and New York attorneys are contemplating bringing action in the federal courts against Colorado officials implicated.

The Union's announcement, made thru Roger N. Baldwin, director, and Norman M. Thomas, acting chairman, says:

"No more flagrant challenge to the civil rights of a citizen has occurred in recent months than the lawless seizure of William Z. Foster in a Denver hotel on August 6, and his deportation by Colorado state rangers to the Wyoming line.

"Foster has asked us to represent him in securing such redress as is possible. We are interested not only on Foster's behalf, but because this instance is just one in a long series of lawless acts credited to the Colorado state rangers under the direction of Adjutant General Patrick J. Hamrock.

Plan Mass Meeting

"We shall use every means in our power to see that redress is secured thru the courts. We have already instructed our Denver attorney, Carle Whitehead, to proceed in whatever way is possible under the Colorado law, and our New York attorneys are investigating the possibility of bringing suit in the federal courts.

"We are also asking our Denver friends to arrange a mass meeting under the joint auspices of the Civil Liberties Union and interested local organizations in Denver, at which a vigorous protest will be made against the tactics of the state rangers in deporting Foster and also in suppressing the civil rights of strikers and citizens in the coal mining regions of the state.

"We have endeavored to secure action by Gov. Oliver H. Shoup without success. Gov. Shoup repeatedly evades the issues with which we have confronted him. He gives Adjutant General Hamrock and the state rangers practically unlimited power to do whatever they like in the districts they control, tho there has been no declaration of martial law anywhere in Colorado.

"We are also asking Gov. Shoup to guarantee protection to Foster when he next comes to Colorado, and we shall be interested to see his reply. There was not a vestige of right in taking a man from his hotel, transporting him by automobile, holding him in jail overnight, and taking him to an adjoining state next day.

Violated No Law

"We shall also have something to do with the state of Wyoming where the sheriff from Cheyenne cooperated with the Colorado state rangers in taking charge of Foster and conveying him to the eastern border of the state, where he was dumped on the highway six miles from a railroad station.

"The sole issue involved in this incident is the lawless conduct of state officials in seizing a citizen who was lawfully engaged in organizing and educational work of a labor organization. It is not maintained in any quarter that Foster was violating any law or was in any way engaged in unlawful business in Colorado."

Urge General Strike

PAWTUCKET, R. I.—The Pawtucket Central Trades and Labor union, representing 30,000 organized skilled and unskilled workers in the Pawtuxet and Blackstone valleys, calls upon the A. F. of L. to undertake a general strike thruout the United States.

The resolution embodying this action sets forth the combined assaults being made upon labor in all industries, and makes a special reference to the textile strike which has been in progress here since the beginning of the year.

The resolution was adopted unanimously by 115 delegates representing 23 unions. Copies were sent to the press, the railroad brotherhoods and all central labor unions in the country.

[illegible] for the Next Strike

The coal miners are [illegible] back to work. At the [illegible] the [illegible] through which they have just passed.

Let them begin preparing for the next strike by tightening their ties with the workers of other countries.

It was not an accident that only the Communists urged real action during the strike, demanding that British labor refuse to send coal over to this country. Then the Workers Party of America and the Red Trade Union International, the question was repeatedly brought to the attention of British labor.

Last week we gave space to an editorial utterance on this question in the London Herald, the Labor Daily. This week we publish an article that was given a page display in The Communist, the official organ of the British Communist Party.

This article should be read and studied by every worker interested in creating a world united front of all labor for complete triumph over the well-organized forces of the exploiters. "The Communist" says:

BRITISH UNIONISM AND THE AMERICAN COAL STRIKE

In 1921 the British miners faced a three months' struggle. They were heavily beaten for want of international solidarity. From that time to the present no effort has emanated from either the Miners' International or the Amsterdam International to remedy the defects.

We have persistently appealed for a real international with full sense of international obligations and discipline. Hodges (president of the British miners) and his colleagues have been content to drift—pacifying their consciences with the formula: "National solidarity must precede international solidarity."

Now, in 1922, the British Unions come face to face with the problem of international "scabbing."

Are the miners, the railwaymen, the dockers, the transport workers, going to smash the American mine workers' strike at the bidding of the Government? That is the issue.

For four months the miners of America have battled against great odds. Soldiers have been used in fifteen States. Many miners have been killed. Evictions, court injunctions, armed thugs have been used against them in almost every state.

The miners have fought with a tenacity that has surprised even their own leaders. Great efforts have been made to reach non-union fields. At least 100,000 non-unionists have joined the strike. But the difficulties are enormous. There are entire counties in West Virginia and in Pennsylvania where no union organizer is permitted to enter. The coal companies control the local, state and federal machinery absolutely. They hire the police. They pay the sheriffs. They own all the property in some of these towns. When the Union succeeded in leasing a piece of land in Vintondale, Pennsylvania, they had organizers who tried to enter the town arrested, and even newspaper correspondents were kept out.

"Employers have been ready to meet violence or more often, to anticipate it. They hire and arm their own strike guards, and often equip and pay county sheriffs."

Manchester Guardian Weekly, July 28

Against this kind of opposition the American miners have fought with amazing confidence and solidarity. And now the Capitalist press is in hysterics. Read the headlines: "More British Coal for U. S." "100,000 Tons a Day." "Sharp Rise in Freight Rate. Prices Advanced." "Orders Rapidly Increasing." "70 Ships Chartered for British Coal going to America."

It is an intolerable situation. If there is one thing that trade unionism should have made impossible it is scabbing during a strike. Yet the Daily Herald leader, on Saturday, July 29th, dealing with the U. S. A. Mines is an utter disgrace to a Labor paper.

Listen to it: "But it is useless to clamour idly that something should be done, or to denounce somebody wildly because nothing is being done. For the grim fact is that nothing can be done."

The first part is cowardice; the second is a lie.

Something is being done and the Daily Herald is busy doing it in dispute after dispute. It squirmed and shuffled and preached defeat in the Engineers' lock-out. It covered up the defects of the leaders in the name of peace. And now when the British trade unions are being called upon to function as international scab organizations the Daily Herald paves the way. That is doing something with a vengeance. How the pioneers of the Daily Herald must squirm when they read its pages today.

Such defeatism is not for us.

On Monday, July 31st, 1922, the S. Wales Miners E. C. meets in Cardiff. On Monday, July 31st, the Transport Workers' E. C. meets. Next week the Miners' International meets in Frankfort. The two Executives meeting on Monday can, if they will, pave the way for action to help the miners of America.

Let them convene a joint meeting of the Executive Committees of the Unions involved:—The N. U. R., the A. S. L. E. and F., the Transport Workers, the Dockers, and the E. C. of M. F. G. B. Let them issue a statement to the rank and file explaining the situation. Let them give a clarion call to the miners and transport workers to give a warm reception to the blackleg ships and stop the coal leaving the ports.

Let them meet quickly, prior to the Miners' International, and send a unanimous call to the International Miners to line up for international support to the American miners.

Real internationalism can only come out of the actual struggle and thru actual demonstrations of solidarity. To put off rendering aid because machinery is imperfect may be good enough for a Daily Herald leader writer, but it ought not to do for responsible leaders of labor. It will not do for Mr. Herbert Smith to go to Frankfort and repeat the statement he made at Blackpool. "At the Internatonal Conference at Frankfort next month," he said, "a statement would be made of a kind that would be appreciated—that the mines should be for the nation and not for the millionaires." When you get to Frankfort for Heaven's sake come down to mother earth and be practical.

The strike is not for nationalization— it is to defend the wage rates of the miners. Get down to the job of organizing assistance to this effort. If you don't, if you allow the American miners to be defeated, then rest assured that the miners of Britain and Europe will pay for it. To help the American miners now is to help the British miners too. Defeat the American miners by lack of solidarity and you defeat the British miners also. Refuse to take bold action now and not only do you bring disaster to the American miner, but you will also make it impossible to achieve united international action in the future.

It is up to the British Trade Union leaders to make an effort. Upon their actions now depends the possibility of breaking down the isolation of the workers of America from the workers of Europe. It is up to you now to make a practical step towards uniting the workers of the world.

"AMALGAMATED" ALMANAC

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, which recently announced plans for a second bank in Rochester, and which has put into operation a comprehensive financial plan for operating a big concession from the Russian government to establish clothing factories in Moscow and Petrograd, is sending out an illustrated almanac which strikes a new note in union literature.

The almanac with 100 pages contains material covering many subjects of interest to workers. It includes art, literature, poetry, and scientific discussions, in addition to a presentation of union principles and suggestions on the conduct of meetings.

It tells Amalgamated members how to picket peacefully and how to care for babies. It is edited on the assumption that its readers are eager for aspiring thoughts as well as useful information of the organization.

UP IN HARLEM

Ships Made 17 Trips to Soviet Russia with Relief Aid from F.S.R.

Up to July 31, 1922, seventeen ships, containing relief food, machinery and other supplies from workers, have left New York, bound for Soviet Russia. The following is a report of the shipments made by the American Federated Russian Famine Relief Committee on these 17 vessels.

It must be noted that the Friends of Soviet Russia furnished nearly ninety-seven and one-half per cent (97½ per cent) of the funds for the purchase and forwarding of these goods thru the Federated Committee.

Besides the 17 shipments from New York, ten (10) shipments have been made separately by F. S. R. branches along the Pacific coast. These are listed below at the end, but, due to the shipping papers having been sent abroad for handling, details are not available at the moment of making up this report.

This report does not include relief material forwarded thru the Federated Committee by various other organizations as distinct consignments in their own respective names.

1. S. S. "Margus,"—Sailed Oct. 15, 1921, from New York for Petrograd: $73,402.
2. S. S. "Eltazier"—Sailed Oct. 27, 1921, from New York for Petrograd: $72,450.
3. S. S. "Westport"—Sailed Nov. 22, 1921, from New York for Reval: $42,556.
4. S. S. "Gasconier"—Sailed Nov. 30, 1921, from New York for Reval: $17,548.
5. S. S. "Eastern Coast"—Sailed Dec. 24, 1921, from New York for Reval $95,735.
6. S. S. "Gasconier"—Sailed Jan. 25, 1922, from New York for Reval: $39,555.
7. S. S. "Eastern Cross"—Sailed Jan. 25, 1921, from New York for Reval: $8,648.
8. S. S. "Eastern Star"—Sailed Feb. 2, 1922, from New York for Reval: $20,044.
9. S. S. "Elzasier"—Sailed Feb. 17, 1922, from New York for Reval: $26,685.
10. S. S. "Rockaway Park"—Sailed March 8, 1922, from New York for Reval: $49,740.
11. S. S. "Redondo"—Sailed April 11, 1922, from New York for Reval $87,526.
12. S. S. "Westport"—Sailed Apr. 16, 1922, from New York for Reval: $13,316.
13. S. S. "Belvedere"—Sailed May 8, 1922, from New York for Reval $69,865.
14. S. S. "Latvia"—Sailed May 10, 1922, from New York for Libau. $60,450.
15. S. S. "Polonia"—Sailed May 17, 1922, from New York for Libau.
16. S. S. "Rockaway Park"—Sailed June 27, 1922, from New York for Reval: $7,964.
17. S. S. "Eastern Star"—Sailed July 31, 1922, from New York for Petrograd $39,949

Total, gross value of 17 shipments, $725,433.

Shipments by F. S. R. Branches on Pacific Coast

From San Francisco, Cal.: S. S. "Minnesotan", sailed Dec. 31, 1921: $2,000; S. S. "Virginian," sailed March 17, 1922; S. S. "Texan," sailed April 7, 1922, S. S. "Kentuckian," sailed May 19, 1922.

From Los Angeles, Cal.: S. S. "Minnesotan"—Sailed Feb. 5, 1922: $1,000; S. S. "Floridian," sailed March 15, 1922; S. S. "Alaskan."

From Portland, Ore.: S. S. "Kentuckian," sailed May 10, 1922.

From Vancouver, B. C., Canada. S. S. "Moerdijk," sailed June 13, 1922.

A complete report of shipments from the Pacific coast will be made in the near future. Pacific coast branches remit funds to national office. The above shipments consist of material collected locally, not purchased.

Demonstrate! World Youth Day! Sept. 3

"DOWN WITH CAPITALIST WARS." "DOWN WITH IMPERIALISM." "DOWN WITH SOCIAL PATRIOTISM." "LONG LIVE THE WORLD REVOLUTION."

These are some of the slogans that will be used by the young workers all over the world when they gather together on September 3rd to celebrate INTERNATIONAL YOUTH DAY.

In every part of the world the workers will gather, young and old, to voice their protest against a system that is degrading the bodies and poisoning the minds of the masses of youthful toilers thruout the world.

The Fight of the Young

Last year for the first time the American proletarian youth joined with the rest of the young workers in holding demonstrations against the bourgeoisie, and against the social-patriots. Last year for the first time the revolutionary youth of America joined in the fight when they responded to the call of the YOUNG COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL for a demonstration to celebrate the day when the young workers of Europe rose in a mighty protest against the war after the so-called Socialists betrayed the working class by supporting the capitalist war.

The demonstration this time is not only to fight against the future wars which will follow as an inevitable result of the development of capitalist society, not only to protest against the miserable exploitation of the youthful toilers all over the world, but also to fight against the social-patriots and pacifists who with their cry of democracy mislead the masses of workers, young and old, and make it easier for the master class to drive the workers into submission.

Good List of Speakers

To-day the social-patriots of the world are joining with the bourgeoisie in the cry of justice for those who would destroy the proletarian revolution in Russia. In the name of justice they call upon our Russian comrades who by tireless sacrifice have made and preserved their revolution against the attacks of the combined capitalists of the world, to free the traitors who attempted the lives of the leaders of the revolution and who, with funds given them by the capitalists, attempted to foster counter-revolution in Russia. Against them we will voice our protest, the protest of the American proletarian youth, combined with the protests of the older comrades.

Sunday, September 3, at 1 p. m., the YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE OF NEW YORK will hold a Mass Meeting and demonstration at WEBSTER HALL, 11th Str. and Third Ave. Some of the speakers will be ROSE PASTOR STOKES, LUDWIG LORE, MOISSAYE J. OLGIN, RMANUEL ELSTON, M. R. SALZMAN, NAT KAPLAN, AL SCHAAP, and others.

Voice Your Protest

We request all organizations not to arrange any affair that will in any way conflict with this meeting.

We call upon all of the workers in the city and the young workers in particular to join with us in our struggle. We call upon them to come and voice their protest with the rest of the workers the world over against the evils of a system that has brought misery and degradation to the masses of workers.

Remember Sunday, September 3, at 1 p. m. at Webster Hall, 11th St. and Third Ave. Come early and bring your friends.

Zinoviev Reviews Birth of Communist Parties in Italy, France and Germany

turally, not without a certain amount of pain.

The delivery of the French Communist Party, altho produced under extremely favorable conditions, is incomparably more painful. I cannot help but think of this when I reflect on what is now happening in our French Party.

All Will End Happily

For, that which is now happening in France, is precisely the birth of the Communist Party. The delivery is rather difficult. But there is ample reason to believe that it will end happily.

Those who are aiding, for the first time, in the birth of a Communist Party, and who do not fully realise the situation, are somewhat fearful of a catastrophe.

Naturally, we are not now speaking of our enemies, who have a definite interest in picturing the present condition of the French Party as the height of chaos and confusion.

But there are even some of our most sincere friends who, seeing merely the surface of things, are sometimes seized with despair.

In this respect, we cannot refrain from the friendly reproval of one of the best militants in the French Party, our friend Vaillant-Couturier.

In an article of July 12, entitled, "The Only Remedy: Organization" in which he calls for organizers to prevent the crumbling of the edifice of the French Party, we believe him to be expressing an exaggerated pessimism.

Birth in France Difficult

Yes, Comrade Vaillant-Couturier! The birth of the Communist Party is infinitely more difficult than that of the child described by Gorki. That is what we must realize, once for all.

Tendencies, groups, fractions, subfractions, insensate combats, personal conflicts, bitter controversies, furious discussions—all this we find in the French Party. But that does not mean that the Party is about to perish or decay.

It has been the same with other Communist Parties, before their definite consolidation. There is therefore no reason for despair in this case. In spite of all, the child will be born; he will grow up and become the terror of his enemies!

But, it will be said, the French Communist Party was born at Tours.

That is not quite true. The Tours congress was the rupture with the avowed social traitors. The majority at Tours wanted to be, but had not yet become Communists.

Towards the end of 1920, when I was at Halle, Comrade Daniel Renoult, representing the majority group of the French Central Committee, came to see me in order to enter into negotiations.

From Wish to Realization

He accepted the greater part of the 21 points—which have now attained worldwide fame—but he firmly insisted that the Party should retain, for a while, its old name; that is to say, that it should not yet call itself a Communist Party.

Renoult, was then right in a certain sense. In fact, if it be desirable that a name should correspond exactly with reality, the French Party should have been called, not a Communist Party, but a Party desirous of becoming Communist.

Between a wish and its realization the road is often long. For example, when, at St. Etienne, the members of the French Party warmly congratulated themselves on having succeeded, for the first time, in organizing a preliminary conference of Communists working within the unions, what did it really mean?

Always the same thing: that the Party wanted to be Communist, but that it had not been so up to that time.

That which in any other party however poorly organized, is considered as the matter of fact process of growth, is for our French Party quite an event, giving occasion for mutual congratulation.

Yet, we repeat, there is no reason whatever for yielding to despair. The first step is the hardest. Comrades, as long as you have a firm and sincere desire to become a Communist Party, you will become such.

Let us remember how the Communist Parties were started and formed in the other great countries

Developments in Germany

At first, the old Social Democracy divided into two parties. On the one side were the Right Social Democrats (Scheidemannists) and on the other, within the limits of one party, the Independents and the Communists.

Then after some time, a new division [illegible], the Communists separated from the Independents. Thus, three parties were formed. Later, at the Halle Congress, the Independents became sub-divided into two equal sections, one of which took its place with the Communists.

And finally, the group adhering to Levy, Däumig, Geyer and consorts left the Communists and returned to the Independents. And it was not until all this had happened that the German Communist Party was definitely formed.

Expectations in Italy

Here, things happened a little differently. The first important split took place along another line of difference. Two parties were formed. But one of them was composed more of the Right than of the Centre. This was the Italian Socialist Party. On the other side, were the Communists.

Now a second split is being prepared; the Centre seems to be disposed to break with the Right and to form a party of its own, similar to the German Independents. So that, instead of a two-party division, we shall also have in Italy a three-party division: the Right, the Centre and the Communists.

A part of the Centre will then pass over to the Communists, and we shall then be able to consider the Italian Communist Party as definitely formed.

Reviews Some Episodes

There were certain defections of groups which took place before all this, both in Germany and Italy. The Spartacus group was formed before the official split in the old German Social Democracy.

In Italy, Mussolini's group—now the Fascisti—broke away from the organization before the first big division in the Italian Party. But these were merely episodes.

The principal divisions were along the following lines: 1. The Centre and the Communists against the Right; 2. the Right and the Centre against the Communists.

The working class movement in France appears to have followed an intermediate path, between those of the Germans and the Italians. The followers of Longuet have joined with the Right against the Communists.

So far the development of the French Party appears to resemble that of the Italian Party. It would appear that [illegible] against the [illegible] of the Right and Centre.

[illegible]

But one [illegible] that this delimitation is not definite. In the heart of the French Communist Party, certain elements—not numerous, it is true, but influential in "high places"—have remained, which are not far removed from the Longuet faction.

One would be blind indeed, if one could not perceive that Raoul Verfeuil or Lafont, for example, are fundamentally very close to the political position of Longuet.

We should not be at all astonished, if we were to hear, in the very near future, that the Centrist elements among the Socialist dissenters, and in the Communist Party itself, have abandoned their respective parties in order to come together and form a third party, Centrist in character, and analogous to that of the German Independents.

We shall not deplore this fact. The Centrist elements which will leave the French Communist Party will not be numerous; and they will be for the most part, intellectuals. The workers will not follow them.

The French Communist Party can but gain by being rid of these elements. If, from any given quantity a negative quantity be deducted, the sum resulting from this operation will represent a quantity superior to the original.

Sees Compact Party

That there are Centrists in the French Party, no one will deny. One must not confuse the Centrists in France with that which we, in this country, call the Centre of the Party. The French Centrists are the Right of the actual Party. But, by the Centre of the Party, we refer to the majority which sincerely desires to become Communist and which, we are convinced, will eventually form, with the Left, a compact Communist Party.

And it is precisely because the French Party is still in the state of "becoming", that it is essential that the Communist kernel show firmness, energy, clearness and cohesion

The least concession to the Right might considerably retard the formation of the French Communist Party, and would deal the French movement a terrible blow.

[illegible] the leaders of the Centre took it into their heads to form a "bloc" with the Right against the Left of the Party—as they did quite recently—it is certain that they would paralyse the French Party for some time, just as Serrati has paralysed the Italian Socialist Party.

[illegible] French Serratis

That is what Comrade Frossard appears to have realized when, in his report on the Moscow conference, he was decided never to play the part of a French Serrati. Nevertheless, that does not mean that other Serratis will not arise in the French Party.

From all we know of the activities of Comrade Daniel Renoult during recent months, we cannot help fearing that if he persists in his errors, he will become a French Serrati.

Let Comrade Renoult not forget that, at the outset of his conflict with the Communist International, Serrati also endeavored to criticise the International from the "Left" point of view.

The logical development of his struggle has compelled Mr. Serrati to gather against the Communist International, the malcontents of every shade, the "Rights" as well as the "Lefts".

Is Serrati's fate so enviable that he can still find imitators? Serrati, who has literally shattered his party, is the fit example to make all comrades who are sincerely devoted to Communism, recoil with horror.

The French Party has not yet rid itself of all its Centrist elements. That is the crux of the real situation in France.

Another fact to be remembered is that anarcho-syndicalist traditions are still extremely virile in France.

Thus we have a species of arc, of which the Centrists form one segment, and the anarcho-syndicalists the other. It is by combatting these two deviatons that we can assuage the birth pangs of the French Communist Party.

Centrism Is Crumbling

The Centrists would not be Centrists if they did not have a foot in each camp. But we, as Communists, should prefer that they frankly join our adversaries.

Centrism as an international tendency in the working class movement, is crumbling before our eyes. Never has this been so obvious as at present.

While the German Independent Party is striving by every means to enter the bourgeois coalition government, and is even prepared, for this purpose, to ally its organization with that of the Right Social Democrats, that is, with the Scheidemannists, a rupture is about to take place in Italy between the Reformists and the Centrists, as the latter still fear open participation in a bourgeois government.

In short, the international working class movement is divided into three currents: the Right, the Centre and Communism. It would be more exact to say: two currents and—one Centrist bog.

Our task as Communists is to keep a hundred leagues away from this Centrist marsh, and to drain it off, if we find the faintest traces of it in our own Party. The Communist International tells you this frankly.

Predicts Mighty French Party

Comrades of the French Party. In your party, there are diseased areas. Do not fear to look the truth in the face, and you will then soon be able to restore your Party to health.

The union of the actual majority (that is to say, of the Centre of the Party, and not of the Centrists) with the Left, will soon save the French Party and set it firmly on the path towards the conquest of the majority of the proletariat. But the vacillation of the Centrists would cause irreparable harm to the Party in a very short time.

The choice is not hard. A few months of collaboration between the Centre and the Left; a few decisive efforts to render impossible our betrayal by the Right; an explanation of the meaning of these happenings to the broad working masses; a little energy and perseverance; and the French Party will definitely become a Communist Party, surmounting, as the German Party has recently done, the final obstacles, and will occupy one of the most honorable places in that great international working class family called the Communist International.

With all our heart, we trust that our French comrades will, as soon as possible, set out along the path which we have indicated.

Anti-Labor Frame-up in Chicago Peters Out as Victims Are Freed

CHICAGO.—Collapse for the time being of the frameup against former building trades council leaders was registered with the jury's report that they could not agree on a verdict on murder conspiracy charges.

Hundreds of labor men had been arrested in spectacular raids following the killing of two policemen by unknown men May 10. Most of the labor men were released in short order.

A grand jury brought indictments against almost a dozen. Some of these were not pressed. Five men were brought to trial.

Two of them Con Shea and Tim Murphy, were freed before the trial ended because of lack of evidence.

The remaining three, Fred Mader, D. J. McCarthy and John Miller, on whose guilt the jury disagreed, will be held for new trial, the prosecution asserts.

Big business had joined with the state and with socalled "reform" organizations to stampede Chicago against organized labor, seizing upon the unexplained murders as a pretext.

TOKIO.—About 60,000 Tokio nurses have completed plans for the formation of a union of nurses to promote their interests.

BARBER WANTS TO KNOW

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—W. E. Polston, a barber of Monett, a divisional point on the Frisco railway, in a recent letter to Attorney General Barrett, wants to know if he can refuse to shave strikebreakers, and if he cannot, if he can demand of the strikebreakers a prohibitive price, thus relieving himself of what he regards as a disagreeable task. The attorney general replied with a printed form stating that his office does not give opinions on matters submitted by individuals.

Brave Fight of I. W. W. in San Quentin Prison

SAN QUENTIN, Cal.—The I. W. W. criminal syndicalism prisoners here are still undergoing punishment, in protest against injustice. The five youngest—Golden, Casey, Mathin, Baker and Wismer—are in solitary. Wismer has been granted a new trial and should be released from prison. Ryan, Hannon, Gaveel, Dunn, Sherman, Olsen, Shoker and Williams are in the dungeons, but not in solitary.

Ramon Sanchez had to give up from extreme weakness, as he is in poor health. Another of the group, James Roe, is over 70, and too weak to undergo the ordeal. With these exceptions, all but five of the criminal syndicalism prisoners are in the dungeons or in solitary.

The movement, which began as a protest against the discriminatory treatment given Gaveel, has become a fixed determination to do no more prison labor; first, because the only "crime" the men have committed is the exercise of their constitutional rights, and they feel they should be regarded solely as political prisoners; and, secondly, because they refuse any longer to scab on organized labor by working on convict contract jobs.

The men have made up their minds to stick, and it is possible that the struggle may be a long one, with serious consequences. It is helping to weaken the criminal syndicalism law.

Two Women Languish in Prison; Judge's Grand Government Still Lives

Last April three women were convicted in New York City of "criminal anarchy" under the law enacted following the assassination of President McKinley more than 20 years ago.

There was every indication, in all three cases, that the women were the victims of a police "frameup."

Their trials were marked throughout by the usual hysterical and inflammatory tactics of the prosecuting officers, and by a scarcely concealed spirit of hostility on the part of the court.

One of the women, Mrs. Tina Jurson, 26 years old, was given a suspended sentence.

The two others were given sentences, respectively, of two years and three months to seven years and one year and six months in prison.

In passing sentence, Judge Louis D. Gibbs took occasion to make a pompous speech attacking the Russian government, and following with a diatribe against the women as two of Russia's outposts here for the "overthrow of the American government in blood and ruins."

Now the attorneys for these women, Walter Nelles and Murray Bernays, have applied to the state supreme court for certificates of reasonable doubt in both cases. Justice Guy, who heard the application was not ready to pass on the matter. But he just couldn't resist the opportunity to get some publicity at the women's expense.

"I haven't any great measure of sympathy for persons who seek to destroy this grand government," he declaimed, while the reporters wielded their pencils furiously to put down every word.

The application will come up on September 8. Meantime both women, Mrs. Minnie Kolnin and Mrs. Anna Leisman, are serving their sentences, still another judge—Edward J. Gavegan, of the supreme court—having refused to issue a stay of execution. Should the certificate of reasonable doubt be issued, both will have new trials.

All three women were convicted for distributing May Day literature last year, and their convictions were based on leaflets which the court permitted to be introduced, in two of the cases, on the unsupported word of police who broke into their apartments in their absence and without warrants, and declared they found the leaflets there. It was admitted that the leaflets were not found on their persons, and the women denied having had the leaflets or ever having seen them before they were produced by the police in court.

The New York Division, National Defense Committee, Nerma Berman, Secretary, 799 Broadway, New York City, is taking care of these cases.

Militarism in Japan

TOKIO.—A soldier, a member of the heavy artillery corps stationed at Maizuro, is reported to have been beaten so savagely by an officer that he died the following day. According to the Nichi Nichi, the man was charged with laziness. The officer is reported to have knocked the man down and then kicked him repeatedly.

MINNEAPOLIS.—The International Union of Bricklayers and Masons, with headquarters in Indianapolis, will establish a bank either in Minneapolis or St. Paul in the near future.

Ostroll Writes of Soviet Steel Town in the Urals

By HARRY OSTROLL

NEDEJDENSKY, Urals, Siberia.—This town in our American Kuzbas concession is a steel town of about 25,000 inhabitants, with fairly nice homes all electrified, surrounded by some woodland and also a river running by. The weather is warm now, the nights being bright, due to the northern lights. There is quite an amount of vegetables and poultry, cows, etc.

The inhabitants are all employed in the steel plant which occupies the central position. It is about 75 acres in extent and before the war produced gigantic steel products, locomotives and large machinery. It is self-sufficient, having also a wire mill and it had a large sawmill cutting enough lumber for shipment to England, but this burned down. It has a fine electric station capable of generating 200,000 horsepower and it generates 66,000 volts for the surrounding mines of coal, iron and copper. It has the finest steel ore found in the world.

We have in our group an engineer that worked for Gary, American Steel, Ford and other American establishments, and he knows every part of a steel plant. The plant at present is run down due to lack of material and lack of organizing leaders. I have seen motors burned out due to overload, while out in the yard hundreds lie new and crated, unopened, as large as 1500 horsepower.

For the next few months I will be very busy, taking a complete survey of the plant. That steel as it flows like water from a well, being molded into gigantic structures, just draws me to it.

Unity in Textile Strike

LAWRENCE, Mass.—Both the United Textile Workers of America and the One Big Union have elected committees to meet in joint conference looking toward concerted action to bring the strike to a successful end. Division in the ranks of the striking operatives is said to have made negotiations with the millowners extremely difficult hitherto.

Step Up! Let Pawn Shop Pin Victory Medals on You at $3.75 per Pin

Four years ago the Victory medals conferred on American soldiers for conspicuous bravery in the war were priceless. A year ago some of these decorations were found in the possession of men who never were under fire. They could not be bought nor sold—oh, no—but if you asked about them in some of the local pawn shops, you were likely to be met with a request, in a low voice about the particular sort of "deal" you were interested in. Ten dollars, you were likely to have been told, would bring you, for instance, a badge with three bars, St. Mihiel, Meuse, Argonne, Defensive Sector, across a ribbon above the figure of the bronze Victory on the medal.

Now you can buy such a medal in pawn shops for $3.75. The ruling price is $2 for the medal, with $1.75 added for the extra bars. And they are also sold openly.

Where did the pawn shops get them? From ex-service men who were jobless and hungry, and in many instances whose families were hungry.

News of Workers Party Activities in the City, State and Nation

National Convention Asked to Move Party Offices to Chicago

The many matters taken up for consideration by the various district conventions indicates the great interest being taken in the Second National Convention of the Workers Party, to be held at Chicago, starting Monday, August 28, at the Machinists Hall, 119 So. Ashland Boulevard.

All of the district conventions have elected their full quota of delegates and have acted on questions they feel the convention ought to consider.

THE WORKER has already published the important actions of the District No. 2 convention, embracing New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

Among the actions taken by the convention of District No. 8, held at Chicago, were the following:

Move Headquarters to Chicago

The convention acted favorably on a resolution urged by the Finnish Language Federation asking that the party's headquarters be moved from New York to Chicago. The resolution reads:

"WHEREAS, The national headquarters of the party is now located in the City of New York, which being situated in the extreme eastern point of the jurisdiction of the party is not a logical nor a convenient location for a national headquarters, and

"WHEREAS, The City of Chicago is a more convenient location for the national headquarters, being located in the center of the party jurisdiction and is also a great industrial and commercial center of the United States,

"THEREFORE, Be it resolved, by the Convention assembled, that the national headquarters be moved from the City of New York to the City of Chicago, Illinois."

Resolution on Sunday Schools referred to the National Convention with recommendation to give due consideration to Sunday School work, adopt a uniform policy and encourage the growth of Workers' Sunday Schools.

Resolution on industrial activity referred to National Convention without comment, as follows:

"To broaden the scope of industrial activities of the party so as to include agitation within industrial unions with the view to secure their affiliation with the Red Trade Union International."

Urged that district organizer shall be elected by the District Convention instead of being appointed by the Central Executive Committee.

Strengthen the Party Press

Resolution on party press adopted as follows:

1. Control and management: In the hands of the party, must be exercised by special press committees.
2. Periodic meetings of the editors of the papers with party's press committee.
3. Establish contact of papers with the masses of the workers.
4. Make the papers more agitational and less theoretical in their character.
5. Pledging earnest support to develop daily press in this country.
6. That territorial limits be established for the party press so that they will not be thrown into competition with each other.

Resolution adopted to call attention of national convention that Workers Party has not fulfilled its duty towards the first Workers' Republic, the Soviet Republic of Russia.

In this respect that it has not carried on a systematic campaign for the recognition of and trade relations with Soviet Russia, it has allowed to pass the Genoa and the Hague Conferences without utilizing the occasions for the demonstration of the solidarity of the American working class with the workers of Soviet Russia.

The national convention should instruct the future Central Executive Committee of the party to carry on an extensive campaign for the recognition of and trade relations with Soviet Russia.

Hit Yellow Socialists

Resolution on trial of social-revolutionaries adopted as follows:

"WHEREAS, Soviet Russia has been seriously handicapped by the activities of the counter-revolutionaries, more particularly members of the Social-Revolutionary Party, and

"WHEREAS, Definite evidence obtained from the records of the S. R. Party has disclosed that the S. R. instigated and carried on a campaign of assassinations and destruction, and

"WHEREAS, The Second International and the Socialist Party of America has utilized the trial of the above counter-revolutionaries as a means to sabotage the reconstruction work of Soviet Russia and deliver Soviet Russia back to Czarism,

"THEREFORE, Be it resolved, that we, the District Convention of the Workers Party of America, express our severe condemnation of the hypocritical and dastardly tactics of the yellow socialists organized in the Second International and the Socialist Party of America."

Urge Relief for Miners

Resolution on miners' relief as follows:

"WHEREAS, The West Virginia miners faced with the armed force of the capitalist class including those of state and government, are conducting a brave and valiant fight for the right to organize and secure a decent standard of living, and

"WHEREAS, The fight has been accompanied by brutalities and violence that has resulted in the murder of many miners, the imprisonment of others and the wholesale eviction of their wives and children, and

"WHEREAS, This battle is the battle of the entire working class, whose defeat would mean the retarding of the whole labor movement,

"THEREFORE, we express our admiration of their brave stand and pledge our solidarity with our brave fellow-workers in West Virginia and that we pledge them our financial and active support, and we further call upon the entire labor movement to rally to their aid and stop the brutal and bloody offensive of the employing class."

TEN WORKERS SHOULD READ THIS COPY OF THE WORKER; KEEP IT IN CIRCULATION

Let 25,000 More Readers Learn of Attack on Foster

The publication in last week's WORKER of "Foster's Own Story" of his kidnapping by the henchmen of the Rockefeller steel interests of Colorado and forcible carrying off into the state of Wyoming, an article of first page news value, marks clearly THE WORKER staff's concept of the function of a Communist paper.

Here is an occurence within the class struggle of the utmost significance. Foster, head of the Trade Union Educational League, the left wing organisation within the American Federation of Labor and strongest opponent of the reactionary policies of Samuel Gompers, is kidnapped shortly before a meeting at which he is scheduled to address the organized workers of Denver, many of whom are on strike.

"The Crisis in the American Labor Movement" was to be the subject of Foster's lecture, a lecture he has delivered before scores of well attended meetings of progressive labor union members in the 9,000 miles speaking tour he has just concluded.

Foster shows in this lecture the actual conditions within the American labor movement: why it has failed to stem the tide of dissolution which the organized capitalists have set in against it.

He shows the need of amalgamation in many branches of industry. He shows the need of a change of outlook and policy if organized labor is to march forward to power and victory over its enemies.

A man with such ideas constitutes a menace to capitalist interests, and equally so to the "labor lieutenants" of the capitalist class in organized labor's ranks. He is given equal recognition by both as such. Gompers recognizes Foster as an enemy to whom he will give no quarter.

The capitalist class press is loud in its denunciations of the leader of Gompers' opponents. Both have laid out a campaign to destroy the Trade Union Educational League. His shanghaing from the state of Colorado is but one attack in the capitalists war against Foster. It is a step which Gompers and his reactionary satellites in the American Federation of Labor will applaud with glee. In this these two "enemies" become united in a mutual endeavor. And in this are they both revealed as enemies of progressive, forward looking workers.

The capitalist class will show no quarter to Foster. It never forgets the labor man whom it cannot buy, bluff, cajole or assimilate.

The steel corporations of the United States have not forgotten that Foster organized and led the greatest strike of steel workers in this country.

That the Rockefeller steel interests lay behind his recent deportation is in line with the logic of the situation.

These facts are significant. They show the way the wind blows in the camp of labor's enemies. THE WORKER, true to its policy of giving recognition to the most significant events of the class war, gives first page space to Foster's account of the kidnapping.

Every significant trend of the class war, every developing factor that makes for or against the workers' rise to power, will be analyzed, interpretted and explained to our readers.

We ask our readers to help us make our work most effective by securing the readers that make the foundation of success.

THE WORKER campaign for 25,000 readers is rushing along full blast. Hundreds of comrades are co-operating in this effort. Hundreds who have as good an opportunity to secure subscribers have not yet done so. They too, must help. Sell the subscription cards sent you. Do what others are doing—get new readers for THE WORKER. Join the army of builders.

Here They Come!

"The 25 copies I receive each week are doing good work, and I would not hesitate to pay for them were they twice the price." This comes from a comrade who always pays for every copy whether he sells them all or not.

"At first I had no hope to sell the sub cards (I was in an entirely new field) but I did, as you see, and I shall not let the time pass without I try to get more subs for THE WORKER." From a comrade who has accomplished what some fear to try. His success should be imitated by the timid ones.

"I like THE WORKER better than ever and am letting others read my copy every week. I wish you every success, it is what we want, a paper that tells the truth." The sentiment of a worker who has learned that the best friend of the worker is the workers' own paper, THE WORKER.

"I hope you will be able to make THE WORKER a daily soon," writes a comrade from Portland, Ore., who remits for five sub cards and asks for more. Incidentally, we would say that is the way to make it one.

A comrade who uses one of our subscription lists for stationery writes: "Being under indictment for a little alleged sabotage down in Southern Indiana, and on a sort of probation of my boss here, I don't feel strong enough to circulate this roll of honor." Nevertheless, he renews his subscription and pays for five sub cards. You can't keep a good man down!

Do You Read or Just Drift Along?

Some workers read—and learn—and take their place in the front ranks of the workers' emancipating movement.

Some don't, and remain mentally as well as physically enslaved. Forward looking and thinking workers agree that without knowledge of the character of the forces which are at war in present society no progress can be made toward solving the causes of this war.

These books will help clear your mind on many a knotty problem of the labor movement.

Auditor Gives More Proof that Forward's Charges Are False

Because of the important information it contains we make public the following letter written to us by our auditor, J. B. Collings Wood, in connection with the charges and questions in the "Jewish Daily Forward's" editorial of August 1st.

This communication gives further and detailed proof of the unscrupulous manner in which the Jewish daily deliberately neglected the ample opportunities always open to it for a thoro investigation of the facts. Its ferocious attack is clearly revealed as a stupid, malicious attempt to wreck by shameless distortion and cowardly insinuation the important work of economic reconstruction which the F. S. R. is undertaking in the interest of the Soviet Republic.

Will Forward Publish Letter?

We hope that the "Forward" will see fit to publish this letter, if not to open for itself a way to saving its face and making some sort of amends for its disgraceful actions, at least for the sake of the "tens of thousands of individuals," who according to its esteemed Editor are so anxious to have these matters cleared up. Nevertheless, we are not very sanguine in this expectation of common decency on its part, since the worthy "Forward" has already made a very bad beginning by its failure to publish the letter specially addressed to it by our auditor.

The "Jewish Daily Forward" may rest assured, however, that with or without its assent the working class of America will get all the facts and that the class-conscious laboring masses will hold it strictly to account and punish it severely for its treachery to the Soviet Republic.

Auditor's Letter to F. S. R.

To the Friends of Soviet Russia,
National Office,
201 West 13th Street,
New York, N. Y.

I have read your translation of an editorial which you state appeared in the "Jewish Daily Forward", New York, Tuesday, August 1st, 1922.

You inform me that it is typical of a series of articles which has appeared in that newspaper recently.

You request that I answer any definite charges it contains against financial statements prepared and certified to by me or against the manner in which the funds raised are expended and disbursed.

My first response was to protect myself and you by addressing a general denial to the Editor of that newspaper, sending copies to the press.

I now submit to you, for publication if you wish, paragraphs quoted from your translation of that article, including each paragraph containing a definite charge, together with my answer thereto.

Quotation: "We have many questions to ask them—questions which hundreds and tens of thousands of individuals wish to put up to them. Unions and individuals who gave them money, when they appealed in the name of those dying from hunger in Russia."

ANSWER.—The definite charge contained in that statement is that tens of thousands of contributors wish to ask questions (presumably with regard to your accounts).

This is the first time I have been informed that such a condition exists among your contributors. During the entire period of your existence certified financial statements have been published monthly. Five minor inquiries were addressed to me and answered satisfactorily to the contributors inquiring.

You inform me that an opportunity, always implied, was specifically extended to the Editor of the "Jewish Daily Forward" to ask information of me before the article dated August 1st was published.

The privilege was not taken advantage of by that Editor, nor have I received any evidence from him that he speaks for any number of your contributors.

QUOTATION:—"We accuse the F.S.R. that a great portion of the money which they collected for the hungry in Russia, is spent by them to subsidize their communist press in America, supposedly under the guise of placing big advertisements."

ANSWER:—The definite charge contained in that statement rests upon three points: (1) What is a "great portion?" (2) What is a subsidy? (3) What is the Communist press?

For the period ending May 31, 1922:

INCOME		$670,158.70
ADVERTISEMENTS (All papers)
Already published	$11,199.38
Advances (partly for translation service)	1,468.90	12,668.28

I use these figures in the first instance because they are the latest published figures, August 1, 1922.

The great portion of the money raised, which was used for advertising in ALL papers, is therefore less than 2 per cent to May 31, 1922.

For the period ended June 30, 1922, the total is $16,719.63, which is less [illegible] Worker (formerly Toiler), Pravda, Italian-American Worker, [illegible] Ukrainian, [illegible] Young Workers League.

Class B—Other papers, $12,264.63; Appeal to Reason, Arbeiter Ring, Birth Control Review, Christian Century, Debs' Magazine, Labor Age, Liberator, Messenger, Nation, New Republic, and World Tomorrow.

Any classification is necessarily arbitrary. But probably not all of the papers included in Class A would be called "communist" by the Editor of the "Jewish Daily Forward." And certainly none of the papers included in Class B would be so described.

Class A papers received $4,455.00; very little more than one-half of one per cent of the total income to June 30, 1922, or about one-third of the amounts paid to other papers.

No Class A paper received amounts which by reason of their size or regularity could be defined as a subsidy. Freiheit, a daily, received a total of $1,255.90; Iskra, a weekly, received a total of $1,250 in seven consecutive months; Worker and Toiler a total of $790.00 in six consecutive months, leaving $1,159.10 for the other 13 Class A papers.

(To be continued in next issue.)

Technical Aid's Farewell Party to Tailors' Group

The dream of thousands of class-conscious workers who have been striving for the last few years to help Soviet Russia in her great struggle on her economic front, is slowly, but surely coming true, and is crystallizing into reality.

The Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia, having branches all over the country wherever there is a heart to be found beating in unison with the great Workers' and Peasants' Republic, has for the last year organized various numerous Communes and Cooperatives which have gone to Russia, carrying along with them hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of modern American machinery.

At present the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia is bidding farewell to about 75 of its most devoted members, who, with about $15,000 worth of modern machinery of the needle industry, are soon leaving for Russia.

You will surely not fail to meet your friends, to pass a few of the most interesting hours of your life in their presence, and at the very same time to bid our fore-runners a heartiest farewell.

Doors open at 8.30 P. M. Admission 25 cents. Remember the date and place: Saturday, August 26, at 8.30 P. M., at the Washington Pavilion, 21st Street and Surf Avenue Coney Island.

KUZBAS FAREWELL

There will be an International Entertainment and Dance, under the auspices of the Finnish Branch of the Kuzbas Organization at the Harlem Casino, Thursday, August 24, at 8.30. The Casino is at 116th Street and Lenox Ave., New York City.

This function is to wish farewell to the members of the Fifth Kuzbas Organization who are bound to the Urals and Kuznetzky Basin to participate in person on Soviet Russia's Economic Front.

All the proceeds, less expenses, will be used for the equipping of the Group. All comrades and fellow workers are requested to attend and give the comrades the send-off they deserve. The party leaves on the S. S. Rotterdam, on August 26. Another party leaves on September 30.

Admission, 40 cents at the door, and 35 cents in advance. Tickets can be obtained at Kuzbas Office, 301-110 West 40th Street, New York City.

New York Friends of Soviet Russia Have Big Affair Sept. 2nd

The news of the Moonlight Picnic and Dance to be held in Ulmer Park, September 2nd, under the auspices of the Friends of Soviet Russia is spreading fast. Everywhere the picnic is being talked about as a coming great event. And naturally so. This Moonlight Picnic and Costume Ball will be a unique event, noted for its many attractions and varied program of entertainment.

Heading the program is the famous Clef Club Orchestra, whose services have been engaged so that the picnicers may derive the maximum amount of pleasure from the dancing. Whoever has danced before to the strains of the Clef Club Orchestra will immediately cancel all other engagements for September 2, and purchase a ticket for the picnic.

Next on the program will be a motion-picture called the "Whistle," with William S. Hart in the leading role. Among those present will be a number of prominent movie stars to add brightness to the occasion.

Third on the program will be a special concert of operatic singing, classical dancing and vaudeville sketches. Talented artists have been selected to fill this part of the program.

Late in the night will come the award of prizes for the most original costumes at the picnic, and the lucky winners will be presented with handsome awards.

While all this is going on the hungry and thirsty will be given ample opportunity to refresh themselves at the lunch counter and the bar. The Foodworkers will be in complete control of the "eats" under the general supervision of M Obermeier, and there is no doubt that they will show the greatest solicitude for the appetites of their customers. Admission is only 35 cents. Peter Sharp Speaks and Organizes

Peter C. Sharp, of the executive board of the Fancy Leather Goods Workers' Union, has been instrumental in organizing a study class to be formed into a branch of the Workers Party, as soon as practicable, in Derby, Conn.

He has also helped to reorganize the Lithuanian Branch in New Britain, Conn. Besides this, he is taking care of his regularly assigned meetings as a speaker every night.

His dates for the week will be as follows: Friday, Aug. 25, Johnstown; 26, Gloversville; 27, Utica; 28, Utica; 29 Syracuse; 30, Oneida; 31, Syracuse; and Sept. 1, Geneva.

Striking Shopmen Cheer Plea for Amalgamation

STAMFORD, Conn.—The Central Trades and Labor Council of this city presided at a mass meeting held here to-day to help the striking Federated Shop Crafts.

The speakers for the occasion were two local laborites, and Nat Kaplan, of the Workers Party.

The 500 assembled workers and sympathizers showed unbounded enthusiasm when the speakers denounced the interference of the present administration in the railroad and miners' strikes.

The first speaker pointed out the corruptness of the railroad owners, pointed out their evolution from isolated roads, fighting each other, to the solid combined railroad monopoly of to-day with the four big interests,—Morgan & Co., The National City Bank (Rockefeller), The First National Bank of New York (Baker Group), and Kuhn, Loeb & Co.,—sitting on the Industrial Throne of this country and ruling the destinies of one hundred million people.

He ended up by urging the workers to remain on strike until they have won their wage decision from the U. S. Labor Board and had been guaranteed their seniority rights.

When the Workers Party speaker touched upon the subject of Amalgamation ending up by claiming that the day was very near when not only 400,000 shopmen would go out in an isolated strike, but 1,850,000, all the workers in the railroad industry would stand pat in a united offensive against the corrupted few industrial monarchs that control the transportation system of this country, mighty cheers and applause rang thru the hall.

A resolution addressed to the other railroad unions beseeching them to join the shopmen in a unified strike was then presented and passed unanimously by the audience.

Capitalism is sinking into decay; Communism is rising to power.

Let Us Be Horses, Or—

A horse has won recognition at the White House. The wife of the president has contributed $100 to the care of 31-year-old "Clover" in his old age.

In return Mrs. Harding has just been elected an honorary member of the Nyack Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Just to show her interest in animals, especially aged horses. Mrs. Harding not only accepted the honor but enclosed dues of an active member for five years. Such is the tender heart that rules over the executive mansion at Washington, D. C.

We remember, however, that the wives and children of political prisoners, week in and week out, picketted the White House. They walked up and down in the street before the President's home. They were not even invited in for tea, let alone given a hearing.

From this same executive mansion went forth the decree that would crush the rail and mine strikes and condemn millions of women and children, not to mention the strikers themselves, to poverty and misery.

A pension for an old horse is favored but pensions for aged and worn-out wage workers would be greeted as Communistic.

There are two alternatives: either we should all be horses, or else lift that part of the human race domiciled in this country to horse level.

We feel that even this advance is possible for the American working mule known as Henry Dubb. In the meantime it's a horse laugh on us all.

People that travel these days on the scab-patched railroads ought to be arrested for attempted suicide.

Defeat Your Enemies

It is interesting to study the contact that quickly establishes itself between the forces of Yellow Socialism and reaction.

Every attack and "exposure" that the secretary and national executive committee of the Socialist Party launches against the Communist movement is quickly seized upon by the "Bill" Burns' sleuths of the Department of Justice.

When Benjamin Schlesinger, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, attacks Soviet Russia with an hypocritical plea for the lives of the social (counter) revolutionaries, he is applauded all along the line to Gompers, Hoover and Hughes, if not by Harding himself.

So in the newspaper war started by Abraham Cahan, editor of the Jewish Daily Forward, against the Friends of Soviet Russia. It is being taken up not only by the whole yellow Socialist and labor press, but also by the kept organs of White Guardism.

The revulsion on the part of the workers, however, is all on the side of the organizations and the movements attacked. Labor intuitively senses where its real interests lie.

We therefore, expect an unusual outpouring of the men and women of the working class to the interesting events planned by the New York and Chicago locals of the Friends of Soviet Russia, the former a picnic, Saturday, September 2nd, at Ulmer Park, and the latter an International Athletic Carnival in Chicago's historic Coliseum.

We do not need to repeat that the malice-inspired attacks of the Daily Forward were especially designed to hamper the work of the Friends of Soviet Russia, if possible, to destroy the whole organization.

Let success crown the events planned by the F. S. R. in New York and Chicago, and there will be a considerable damper put upon the Forward's alliance with reaction.

Both these affairs should assume the proportions of gigantic demonstrations, not only against the Forward, but against all the enemies in this country of the Russian Soviet Republic.

The whole capitalist system of production rests upon the robbery and enslavement of the workers.

"To Hell with the Constitution"

The first Vanderbilt coined the phrase "Damn the Public!" when he was urged to take the interests of the people as a whole into consideration in the conduct of his railroads.

The militarists of Colorado, similarly, in their strike-breaking activities have bluntly proclaimed, "To Hell with the Constitution!" when it interferes with their task of kidnapping, deporting or murdering militant workers.

In its issue of August 8, the Denver Express points out that in kidnapping and deporting William Z. Foster, the state and federal constitutions were "Fractured!" in six places by Adjutant General Hamrock and his State Rangers.

While the legalized kidnappers were hurrying Foster out of the state, the Colorado Republican Party was in state convention in Denver. In the political platform adopted this party "points with pride" to the achievements of "our beloved governor," and particularly "cannot too strongly commend" the activities of the State Rangers.

Then, according to The Express, the Republican State Platform takes a long breath—and a gulp—and emits this: "Respect for and obedience to law is encumbent upon every citizen; the enforcement of law is the duty of every public official."

"Adopted at the very moment!" exclaims the Express, "that two State Rangers were illegally abducting a native-born American citizen."

Attorney General Keyes, head of Colorado's legal machinery, ran true the form when he declared that the State Rangers "should bring such men (Foster) to trial rather than be so easy with them as to deport them."

The Attorney General would probably charge Foster with trespassing upon the sacred soil of the State of Colorado, one of the special preserves of John D. Rockefeller for the production of profits. The "Keep Off!" sign goes up when profits are threatened.

We wish the Civil Liberties Union, and its Denver attorney, Carle Whitehead, every good fortune in seeking legal redress for the outrages to which Foster was subjected by the hirelings of great wealth.

But this fight should be made, in Foster's own words, "one more occasion to show the class character of present day society."

This is the way the artist of "The Communist," [illegible] of the British Communist Party, [illegible] Britain ought to co-operate [illegible]

[illegible]

Settling the Rail Strike

The railroad strike, and in some respects the miners' strike, seems to be going from muddle to muddle, as it is claimed little is hoped for from the renewed peace conference in New York City.

"The reports intimating that peace is coming in the railroad strike is all bunk," announces L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson, and chairman of the Eastern Railroad Presidents' Conference, dominant figure in the "No Surrender" group on the seniority dispute.

To which Frederick D. Underwood, president of the Erie Railroad, adds that the strike is "gradually dying out."

Against this confident attitude of the railroad executives we find at least two heads of railroad brotherhoods hurrying into the capitalist press to announce that their organizations will not strike in sympathy with the battling shopmen.

Thus the Associated Press heralds to the country that, "There is no danger of the Big Four railroad transportation brotherhoods being drawn into a sympathetic strike, even should negotiations to end the strike of the shop crafts workers fail."

The declaration comes from Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and D. B. Robertson president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, that, "There never has been any sympathetic strike nor any considered."

While the only co-operation the striking shopmen get from the American Federation of Labor is a belated appeal for financial aid sent out over the country by Samuel Gompers and his private cabinet.

At the same time the Cleveland agreement for the settlement of the soft coal strike seems to be going down the throats of the coal miners, while negotiations are still on for peace in the anthracite fields.

The shopmen's officials claim to get some degree of comfort out of the settling of the coal strike, claiming that the resumption of coal mining will create such a demand for coal cars that this will automatically force an agreeable ending of the rail strike.

The developments of the week prove the chaos that comes in a workers' struggle as the result of divided labor ranks.

Whether the officials like it or not, the masses of workers will in the future demand greater solidarity between the men who dig coal and the men who run the railroads.

Instead of muddling thru, labor ought to be in a position to make a clean fight with all its forces in line. Then victory becomes a thing assured, not something to be hoped for.

This week, therefore, the center of interest shifts from the brilliant efforts put forth by labor, in spite of many handicaps both in the mines and on the railroads, to the first conference of the Trade Union Educational League at Chicago. Labor's militants are gathering for the first time in this country. Thru their efforts labor will prepare itself for a more militant, and more successful struggle against the well organized capitalists of this country.

Get the Difference

Friday, August 18, was indeed a "Black Friday" for labor, bringing into bold relief the utter helplessness of the American working class in the struggle with its exploiters.

The final touches put that day upon the Fordney-McCumber Tariff Bill by the Senate at Washington were of equal significance with the black reactionary utterances of President Harding on the coal miners' and railroad shopmen's strikes.

Just as the tariff bill was being engineered to passage by the agents of the big profiteers, so the president's message might easily have been written in the publicity departments of either the coal barons or the railroad owners.

Every pet monopoly of big business is favored as usual in the latest tariff bill raid upon the nation's pocket book. Senator Smoot, of Utah, wins his fight for the sugar interests, and Senator Lodge for the shoe and textile interests. Sugar will cost more. The tariff on wool goes higher and clothes will cost more. From apples and ammonium nitrate to zinc, down thru the alphabet, nothing is forgotten.

Thus a new toll is placed by the business bandits, who control at Washington, upon every necessity of life, even upon the cheap enameled kitchen utensils, the best that the workers' household can afford.

It is estimated that the government at Washington, thru increased duties, will collect about $70,000,000 more in revenue under the proposed tariff, while Senator Simmons, who was chairman of the finance committee during the Wilson regime, declares the increased burden upon the American people as a whole, in higher prices, will be between $3,000,000,000 and $3,500,000,000.

It is declared that America's food and clothing bill will be increased $461,021,063 by the duties on sugar, cotton and wool alone.

Government experts give labor the additional cheerful information that the increased tariffs levied on fresh meats, cereals, potatoes and beans will alone amount to an advance of $1,250,000,000 in the cost of living.

The republicans will now go into the congressional campaign with the cry that the high tariff will protect the glorious standard of living of the free-born American worker.

When those campaign speeches are made, however, let the workers remember that on Friday, August 18, when Congress was taking $3,500,000,000 out of the pockets of the many who have little and adding it to the profits of big business, thru increased tariffs on every living necessity; no effort was made to increase the wages of the striking coal miners and railroad shopmen, no step was taken to force the highly protected textile industries of New England to comply with the demands of the textile workers on strike for many, many weeks.

Congress did not move an inch in any direction to increase the wages of a single worker by as much as a solitary penny.

What Congress did do, instead, was to vociferously applaud President Harding's strike-breaking, labor crushing speech, outlining new attacks on the organized labor movement. Congress stands back of the President and the open shoppers in their efforts to smash organized labor and force the workers to accept lower wages, again meaning still more profits for the oppressors of those who toil.

Let the workers study this difference in attitude that Congress takes toward capital and labor.

Let the workers understand that the government at Washington is a capitalist government, organized and perpetuated for the purpose of protecting the profit-taking interests against the demands of labor. This government, therefore, whether it is republican or democratic, does the bidding of the money power, at the same time fighting the demands of the workers.

It is a peculiar fact that the workers of Russia alone have learned this lesson. But they are teaching labor in other countries thru their example.

The [illegible] power of the capitalist class is its strongest weapon in the [illegible] against the [illegible].

The Individual or the System

The "Reward and Punish" Conference for Progressive Political Action is out for the defeat of Henry Cabot Lodge, United States Senator from Massachusetts.

This organization for dividing labor ballots between Republicans and Democrats, by voting for the "friends" and against the "enemies" of the workers in both the Wall Street parties, charges that "Lodge has been chiefly responsible for the calamities that have befallen our great nation."

That is certainly flattering Lodge and he will no doubt doff his high silk hat in acknowledgment of this great tribute.

Yet Hillquit, Oneal, Berger and other "Socialists," so closely identified with this "Progressive Conference," should find it somewhat difficult to approve of this laudation of the successor of Aldrich and Penrose.

Socialism teaches that it is capitalism that oppresses mankind. Lodge is but a small cog in the machinery of the capitalist state. He is the fly on the wheel. He sticks to the wheel, not the wheel to him.

Yet this is the keynote that supports the position of the Progressive Conference, that Lodge is to blame, that Harding is to blame, that Taft is to blame. Defeat Lodge, the individual, and elect a "radical" Republican, like La Follette, and all will be lovely. This hypocritical attack on Lodge continues as follows:

> "For nearly 40 years the people of Massachusetts have been sending Henry Cabot Lodge to Congress. Not because they liked him; not because they trusted him; but because they thought that he would some day, by seniority, reach a position of great political power where he could do something worth while for his state.
> "Lodge has now become Republican leader of the Senate. But he rattles around in Nelson Aldrich's shoes like a pea in a pint pot.
> "Last year when Boston Commons was filled with unemployed and the Boston navy yard lay idle, the people of Massachusetts petitioned Lodge to have the steamship Leviathan repaired at Boston instead of at a private yard at Newport News at much greater cost to the government. Lodge could not persuade the Harding administration to grant even this small favor. Altho the facts furnished him by the navy yard workers were all on his side, he didn't know how to use them effectively. This incident shows the real caliber of Lodge. As a statesman Lodge is a lemon.
> "It is time for Massachusetts to quit wasting her votes on a political liability and send to the Senate a real man who has something in his favor besides a perfect English accent, a beautifully trimmed beard, an aristocratic ancestry and a reputation as literary dilettante."

Lodge may remain in the United States Senate for 40 centuries and he will serve but one master—CAPITALISM.

He will do this because he stands with the Republican party, one of capitalism's pillars in these United States.

Insurgents in the Republican party may come, and insurgents may go, but the organization, the Republican party, goes on supporting the present system of private ownership and private profiteering.

William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists and renegade Socialist, is one of the luminaries of this "Progressive Conference." Enlightened members of the Machinists' Union will view with disgust the tears Johnston sheds over the fact that the steamship Leviathan was repaired at Newport News, R. I., instead of at Boston, Mass. Are there not union machinists at both places?

It is stated that, "As a statesman, Lodge is lemon." But, in the case of Lodge, as in the cases of all its other "enemies," the Progressive Conference is certainly playing "lemon politics."

Let labor in Massachusetts rally to the call of the Workers Party for Independent Working-Class Political Action. Let them build up a political power of their own to wage war against both the old parties and all their candidates, to carry on an unrelenting struggle against their real enemy, not Lodge nor any other individual, but against the social system that enslaves them, AGAINST CAPITALISM.

If the workers of Massachusetts and other states will learn that lesson during this year's campaign they will have made some progress.

Defeat Lodge, upholder of the capitalist state, but send to Washington a workers' representative demanding the abolition of the capitalist state and the establishment of a Workers' Government.

Help or Hindrance

The revolutionary spirit that is steadily growing in the British labor movement is also thoroly permeating the co-operative movement in the British Isles.

This is shown to some extent in the declaration of Margaret L. Davies, new president of the British Co-operative Union, the national educational federation of the British Co-operative Societies, when she said:

"We are working for no patchwork modifications, for no 'reconciliation of capital and labor,' for no 'infusion of a better spirit' into the old industrial forms. We are laying the foundations of a new industrial civilization. The rallying cry for the whole labor world is the replacement of capitalism by an industrial democracy producing for use."

This statement should take the wind out of the politicians of the British Labor Party and the reactionaries of the British trade unions.

It was heard by 1,600 delegates, representing a membership of 4,426,475 co-operators. These members with their families constitute one-third the population of England.

The old co-operatives pursued the path of reformism and avoided the revolutionary struggle. They held to the idea of a slow growth into "Socialism," without the aid of the dictatorship of the proletariat.

Its internationalism was limited to words. With such a policy the revolution is not furthered but impeded by the co-operatives. Instead of accelerating, they hinder revolutionary development.

In the period of a proletarian revolution two problems arise for the proletarian co-operatives; to aid the working masses in the struggles for the conquest of political power, and where such power has already been seized; to assist them in the work of Communist reconstruction.

Only the workers' co-operatives are capable of placing themselves on the side of labor in the struggle against capitalism.

Communists will always find a big field of activity in the co-operative movement, to transform it into an instrument of the revolutionary class struggle.

The co-operative movement in the United States is still practically in its infancy. Wherever it does grow rapidly we find it permeated to a very great extent with bourgeois ideas.

This makes it all the more imperative for the revolutionary workers of this country to enter seriously and actively into this work.

The American co-operative movement must be won for the revolutionary class struggle, just as it is being won in other countries. Otherwise it will act as a brake upon the forward struggle of labor, a hindrance to its progress.

HOW TO BE A HUNDRED PER CENT AMERICAN?

By Prof. Howe Phoolisch, N.U.T.

(By the joined request of the A. F. of L. and the A. L. P., the Editorial Staff of the Bolcoms has decided to conduct in this column special studies in hundred per cent Americanism. To edit this department we have fortunately secured the able services of Professor Phoolisch, world's greatest authority on Insanity in general and Americanism in particular.—Editor.)

THE TEN BASIC PRINCIPLES OF AMERICANISM

1. Don't think.
2. Never kick about conditions.
3. Always be loyal to your boss.
4. Never read anything besides the funny sheet and the sporting page.
5. Sing three times daily the Star Spangled Banner.
6. If you have nothing to eat, take out the U. S. Constitution and read how free you are.
7. If there's a labor agitator in your shop, don't wait for the boss to fire him. Kick him in the pants.
8. If you're out of a job don't worry. You can always join the Starvation Army.
9. Never join a union.
10. Love, honor and obey thy government officials for it is they who permit you to enjoy the pursuit of happiness and possibility of life.

HESQUIT, Morris.—Capitalistic socialist, socialistic capitalist, lying lawyer, lawful liar, etc., etc.

Hesquit is, indeed, very true to his name. He's quit to be a marxian, he's quit to be honest, he's quit to be logical, he's quit to be of any importance in the labor movement. The only thing he hasn't quit as yet is to lie. For this wonderful propensity of his he was made sales-manager of Socialism in this country. He is in the Socialist business a very long time, nearly as long as in the coal business. In fact, he's made Socialism in this country the same color as his coal. It yet remains to be guessed which of the two commodities bring the most profit to him. He is also quite a well known, literateur; author of the check book, steady contributor to the Phone Directory and editor of the fly paper. Besides all that he's quite a famous toreador: he certainly can throw the bull . . . . .

BOLCOMS ENCYCLOPEDIA

(To meet the demands of the growing multitudes of class-conscious workers who can no longer be content with the old fashioned, fallacious definitions found in the existing standard dictionaries and encyclopedias, the Editor-in-Chief of the Bolcoms has revised the old editions and composed a new modern encyclopedia giving present day proletarian conceptions of English words and scientific terms. Extracts from this ultra-beneficial work will be published exclusively in this column.)

WORKER — a thing almost human, having all characteristics of a being except a backbone.

SOCIAL REVOLUTIONARY — a brainless creature, extremely reckless with his life but lacking courage to commit self murder.

Workers Party Pledges Still More Aggressive Support of Striking Coal Miners and Shopmen

PROCLAMATION ISSUED BY THE WORKERS PARTY

"The intense activity of the Workers Party in upholding and inspiring the striking coal miners and railroad shopmen has led a notorious labor baiting private detective, now at the head of the United States secret service, to attempt to disrupt the Workers Party by arresting individuals of prominence within it," is the charge made by the Executive Committee of the Workers Party in a statement issued from the Party's National Office at 799 Broadway, New York City.

"The arrest of the Party's secretary, C. E. Ruthenberg, and William F. Dunne, labor editor of "The Worker," and other prominent members of the Party just previous to the scheduled holding of a Party National Convention at Chicago, on August 28th, is declared to be a plot of the notorious Wm. J. Burns to discredit and destroy a workers organization which has taken a leading part in supporting the present coal and rail shopmen's strikes.

The postponement of the Party Convention for a period of two weeks is explained in the following statement:

"The intense activity of the Workers Party in upholding and inspiring the striking coal miners and railroad shopmen has led a notorious labor baiting private detective, now at the head of the United States secret service, to attempt to disrupt the Workers Party by arresting individuals of prominence within it. In this there appears to be some confusion of the business interests of Wm. J. Burns' private detective agency with the activities of Wm. J. Burns, Government Agent.

PARTY WILL STAND BY STRIKERS

"The Workers Party will meet this attack — whatever its nature and extent may prove to be—with a still more aggressive support of the striking workers of the railroads and coal mines. A Party of the Working-Class, if it performs its duties at the forefront of the Workers Struggles, must expect such attacks as a matter of course.

"The present great strikes, in the fuel and transportation industries, demonstrating as they do the almost unlimited power of the workers when they act together on a large scale cannot but bring the capitalist class the haunting fear that THE WORKERS WILL NOT PERMANENTLY SUBMIT TO BEING AN EXPLOITED CLASS UNDER THE RULE OF THE CAPITALISTS.

"It is but natural, under the circumstances, to expect the capitalist class, thru its governmental tool, to strike the most vicious blow possible, attended by any amount of fraud necessary, in the attempt to destroy the more advanced organizations of workers, conscious of the need of taking political power into the hands of the working class and thus abolish all exploitation.

"The Workers Party will weather this storm, and many more.

"It will come out stronger than ever and more clearly recognized as the foremost political expression of the working class.

CALL ON ALL WORKERS TO STAND FIRM

"The Workers Party takes this occasion again to call the workers to stand firm against wage cuts and, above all, to resist to the last ditch all efforts to smash the unions by the introduction of the open shop system.

No amount of bluffing with 'Red Raids,' no attacks on militant trade unionists, no sensational newspaper scares can obscure the fact that the workers have victory in their hands in the railroad and coal strikes if they but stand together and do not diminish the scope of these struggles.

CONVENTION WILL BE HELD

"The National Convention of the Workers Party, which was scheduled for August 28, will take place on Monday, September 11th, (a postponement of two weeks). Further particulars will be given in a later announcement.

"The National Executive Committee calls upon all members of the Workers Party, and all workers generally to stand by the Party in this crisis.

"WORKERS! CLOSE THE RANKS!

"DO NOT ALLOW ANOTHER REIGN OF POLICE TERRORISM AGAINST WORKING CLASS ORGANIZATIONS!

"NO MORE WHOLESALE JAILING OF WORKERS!

"NO MORE POLITICAL PRISONERS!

"RALLY TO THE DEFENSE OF YOUR BROTHERS—THE IMPRISONED WORKERS!"

Foster, Secretary of Trade Union League Says, "We Must Expect to Meet With Some Casualties"

BY WILLIAM F. KRUSE, STAFF CORRESPONDENT OF THE WORKER

CHICAGO.—At the close of the second session of the national convention of the Trade Union Educational League, held in Chicago last Saturday and Sunday, the hall was invaded by a raiding party of 50 policemen, uniformed and plain-clothes, under the leadership of the notorious "Anarchist Expert" Sergeant McDonough. Everyone present was ordered to remain seated while a search was conducted for persons suspected of taking part in the alleged Michigan "Communist Convention." All whose names were listed, and all non-citizens present were placed under arrest, and taken away in two patrol wagons, backed up to the door. Among the latter class was the entire Canadian delegation.

Fifteen arrests were made in all, the best known among these being Earl R. Browder, associate editor of "The Labor Herald." Among the others arrested were:

Jack Shulman, 35 years old, Winnipeg, Canada.

Martin Van Heck, Grand Rapids, Mich., 41 years old, and a Hollander

John Orozeinen, 42 years old, Astoria, Ore., Finn.

Phil Aronberg, Chicago, Lithuanian.

Jacob Feldmark, 32, Chicago, Pole.

Nathan Greenberg, 27, Chicago, Pole.

J. Harlstein, 30, Chicago, Russian.

Jerry Hadrada, 35, Chicago, Bohemian.

Felix Krasowski, 31, Chicago, Pole.

A. Ovegaard, Chicago, Dane.

Several of those arrested were merely visitors at the convention.

After the officers had left the hall, William Z. Foster took the floor and announced that the various committees and industrial caucuses would meet that evening as originally planned and the convention would proceed on the morrow.

"In this great struggle we must expect to meet with some casualties," he said, "and it seems as tho the T. U. E. L. is getting its share right at the start."

The sinister threat of police interference hung over the convention from the start. The gathering was

Many Young Demonstrate on Youth Day

Editor's Note. — We have taken as a fitting contribution for this issue, the accompanying article commemorating International Youth Day, celebrated this year on Sunday, Sept. 3. The New York celebration will be held Sunday afternoon, Sept. 3, 2:30 o'clock, at Webster Hall, 125 E. 11th St. This article was taken from "The International of Youth", official organ of the Young Communist International, and is as follows:

The pavement echoes the tramp of the young workers. The air resounds with their songs. Curious heads peep from the windows. The whole street, as far as the eye can reach, is full of young proletarians.

Jailer Marches Workers Thru City Streets, Chained in Pairs; Regards Them as Wild Beasts

(By The Federated Press)

ST. JOSEPH, Mich.—"What with bootleggers and them there bolsheviks, we got our hands full," said a cop at the local police station as he expanded to newspapermen on his novel duties as jailer of 17 political prisoners. He seemed to regard them as wild beasts. He chained them in pairs to take them on foot thru the streets to the city hall.

C. E. Ruthenberg, national secretary, Workers Party, asked for an early hearing on behalf of himself and 16 other men, held on Michigan state criminal syndicalism charges based on their presence at an alleged secret conference of radicals held in Berrien county Aug. 21.

The syndicalism law is a war hysteria measure put thru the legislature by corporation interests to curb labor and radical activities that were legal under previous law, but obnoxious to them.

The warrants specifically charge conspiracy to violate the law and actual violation as well. A number of warrants have been issued for men and women alleged to have escaped the raiders.

Names under which men are booked are C. E. Ruthenberg, William F. Dunne, Caleb Harrison, Charles Erickson, W. Reynolds, Max Lerner, Cyril Lampkin, Francis Ashworth, Alex Vail, Charles Krumbein, T. R. Sullivan, John Mihelic, Elmer McMillin, Thomas O'Flaherty, C. Nordling.

Stelton School Convention.

The Modern School of Stelton will hold its annual convention Saturday, Sunday and Monday, Sept. 1, 2, 3, at Stelton, N. J.

Bad Engines Cause Wrecks Probe Shows

CHICAGO.—Efforts of the railroads and the government to shift blame for wrecks to the radicals fell flat when the raid on William Z. Foster's offices at the Trade Union Educational league produced no "evidence" of the kind desired.

"In our examination of his papers we find nothing on which charges can be based. We will not issue warrants for his arrest," Asst. State's Atty. McLaughlin said of Foster.

Shows Prejudiced Investigations

"If all the derailments which have been reported to us since the strike had occurred with trains running at 60 miles an hour, the newspapers would have had no room for other news," said J. F. McGrath, vice president, railway employes department, A. F. of L., commenting upon the

Foster Meeting in Denver, Sept. 12

September 12th is the date set for the meeting to be addressed by William Z. Foster, at Denver, Colo., in the fight against the kidnapping and deportation of the secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, August 4.

Roger Baldwin reports for the Civil Liberties Union that attempts to find out why Wyoming officials took Foster across that state have been unavailing.

ARRESTED! WHY? COME AND HEAR TRUTH ABOUT CONSPIRACY TO CRUSH LABOR CENTRAL OPERA HOUSE, FRIDAY, SEPT. 1st, 8 o'clock P. M.

Jap Miners Wish Labor Victory Here

THE WORKER received a cablegram from the Miners Federation of Japan, July 30th, voicing the solidarity of the Japanese miners with the American coal miners in the struggle they are now carrying on. This cablegram was immediately forwarded to the headquarters of the United Mine Workers at Indianapolis, Ind.

We have now received a letter in confirmation of this cablegram from H. Asoz, general secretary of the Miners Federation of Japan, as follows:

Tokio, July 30th, 1922.

The Editor of The Worker,
799 Broadway, New York City.

Dear Comrade:—We trust that you have kindly transmitted our message to the striking United Mine Workers of America which we cabled to you July 30th inst., and are much obliged to you.

Enclosed you will find our letter to the U. M. W. A. which we ask you to see that they get, and to publish if you see fit.

Yours for the Cause,
The Miners' Federation of Japan,
8 Somei St., Kamikomagome, Tokio
H. Asoz, General Secretary.

The letter to the United Mine Workers of America is as follows:

"Tokio, July 30th, 1922.

"The United Mine Workers of America,

"Our Fellow Workers:—Confirming our cable of July 30th inst., sent to you care of "The Worker" of New York City, we, the Miners' Federation of Japan, support with great symathy and enthusiasm the gigantic fight you are carrying on, hand in hand with the railway workers, against the American mine owners and railroad companies, and most heartily wish your complete victory.

"We take our action as a best expression of the spirit of determined fight with which the working class has to face the world-wide, desperate offensive of the capitalists today. The success of your strike will strengthen both morally and materially not only millions of mine and railway workers of America but tens of millions of those in every other country. The victory of your fight will be hailed by the workers of the whole world as a most hopeful beginning of the working class counter-offensive.

"In view of this and particularly of the fact that the economic and political relations of the United States and Japan call upon the workers of both countries to establish and maintain the closest connection and co-operation, we believe it our class duty to extend a wholehearted support to your heroic struggle.

"Our campaign for the Strike Fund for the American Miners has already been started, and our contribution is expected to reach you soon.

"Wishing you an overwhelming victory, we are

Yours for the International Solidarity,
The Miners' Federation of Japan,
8 Somei St., Kamikomagome, Tokio.
(Signed) H. Asoz, General Secretary.

The original copy of this letter has also been forwarded to the United Mine Workers headquarters at Indianapolis.

Second Congress of Red Trade Unions Postponed

To All Organizations Affiliated to the Red International of Labor Unions

Comrades:—Considering the demand of the All-Russian Central Council of Trade Unions and of many other organizations, and the vast preparations, also the time necessary to collect material for reports upon the situation of the revolutionary Trade Union Movement of the whole world, the Executive Bureau has resolved to postpone the Second International Congress from Oct. 25 to Nov. 20.

The Executive Bureau begs all organisations to send timely and not later than Sept. 20, detailed reports over the situation of the Trade Unions and their organizations, and to forward propositions for the order of the day in order that we will be able to publish these reports and propositions in time for the Congress.

Simultaneous with the second congress a series of Industrial Union Conferences will take place; therefore it is desirous that delegates of the great Trade Unions should be present also. The rules for delegations are fixed in the statutes.

Thus the Second International Congress of the Red International of Labor Unions will be opened Nov. 20 in Moscow. We beg you not to come too late, for the Congress will begin its work at the fixed date. Fraternally yours,

A. Losowsky, General Secretary.

TEN WORKERS SHOULD READ THIS COPY OF THE WORKER: KEEP IT IN CIRCULATION

EXTRA! Call "Bill" Burns; Tammany Labor Politician Boasts Real Army of 600 Men

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

The news comes that William Z. Foster, secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, and editor of its official publication, The Labor Herald, has been arrested at Chicago.

Altho Foster had been kidnapped and deported from Colorado, August 6, and the offices of the League had been broken into and ransacked on August 20, the Associated Press on August 21 carried the report that, "Foster was not being sought and no charges were pending against him."

We find a statement in a special dispatch, dated Aug. 22, to the New York Times, that, "State's Attorney Crowe (Chicago) said that no evidence to connect Foster or his organization with rail strike violence was obtained", in the raids.

Similarly the New York Evening Post, August 23, said, "Foster's office was raided Sunday night by State's Attorney Crowe, in what was declared to be a search for illegal action in connection with the railroad shopmen's strike. No evidence against Foster's organization, however, was found".

Then came his arrest. He was thrown into a vile police station cell on Chicago's South Side, while "warrants and extradition papers were awaited," presumably from Michigan.

Foster had committed no violence. The fatal wreck at Gary, Ind., was the result of a defective engine. This is now admitted. The officials of the Michigan Central Railroad, who forced the use of the defective engine should be arrested and forced to trial on a charge of deliberate murder.

But this will not be done. Other defective engines will be used. There will be other wrecks, new ones every day. No strike-breaking, anti-labor railroad officials will have their offices raided. No railroad presidents will be arrested and thrown into jail. They own the government.

Foster did not even preach violence. His speeches were all based on the "Amalgamation" program of the Trade Union Educational League.

That program has been spread broadcast in leaflet form. It has been published in many labor papers.

Let us now call to the attention of that notable anti-labor sleuth William J. Burns, and his boss Attorney General Daugherty, head of the department of justice, a report in the final edition of the Globe (New York) Tuesday August 22 purporting to be the speech of another labor spokesman, this time James P. Holland, of New York City, president of the New York State Federation of Labor.

Holland is a different type of labor official from Foster. He is a Tammany Hall (Democratic) politician. He is an ardent follower of Gompersism.

Holland was addressing the annual Convention of the State Federation of Labor at Poughkeepsie, N. Y. and was criticizing Governor Miller of New York, a republican. Holland attacked the state police and those responsible for sending them to break the street car strike at Buffalo, N. Y., saying:

"When I saw those state police I said to myself that many of our boys had seen service in the army overseas and I told them: If we can shoot over there we can shoot over here.

"So we organized, and we had 600 men armed and ready who could have wiped out those bounty-jumping slackers in the state police, if they hadn't taken them out of Buffalo.

"The American workingmen must take over the government both at Washington and Albany and run it on the basis of labor first.

"Nowadays there are two laws in this country, one for the rich and one for the poor," he continued. "The best illustration of that fact was the release during President Taft's administration from the Atlanta Penitentiary of that gigantic robber, Charles W. Morse. He said he was about to die and had to get out. Well, he isn't dead yet, but he ought to be."

Here is an armed force according to President Holland, of the New York State Federation of Labor, ready to wage civil war against the state police.

"Deport the Bolshevist", declare the immigration officials. "Ship or shoot the radical!" comes from General Leonard Wood, friend of the late Roosevelt, ready to take up his job as president of the Pennsylvania University. "Hang the Communist!" resolves the American Legion. "Arrest, indict, convict, send the red to prison for life" are the orders from the department of justice, followed by a tidal wave of capitalist newspaper editorials in defence of loyal American manhood, and law and order.

No! That previous paragraph is only a dream. It never happened. In the first place, what Holland said hardly got beyond the walls of the convention hall at Poughkeepsie. So far as we know The Globe was the only paper that carried the story.

The Times, slavering organ of the plutocracy was silent. So was The Call, the "Socialist" daily. The Globe, itself, didn't feel called upon to sound the anti-red alarm, but instead carried an editorial insinuating that Holland was suffering from a warm weather malady that it labels "Labor's Midsummer Madness". The editorial is such a gentle spanking of Holland that we publish it in full. Here it is:

"Labor leaders who ordinarily talk and behave as decent and sensible American citizens have been exhibiting dangerous symptoms of midsummer madness in their oratory at Poughkeepsie. James P. Holland, in his presidential address to the State Federation of Labor on Tuesday, set the precedent, and some of his associates have been all too quick to follow the lead.

"Mr. Holland in his less irascible moments is an amiable Tammany politician, complacent enough with the world as he finds it. Yet he had the lack of wit at Poughkeepsie to boast that organized labor had raised an armed force of 600 men to combat the state police on duty in Buffalo. The president of the state federation is quoted as having said: 'We had 600 men armed and ready, who could have wiped out those bounty-jumping slackers in the state police if they hadn't taken them out of Buffalo.'

"Talk of that sort, whatever the provocation, and still more action of that character are the most dangerous enemies the workers of America confront. As a practical man James P. Holland ought to know that an armed rebellion in the United States is an act of lunacy, while as a citizen he ought to be aware that even the contemplation of such action as he described is intolerable. Nothing that the bitterest reactionary could devise would do half the evil to labor unionism."

At press time no news had come that "Bill" Burns and his dime novel detectives, with the aid of the New York bomb squad, the state police, the state militia, the army and the navy, had raided the labor convention at Poughkeepsie on the Hudson, and placed all the delegates under arrest. In fact, the convention transacted all of its business, re-elected Holland, president, and peacefully adjourned.

If there were any sleuths hidden away in the walls, or under the floor or on the roof of the convention hall, listening to further speeches by President Holland, they would have heard him pleading with labor to put its own "friends" into office, these "friends" of course, being Tammany Hall politicians like Holland himself.

Holland believes in the old parties. He helps keep the workers divided into numerous craft units. He is a bulwark of capitalism. He was only against the republican party, and he may become as violent as he pleases, as violent even as Tammany Hall thugs on election day.

Foster did not preach violence, we repeat in contrast. He urged a big idea, the idea of amalgamating many craft unions into big industrial unions closely co-operating with each other. He urged class solidarity and class conscious action, both politically and industrially, on the part of the workers.

Foster not only tried to develop a sentiment for labor unity, but he organized that sentiment for effective action into the Trade Union Educational League, and thus won for himself the title from Adjutant General Pat Hamrock, head of Colorado's coal and iron cossacks, of "The nation's most dangerous radical!"

President Holland is "safe" because when required, he joins the "Luskers", to suppress all radical teachings, in and out of the public schools, because he joins in the attack on the "reds" in the labor movement at all times. He stands with the system.

Foster organizes an intelligent and united resistance to the attacks of big business against the working class.

It is that intelligence that the master class fears. It is appalled at the spectacle of a united working class. And in its blind rage it arrests and throws into prison, if it can, all the Fosters, and tries to break up the organizations the Fosters have brought into existence, and root out the idea the Fosters have planted and caused to grow in the dull and unreceptive brain of backward American labor.

The ruling class, in bringing about the raid on the Trade Union Educational League and the arrest of its secretary, wasn't thinking of the violence growing out of the coal and rail strikes. They could easily find the cause for much of that in the offices of the numerous detective agencies requiring jobs for their hordes of unemployed operatives.

The ruling class, however, was thinking of what might happen to it when the Foster idea had grown sufficiently in the brain of labor to inspire it to take over all power.

Fear paints for the ruling class the picture of its own doom and it throws a Foster into prison to save itself for a little longer.

But the very tyranny of its acts enlists more workers in the growing struggle against it.

[illegible] Loyal Labor of Harding's

President Harding and all his satellites down to the humblest reporter on the New York Times, have been shedding many salty tears over the "loyal" worker who is helping to keep the railroads going in spite of the terrible, Moscow-inspired Bolshevist railroad strike.

Just to give our readers an idea of what these "loyal" workers are like, we publish an article headed "Finks Have Fine Time with Women, Poker and Craps", from The Labor Bulletin, of Kansas City, Kans., August 16, as follows:

A Bulletin man in company with a reporter for a Kansas City, Mo., morning newspaper, made a round of some of the railroad shops one night last week.

The reporter was in search of a young boy who had left Chicago with a gang of strikebreakers and the parents of the boy had asked the Associated Press to try and find him.

As he had left with a gang of Burlington strikebreakers, that was the first shop visited.

Finks Have Many Names

The Burlington roundhouse, under the Twelfth street viaduct, was easily entered. The reporter told his business, but, as the guard said, many of the finks have three or four aliases, the pair was let in to look the bunch over. They are housed in cars switched near the round house.

In two cars the gang was playing poker, two tables going with plenty of players. In another car two crap tables were in operation. This was in Missouri, where such games are protected by the police. The color line is drawn sharply, for, as the pair were making their way down to another car, the guard said, "No use going in there. That's the burrhead car."

From it came the old cries of "Come, Phoebe!" "Little Joe!" "Ha-a-a, Seben!" They were having a fine time, and evidently they were not of the class that attends the Sunday schools and churches of the better class of colored citizens.

Make Money: Do Nothing

In fact there were no citizens of either Kansas or Missouri in the bunch, with the exception of the foremen who were doing the work.

The Bulletin man struck up an acquaintance with a pleasant, talkative young fellow from South Clark street, Chicago, as were most of the others. "We're having a summer picnic," he said, "making good money and doing nothing. If those working stiffs that quit here only knew it we are doing them a favor. All the railroading we know is riding rattlers. A few days ago one of the bosses put us to heaving coal, but it was too hot and we told him to go shove himself into the lake. So he put the burrheads at the job."

Near the fence, which separates Burlington property from that of the Rock Island, a man was talking to a girl. "They furnish you women, too?" queried The Bulletin man.

"Plenty of Women"

"No more," the young fink said. Then he went on to explain: "At first they did, but the boys got sore. There weren't enough to go around, and they were 50-cent janes at that. But there's plenty up there" he waved his hand in the direction of Cliff Drive and Summit street—"and there's a policeman or two at every house, to see that we're not bothered. That's Allardice over there talking to that skirt and she's his.

"Lives up town and comes down here to see him. She's stuck on him and she's his girl only. He's rough when you pinch in on his property. He's a long pete man, and has done several turns in Joliet. Sometimes, too, he works the scissorbills.

"Give him a lot of good clothes, a good front, you know, and he can act as sanctimonious as a preacher calling on a lady parishioner when her husband is present. It don't pay to fool with his skirts."

The young man, during further conversation, admitted freely that he had done time in the Bridewell and several other prisons. He is a good example of most of the Americans in the bunch, but had a little more education. The rest of the finks outside of what they called the "burrheads" were a cosmopolitan lot. Bohunks, Hunyaks and Dagoes predominated.

Scabs Are Diseased

At the Rock Island shops the pair were not allowed to enter. At the Frisco round house the only ones working were a foreman and two men leisurely engaged in packing a piston.

The foreman explained volubly and the men did the work awkwardly. One of them had syphilitic sores on his mouth and a large one just behind one ear. As the newspaper men left the shops, to go back up town the morning newspaper man remarked:

"If mamma and papa ever find their young son around such places as these we've visited, they'd better send him in a hurry to some syphilitic hospital."

[illegible] Union Joins Struggle Against Repressive Tactics of New White Terror

The American Civil Liberties Union has extended offers of assistance to William Z. Foster, secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, and others arrested by federal and state authorities as the result of an attack on what is alleged to have been a "Convention of the Communist Party" at Bridgeman, Mich.

The right of the government to make the arrests is challenged, and the Civil Liberties Union protests against "the lawless, repressive tactics of the government in dealing with radicals."

It is maintained that the sole issue involved is one of free speech. The letter to Attorney General Daugherty is signed by Norman Thomas, Roger N. Baldwin and Professor Robert Morse Lovett, and is as follows:

"We note the extensive reports of a raid on what is alleged to be a convention of the Communist party of America held at a resort in the state of Michigan, the raid being conducted by representatives of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice.

No Overt Act Charged

"According to these reports no offense is charged against the persons arrested except the dissemination of views on political and industrial matters; no overt act is charged. If the reports are correct, the only issue at stake is the right of these persons to organize and discuss in secret a political campaign.

"The Communist movement in the United States is operating an underground organization because it was driven underground by repressive laws and tactics in various states.

"There is no Federal law, as you know, which makes it unlawful for anyone to advocate a Soviet form of government for the United States, or to advocate the overthrow of governments by force or violence.

"There are state laws which penalize the advocacy of violence, and some of these have been construed by the courts to penalize the advocacy of radical political changes by even peaceful methods, as well as to punish mere membership in an association.

Raids Unconstitutional

"We call attention to the fact that these repressive measures in force in many of the states have seriously curtailed our cherished rights of freedom of speech and of the press.

"Whether or not they are sustained by the courts, they are entirely out of harmony with the conception of the authors of the Constitution, that an orderly society rests only upon unrestricted freedom of opinion.

"Their idea and the opinion of the courts, up to within the last few years, was that the government should intervene only where overt acts are committed.

"But nothing even in the restrictive decisions of Federal courts in recent years justifies the Federal government in proceeding in such cases as the raid on the Communist convention. There is no Federal law to support it.

"May we, therefore, ask on what theory the Federal government has acted, under what authority and under whose direction?"

Particular attention is being given by the union to the case of William Z. Foster because it is alleged that "his arrest is in reality an attack on the movement for industrial unionism, which is oposed by powerful interests and cannot be legally attacked itself."

In a letter to Foster the officers of the Civil Liberties Union say:

"This is to offer you formally the services of the American Civil Liberties Union in contesting in the courts the action of the Federal and state authorities in arresting you for alleged participation in a secret Communist convention in Michigan.

Had Right to Be There

"We note the press reports of your denial that you were there or that you were involved in any way.

"That denial does not influence us however. From all the reports we have seen, you or any other citizen had a perfect right to be there and discuss any public matter you liked.

"At the same time we make this offer to you, we offer our aid equally to those who were actually arrested there just as we offer our aid to any person in the United States whose right of freedom of opinion on public matters is attacked in any way, at any time, by any authority whatever.

Non-Violent Program

"We are making this special offer to you because we are so fully advised of your activities in the Trade Union Educational League to create a greater solidarity among the workers of America through the development of industrial unionism. We know that your program does not involve violence in any form, that it is entirely legal.

"It is advocated by some of the most substantial elements in American life outside the labor movement, notably several important religious associations among both Catholic and Protestants.

"If the authorities choose to attack the advocates of this idea, they should logically take into custody the officers of these religious associations in Washington and New York. They are well known and easily reached.

"These considerations show the absurdities of these attacks on you. You are singled out because you have an effective means of putting the idea into operation; the other advocates have not. We are not concerned with the idea itself but solely your right and the right of anyone else to advocate it.

"Our lawyers, our press service and our other facilities are at your disposal without cost to you or your association."

A similar offer of assistance has been made by the Civil Liberties Union to the National Defense Committee, 799 Broadway, New York City, which is the defense organization handling cases of persons alleged to be Communists.

Czecho-Slovaks Vote to Join the Workers Party

The Czecho-Slovak Marxian Federation, by a vote of 582 to 9, has decided to join the Workers Party. It selected its secretary, Charles Kolarik, as delegate to the National Convention of the Workers Party.

This federation was formerly the Bohemian (or Czecho-Slovak) Federation of the Socialist Party. Following the Detroit, Mich., National Convention of the Socialist Party, when the Communist International was definitely repudiated, it voted to withdraw and has since remained independent.

The federation has a daily, the Spravedlnost, in Chicago, in addition to weekly and other publications.

White Hopes Fear French Russian Pact

VIENNA.—Alleged news of an imminent move toward a approchement between France and Russia has reached the Russian counter-revolutionary headquarters in Belgrade, and consternation reigns in the haunts of the "White Hopes". It is regarded as probable that the result will be the swift conclusion of a trade agreement between France and Russia.

Seek Separate Agreement

PARIS.—For some time past influential statesmen inside and outside the chamber of deputies have been pressing for a separate agreement between France and Russia.

PAYING THE BILL

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo.—The mobilization, movement and maintenance of national guardsmen to satisfy the railroad companies has cost the state of Missouri between $150,000 and $200,000, acording to an estimation by Adj. Gen. Raupp. This is in addition to probably $110,000 of expense which will be borne by the federal government.

THE SAME HERE

MELBOURNE, Australia.—Returned soldiers in Australia point out that in the majority of cases since their return from the war they have been labeled not wanted with the result that they are unable to secure their prewar positions in industry, despite the solemn pledges made to them by employers prior to enlistment.

Decks Cleared for Action

By LUDWIG LORE

The convention of the "2½ International" that was to begin in Karlsbad on September 16, has been peremptorily and definitely postponed. The cable from Vienna gives no reason for this decision. Nevertheless, in the light of recent developments in the Socialist parties of Europe, the answer is not hard to find.

One need but recall the fact that for weeks past the Social-Democratic Party and the Independent Social-Democratic Party of Germany have been discussing the question of unity.

In Berlin representatives of both sides met in a series of conferences which culminated on July 21st in a meeting that formally considered the question of uniting the two parties.

According to the official communiqué, both parties have been requested as a result of this meeting to take no action, and to keep their organizations intact until the question shall have been definitely settled by the respective party conventions.

Furthermore both sides have been pledged to refrain for the present from indulging, in their meetings, in their newspapers and in the legislative bodies, from the acrimonious attacks that have hitherto been the order of the day.

In short, the two social-democratic parties of Germany have established a sort of "civil peace", in which the Independents must refrain from calling their social-patriot brothers of yesterday and to-morrow traitors and Noske-bloodhounds.

By the same token it has become equally reprehensible to refer to the Independents as "revolutionary phrase-mongers and "big-mouths". So far as it lies in their power the worthies who are arranging this conference would have the world forget that there was such a thing as the fourth of August 1914, would pass over the four years of bloody warfare as if they had never played a role in the socialist movement.

The history of the "2½" has been a history of half-heartedness, of weakness, of failure. Founded, ostensibly, as a revolutionary organization of the working class in opposition to the counter-revolutionary tendency in the social-democratic movements of Europe, its real position became apparent at the very outset.

The really revolutionary elements joined the Third International because the weak-kneed, vacillating helplessness of this "International" of negotiations held out no promise of success as a leader of the masses. Others, who had aligned themselves with one of the parties of the "2½", rather than to join the revolutionary Third, because they believed that only a program of "practical achievements" would sweep the masses before it, soon found that the social-democratic movement was no more reactionary, and certainly much more successful than their own colorless movement, and withdrew to join the parties of the right.

Nor is this coquetry with the Second a new departure. At its last international conference the "2½" plainly indicated the willingness to be swallowed up by its erstwhile opponent.

Kautsky and Longuet have been conducting a systematic campaign in this direction. The vindictive attacks launched by both Internationals against Soviet Russia for its trial of the Socialist Revolutionaries and the fear of a revolutionary uprising of the German working class during the crisis that followed after the Rathenau assassination, served only to cement an understanding that was already firmly established.

Editor [illegible] of the Leipziger Volkszeitung is only a shade more frank than his associates Kautsky and Longuet, when he says in a recent article: "The 2½ International has no longer a mission to fulfill.

"By that I do not mean that the "Internationale Arbeitsgemeinschaft Sozialistischer Parteien" (the 2½) had no historical function. During the war and after the war it was needed as a rallying point for the revolutionary parties of the world; but above all its great and lasting achievement was the struggle against the Third International, against the movement that at first fascinated so many European parties, parties that would have joined the Third had it not been for our movement, because they could not be persuaded to join hands with the Second International with its tradition of civil peace and war hysteria".

Paul Faure of the Socialist Party of France, who was at one time known as the Karl Liebknecht of France, because of his uncompromising radicalism and for his bitter opposition to the Second International, recently took a very similar position.

The stand he takes is characteristic of the attitude of the entire 2½. Sentimentally—because they are pacifists and because they still cling to the revolutionary meaningless phrases of the past—they are out of sympathy with the Second International.

But the spirit that dominates their movement and that drives them to join hands with the parties of the Second, in spite of their betrayal of the working class, is their hatred of the Third, is their horror of a proletarian dictatorship, is their fear of a proletarian revolution.

Sept. 12, the Executive Committee of the 2½ International will meet in Frankfort on the Main. Morris Hillquit and Algernon Lee have already left America to represent the Socialist Party of the U. S. there. The outcome of this conference is a foregone conclusion.

It will declare itself in harmony with a unity plan adopted by the Social Democracy of Germany and endorsed by the Independents. It will make open overtures to the Second International, overtures that will be promptly accepted.

The 2½ International, doomed from birth to inanition, will die an infamous death, and not even the Socialist Party of America will shed a tear on its grave. And that is as it should be.

The working class of the world needs clearness—above all else. It must take its stand, either with political reformism and the Second International on the one hand, or with the revolutionary working class, with the Third International, on the other.

The Socialist Party of America has chosen its place. It stands where it belongs—in the Second International, with the counter-revolution.

"The decks are cleared for action!"

called to order at the Labor Lyceum by the temporary chairman, J. W. Johnstone, one of the active leaders in the recent packing house strike.

On behalf of the local T. U. E. L. group, which has been serving as provisional national organization committee, he welcomed the delegates. Many were kept away by the railroad strike.

The delegation present, he declared, was representative of the more progressive element of the labor movement, those who understood the causes of the present reactionary policies of the American labor unions, and who were determined to effect a change.

The report of the Credentials Committee subsequently showed a very creditable number of delegates present, and that these came from all parts of the continent, from New York to California and from Canada to Texas.

Liberals Offer Aid

Foster was called upon to report upon the immediate situation confronting the convention. He told of his experiences while being kidnaped by the authorities in Colorado of the midnight raid on his office last Sunday, when a dozen policemen, accompanied by an ever-ready battery of press photographers, spectacularly broke down the door and seized the League records and other property.

This was an attempt to connect the League with the Gary train wreck, but even the capitalist press had to admit that no connection whatever could be shown.

The authorities came along on Wednesday with an army looking for him, this time on the charge that he had attended a meeting somewhere in Michigan.

The entire episode was an attempt to discredit the activity and functions of the Trade Union Educational League, he declared, and it was up to all its members to support this fight.

Already the gage of battle was being taken up by the liberal and radical forces the American Civil Liberties Bureau planning to fight the Colorado case to the limit. A letter just received from the same body and signed by Roger Baldwin, Norman Thomas, Robert Morse Lovett and Scott Nearing, pledged similar assistance on the other charges. The letter which evoked tremendous enthusiasm, appears in another column of this issue.

Foster put these facts before the convention so that the delegates would know just exactly what they were up against and that they might take any action they saw fit.

A resolution committee was appointed to draft a statement from the convention on this question, and in the afternoon session the following was passed unanimously.

Resolution of Convention

"The First National Conference of the Trade Union Educational League finds itself meeting in an atmosphere of terrorism created by the lawless, brutal and unjustified raids, seizures, arrests, carried out by the police of Illinois apparently in a conspiracy with the officials of other states and with Wm. J. Burns, all of which can only have one purpose, namely to prevent the orderly and fruitful deliberations of the conference.

"We protest with all our power against this naked exhibition of lawless dictatorship of the capitalist lackeys openly used to suppress the class conscious workers, and call these facts to the attention of the trade unionists of America.

"We know that protests to the governing powers are useless, and that only a wide-awake militant trade union movement, which knows its own power and is prepared to use it, can abolish such terrorism and oppression of the workers.

"The First National Conference of the Trade Union Educational League declares that it will not allow itself to be turned from its purpose by any such attacks.

"The trade union movement of America is practically leaderless except for the senile and reactionary bureaucracy typified by Samuel Gompers, which is leading the movement backwards.

"The workers of America are awaiting the program of this gathering and this program will be carried to the rank and file by the Trade Union Educational League notwithstanding all attempts at suppression."

Greetings From Britain

Congratulatory messages were received from labor bodies in all parts of the country, many of them unable to send delegates. A message from the Amalgamated Union of Building Trade Workers of Great Britain and Scotland read as follows:

"Best wishes for the success of your national conference. Your movement is in line with the most keen expression of working-class educational life here. Please convey my fraternal greetings to the conference. Fraternally, George Hicks."

And from R. Palm Dutt, Editor of the "Labour Monthly", London, came the word, "Your work is a model to us in this country."

The Canadian delegates gave reports of the progress of the T. U. E. L. in their respective centers. An interesting question of organization detail came up during the afternoon session over whether Canada should be considered an autonomous organization district or whether the various parts of the Dominion should be connected with contiguous districts in the States.

The Canadian delegation itself was divided on this question, and the decision finally went in favor of the former plan.

Report on League Activities

An extended report on the activities of the League from its inception in October, 1920, to the present time was then given by the Secretary. Beginning with finances, he reported that the total receipts for this period were $13,453.37, with expenses of $12,430.41.

The principal part of this income was brought in by the official organ, which had thus far managed to pay the entire operating expenses of the organization.

It was impossible to continue such arrangements much longer, so he asked that a sustaining fund be provided to pay for organization expenses and thus relieve the paper of this burden. The convention concurred in this request.

A plan under which the local League would be bound together in district organizations, and these in turn would make up the national body was also concurred in.

He then branched into an explanation of the evolution and development of the radicals' tactics in the labor movement. Up to 1890 there was practically no tendency toward dual unionism to be discerned.

About that time the radicals began to develop the idea of separating themselves from the mass organization and forming outside unions that were supposed to express the rebel idea better than the old organizations.

The first example of this kind was the Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance, the organization of which resulted in a clash between the contending viewpoints on trade union tactics that eventually helped cause the formation of the Socialist Party. The organization of the A. R. U., the I. W. W., W. I. I. U., the O. B. U., and many others was due to the same.

With but few exceptions the entire radical movement of the United States fell into the same error. The radicals isolated themselves from the mass organizations and banded together in little sects of great "purity" but no power or influence, while the trades unions were neglected and allowed to vegetate and deteriorate for lack of development.

During the course of all these experiments in dualism the idea that this conference represents was gradually finding a certain amount of expression in this country. The first attempt at organizing along this line was seen in 1911 in the formation of "The Syndicalist League of North America", which was strongly under the inspiration of French theory and practice.

This organization brought to the I. W. W. convention in 1911 the appeal that it abandon its existence as a dualist trade organization and adopt the function of a propaganda organization within existing mass bodies. At that time the I. W. W. was weak in membership and finance and this plan was very favorably received both by locals and delegates. The convention, however, took no action. Immediately after, however, the great strikes at Lawrence, Paterson, Little Falls, Akron and other centers gave the theory of dualism such impetus that most of the radical elements flocked back to it.

So the Syndicalist League went its own way, organized fifty locals, conducted a nation-wide tour for Tom Mann, achieved some local successes, but was short-lived. In 1916 an attempt to organize an "Internatioanl Trade Union League", did not get far on account of war conditions. In November, 1920, another start was made and the present gathering was the result.

Vote of Thanks to Gompers

This success, in the face of previous failures, must be credited to an almost miraculous intellectual revolution, almost over night, on the part of the radicals in this country. Whereas a year ago probably 95 per cent were in favor of dualism, today it is the other way around. The reason for this change must be sought in what happened in Europe.

We have been able to learn from the experiences there. The Russian revolution particularly had absolutely changed the point of view of all intelligent radicals about the labor movement.

We have hitherto been too much imbued with the "democratic" idea that everybody must do everything if anything is to be done. We now realize that upon the shoulders of a small percentage falls the work of mapping out a program, of stirring the inert masses to action, of serving as the springs of progress in the labor movement.

The League is definitely on the map, thanks not only to the work of its friends, but also to the attack of its enemies. In this connection Foster suggested that Gompers be given a vote of thanks for his personal assistance in making the work easier.

Prevented Miners' Union Split

The League existed no longer in the world of theory—it is an effective organ of activity. In the mining industry we encountered one of the first problems. Had the Howatt case occurred two years sooner the United Mine Workers would have been split from end to end. As it was the League became active and strongly agitated against a split with the results that we were successful in holding several districts in line. Our voice was raised against the split where a voice really counted.

In the Machinists Union the League was behind Knudson's campaign for the presidency on the issue of amalgamation.

In the printing industry strong groups of the T. U. E. L. are likewise agitating on this issue.

In the garment industries the League has successfully headed off several incipient split movements, while on the railroads an overwhelming majority are even now in favor of amalgamating into one fighting body.

The work of the League was cut out for it and to that work it was applying itself. The leadership of the old unions is intellectually paralyzed. President Gompers died, intellectually, forty years ago. In response to the impetus of the League program the workers would soon put an end to a labor organization scheme where, as in the case of the railroad strike, there are nine men working and seven on strike.

Remember Political Prisoners

Great enthusiasm was shown at the close of Foster's report, and the Canadian delegates reported on conditions in their respective localities. Tom Tippett spoke on behalf of the Federated Press. Reports of the Finance and Organization Committees were adopted substantially as made.

Resolutions were adopted on behalf of political prisoners, especially Sacco and Vanzetti, and Tom Mooney, in support of the relief work for Russia; endorsement of the Russian-American Corporation, and in favor of affiliation with the Red Trade Union International.

A resolution on independent political action showed that the official American Federation of Labor position is really for capitalist political action, while this conference stands for working-class political action.

The resolution on unemployment explained its economic causes, analyzes the world situation, calls upon industry to bear the responsibility for unemployed members, demands that employers' books be opened for inspection, urges grants out of military budgets, and calls for complete workers' control of industry as the final solution.

See Great Future for League

It is expected that the League will be well organized in every industry and industrial center thruout the United States and Canada within the next few months.

All delegates present pledged themselves to help answer the attack of the authorities with the creation of the most militant labor movement ever seen in this country.

in orderly ranks. They carry banners and inscriptions, which flutter merrily in the breeze.

The young workers are on the march!

The bourgeoisie draws back angrily from their windows.

What Do They Mean?

"Young idiots"! What do they mean by marching round here and making such a confounded noise. They ought to be at school!" And, raging, they sit down to their roast chicken and forced vegetables, upset for the remainder of the day.

"They ought to be at school". Yes, they ought to be at school! To learn how they might help mankind. To learn to build machines, how to manage factory and workshop, how oceans are crossed, how nitrogen is taken from the air, how to drive a steam plough, a shaft and learn the courses of the stars. They ought to learn how mankind has studied and conquered Nature, how to make life full and happy, there are all these things to learn what more can any young workers desire?

"They ought to be at school"! What a mockery! Who forces working class parents to set their underfed, underdeveloped children to work at the age of 12 and 13? Who is it forces them into the sweating factory, the muddy fields, the dark mines and the rush and roar of the railways? See them here, marching thru the street. Row upon row of young workers, bearing the marks of toil in factory and workshop, bowed with slavery at the machines. Young wage-slaves, child victims of the murderous economy of Capitalism.

Slogans Puzzle Parents

Their parents watch them as they march. They watch them proudly, admire their discipline and their steady bearing. But as they see their banners, as they hear their slogans, they are puzzled.

Down with the Exploitation of the Young Workers!

Young Workers Unite

Equal Rights in the Trade Unions!

A 6 Hour Day for Young Workers

A Four Week Paid Holiday

So read the banners and inscriptions they carry. They tell of the misery and the suffering of the young workers. But they tell not only of the suffering in the capitalist factory hells.

Down with Militarism!

No More War!

And others tell how these young workers are to fight!

Long Live the Proletarian United Front!

A United Front of Workers, Young and Old!

Prepare for the World Congress of Young Workers

The thoughts of the parents go back to the time when they too were young workers. It was when the workers movement was still young, when the first workers demonstrations marched thru the streets, when the first slogans of the militant working class were heard, when for the first time the workers showed their power. "Down with exploitation," "An eight hour Day," "Inside the Unions," these were the first war cries of the awakening working class movement, which today embraces millions of workers and to-morrow will rule the world.

And just as the first workers demonstration had appeared to them, so now this demonstration of young workers appeared to their fellows who were looking on. The same thoughts came to them. Who could have imagined how great was the number of young workers, who day after day must toil at the machines?

Young Workers on the March

The young workers are on the march.

They show that they have taken their stand and are ready to fight. And the old people who watch, ask them who they are, what they want, and why they are marching in the streets. And the youngsters who are standing by, tell them:

"They are the Proletarian Youth Organizations. Today is the International Day of Youth and in every town, in every country in the world, young workers are marching thru the streets.

In every country in the world, the same slogan rings thru the streets."

"The International Day of Youth."

"Yes, old Comrade, we march thru the streets. You say, you didn't know! That you didn't know of the hundreds of thousands of young workers who are fighting in the international labor movement?"

"There are but few of you who know that young workers are fighting with you, that they are ready to take their stand with you, wherever the fight is hottest.

Stand in One Solid Front

"Today we stand with hundreds of thousands of workers in one solid front. With hundreds of thousands of workers, we are fighting against the bourgeoisie. With millions we shall conquer, and the millions of the working class shall rule the earth.

Do you see the mighty crowd, how they stream along the street. It was not always so. The time was when we were the advance guard of the young proletariat. But today the masses of young workers know that this day, the International Day of Youth, the third of September, is their day.

Curious heads peep from the windows. Crowds assemble at every point on the route.

Clear Goal in Sight

They know, every one that these are the revolutionary youth,—the adult workers, young workers and the raging bourgeoisie. They know that they are solidly organized, that they have a clear goal in sight and that they are ready to fight to gain it.

The bourgeoisie wants servile wage-slaves, many workers and their labor organizations want to keep the young workers away from the working class struggle. Many young workers themselves have not realized that their fate is bound up with that of the entire working class, and that they must march and fight with their fellow workers, and have not joined the ranks of the organized young workers.

But from year to year, the numbers grow. From year to year grows their class consciousness and their determination to free themselves from the exploitation and misery of capitalism.

[illegible] the way [illegible]

Morris Hillquit, [illegible] of the "Socialist" Party, is sailing for Europe [illegible] the 2½ International at Vienna, where pink and yellow are the prevailing colors. Moscow red is [illegible].

If the hot air growing out of the strike discussions in Congress could be piped over the nation, there would be no danger of anyone freezing during the coming winter. We pass the suggestion on to President Harding.

The Illinois Chamber of Commerce has raised $25,000 to help "investigate" the Herrin "massacre" so-called. They say that "Money talks!" Big business is determined to make this latest "investigation" talk at least $25,000 worth on the side of the labor crushing mine owners.

W. S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, in his Labor Day Message, asks the workers to, "Lift up your eyes toward our common goal." The only common goal of the railroad brotherhoods nowadays seems to be to scab on the striking railroad shopmen. Some goal!

Many children in England do not go to school because they haven't clothes to wear. The parents of one child sought by the truancy officer wanted to know how they were going to pay for clothes when they had had work only ten days out of a year and nine months. Up to press time we had not heard the answer.

Sammy Gompers' "International Labor News Service" is making 100 per cent use of the attack on the Friends of Soviet Russia by Abraham Cahan, editor of The Jewish Daily Forward. More team work among the yellow reactionaries in the labor movement. Let the workers remember.

A. Bruce Bielaski, formerly chief of the U. S. Bureau of Investigation, who kidnapped himself in Mexico and then "escaped," reports that he saw "the red flag of Bolshevism" in the republic on our northern border. Perhaps the terrible fear that the sight of the red flag inspired in him helped Bielaski make good in his flight.

A million children, between the ages of 10 and 15, are, according to the census returns for 1920, engaged in gainful occupation—a million out of a possible 12,000,000. Truly the capitalist social order, under which we now live, will be known for all time as that period in the world's history when humanity lived upon its young.

White labor in Australia has shown its solidarity with the brown labor of India by protesting against British imperialism's "policy of bloody repression in India," and demanding home rule for India, where "the workers are probably worse off than in any civilized land in the world." That's good news—for labor; bad news—for John Bull.

Even labor in Denver and Colorado remain true to the reaction that prevails in that city and state. It has refused to endorse the resolutions, receiving unanimous support almost everywhere, demanding a general strike in support of the coal miners and railroad shopmen. Does Colorado labor fear to challenge its oppressors, even to the extent of passing a set of resolutions? It looks like it.

Like other politicians, Morris Hillquit, before sailing for Europe, had to announce his political preferences. He said that from among "Ex-Gov. Smith, William Randolph Hearst, or Mayor Hylan—I would say at once that Mr. Smith was by far the most able man." That ought to titillate the reactionaries in the New York State Federation of Labor who are yelling for "Al Smith for Governor" on the Democratic ticket. Of course, Hillquit will vote for the "Socialist" candidate, Cassidy, but he seems to have his reservations.

Thinking labor in this, as in other countries, selects International Labor Day, May 1st, as its holiday. The legalized Labor Day, on the first Monday after the first Sunday in September, is left to reactionary labor. It is, therefore, appropriate that the Santa Clara, Calif., Building Trades Council and the Santa Clara, Calif., Labor Council should invite Governor Stephens, the man who is keeping Mooney, Billings and other workers in prison, as the principal speaker for their Labor Day celebration. But it is to the shame of labor in this California city.

THE DAY OF YOUTH

Our banner waves proudly.
Do you not see it, Brother?
Our call rings out loudly
Do you not hear it, Brother?

For this is our Day,
the day of the youth
Who toil in the mill, in the mine, at the bench
We toil in the darkness, in filth and in stench
The greed of our masters, nothing can quench.

Our frail young shoulders, wearily bear
The burden of want, of toil and of care
But heed ye, O Masters!
heed ye, Beware!
For this is our Day,
the Day of the Youth.

Our banner waves proudly.
Do you not see it, Brother?
Our call rings out loudly
Do you not hear it, Brother?

Relief For Strikers

ST. PAUL.—Striking railroad workers will receive about $2,500 from St. Paul unions, officials announced. Milk wagon drivers have appropriated $500 from their treasury and have levied an assessment of $2 on each member, which, it is estimated, will bring in about $1,000 more. The other $1,000 is being given by Contract Machinists No. 459, which has ordered an assessment of one day's pay on each member. A large part of this money will be available immediately as an advance on the collection of the assessment from the union treasury.

[illegible] Central Opera House Friday Night, Sept. 1

Mass meetings of gigantic protest are being arranged thruout the entire nation to arouse the workers to the danger of the latest attacks directed against the more radical of the organized workers of this country.

The demonstration in New York will be held this Friday night, Sept. 1st, at the Central Opera House, 67th St. and Third Ave.

The truth will be told about the conspiracy to crush labor, resulting in the arrest of William Z. Foster, secretary of the Trade Union Educational League; C. E. Ruthenberg, secretary of the Workers Party; William F. Dunne, labor editor of "The Worker", and many other militant workers.

The list of speakers at this writing includes Roger Baldwin, of the Civil Liberties Union; Nor Thomas, of The Nation; J. L Engdahl, editor of The W Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, of Workers' Defense Union; and Biedenkapp.

The mass meeting is under the direction of the National Defense Committee that is already exerting every possible effort to secure bail immediately for those imprisoned and to provide for their legal defense in the Michigan courts.

The fight against this latest outburst of the American White Terror should be met with determined resistance by every forward-looking working man and woman in this country. Let labor in New York City take its stand in the vanguard of this struggle. Turn out to the mass meeting Friday night in overwhelming numbers!

Probe Shows that Bad Engines Caused Wrecks

Michigan Central wreck at Gary, Ind.

"Reports are based upon an investigation made by company detectives and armed guards. An investigation of this kind should have been given over to an impartial body of mechanical experts.

"This wreck does not differ a particle from wrecks reported to us each day from various parts of the country. Such wrecks result directly from the deterioration of equipment which goes on at an increasing rate every day that the strike lasts. It is only when the wreck is serious enough to get into the papers that the real cause is covered over. As a matter of fact it is reported that this very train had experienced engine trouble after it left Detroit.

Many Reports of Wrecks

"Here are a few of the reports that have come to us over the week-end: Chicago, Burlington and Quincy engine No. 5060 jumped the track just west of Brookfield, Mo., on Aug. 15. The wreck was caused by a sharp flange. Missouri, Kansas and Texas engine 854 went on the ground at Waginer, Kan. Missouri Pacific train No. 62 was wrecked at Cole Junction, Mo., as a result of a wheel being loose on a boxcar. The Chesapeake and Ohio reports a derailment at Ashford on the Big Coal River.

"Most of the wrecks reported are due to sharp flanges or defective brakes. Sharp or broken flanges cause an engine or car to ride the rails. It is customary, when qualified inspectors are employed, for them to report such defects. The tires of the engine are then trued up, or the car wheels replaced before the rolling stock is allowed to proceed.

The Locomotive Was Unfit

"The Michigan Central has hastily patched up an explanation to place the blame for the loss of life upon the striking shopmen instead of on the railroad where it belongs.

"This was more easy because the engine crew were killed and so could not give testimony to the defective condition of the locomotive which they were called upon to drive 60 miles an hour.

"No two reports as to the number of spikes "maliciously" withdrawn agree. As a matter of fact it is argued that a long section of track was torn up after the engine left the rails. This is the natural case. Drawn spikes and torn up rails are regularly caused when a heavy engine rides the rails. Altogether to a railroad man, as contrasted with private detectives, the real cause was clearly an unfit locomotive."

Denounce Forward Attack

The Brownsville (Brooklyn, N.Y.) Branch of the Friends of Soviet Russia after reading the financial statement of the Friends of Soviet Russia in its organ, "Soviet Russia", denounces the attacks on the Friends of Soviet Russia by the Jewish Daily "Forward" as false and malicious.

The Brownsville Branch renews its support of the Friends of Soviet Russia.

CELEBRATE INTERNATIONAL YOUTH DAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 2.30 P. M., WEBSTER HALL, 125 EAST 11th STREET

EDITOR'S NOTE.—The revision of the German indemnity and the question of international indebtedness are two big problems confronting the Paris Allies. This will necessitate a revision of the economic sections of the Versailles Peace. These questions are here reviewed by Karl Radek, one of the best informed Russian Communists on political conditions in Central Europe. He writes:

By KARL RADEK

The Allies will shortly again be confronted with the question of the revision of the economic sections of the Versailles treaty.

During the peace negotiations, responsible French statesmen in the course of their demands, mentioned sums so tremendous that they actually exceeded the French national treasury deposits.

It appeared as tho they had promised themselves to enrich France out of the proceeds of the German reparation payments.

Demand Impossible Amount

When the Allies finally sent Germany an ultimatum, in the Spring of 1921, the amount of the demands had reached 132 billions of gold marks.

Naturally, this was an impossible amount. It represented one-half of the national assets of Germany, and even if divided into thirty annual payments, could not possibly be procured.

Next came the proposal that Germany should pay two billion gold marks annually, as well as 26 per cent of the value of her total exports.

At that time, May 5, 1921, the dollar equalled 60 marks, thus, the required two billion gold marks equalled about 28 billion paper marks. Germany made the first payments, and German currency began rapidly to fall.

In March of the present year, the Allies reduced the money payment for the year 1922 from two billion gold marks to 720 millions.

But even this amount, reduced by more than half, was worth 51 billion paper marks. At the same time, the hope that foreign credit would be extended was shattered, as the American bankers were not willing to grant any loan unless the economic provisions of the Versailles Treaty were altered.

Mark Plunges Some More

This led to a new downward plunge of the mark: the dollar climbed up to the 349 mark, and, after Rathenau's murder it rose to 540. (Since the writing of this article, the dollar has risen to over 1900 marks.—Ed.)

In June, the 720 million gold marks amounted to 80 billion paper marks instead of 51 billions as in March. Thus we obtain the following pretty results:

When in the early part of the year Germany was subjected to a tribute against which the whole country rebelled, it amounted to 28 billion paper marks. And then, when, a year later, the Allies charitably reduced the sum by more than one-half, the amount of this "diminished" tribute rose to 80 billions.

Germans paid again on the 15th of July. She is not in a condition to pay more.

Under Allied Control

Germany desired a moratorium for three years. Before consenting to grant this respite, the Allies demanded that Germany abandon to them the control of her national finances. Germany assented.

The Allies will have two financial commissioners in Berlin, one will control the income, and the other the expenses of Germany.

And at the same time as the budget is presented to the Reichstag, it must also be submitted to the Entente's financial commissioners, not, of course, to provide them with entertaining reading, but so that they may order alterations.

All the financial supplementary bills of the government, all financial laws, must pass the censorship of the Entente's agents. All statistical data must be given to them.

They have the right of control over the expenses of the governing authorities, and the right to investigate as to whether these expenditures have actually been incurred.

The German governmental press explains proudly that the state of Germany, in spite of all, cannot be compared with that of Turkey, as Turkey was compelled to place a certain portion of her national income at the dispositon of foreign capital. Quite right! Between the position of Turkey and that of Germany there is an important difference.

The highly civilized German people must submit to control over their entire public finances. The German situation is ten times worse than the Turkish.

Worse Than Demand on Turkey

The German government has entered into a compromise which signifies the renunciation of Germany's financial independence, in the hope that they would not only gain a breathing spell in the form of a respite of money payments, but that their submissiveness will aid them to secure international loans which will [illegible]

[illegible]

France [illegible] The French [illegible] has developed such an enormous deficit that not even the carrying out of the German payments would cancel it.

At the outbreak of the war, France was 29.8 billion francs in debt.

Her war expenses amounted to 165 billion francs, of which 27 billions were covered by receipts.

Therefore, France emerged from the war with debts amounting to 170 billions. During the three post-war years, her debt mounted to 330 billion francs. On October 1st, of this year, the French debt to England becomes due, and France should then start to pay her English debt of 584 billion pounds sterling.

Her debt to America amounts to $2,950,000,000, and her debts to Japan are 133,000,000 yen. England demands from France, either that she pay her debt, or that she consent to revise her demands upon Germany and renounce an important part of them.

The French imperialistic press bitterly defends the French position: "We made the greatest sacrifices; yet they demand from us the payment of our debts, and ask that conquered Germany be granted a moratorium into the bargain."

And, altho, according to the Versailles Treaty, France is to receive 52 per cent of the German cash payments, they only have one vote of the four on the Reparations Commission.

The British imperialistic press answers this moan very cold-bloodedly: "Gentlemen, if you have gone bankrupt, be kind enough to state it openly; otherwise, you will be obliged to pay your debts, whether you receive any cash payments from Germany or not."

Poincare Confesses Bankruptcy

The English plan is quite simple. England informs America that she is quite ready to pay her debts to America which, with unpaid interest amount to $4,500,000,000 and only seeks to have them replaced by a consolidated debt. In her policy towards France, England wishes to proceed hand in hand with America.

If France declares herself willing not only to grant a respite to Germany, but also to strike out a part of the German indebtedness, then England will waive her claims for French payments.

And then the American bankers will grant Germany a loan which will serve partly to cover certain German economic needs, and partly to lighten the French financial situation. Mr. Poincare, who reproached Briand for his "softness" and complaisance, had to acknowledge openly the national bankruptcy in his Senate speech on July 29.

"By force of arms", said he, "we can occupy a portion of German territory, and that has great educational importance. We could also get a small amount of goods and paper marks thru this means. All this however, would not suffice to fill up the breach in our budget."

In spite of the inquiries of Senator Jouvenal, Poincare would not say what course he would advise. Poincare's plans, however, may be easily deducted from the official French press.

Seek to Force Germany

Above all, he desires that the Reparations Commission establish that the insolvency of Germany is her own fault, as the German capitalists have no faith in their own finances and have sunk enormous amounts in foreign currency in order to evade payment of taxes. Poincare wishes his decision to be reached, because it will permit him to take forcible measures against Germany, at every favorable opportunity, on the ground of the Versailles Treaty.

Secondly, it will purchase England's renunciation of the French debt at the price of a moratorium only, without a postponement of the German payments.

The British press states that England will by no means renounce the French debt at this price, as England is interested in the economic restoration of Germany, not only as an outlet-market for British goods, but also as a co-worker in Russian reconstruction.

In this way, the revision of the economic clauses of the Versailles Treaty is maturing. It is questionable whether it suits the Allies to permit Germany a breathing spell before it breaks down completely.

Caused Hague Breakdown

In any case, this question will in the near future stand in the foreground of all the problems vexing the Allies, including also the Russian question.

This was one of the causes of the breakdown of the Hague conference. The revision of the Versailles Treaty is of very great importance to Soviet Russia. But of that we shall speak another time.

Municipal elections in Czecho-Slovakia have been postponed though now due. The results in two recent by-elections were: in Deutschbrod out of 4,362 votes recorded the Communists received 1,184; in Goding, out of 6,129, the Communists received 2,371. In each case the Communist vote being more than double that of the next party.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—Last week we began the publication of the statement of [illegible] Collins, auditor, for the Friends of Soviet Russia in reply to the [illegible] charges of Abraham Cahan, editor of the Forward. Since then the reactionary forces in the United Hebrew Trades, New York City, have succeeded in lining up that organization back of the Forward's [illegible] attack. Detailed proof of how the Forward deliberately misstates a condition, after having been given ample opportunity to get the proof, is shown in the second installment of the auditor's statement as follows:

What Are Cahan's Wages?

QUOTATION: "We accuse them that other sums of this hard-earned money are spent on wages and trips and meeting expenses for communists, who work for their Communist Party here in America and who utilize these trips and organizations only as an excuse to advance their communist, union-smashing organizations."

ANSWER: There is no evidence that any money is paid to speakers or organizers as wages and expenses except for raising funds for the organization. Wages are from $25 to $40 per week, according to the number of employee's dependents. Expenses consist of transportation, telegrams, postage, etc., and $2 to $3 per diem allowed for extra cost of food and lodging while on the road. Speakers who do not succeed in raising money are dismissed.

The total amount of wages paid to May 31, 1922, is $27,758.09, of which $8,159.70 was paid to speakers and organizers. The period is nearly 10 months.

What does this mean? Twenty-three employees, 16 in the office and 7 traveling for forty weeks at $30 per week would amount to $27,600. That is not a large staff to raise and disburse $670,000 in less than a year.

The facts are, of course, that the number of employees varies according to the amount of office work to be done and the response with which the speakers' appeals are met.

An expenditure for wages equal to about 4 per cent of the income received is very small indeed. The "Jewish Daily Forward" does not mention, nor do I know of, any other organization which makes a national appeal for funds from small contributors which operates upon a smaller percentage of its income for administrative and publicity payroll. Until an unfavorable comparison can be made it is idle to say that $28,000 is a lot of money, because so is $670,000. The Editor's charge that those who receive wages paid do not render full time services to the organization is not justified by any facts brought to my notice or which I have discovered. Furthermore, it is contradicted by a common sense view of the facts.

Does Cahan Fear Truth?

QUOTATION: "We accused them in our first attack that of the hard-earned money, which they are collecting for the hungry, they contribute $1000 monthly to the support of their communist Journal, "Soviet Russia" here in America. This figure should now be increased. They now contribute to this communist organ not $1000, but $1200 per month! and all this from the hunger-money collected for Russia."

ANSWER: The magazine, "Soviet Russia" a semi-monthly, is openly published as the official organ of the Friends of Soviet Russia.

The organization is entitled to have an official organ.

"Soviet Russia" publishes official news of the organization, lists of contributors, certified financial statements, famine news, other Russian news, editorial pronouncements of the organization and appeals for funds. "Soviet Russia" therefore fills the function of official organ.

For the same amount of money the organization could not have launched a new paper to serve its purposes as well as "Soviet Russia".

No one makes any profit out of the official organ. Its accounts are audited by professional public accountants and submitted to me for my information.

The published financial statements of the Friends of Soviet Russia clearly states that the organization subsidizes this magazine.

Contributors know the facts and know the magazine. Many contributors subscribe to the Official Organ, directly or through the organization. Many readers of the magazine send contributions to the organization through the paper.

The expenditure of the subsidy appears to me to be justified and economical.

QUOTATION: "They state in the recent report that fifty and some thousands of dollars are in the "Process of transmission" (that is that they are being sent) to Berlin. In the first report, they state that $411,000 has been transmitted to the Federated Committee for the purchase of goods. Mr. Hartmann stated to a Forward reporter, a day previously, that they ceased sending money to Berlin, that they have used all of the $411,000 for the purchase of goods in this country. Mr. Hartmann's answer disagrees with the recent report."

ANSWER: The following calendar relates the above charges of inconsistency:

1)	To April 30—Sent to Berlin	$14,800
2)	To April 30—Sent to American Federated Russian Relief Committee	411,90[illegible]
3)	In May—Sent to Berlin	40,00[illegible]
4)	In May—Sent to American Federated Russian Famine Relief Committee	2,84[illegible]
5)	July 1st—Publication date of April report including (1) and (2).
6)	Late in July—Dr. Hartmann stated that no more money was being sent to Berlin.
7)	Late in July—Dr. Hartmann stated that item (2) had been spent in America.
8)	August 1st—Publication date of May report including: (1) and (3) to Berlin (2) and (4) to American Federated Russian Famine Relief Committee	 $54,800 $413,784
9)	August 1st—After reading both reports and hearing Dr. Hartmann's statements (6) and (7) the "Jewish Daily Forward" says in effect: "It is impossible in May to send money to Berlin; in July to decide to send no more; on August 1st to report that money was sent in May; while other money was being spent in America."

My investigation shows that all these things were done. The published statements correctly reported the transactions, all of which were simple and straightforward.

Furthermore, the economical manner in which the money paid to the American Federated Russian Famine Relief Committee was expended in America for Russian relief purposes is shown in the financial statements of that committee for the period ended May 31, 1922, published in the official organ, "Soviet Russia", from which the figures are quoted.

Therefore, not only is the definite charge of inconsistency [illegible]cally absurd, but the whole paragraph is written in a manner to suggest that money which in fact was properly expended and accounted for has been loosely handled. This deliberate insinuation is groundless.

By P. STUTSCHKA

We often find, even in Communist papers, protests against class justice in general, and not against bourgeois or feudal class justice.

And we often speak of Right in general instead of speaking of Class Right.

"Advance, you who honor Right and Truth," we hear enthusiastically sung without properly considering what this Right actually means.

It required a political trial to bring all these questions to the fore. I refer to the trial of the Social Revolutionaries.

A tribunal whose president openly declared that it exercised class justice, proletarian class justice!

A tribunal before which deputations of revolutionary workers appeared and pronounced their opinion, not upon the defendants as persons but upon the political party seated in the dock, upon the party calling itself Socialist!

An undisguised class justice whose class character was further intensified by the direct pressure of the proletarian masses.

One group of defenders after the other forsook their posts; first the "Socialists" (Vandervelde and Co.), then the onetime Socialists, Muravyev and his like.

From the lawyers nothing else was to be expected. Legal ideology is bourgeois ideology par excellence. This has been clearly demonstrated by no one else than Frederick Engels (in 1887 in the Neue Zeit in a joint article with Karl Kautsky): "When the Christian Weltanschauung was obliged to depart, the legal or bourgeois Weltanschauung stepped into its place".

And this Weltanschauung dominates not only the lawyers, Socialists and even Communists not excepted, it prevails also in the heads of laymen and even of broad proletarian masses.

What Is Right?

What is Right? Consult the maze of legal writings, search the dictionaries, etc., and you will find the short and concise answer, that there is as yet no general conception of Right, that the legal authorities seek for it in vain.

And I tell you that there cannot be such a conception as long as jurisprudence prates of eternal right and eternal justice, instead of accepting the class standpoint and recognizing the Class Right, "a system, an order of social relations which correspond to the interests of the ruling class and will therefore be maintained by the organized power of the class, the state."

Can bourgeois society openly acknowledge this class right? No it cannot do it, for it would be a recognition, a legalization of the proletarian revolution. The working-class and its ideologists must openly proclaim this, for that is their vital interest.

From this, and from this standpoint only, can we comprehend how it comes that the bourgeois lawyers glorify the murder of Liebknecht, Luxemburg and other Comrades, or are able to treat even the murderers of Ministers, as for instance of Erzberger or Rathenau, with great indulgence, and on the other hand speak of judicial murder when the Soviet government brings to trial the political assassins who kill proletarian leaders and proletarian state functionaries.

Right and Law Are Partial

And we will then be able to appreciate the same views within the ranks of the social-treacherous defenders or perverters of Right.

In one of his early writings, Karl Marx proves that it would be a logical absurdity to speak of impartial judges, because right and law are themselves partial.

To the opposing class all class justice will appear unjust; there is no common understanding. And it is mere hypocrisy to estimate the justice of a sentence according to the outward formalities of the trial. But the whole of bourgeois justice swears by these formalities. These formalities are even in the best instances technical regulations for getting at the evidence and clearing up the question of guilt.

It is not these formalities which will determine whether a sentence is just or unjust, but the true facts and the class conception of Right. And particularly, in the case of the trial of the Russian Social Revolutionaries it is not a question of such formalities. It is an unprecedented historical trial, in which it is not a question of persons but of classes and class groups.

Revolutionary proletarian class justice is not to be comprehended from the bourgeois conception of Right. But that does not by any means imply that this justice is quite undefined, that no law exists for it, but only personal arbitrariness.

No, like every right, proletarian right also finds expression in law, in revolutionary decrees.

But that does not mean a sudden revolution of the consciousness of right in the people. This revolution is a protracted and difficult process. The retreat to the new economic policy which is naturally also a retreat on the legal field has hampered it very considerably.

Reject Appeal to Bourgeois Law

Proletarian class justice also means lawfulness, but only revolutionary lawfulness. It will hear nothing of formal objections on the part of juridical representatives who appeal to the law books of the overthrown bourgeois government and to the bourgeois legal authorities.

And if (what has occurred nowhere else) foreign lawyers as Vandervelde and Liebknecht conferred in French or maintained silence in German, it was not because of linguistic reasons that they failed to be understood, but because they used the language of another class, the bourgeoisie.

It was not class justice that was ~~the objection here~~, but the fact that so-called proletarian representatives defended anti-proletarian class-interests.

It is not a question of a simple legal trial, but of a class struggle before the eyes of the working class of the whole world.

And these labor leaders lend them eyes, not to clearing the minds of the workers but to befogging them with bourgeois legal trickery.

Apart from the great importance of this trial for the cause of the world revolution, it will play an important part in enlightening the working class on the question of class right and class justice.

Urge German Workers' Tribunal

"Up to now we had no Marxist revolutionary conception of right and justice, and jurists, and non-jurists repeated the same old wisdom of lawyer Socialists, which Engels censured as early as 1887.

"With us in Russia, the revolution introduced a certain change in this respect, but it would have been very desirable if this breach should have occurred outside of Russia before the revolution.

"The proletarian slogan is not 'against class right and class justice', but for proletarian right and proletarian justice!

"It would be more correct perhaps if the working class of Germany [illegible]

Going Well; Getting Better

Frank P. Walsh, who gained the enmity of big business as head of the Industrial Relations Commission, has spent three weeks in Soviet Russia and is now returning home via Berlin, the first leg of the journey being made by airplane.

In his statement to the press, Walsh thinks it most important to announce that Premier Nikolai Lenin plans to resume his official duties Sept. 4. This indicates that Lenin's convalescence, during which time he has kept closely in touch with developments in the Workers' Republic and thruout the world, is rapidly coming to an end.

It was almost on the same day, Sept. 6, 1918, four years ago that Gregory Zinoviev, chairman of the Communist International, and president of the Petrograd Soviet, was announcing to a great gathering of workers in the Soviet metropolis, that "Comrade Lenin will live (applause, ovation) to the terror of the enemies of Communism and to the joy of the proletarian Communists."

Zinoviev had just finished stating that he had received a telegram from Lenin himself. He said:

"This telegram was handed in to-day at 1:10 a. m. from the Kremlin. This is, apparently, the first telegram of Comrade Lenin since he began to recover. Comrade Lenin gives us certain official instructions and finishes the telegram with the following words: 'Affairs at the front are going well; I have no doubt that they will go still better.'" Applause.

It was just four years ago that Lenin was recovering from the poisoned bullet wound resulting from the shot fired into his body by a would-be assassin inspired by the terrorist social (counter) revolutionary party.

It was the theory of this party that if enough of the prominent spokesmen of the revolution could be murdered, Soviet Rule would be overthrown. This false theory did not make progress after the assassination of Volodarsky and Uritzky, Petrograd commissars. Lenin survived the would-be assassin's attack, four years ago, and the resultant physical breakdown from which he is only now recovering.

We may use the same words about Lenin and the Bolshevist Revolution, "Affairs are going well. They will go still better," which will be heartily applauded by all aspiring working men and women thruout the world.

On the occasion, then, of Lenin's return to his official duties, Sept. 4, we may well repeat the closing sentences from Zinoviev's speech four years ago when he said:

"On this day when there is such joy in our hearts on the occasion of the convalescence of Comrade Lenin, . . . on this day, if we wish to honor Comrade Lenin and to justify his hopes, we must say to ourselves, 'Let us be at least a little more like Comrade Lenin.'

"Yes, we are endeavoring to be at least a little like this ardent tribune of International Communism, like this greatest worker the Social Revolution has ever known."

An OPEN LETTER TO MESSRS. ARTHUR HENDERSON, J. RAMSAY MACDONALD AND TOM SHAW

We were deeply astonished to read that a presiding judge in your democratic country denied the accused the right of explaining in court the reasons which prompted them to kill Wilson—declaring that he could not permit the court to be utilised for anarchist propaganda or political manifestations.

We remind you of your efforts to secure guarantees from us for the defence of the liberty of the Socialist-Revolutionary leaders accused of the attempt on Lenin, of the murder of Volodarsky, and of organizing insurrection with foreign money.

We granted them these privileges; but your friends of the Second International tore up the Berlin agreement and closed the doors of the Labor Party to the British Communist workers.

The accused Socialist-Revolutionary terrorists have now for 30 days enjoyed complete liberty in their defence, explaining the reasons for their crimes in extensive speeches.

We know that the British Labor Party leaders were sufficiently brazen at the Labor Party Conference to condemn the terrorist acts of the Irish revolutionists who staked their lives on the struggle for their country's freedom; but we do not know what Privy-Councillor Henderson did to utilize his former influence on the Privy Council to obtain liberty of defence for these two Irishmen.

Altho we deem it inadmissible for a Labor leader to be a Privy Councillor, yet, since your Party has agreed to such an ignominious role, you should also utilize your intimate influence with the Imperial Government to protect the elementary principles of justice. We appeal to you (altho you are not revolutionaries) because you appealed to us to secure pardon for the S. R. Terrorists. We address our appeal to all parties of the Second and Vienna Internationals, demanding that they exert the maximum pressure upon the British Government to obtain a fair trial for the Irish revolutionaries, and to obtain permission for it necessary Communist representatives to plead on their behalf and in the name of millions of workers and peasants.

We guarantee that our representatives will not leave England before the end of the trial, regardless of any hostile manifestations on the part of the imperialists."

Chicago Labor Rebuffs Anarchist [illegible] to Enlist It in Yellow Socialist Campaign of Slander Against Russian Soviet Republic

The anarchists have joined hands with the Yellow Socialists in the labor unions in an effort to besmirch the Russian Soviet Republic in the eyes of the American workers.

Following up the attacks of Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman on Soviet Rule in Russia, Delegate Leon Green, of the Retail Clerks Union, brought a resolution before the Chicago Federation of Labor seeking to condemn the Russian Soviet Government.

The Voice of Labor, Chicago, says that Delegate Green spoke of his visit to Russia and how he had talked with the peasants and workers and heard the story of their alleged oppression. He went on to describe what he said was happening in Russia.

The delegates, after listening to a reply made to Green, by Delegate Johnstone, unanimously rejected the resolution and accepted the report of the resolution committee which called for non-concurrence.

Delegate Green, in an effort to enlist support for his resolution, says the Voice of Labor, repeated the charges made by the Jewish Daily Forward against the Friends of Soviet Russia.

His statement was so obviously untrue that the delegates refused to take him seriously, but kept demanding, during the course of his speech, that the question be put. Green, realizing that he was in a hopeless minority, told how Jesus Christ once stood alone and "now look at the number of people supporting his ideas," said Green. The delegates who knew Green roared, much to the speaker's discomfiture.

THE WORKER takes this occasion to publish an unanswered letter to Alexander Berkman from a former anarchist. It is as follows:

An Unanswered Letter to Alexander Berkman from a Former Anarchist

Dear Berkman:

Before I leave Moscow for good I should like to see you. We can afford to be frank. You know what I want to discuss. You know that I believe that you are mistaken in your appraisal of the values of the Revolution. You know also that I know what your general view is, as I discussed it with you at a time when I held that same general view myself.

I wrote you from America that I believed that a close study of Lenin's views as to the necessity of an armed workers' dictatorship—a State—would convince you that he is right, and that the inevitable accompaniments of dictatorship—disagreeable as they are—would have to be endured and minimized by any true revolutionist. I told you that I believed that the only way a revolutionist can be an effective factor in the revolution is to participate in that dictatorship.

Only Way to Aid

That the only way a revolutionist can give his strength to the Revolution is as a member of the single gigantic revolutionary group: the Communist Party, Section of the Communist International.

I still believe that if you were to give a clear unbiased mind to this you would be convinced. Whether you will give a clear, unbiased mind to it, is another question. True, for Berkman to lose the flexibility of his mind would be a strange thing; but stranger things than that have happened. Kropotkin lost his. We have to learn to expect such things in the volcano of revolution. Some of the men and women who were best in the early days are found in the later days to be side-tracked in the empty name of a philosophy, while the revolution goes past them under another name. They cling to the old name and to the personalities of old association, and do not recognize the big, teeming world-wide body of the thing they loved and suffered for and which is at last born.

Minor Matters Obscure View

What I am afraid of is that you have gotten so intimately wound about with the personal associations and with concern for the tragic personal dangers of those whom you have loved as revolutionary figures, that your concern for these close-at-hand values will blind you to the great World Revolution that is marching on without you and as I believe, without them.

I know that you look with horror and disappointment upon my comparative unconcern with the fate of the men I knew in the past as revolutionists and who are now threatened with being crushed by the revolution's trend which they oppose.

What Opposition Lost

You will not look out and see that a hundred times as many as they, better men then they, die in a single day of the revolution, and you will not see that their opposition costs the revolution a hundred times as many lives as theirs. I know that they are sincere. So were the Left S.R.'s. So was Kerensky; so was Babushka (Breshkovskaya). For the fate of sincere people I too have regard, but I can only give them a glance or a minute while the revolution is going on, and when the revolution is threatened I cannot even give them that. I know ten times as many as they, who are as sincere as they and who are dying day by day in the revolution. The follies of those first mentioned are costing the lives of the better men—better in the sense that they serve the Revolution better. I am not moralizing: no man is "better" than another in the abstract. One is better than another only for a specific purpose; and during the revolution, the Revolution is the only purpose that I can value things for.

History Has Spoken

And the Revolution, is "Bolshevism." History has written it, and you or any man cannot unwrite it. The world is split into two divisions now, for battle for war. In war, dictatorship wins and nothing else can win. Dictatorship is bad; so are gut-ripping bayonets bad, but dictatorship and bayonets win for one side or the other, and there are only two sides. From now on there can only be dictatorship of the bourgeoisie or dictatorship of the proletariat, until the bourgeoisie is exterminated as a class. You can call it the "dictatorship of Communist politicians" if you like, and that won't alter the case in the least: the Revolution is going to proceed and the dictatorship of the proletariat is going to exterminate by brute force, and with what you may call "injustice," the property-owning class as a class and all that unconsciously serves the property-owning class by opposing the dictatorship of the proletariat.

When it is all over with, shall you say that you have not taken part in the great final struggle because you did not like the way life decreed that the struggle should be? Or do you imagine that the Revolution is going to take some other form than the [illegible] Revolution would come [illegible]. They [illegible] subordinated to the humdrum of capitalism to believe that it could be disrupted so soon, and they called you and me, when we said in the "Blast" and elsewhere that the Revolution would burst through the war, wild dreamers. And now that the Revolution in Russia has come, the shortsighted persons accept it as far as it has come, and say, "Also the Russian Revolution has come, that is all there is to it, and, oh, well, we will go on living in a capitalist country." Such people, who see the Russian Revolution only as a revolution in Russia, I can't blame in the least for not liking the form that it has taken. Russia is an armed camp of desperate hardship and brutal discipline, and those who don't know what the fight is for can't be expected to like the camp. They who think it is a place for living can point out many better places for living. And if they sit on the fence, not participating and see the terrible concessions and retreats made, they can find much breath for saying: "Why, what are the sacrifices for?" Some of the concessions made now are almost as bad as Brest-Litovsk. What are they for? They are for the World Revolution.

[illegible]

Not at 3rd Congress

No one can fully know what the fight in Russia is for unless he attended or gave the whole of his brain to the study of the Third Congress of the Communist International. You were not there. The greatest event of revolutionary history, except the October Revolution, took place here in the city where you were, and you did not look upon it. Are you still Berkman? The most important plans laid by men, the vast, the world-wide, concrete arrangements for overthrowing a world-ful of governments, were made. Where was Berkman? The same Berkman who, more nearly than most men, forecasted these events, immersed in the narrow, individual, personal safeties of a small handfull of comrades whose dogmatism has made them run counter to the fabric of the Revolution—too immersed in the otherwise admirable but comparatively petty loyalties to old faction comrades, to give himself to this plan for the overthrow of the world's governments.

Sarcasm vs. Facts

I repeat to you what I said before that it was a crime for you not to participate in that Congress. And I remember what your answer was. Your answer served like a mirror to show just what was the matter. You sarcastically replied in substance, that it appears that the possession of a piece of cardboard from a Communist Party makes a man into a revolutionist now, and nothing else counts, no matter what standing a man has otherwise as a revolutionist. Nothing could show more clearly than this remark of yours, what the trouble is. You seem to approach everything from the intimate-group conception of revolutionary activities with persons vouching for persons on the basis of personal acquaintance with individual autonomy of action and with subjective moral integrity as the criterion of trustworthiness. It would seem as though you had overlooked the fact that the world is in motion now with strange millions functioning. No longer can we be personally acquainted with those with whom we die: subjective integrity does not count by itself; the little intimate groups do not count anymore, and subjective morality alone isn't worth a damn—the thing that counts is whether a man is functioning within the program. And our rough attempt at knowing all the strange millions is by giving cards to those that are functioning within the program. But you come with your old intimate group conception, as though you thought we could rely upon the old basis of verbal vouching, which would no longer serve even for a medium sized village commune. But of course that objection to our technical, card-index way of roughly sorting our adherents is really but a figurative manner of stating your objection to something more fundamental—our whole policy of centralization and non-recognition of any but the single revolutionary organization. Why should not So-and-so, the well known and undoubtedly sincere advocate of revolution, be admitted to participation in the international revolutionary congress? Simply because So-and-so is not going to accept the discipline of the body formed by the Congress, does not accept the fundamental principles upon which it is based, and is not going to work with it in clockwork response to its orders.

Individualism for Capitalism

No, comrade So-and-so insists on his right of independent decision and action. Very well, he automatically shuts himself out of the single, world wide revolutionary organization. The International cannot function in two conflicting ways at once. It cannot have two plans. Loyalty is measured by life-and-death obedience to the single plan, once it is agreed upon, right or wrong. It is not measured by the heart's willingness to what the individual head may think is best for the cause at a given moment. With individual heads doing this we have no organization, no concerted action. You ought to know this. In a strike, is each individual allowed to decide for himself? No, he obeys the decisions of the strike committee. If he does not, he breaks up the strike; or he gets roughly handled by the strikers. The Russian Revolution is a gigantic strike. The Communist International is the same thing projected into world dimensions. It is the biggest revolutionary movement in all history and it bears fair promise of drawing the fight to a conclusion with the crushing of the capitalist governments of the world. It has at last realized the dream of a gigantic, closely coordinated machine of direct action assault upon the capitalist police and troops. And you are not in it. You object to its discipline. Yet its discipline is its very co-ordinated force! Without its discipline it could not exist—no such force could exist.

Freedom for Counter-Revolution

A good sample of "revolutionary individual initiative" is the Kronstadt affair. I have given it a little study since I saw you last. There is no question but that if the Kronstadt affair had not been wiped out, it would have resulted in the downfall of the Soviet Power. There is no doubt that many of the participants who called themselves Anarchists and S. R.'s were sincere in their notions. Subjectively they were doubtless highly moral revolutionists. But objectively it was a filthy counter-revolution. I don't give a damn for the moral values. The counter-revolutionary officers came over from Finland (protected by the Finnish government!), and joined the Anarchists and the S. R.'s and the Mensheviks. The French navy lay outside of the frozen area, waiting for the "Anarchists" (who could compromise enough to associate with Cadet officers) to hold Kronstadt until the ice would break and let the French and British battleships fight for "Soviets without Bolsheviks!" Yes, that is a fine example of free and easy "revolution" without discipline. The fellows that did this crazy thing, killed thousands of the best and youngest and bravest of the soldiers that the Revolution had. And yet there are people who call themselves "Anarchists" and ask me to pity the fellows who were responsible for the Kronstadt affair. Monks that ponder in their cells on the misfortunes of man in general, can pity them; I have no time to pity such men.

Would Kill Revolution

There are people calling themselves "Anarchists" that are now saying that Kronstadt was "the real revolution." If such people were allowed to operate with "free speech" and "free demonstration" within the circle that is held by the bayonets of the Red Army, the revolution would be dead now, and here would reign the "democratic freedom" and pogroms of capitalistic Hungary, with Wrangel, Semenoff, Pilsudski, Harding, Briand and Lloyd George guaranteeing you your "freedom of revolutionary initiative."

Superficialities

I have naturally wanted to impress upon you my views about this, and even went so far as to try to get into contact with you across three thousand miles of sea. Lenin has said the thing better than I, and therefore tried to get you to give your attention to what he had written. I don't believe that you have given any attention to the particular writings that I spoke of. I know that you said, in a perfunctory way, that you read "State and Revolution." But the way you said it was indicative that you read it "a la mode americaine"—that is, by glancing thru it, and your next remark confirmed me in my opinion. What could be more superficial than to speak of the explanation of the revolution's motives by the chief leader of it, as "only books?" And then, to speak of "Life as the better teacher" (in the way that you spoke, i. e. "life as opposed to giving any earnest attention to the revolutionary pamphleteers and leaders in action) is about the extreme of intellectual poverty. There is hardly a boulevard dandy in Moscow that has not seen more of street "life" during the revolution than Lenin has or you, or I.

Means Nothing to Him

That Berkman is letting the Revolution pass by him without mobilizing his every faculty to study the intellectual expression of it, without learning what the theory of the gigantic machine that is running it, is my conviction. That is the tragedy. That you are not giving your hand to help in this machine, is the consequence.

Revolutions Not Friendly

I am often reminded of a passage of your book of prison memoirs, in which you describe your psychological experiences upon emerging from the penitentiary. You were confused, bewildered, and desperately depressed. Then you found out why. It was because the movement that you had known in its infant stage, had grown larger, had spread and grown until you did not readily recognize it, since it had none of its former intimate quality. Now, Berkman, the Revolution that you loved has grown to ten thousand times the size, and again you do not recognize it. Again you look for its small, intimate quality, and the intimate quality is not there. It is no longer a baby at the breast, it is a million-headed giant, which in theory you wanted it to be, but as which, in fact, you cannot recognize it. And you turn aside from it, or unconsciously, unintentionally drive against it. If you fail to recognize it, if you fail to live with it, in it, fighting as a part of it, you lose the only purpose that I know your life has . . . The Revolution can do without you, but you cannot do without the Revolution.

COME AND HEAR THE TRUTH ABOUT THE CONSPIRACY TO CRUSH LABOR

FRIDAY NIGHT, SEPTEMBER 1st, 8 o'clock

CENTRAL OPERA HOUSE

67th Street and Third Avenue

SPEAKERS:—Roger Baldwin, of the Civil Liberties' Union; Norman Thomas, of The Nation; Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, Workers' Defense Union; J. Louis Engdahl, editor, THE WORKER, and Fred Biedenkapp.

COME EARLY! ADMISSION, 10 CENTS

[illegible]

[illegible] Because we believe they are of this class-conscious element we appeal to them to take part in the present campaign of THE WORKER to increase its circulation among the toiling masses of this country.

After reading a few issues of THE WORKER these new readers can judge of its usefulness to the workers. Its treatment of the present strikes; its advocacy of workers' control of industry; its call for amalgamation into industrial unions of the various antagonistic craft unions; its demand for a UNITED FRONT of labor against the robbers and exploiters is a justifiable reason for requesting the support of every reader.

THE WORKER goes to the workers each week with a clear analysis of labor's position in present capitalistic society. It shows labor as it really is, a tool and victim of an exploiting capitalist class. It shows labor in its titanic struggles for existence under the dictatorship of huge capitalistic combines which control the political state. THE WORKER shows the need of closer amalgamation of labor. It shows how this can be accomplished. It shows what is beyond the present slave existence of the world's millions of workers thru organization and the conquest of power over capitalist interests. THE WORKER shows how this organization of labor can be accomplished, how to take over the power from the present world's rulers and to build with that power a world for the workers.

Our new readers are part of the great army of labor who must accomplish this task. They must help build the new world of the future, the world where Labor alone will rule.

They must build this new world by doing to-day the concrete tasks which draw strength and support to labor's cause. Building THE WORKER is one of these tasks. Increasing its circulation among greater masses of workers, teaching them the meaning of labor's struggles, of the needs and methods of organization into more powerful groups and how to use their combined power to smash the united power of the capitalists is one of these tasks. It can be accomplished only by the workers. To them we must appeal.

Our new readers must help, must join the thousands who are doing this work. Each of them knows other workers who will subscribe. Each can get a number of subscriptions. We ask them all to do so. Many can order and pay in advance for 5 or more 20-week sub cards at 50 cents each. Many can make up lists of subscribers in the places where they work. They should do so. Every one should get one or more subscribers at once. If you are a worker help THE WORKER grow. Get subscribers!

"I am glad to say that I have sold the five cards sent me. I know THE WORKER is the kind of paper the workers should read. These are all good union men I sold the cards to." W. L., Cincinnati, O.

"Enclosed please find $2.50 for the five cards you have sent me. All but one are striking railway shopmen. This strike is waking up the toilers faster than years of propaganda, and it is up to US to make these fellows understand the requirements of the struggle." N. U., St. Paul.

"I enclose $2.50 for five cards. I hope to be able to send you more soon. All whom I have handed a copy of THE WORKER have agreed that it is the best revolutionary paper they ever read." W. F. Mc., K. C. Mo.

"It is not a big help in the 25,000 campaign to sell only 25 subscription cards, is it? But I hope to make the 25 grow into 125." F. F.

"I sold the five cards—all to members of the Central Labor Council. Here's to greater success." A. N. W., San Jose, Calif.

[illegible] Capitalism can never offer us [illegible]. It cannot use the machinery we have created. The ships we have built are idle in the docks. The marvelous mechanism of modern industry, which is the work of our hands, is in ruin. Capitalism can no longer use it. Capitalism stands in the way of food for the hungry. It starves the creators of all the useful things of life. It turns the machinery of the world into scrap iron. It has brought civilization to ruin. Away with it.—London Communist.

Many Activities of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia

There are being organized under the auspices of the New York branch of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia the following classes:

1) A class in Russian for beginners, intermediate and advanced.
2) A class in Russian typewriting and stenography.
3) A class in Accounting and Bookkeeping.
4) A class in Commercial Photography and Moving Picture operating.
5) A course in operating and setting up and repairing of tractors and farming machinery, including lectures with picture illustrations on modern scientific farming.

The Society has secured the co-operation of men who know thoroly the practical application of machinery in agriculture. It is expected also to arrange for practical field work, where all the manipulations and the use of various farming machinery will be taught.

The Soviet Government is encouraging the return of re-immigrants in organized Communes to which it assigns big fertile farms in the various parts of the great Workers' Republic. Many Communes have attained splendid results and the letters received from them are full of delight and joy. The tractors and farming machinery brought by these Communes from America have ploughed many thousands of dessiatins of Russian soil, and have laid a strong foundation for the better future of the workmen and peasants of Russia.

6) A class in Radio operating and theory.

In order to organize these classes it is necessary beforehand to know the number of students enrolled. Therefore all those interested should apply at once at the office of the New York branch of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia at 231 East 37th St.

7) Classes in elementary subjects such as Arithmetic, Algebra, Geometry, etc., in Russian for the Russian speaking Comrades.

8) Comrade Allan S. Broms will deliver a series of illustrated lectures on General Science. These lectures will be of great interest to the Comrades of the English speaking groups of the S. T. A. S. R. who are already acquainted with the authoritative lectures of Comrade Broms. A fee of 15c will be charged for each lecture as there is an outstanding expense for the stereoscopic projection. We urgently request all those interested to register at once at the office of the New York branch of the S. T. A. S. R. The first lecture will start on or about September 15, 1922.

TRACTOR SCHOOL

Under the auspices of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia, a tractor school is being organized to teach the Russian comrades returning to their native land to take up modern farming.

At this school will be given a thoro course in the use of farming machinery and tractors which are promised by the manufacturers having great interest in the Russian market. The course will be conducted by specialists and will last three months. The tuition fee will be $50 per course.

This enterprise is of great importance to all those interested in farming work which is practically the most important impulse to rebuild Russia.

The Central Bureau of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia, and all the organizations helping Russia are greatly interested in this important work and have promised their full support.

Comrades who are able, willing, and can help us with their advice and co-operation are requested to communicate with the general secretary, at the headquarters of the New York local at 243 E. 23rd St., New York.

[illegible] Politicals [illegible] Behind the Bars [illegible] Serve Out Their Terms

WASHINGTON.—"Unless President Harding reverses his present attitude in the matter, the majority of the 76 political prisoners still confined in federal prisons under war-time free-speech convictions will have to serve out their terms of [illegible] and 20 years," says the Joint Amnesty committee in a press statement issued here.

"Virtually all of these men are working men, and their long term sentences constitute a world's record for imprisonments of this character for modern times. The aggregate sentences of these unfortunates run to over 800 years."

The committee refers to the fact, in contrast, that the German spies and agents who were caught red-handed blowing up ships during the war have long ago been set free, and that "scores of big war thieves who looted the government to the tune of hundreds of millions of dollars have not even been indicted."

Members of a committee representing some 50 labor, civic and church organizations that recently called on the president and presented to him a mammoth petition on behalf of these prisoners, went away with the impression that all the cases would be reviewed within 60 days under a general policy that all except those who had advocated the overthrow of the government would be released. As there were no prisoners under this category, it was supposed that all must go free. Now however the administration has taken the stand that only the cases of those who personally apply for clemency will be considered. This will leave the majority behind the bars.

A list of political prisoners, with the terms of their sentences and an appeal for help in securing their release has been issued by the committee, whose address is 233 Maryland Bldg, Washington. This publication is entitled Set the Political Prisoners Free.

Plank Heads Connecticut Ticket

The Workers Party of Connecticut in State Convention assembled, in New Haven, Sunday August 27, put up the following slate of officials for the General Elections to take place November 7th: Governor John Plank, Hartford; Lieutenant Governor Otto Buroning, New Haven; Secretary of State Mary Dworkin, Bridgeport; Treasurer, Simon Feldman, Bridgeport; Comptroller, Isidor Spector, New Haven, and U. S. Senator Konrade Losk.

Konrade Losk, treasurer of the State campaign committee stated that they intend to raise a campaign fund by issuing subscription lists. These lists will be issued to all the Workers Party Branches and to all the Trade Unions in Connecticut.

He also stated that they intended to start a gigantic open air campaign thru the state in behalf of the elections.

The securing of signatures for the independent certificate of nomination petitions will be a dominant part of the Party activity during the next two months.

The Party delegates at the convention were assured that the securing of the 3000 signatures necessary for the petitions would be accomplished.

McDonald Heads Jersey Ticket

The state convention of the Workers Party of New Jersey assembled in the Labor Lyceum of Newark Saturday, August 26, nominated the following state officials: Governor, Martin R. McDonald; U. S. Senator, Louis Wolf.

Edward F. Scott, state campaign manager for the Party stated that he intends to start state tours for the two candidates.

Subscription lists issued to all the Workers Party Branches and Labor Unions in New Jersey will be the means of securing a campaign fund.

The Convention was unanimous in its decision to do everything in its power to defeat the purpose of the capitalist parties such as the Democratic and Republican Parties and to show up the parties that claim to represent the workers, such as the Socialist and Farmer-Labor Parties.

DANCE IN THE BRONX

The Bronx Campaign Committee of the Workers Party has arranged a dance to be held at Workers Hall, 1347 Boston Road, the Bronx, Saturday evening, Oct. 14, the proceeds to be used for the Workers Party Campaign Fund. Admission will be 35 cents in advance and 50 cents at the door.

MINNEAPOLIS.—As one means of raising funds to aid the striking shopmen a series of ball games are on the program of organized labor in the Twin Cities.

The division of the organized workers into craft unions is one of the great obstacles to the progress of the workers of this country in the struggle against capitalism.

"Proletarians of All Countries, Unite!"

The Russians are doing many things for the first time. Thus they are now exhibiting their goods at a west European fair for the first time since the Soviet regime came into power.

This interesting event is taking place at Koenigsberg, Germany, where a small pavilion is filled with goods from all parts of Russia.

"There are exquisite embroideries, precious stones from the Urals which were polished at the government works at Petrograd, beautiful inlaid boxes, and all kinds of raw goods," reports the correspondent of the New York Evening Post.

Then this correspondent continues to review other exhibits of rugs, furs, hides and an interesting collection of herbs for medicinal purposes.

But what struck him as peculiarly interesting was an exhibit consisting of a frame made of 60 different kinds of wood, with the inscription, "Proletarians of All Countries, Unite!"

The correspondent failed to recognize in this a reprehensible piece of Bolshevist propaganda. Probably he left that to the European kept press.

There are many things that are being done for the first time by the Soviet regime. But among these efforts we do not find the struggle of Russia's workers to awaken slumbering labor in other lands. From the first day of its inception, and at every opportunity since, Soviet Rule in Russia has sent its appeal broadcast in myriad forms, "Proletarians of All Countries, Unite!"

The shopmen's strike has revealed that at Greybull, Wyo., 20 families were housed in car bodies. The Burlington Railroad ordered that the rebels be evicted from these tragic substitutes for homes.

The Day of Youth

This country will witness the first celebration of International Youth Day Sunday, September 3rd. Mass meetings and demonstrations for this day have been arranged in all the principal cities of the land under the direction of the Young Workers' League of America.

This is to be a day not so much of celebration as of mobilization for future and greater struggles.

Capitalism recognizes no difference, as between the young and the old, in its terrific assaults to beat down the standard of living of the workers.

It herds the young, as well as the old, into the mines, the mills and the factories to toil cruelly long hours at starvation wages.

The United States Supreme Court declares it constitutional to drive children of tender years out of the schools and into the workshops. The railroad labor board fixes a wage of 23 cents an hour, a pitifully small pittance for even an unmarried young man.

This "Day of Youth," September 3rd, will therefore be an effort on the part of the vanguard among the young workers to arouse and awaken the masses of toiling young men and women in this country, in common with a similar struggle being waged on this day in all the world's great nations.

Let this "Day of Youth" be a day of great preparation against the attacks of capitalism and to win the minds and support of the young to a realization and accomplishment of the tasks before them—the essential and preliminary step to the day of the workers' final struggle for power.

The street carmen of Buffalo, N. Y., have been out on strike for two months. The Chicago carmen won their strike in three days. But the latter went into the fight with a 100 per cent organization. Solidarity wins!

The Herrin Inquiry

The so-called "Herrin Massacre," at Herrin, Ill., June 21st to 22nd, was the cause of many shocks to the exploiters of labor. Other shocks are still due.

After two months' bombardment from the political hirelings of the vested interests from President Harding down, after continuous demands from Chambers of Commerce and Manufacturers' Associations thruout the land, a Special Grand Jury is finally on the job at Herrin, in the language of the New York Times, "to re-establish the supremacy of law and order in Williamson County."

The re-establishment of "law and order" is interpreted to mean the crucifixion of organized labor, in this case the Miners' Union. All the demands for "justice" uttered by the hypocritical yellow press, has been for "justice" for the strike-breakers lured to Herrin by the anti-union mine owners.

The young Circuit Judge of the Herrin district, Dewitt Talmadge Hartwell, delivered the first cold shudder to the kept press and its backers when he told the grand jurymen that there were two sets of killings to be investigated, the murder of the three union miners by strike guards at the Southern Illinois Coal Company plant, June 21, as well as the fate of the scabs.

"This is the first intimation that this feature of the situation would be taken up," wails the New York Times. "It has not been called for in any of the pleas for justice sent out. The union men were killed, it is said, when they approached the mine with a flag of truce."

The court, therefore, paved the way for the grand jury to indict the mine owners and their officials as being responsible for the death of the 19 strike breakers. The coroner's jury has already laid the blame at their door.

It would be fine retribution if the $25,000 fund raised by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, and the $5,000 that Attorney General Brundage is said to have advanced out of his own funds to push the Herrin investigation, resulted in the indictment of the real criminals, the mine owners, egged on in their labor-crushing, open shop campaign by the United States Steel Corporation.

We believe that that would be the first time "justice" has been given the semblance of a chance in these United States of America.

Help get those 25,000 new readers.

The End of [illegible]

When the cost of living [illegible] the workers with formulas for [illegible].

When rents go up and the [illegible] this same press waxes eloquent in [illegible] the resourceful worker who has turned [illegible] his family of nine in a tent on forbidden ground when the owner wasn't looking.

With the price of clothing playing [illegible] with the stars, this press also devotes considerable space telling how the wife of a worker can dress on $20 per year; how the whole family can be clothed for $99.99 during the same period.

The kept press does this because it knows there are [illegible] who believe it, else why do they continue buying and supporting these yellow journals?

The propaganda takes root in the fertile soil of ignorance. The worker is blinded to his own sad state and enlists in the [illegible] of 100 per cent Americans.

Now comes the American Bar Association, however, voicing the fear that the workers are prejudiced against the courts and the constitution, unhappy day. The Committee on American Ideals reported to its recent gathering in San Francisco that:

"Many of our people really believe that the constitution was intended as an aid to the rich and powerful, and that it affords unwarranted immunities to the railroads and other great corporations, and is an instrument of oppression to the poor."

If the masses of the people believe that, they believe correctly, as every honest lawyer knows. But the American Bar Association isn't made up of lawyers who worry about the workers, any more than the kept press worries about the men, women and children of labor getting wholesome food, a decent place to live in and clothes fit to wear.

The property defending American Bar Association members thereupon urge the recommendation of Chief Justice "Bill the Fat" Taft that:

"Every newspaper and magazine establish a 'Department of American Citizenship' to promote faith in the institutions which are functioning so admirably in the interests of the people."

When a coal miner gets shot up by a militiaman, give him a copy of the New York Times with the "Department of American Citizenship" marked with a blue pencil.

When railroad workers are thrown into jail for contempt of court for disobeying some anti-strike injunction, just slip them a few copies of the Saturday Evening Post with a George Horace Lorimer editorial on "Have Faith in Our Institutions."

When radicals are being framed and sent to the gallows, just hand labor one of Arthur Brisbane's full-page lay-outs, cartoon and article, from any of the Hearst Sunday papers, under the glaring headline, "In the Interests of the People." The Hearst paper in San Francisco was among those that screamed the loudest for the blood of Tom Mooney.

The propaganda of the kept press has been powerful. But it is losing its strength. The bringing up of this question in the lawyers' convention is most convincing testimony. Two great labor organizations, that of the miners and railroad shopmen, have conducted nation-wide wars, for the first time in their histories, against Wall Street's attack on the standard of living of their members.

The day is past when the workers can be made to believe that the courts mete out justice to rich and poor alike. They are thru with that illusion. Bitter experience has awakened them. The realities of the everyday struggle constitute too effective an antidote for the chloroform of the kept press, the American Bar Association and similar organizations for the preservation of capitalist oppression. The end of their day is in sight.

More thousands daily join those already awake to the real nature of the struggle that must be waged for the emancipation of the working class everywhere.

Let the yellow Socialists hurry up and protest against the brutal United States' inspired treatment of revolutionists in Guatamala, where, "Twelve rebels were summarily executed and their heads exhibited to the people as a warning against any further attempts at rebellion." But they won't budge.

Prepare for Real Labor Day

This is the time of year when the reactionary officials of labor are busy sending out their "Labor Day Messages" for the celebration of the legalized Labor Day, Monday, September 4. These are mostly published in the capitalist press.

Altho labor is fighting with its back to the wall on the railroads, and in spite of the fact that the coal mine struggle continues in the anthracite fields, and the textile strike is still on, Samuel Gompers, in his message talks about the "magnificent victory" of the workers.

Gompers says that labor has only accepted an average reduction in wages of five per cent, and the "magnificent victory" consists of the fact that it wasn't much more. The A. F. of L. has lost one million members. According to Gompers' viewpoint, it is lucky it didn't lose two million.

While the reactionary officialdom of labor, therefore, has nothing to congratulate itself upon on Labor Day, this year, the membership of labor may well remember this season, 1922, because it witnessed the holding of the first conference of the Trade Union Educational League.

The gathering of the militant forces of labor, and the drawing up of definite programs for making labor progress, marks a new and brighter epoch in the history of America's working-class movement.

"We are struggling for the perpetuation of our glorious institutions, for the Republic that we love so well," declares Gompers. Did he not have in mind the child-enslaving supreme court, the labor-crushing senate and house of representatives, the labor-hating president and his cabinet, and the army and other forces of the Republic that are hurled against striking labor at every opportunity?

Gompers' particular brand of buncombe will be less and less effective as the workers ally themselves more and more with the definite and upward struggle under the direction of the Trade Union Educational League.

Unceasing effort during the next eight months should result in the building of a powerful Trade Union Educational League upon the foundations laid in Chicago.

Then the working men and women of this country can find real satisfaction in celebrating a real holiday of the workers, International Labor Day, May 1, 1923, in common with the toiling masses thruout the entire world.

Mayor Lunn, renegade "Socialist," now democratic mayor of Schenectady, N. In the same issue of the New York Times, [illegible] the coal miners and railroad [illegible] nation-wide 'industrial unions' of [illegible]. [illegible] Washington was the source of [illegible] anti-Soviet [illegible] of slander and falsehood, [illegible] emanating from Harding's executive mansion, from Hughes' department of state and Hoover's department of the interior, with such aid as they could get from the department of justice, but also from Gompers' offices in the headquarters building of the American Federation of Labor.

The Soviet representative, Martens, was deported, and Bakhmeteff proclaimed as long as was possible, the true spokesman of Russia.

We find that of late Soviet Russia has not been troubling itself very much about the friendship or enmity of this country.

She has [illegible] turned her attention from this hostile western world to the Far East, making her preparations for the approaching Far Eastern conference with China and Japan.

The attitude of Soviet Russia towards China and the other secondary powers in Asia is to be found in an article that has just appeared in Izvestia, official Soviet organ, at Moscow, which declares:

> "We alone are their friends, for we are no longer imperialist, no longer [illegible] policy of aggression that is the [illegible]. The other great powers still pursue the same methods that led to the great European war. However pacific their intentions, they will follow a policy of exploitation which will either reduce such nations as China to servitude or provoke conflicts by mutual rivalry. Russia today is America's greatest rival in China because Young China—new China—realizes that Russia alone does not want to control China, but merely to help her work out her own salvation."

Walter Duranty, in a wireless to the New York Times, says the Soviet policy in China will be the same as that applied so successfully to the Persian problem, when Soviet Russia won Persia away from England. The Bolsheviki said to the Persians:

> "We don't want your territory, and don't wish to abridge your freedom. The money questions between you and Russia we wipe off the slate. The railroad and telegraph lines and other concessions paid for with Russian money we hand over to you unconditionally."

The Far Eastern Conference will be Soviet Russia's answer to Harding's Washington Conference with its Four-Power Treaty for imperialist domination of the Pacific.

It did not need Tchong-huin, ambassador of the Peking (China) government at Moscow, to warn the capitalist world to watch closely the Far Eastern Conference. They will do that without asking.

Soviet Russia is not in love with Japan. But if she can get recognition from and trade relations with Japan, where it is denied by the United States, she will take it.

This does not mean that the workers of this country should cease in their demands upon Washington for definite and favorable action. The developments in the Far East will give them an added argument in their efforts towards this end.

Will the red flag of a Soviet Embassy fly in Tokio before it is raised in Washington, D. C.? The answer is in your hands, Workers of America!

The Negro Worker

We speak of the native Indians as being the wards of the American people, but the Negroes, since the Civil War, have been considered not only as the wards, but as the private property of the Republican Party.

Thus it is reported that 5,000 Knights Templars, colored, just the other day, marched in parade past the White House, where President Harding, republican, reviewed them. On the preceding day a parade of Negro Shriners likewise passed the Washington home of the President, with many bands and dazzling display of uniforms.

President Harding's overwhelming majority in 1920 was swelled by the votes of many Negroes. So the kept press should have been grateful and responded in the usual way. But this didn't happen.

Our correspondent reports that on both occasions no photographs or moving pictures were taken by the camera men stationed at the White House. These spectacles will not be broadcasted to the newspaper readers and movie fans of the land.

The photographers gave the explanation. No newspaper will buy pictures of negro organizations, no matter how interesting they may be. Even the pictures of individual negroes are discriminated against.

One photographer told of the incident of a Chicago Negro securing from the U. S. Treasury the first charter for a Negro bank in the federal reserve system. "We took his picture and offered it to our clients," he said. "My circuit includes one hundred big papers. Not one would touch it."

We urge the Negro workers to study this inconsistency. They will find that the solution is very simple.

The ruling class, with its exploiters and its political parties, is willing to use the Negro for its own purposes. It is willing to accept the Negro vote on election day, it heralds the Negro as an upright American citizen when he is willing to scab during strike times, it gladly transports thousands of Negroes great distances, from the South to the North, to be used in the bitter war upon the workers' standard of living.

But at no time will the exploiting class retreat one inch in its efforts to oppress the Negro workers more ruthlessly than any other labor group. An hypocritical press, secret societies, such as the terroristic Ku Klux Klan, and race prejudice that extends even into the ranks of organized labor, are weapons to keep the Negro in subjection.

The Negro will not solve his problems by organizing into bourgeois fraternal societies and marching in celebration before the Presidential Mansion at Washington. These organizations are of no use to the white worker. They cannot help his black brother.

The Negro worker must cast his lot entirely with the workers of all races and all nationalities. He must enlist with its most advanced section.

The Workers Party will support the Negroes in their struggle for liberation and will help them in their fight for economic, political and social equality.

It will seek to end the policy of discrimination followed by the more conservative elements in the labor unions.

It will endeavor to destroy altogether the barrier of race prejudice that has been used to keep apart the black and white workers, and to weld them into a solid union for the struggle against the capitalists, who oppress and exploit them.

Negroes! Join the Workers Party! Build up your workers' organizations! Unite with all workers, of all races and nationalities, for the victory of the working class!

[illegible] Diary

Sunday—Very quiet day; have been raided only three times.

Monday—Beaten up and arrested; beaten up and released; beaten up and deported.

Tuesday—Arrested on a charge of murder, jailed for felonious assault, tried for grand larceny and imprisoned for bigamy.

Wednesday—Will be kept in jail until some charge is discovered against me.

Thursday—Released. Nothing exciting. Have been deported from four more states to-day.

Friday—10 o'clock, arrested for talking; 11 o'clock, arrested for keeping still.

Saturday—Ain't we got fun? Given a free ride thru five different states; welcomed with open arms, carried by sheriffs and state cossacks; gently escorted from state to state. "My country, 'tis of thee; sweet land of liberty" . . .

IV

Leisinger, Benny (President of the I. L. G. W. U.—Intersocialistic Lying, Gossiping, Wearisome Union.)

Liesinger for his exquisite he-singing has become an important factor in the developement of the pseudo-socialistic industry in this country. He is the industry's head, Gompers's right hand, and Cahansky's pocketbook. He is so loyal to the working class that he'd give the very sleeves off his vest for the movement. Gompers hasn't many such faithful serfs in the Federation, that's why he's sending this one on exhibition to Britain. Benny has a wonderful future in front of him. If he lives ninety-nine more years he'll be a very noted man—noted for his old age.

BOLOGMS ENCYCLOPEDIA

(Independent, irresistible, irrepressible.)

American Labor Party—organization devoted to the practice of boxing, usage of strong epithets and development of vocal strength.

Perpetual Oppositionist—an individual more marxian than Marx himself was.

Damnocrat—three categories of men:
a) one who has money and brains;
b) one who has money and no brains;
c) one who has no money and no brains.

American Federation of Labor—a mutual aid society between capitalists and union leaders.

Q E D

Talking about the coming elections, I like the story about the I. W. W. and the Republican politician.

An I. W. W. was once confronted by a G. O. P. politician who tried to persuade him to vote his ticket.

"I really can't see for the life of me why an intelligent man like you should be a member of the Industrial Workers of the World."

"Well, you see," replied the Wobblie, "my father was clever enough to be an I. W. W., my grandfather was an I. W. W., hence, I'm one."

"That's no reason at all," protested the politician. "Let us for a moment assume that your grandfather and your father were crooks. What would you then be?"

"Oh, in that case I'd be a Republican." . . .

BEYOND THE HORIZON

In the highest place of Communist Society, after the disappearance of the enslavement of man caused by his subjection to the principle of the division of labor; when, together with this, the opposition between brain and manual work shall have disappeared; when labor shall have ceased to be a mere means of supporting life and will itself have become one of the first necessities of life; when, with the all-round development of the individual, the productive forces, too, will have grown to maturity, and all the forces of social wealth will be pouring forth in an uninterrupted torrent,—only then will it be possible wholly to pass beyond the narrow horizon of bourgeois laws, and only then will it be possible for Society to inscribe on its banners: "From each according to his ability; to each according to his needs."—Marx.

Demand the General Strike!

Flood A. F. of L. Executive Council Now Meeting at Atlantic City With Tidal Wave of Telegrams

Workers of the United States! Demand the General Strike! Insist on the use of this powerful working-class weapon, NOW. Push your laggard leaders into action in the uncompromising war your oppressors have declared against you.

Workers of the United States! Thru the General Strike you must come to aid of your militant brothers, fighting the fight of their lives on the railroads of the nation.

The fight of the railroad shopmen is your fight. The crushing of their organization will be followed by the smashing of your union. If the open shop war of the capitalist dictatorship triumphs in the railroad shops, your job will suffer the next assault of the strikebreaker and the gunman, in or out of uniform, bent on decreasing your wages, lengthening your workday and breaking down hard-won conditions you have established to protect your life and your happiness.

The dictatorship of dollars has spoken thru its judicial tool, Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, of Chicago.

This judicial tyrant, Wilkerson, was put on the bench as the successor of the late Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, who was so profuse in handing out 20-year prison sentences to working-class spokesmen. Landis has a worthy successor in Wilkerson, one who will serve capitalism equally well.

Judge Wilkerson, at the behest of Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, has issued an injunction that puts spikes in the club with which the railroad owners' Harding administration at Washington expects to herd the railroad workers like slaves back to the jobs they left, July 1st, protesting like free men against the dehumanizing conditions the Railroad "Labor" Board was seeking to inflict upon them.

The Wilkerson-Daugherty edict, back of which stands the organized money power of this, the richest nation on earth, seeks to gag, blind, straight-jacket and shackle the railroad workers' struggle.

Efforts to prevent the desertion from the strikers' ranks is forbidden; use of strike funds to feed the sick and the hungry, even women and children, is denied; picketing to inform ignorant workers of the crime of scabbing is under the ban; communication between strikers and their officials is cut off; all publicity of the righteousness of the strikers' cause, thru mass meetings, newspapers and circulars is prohibited, in fact, this judicial decree practically forbids the shopmen continuing their strike against their bosses.

While these simple rights are denied the railroad strikers, no curb is put upon the railroad capitalists. These profiteers in transportation, thru their kept press, are permitted to misrepresent and slander the strikers' cause; they are allowed to recruit their armies of scabs and thugs from the slums of the nation's great cities; thru their strike-breaking agencies, they are given every freedom to lure uninformed, helpless workers, members of the nation's great jobless army, to the work places deserted in protest by their brothers.

In aid of the railroad capitalists, 5,000 [illegible] bloodhounds in human shape as United States Deputy [illegible] track and jail violators of the Wilkerson-Daugherty decree.

The shams of democracy are thrown upon the scrap heap. No attempt is made to hide behind the hypocricy of "representative government." The national congress and the state legislatures are as much ignored as the mouldy and rotting safeguards of "liberty" to be found in the Declaration of Independence and the Federal and State Constitutions. The savage, grinning, self-confident tyranny of America's plutocracy is in the saddle. It rides roughshod, beating down all opposition. Whether it rides for a fall depends upon the solidarity of labor. What is the counter-attack of labor to be?

Workers of the United States! The solution of this problem is in your hands. No one else is going to solve it for you.

You have allowed your ranks to remain divided. You fight in isolated squads and platoons, not as one united, disciplined army.

The coal miners came out alone on April 1st, just as the textile workers had gone on strike earlier in the year; just as the steel workers came out alone, fought alone and lost because the dollars of the steel trust were better organized, more united.

So on July 1st only seven instead of 16 railroad organizations came out on strike. The others remained on the job to scab.

In the words of William Z. Foster, uttered before the Chicago Federation of Labor only last Sunday, the $25,000-a-year leadership in the railroad unions is continually playing into the hands of the one big union of capitalism.

An increasing number of workers is awakening to the insanity of such defeatists tactics. In their local unions and central labor bodies they have adopted resolutions demanding a General Strike of all labor in the present crisis. They have rushed these demands to the headquarters of the American Federation of Labor at Washington.

Samuel Gompers admits that the flood of demands for a general strike during the past two months has been greater than at any time in all the history of American labor.

He has called a meeting of the executive council [illegible] upon the leadership by the mass of workers it is supposed to lead.

The kept press is happy because the workers of this country, organized into the American Federation of Labor, cannot force this central body of theirs to act. The power to act lies in the international unions, they say, and the international unions in even one industry, on the railroads, do not act together.

Mr. Gompers says he is opposed to the General Strike. He declares his position is the same today as it was in 1894, when he led the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. to Chicago to help break the strike of the American Railway Union, by preventing its spread to other crafts.

But Mr. Gompers confesses the flood of demands for a General Strike is rising. He has called a meeting of the Executive Council to talk it over. It is for you, the Workers of the United States, to say whether that Executive Council will do more than talk.

It isn't enough to say that the American Federation of Labor is not organized for the purpose of calling, and that it hasn't the power to call a General Strike of the millions of workers belonging to the organizations affiliated with it.

You, the Workers of the United States, taught by the bitter experiences of the last few years, realize that the loss of the railroaders' fight means your own defeat. You must demand action instead of phrases.

Many an army in battle has been forced to radically re-organize its forces, even to change its leadership in the midst of the struggle, in order to achieve the victory that would otherwise be impossible.

That is the issue before American labor today. The American Dollar Dictatorship has challenged you, the Workers of the United States. It has challenged you to a death struggle. Will you, Workers, go into that struggle to win, or will you suffer ignominious defeat, see your organizations battered and broken, see your columns smashed beyond recuperation for many years?

You want victory for labor in this struggle. You [illegible] organized labor to grow and make greater progress for the working men and women of this country.

SEND IN YOUR DEMAND!

Then send in your demand, BY TELEGRAM, NOW, for the GENERAL STRIKE OF ALL AMERICAN LABOR, to the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, now meeting at the Hotel Ambassador, Atlantic City, N. J.

Do not write, TELEGRAPH. If your organization does not meet during the next few days, send in a demand from the working group in your shop, your factory, your mill, your mine. Get the workers together around their benches, at their work places. Talk this matter over, seriously, deliberately. Get behind this mighty effort.

Mr. Gompers has admitted he has been flooded with demands for a General Strike.

Workers of the United States! Make that flood a tidal wave during this meeting of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor.

DOWN WITH THE DOLLAR DICTATORSHIP!
FORWARD TO THE GENERAL STRIKE!
HAIL THE UNITY OF ALL LABOR!
HAIL THE VICTORY OF ALL WORKERS!

Demand That All Workers Strike Grows

The demand for a general strike of all labor is not only being heard, but is also being acted on for the first time in the history of labor's struggle in this country.

This growing spirit of solidarity is the result of the "United Front Campaign" waged by the Workers Party for the past six months, even before the coal miners went out on strike April 1st.

The Workers Party appealed first to the railroad workers to come to the assistance of the striking miners and when the rail strike began showed the disastrous policy of some of the railroad organizations going on strike while others remained at work.

"Urge All Labor Strike!" was the headline in the August 12th issue of The Worker, telling of the beginning of the flood of general strike resolutions upon the head-

Communist Party Addresses Manifesto to Workers of America Explaining Stand in Struggle Against Barbarous Persecution

THE WORKER has received a "Manifesto of the Communist Party of America" addressed "To the Workers of the United States," explaining the stand of the Communist Party in the struggle against the barbarous persecution to which it is being subjected. The manifesto is as follows:

MANIFESTO OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY OF AMERICA

To the Workers of the United States:

Barbarous persecution is today being directed against Communists and all those whom it suits the Department of Justice to call Communists. In the eyes of the Attorney General, every one who is "red," every one who is a "radical," every one who is class-conscious and takes his part in the class struggle in a conscientious manner, every trade unionist who refuses to betray the interests of the workers, is a Communist.

This is the "legal" basis for the arrest of Ruthenberg, Dunne and their fifteen brother workers at Bridgeman, Michigan. This only is the "legal" basis for the arrest of William Z. Foster.

Turn to Workers of America

It is only on such a "legal" basis that agents of the Department of Justice have arrested fifteen other workers at the convention of the Trade Union Educational League in Chicago.

This always is the only "legal" basis, and is now again the only "legal" basis for the issuance of forty more warrants for the arrest of the workers who are charged with having attended an

Dunne and Lambkin Freed on Bail; Seek Release of Others

William F. Dunne, labor editor of The Worker, and Cyril Lambkin, of Detroit, Mich., were the only two among the 15 arrested at Bridgeman, Mich., to have been released on bail as this issue went to press.

Every effort was being made from Detroit, Mich., Chicago and New York City to secure bail for the others.

"The legal defense is well under way," reports Attorney David J. Bentall, of Chicago. "The preliminary hearing will be held September 8."

The court refused to reduce bail, set at $10,000 for each prisoner, until after the preliminary hearing.

Protest meetings are being held or planned in all sections of the country. One of the first of these was held in New York City with Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, of the Workers' Defense Union; Norman Thomas, editor of The Nation; Roger Baldwin, secretary of the Civil Liberties Union, and J. Louis Engdahl, editor of The Worker, as speakers.

Chicago is planning a big meeting with William Z. Foster and William F. Dunne as the speakers.

The Last of the Invaders

The daily press reports in a few lines, publishing an Associated Press dispatch from Tokio, that the Japanese military evacuation of Siberia is finally being carried out.

Thus does the last of the defeated invaders of the First Workers' Republic take its ignominous departure.

It is significant that Japan, even at the moment that she is withdrawing her troops from Red territory, is planning to meet with the representatives of Soviet Russia and the Red Republic of the Far East, at which the latter will insist on political recognition as well as the opening of trade relations.

The Russo-Japanese negotiations will be carried on at Changchunfu, Siberia, and the workers and peasants of Russia and Siberia will be represented by the same delegation, Adolph Joffe, envoy of the Moscow government, and Jacoby Anson, foreign minister of the Chita government.

Joffe and Anson come from Moscow and Chita, capitols of the social revolution in Europe and Asia, both speaking the aspirations of Soviet Rule.

The kept press is also practically ignoring the fact that France has appointed a special mission, not to "investigate" Soviet Russia, but to negotiate a trade treaty. Thus does Imperialist France, leader of the capitalist war against working-class Russia, also succumb.

Only the United States stands aloof, arrogant and threatening. But, it, too, will be forced to recognize Soviet Russia, thru the achievements of the Russian workers and peasants, if not because of the demand of the American working class.

Ben Gitlow Goes Back to Prison

Thursday, August [illegible], Ben Gitlow was taken to the Tombs, New York City, to continue his sentence — minimum five years, maximum ten years, of which he has served two years. Gitlow has been out on bail about four months and during that period worked untiringly participating in every phase of activity in the Workers Party as well as taking a hand in every fight that faced the workers in the various industries.

He spoke before the striking textile workers, the railroad workers and miners. He had a message for the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, the Cloakmakers, the Furriers and helped considerably to organize a live branch of the Trade Union Educational League in New York.

Readers of THE WORKER will remember his excellent articles on the conventions that he attended of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers at Chicago and the Furriers' Union at Philadelphia.

He went back to prison more con-

[illegible] in Pawtuxet Valley

For more than seven full months 8,000 cotton mill workers, men and women, and children, have been on strike in the Pawtuxet Valley of Rhode Island. They left their work on January 23, in protest against a 20 per cent wage reduction and the 54-hour week. Barely a year before they had suffered a cut of 12½ per cent.

Under the second big reduction the average wage in the Rhode Island cotton mills would have been $14 a week. The reduction, followed later by cuts in other cotton manufacturing centers of New England, was part of the highly organized effort of the rich mill owners and the bankers behind them to liquidate labor and return to conditions worse than before the war. With a starvation "family wage" and long hours of labor the workers would have been reduced to actual serfdom.

In the city of Lawrence, Mass., some of the struck mills have offered terms which the workers have been able to accept—terms which comprise practical victory for the workers. In the PAWTUXET VALLEY the manufacturers have made no offer of any kind; they have rejected all arbitration and all discussion, and seem hell-bent upon crushing their employes down into slavery.

The workers in the Pawtuxet Valley of Rhode Island were on strike for two months before the strike in Lawrence began. These workers were the first to go on strike against the wage cut. If the strike is lost in Pawtuxet Valley any temporary victories that may be won in other centers will be vitiated. The Lawrence settlement involves a revision of wages at the end of the year, and this revision will largely depend on the outcome of the Rhode Island strike.

Last February the Amalgamated Textile Workers of America organized the workers in the Pawtuxet Valley, and has since been conducting the strike. Eleven strike restaurants are now in operation in various mill villages, and many families evicted from company houses have been cared for. Tent colonies have been established.

To carry on this work requires money. To win this strike we shall need the hearty support of all friends of organized labor who recognize the principle involved in this greatest of all textile class struggles. The textile strike is of no less importance than the miners' and the shopmen's strikes, and has been on longer. It is of more importance in one sense, because victory for the textile strikers will give wonderful impetus to organization—something which textile workers have had little of.

Will you answer the call of these poverty-stricken workers — lowest paid of all industries — who have been fighting valiantly for 32 weeks against some of the most powerful corporations in the country? Give all you can! Give at once! Help us disappoint the exploiters who expect to lull us with false hopes and so defeat us in the end. Make victory sure for all the textile strikers! Give!

All Measures Bolshevistic

LOS ANGELES.—The Better America Federation is out with a new pamphlet before election attacking all the "democratic" measures.

"We believe that public ownership and public control of business is socialistic and bolshevistic in tendency and can only result in the destruction of personal initiative," is one of its gems.

"Direct legislation is developing in the minds of the people a spirit of dependence on the state that is healthy neither for themselves nor for the government," is another. The direct primary, the initiative, referendum and recall are all assailed.

German "Sociali[illegible] Suppresses Communist Daily for Attacking Monarchists

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

(European Director, Federated Press)

BERLIN.—A political sensation of considerable magnitude has been furnished the German public by the suppression, for three weeks, beginning August 19, of the Rote Fahne, organ of the Communist party of Germany.

The order was given by the Prussian minister of the interior, Severing, who is a leader in the Majority Socialist party, despite the assurance of the German minister of justice, Dr. Radbruch, given before the Reichstag at the time the law for the defense of the Republic was passed, to the effect, that the law, if passed, would not be applied to parties of the left.

It was signed, moreover, under pressure of the Bavarian government, of all the federated states of Germany, has done more to discredit and permit flagrant violation of the law for the defense of the republic than any other state.

The edict forbidding publication came three weeks after the alleged offense with which the Rote Fahne is charged, was committed.

Hit Bavarian Monarchists

That offense consisted in accusing members of the Bavarian government of treason. It consisted further in publishing an attack of the Communist International at Moscow upon the Socialist party, a number of whose members are in the government.

According to Severing's department, the launching of attacks upon the Majority Socialist party was tantamount to inciting disrespect of Socialist members of the government and therefore of the government itself.

As regards the charge of having violated the law in denouncing members of the Bavarian government as traitors, the Rote Fahne has compiled a number of utterances from Majority and Independent Socialist sources in which these papers used fully as emphatic language regarding the Bavarian government as did the communist paper. Yet none of these was suppressed.

Prediction Comes True

The Rote Fahne therefore draws the conclusion that the real reason for the action was that there is an effort under way to suppress the communist press as such.

Vorwärts, organ of the Majority Socialists, and Freiheit, organ of the Independents, were quick to see the stupidity of the order. Both point out that the communists now have every right to say, "I told you so," since they predicted at the time the law for the defense of the republic was passed, that it would be used against the working class. They also call attention to the fact that the communists now have an excellent theme for agitation among the masses.

Protests from Workers

That their reasoning is correct, may be seen from the fact that on the very day on which the order against the Rote Fahne was made public, eight simultaneous mass meetings were held in Berlin alone, in which protest resolutions were adopted. From a number of factories, too, protests have been sent thru the works councils, the signatures in many cases being one communist, one majority socialist, and one independent.

Gunmen Victimize Scabs, Too

MINOT, N. D.—High wages are being paid to strikebreakers in the railroad shops here. But their enjoyment of it is brief. Having little opportunity of amusing themselves outside the shops because of their unpopularity with the townspeople and fearing collisions with stray bricks that are apt to fall from anonymous windows, they spend their off hours playing poker.

Inasmuch as the railroad gunmen who are guarding the shops are almost invariably the best players, the strike-breakers go to their cots with nothing ahead but more work.

Printers Demand New Trial

BOSTON.—In a message addressed to Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, Typographical Union No. 3 of St. Louis pledges the aid of labor in the battle for a new trial for these condemned workers.

What Will the Workers of New York Do for Defense?

Ben Gitlow is back in prison.

Bill Dunne, C. E. Ruthenberg, Tom O'Flaherty, of New York, are held in Michigan.

Minnie Kalnin, Anna Leisman are in Auburn prison.

Paul Manko is at the Criminal Insane Asylum at Dannemora.

Mizher, Paivio and Alonen are in jail.

19 comrades outside New York are being held.

Now is the time to show your colors.

Two Mooney Jurors Paid $1,300 Each to Give Death Verdict

SAN FRANCISCO.—That the verdict that was to send Tom Mooney to his death upon the gallows for his activities in behalf of organized labor in San Francisco was in part paid for, is the substance of a charge made by C. Vincent Riccardi, ex-jury fixer, and member of San Francisco's frameup ring.

Riccardi charges that two of the jurors were paid and that the price was in the neighborhood of $1,300.

The two jurors charged by Riccardi with having accepted a bribe to guarantee a death sentence for Tom Mooney were John Barzini, retired vegetable dealer, and William O. Banks, architect.

quarters of the American Federation of Labor at Washington.

The first "General Strike" resolution was adopted by the Central Labor Union of Omaha, Neb., July 12. This resolution was published in full. Every labor union throughout the country was urged to take similar action. And, according to the report of Samuel Gompers, at Washington, the flood has continued to grow and rise.

Recent reports state that striking railroad shopmen of the Pennsylvania and the Philadelphia and Reading Railroads, at Philadelphia, passed resolutions, a copy of which was sent to Samuel Gompers, urging him to aid in calling a general strike as a result of the injunction issued against the shopmen.

Knoxville, Tenn., Heard From

The Knoxville, Tenn., Central Labor Union, comprising all labor unions of the city, demanded that Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, authorize a nation-wide strike vote of all crafts.

Commenting on the action, officials said all labor organizations were threatened if the railroads were allowed to break the shopmen's unions.

vinced and more determined that the only position for the class conscious worker is the militant position, the waging of an open battle with the capitalist class.

Judge Brandeis refused to grant a writ of error and referred the matter to the full bench of the Supreme Court of the United States whose next sitting will take place in October.

Should the Supreme Court admit the possibility of an error, then Ben Gitlow will be let out on bail pending the appeal to the Supreme Court. If that fails, he remains in jail.

Ben Gitlow is one of a very small number in the American labor movement who has sacrificed for the movement and is ready to go on sacrificing. It is now the turn of the workers to contribute for his defense and help carry thru the fight to the Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON.—From his cell in San Quentin prison Tom Mooney has sent $10 to aid in the effort of the various civic, religious and labor organizations seeking the release of wartime political prisoners. There are still 76 of these men in federal jails serving aggregate sentences of 800 years under the free speech section of the espionage law, though the law was suspended 18 months ago.

Italian Meeting in Brooklyn

The Italian Branch, Workers Party, will hold a meeting Monday, Sept. 11, at 5.30 p. m., in Amalgamated Temple, 1127 Arion Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.

[illegible]"

When one of Colorado's junkers, heading the state militia in one of that state's numerous wars upon its workers, was told that he was violating the constitution, state and national, he quickly "met the situation" by declaring, "To Hell with the Constitution."

Colorado still lives up to that reputation in the [illegible] and deportation of William Z. Foster, as is clearly shown by a local lawyer, Carle Whitehead, in a letter to Governor Shoup, in which he and Adjutant General Hamrock are charged with five definite unconstitutional acts. The letter sent to the governor is in part as follows:

Letter to the Governor

"Adj. Gen.' Patrick Hamrock caused William Z. Foster to be 'forcibly run out of Denver and Colorado' and his literature 'confiscated' because he is 'undesirable.' No warrant for search, seizure or arrest was issued.

"The Constitution of the United States provides that 'The right of the people to be secure in their PERSONS, houses, PAPERS and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated: and no warrant shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.' Section 7, Colorado Constitution, gives the same guaranty.

"The Constitution of the United States protects the right of free speech, free press and free assemblage.

"Colorado Constitution, Section 10, provides 'That every person shall be free to speak, write or publish whatever he will on any subject, being responsible for all abuse of that liberty' (responsible in proceeding for libel or slander).

"Colorado Constitution, Section 24, provides 'That the people have the right peaceably to assemble for the common good and to apply to those invested with the powers of government for redress of grievances, by petition or remonstrance.'

"When you and 'General' Hamrock took office, each of you SWORE BEFORE GOD TO SUPPORT THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES AND OF THE STATE OF COLORADO.

"You and your Adjutant General have, for a long time —

"Prevented by armed force peaceable assemblage of the people.

"Prevented by armed force freedom of speech.

"Prevented by armed force the freedom of the press.

"By armed force and without warrant or process of law, have seized men and deprived them of their liberty.

"By armed force and without warrant or process of law have searched persons and their homes, and seized their papers and effects.

"The Declaration of Independence (our first 'fundamental document') declares that 'all experience hath shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But, when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right—it is their duty—to throw off such government and to provide new guards for their future security.'

"Think it over.

Yours very truly

"CARLE WHITEHEAD."

To all of which the Governor and Adjutant General reply —

"Oh, Hell!"

Because the workers sleep.

British Communist Party Exposes Real Splitters

An important resolution has been passed by the Executive of the Communist Party of Great Britain.

The resolution says that the Executive, "having considered the decisions of the Edinburgh Conference of the Labor Party, and recognizing in them an attempt on the part of the bourgeois elements in the Labor Party to eliminate the revolutionary expression of the working class, is determined to combat this attempt and accordingly upholds its policy of claiming affiliation to, and working within, the Labor Party."

For this purpose, as an expression of the sincerity of its wish to maintain solidarity with the organized movement, the Executive has decided to withdraw all candidates running in opposition to official Labor Party candidates; and accordingly has instructed all its members on local Labor parties and similar organizations to resist any attack upon their representative rights as delegates from working class organizations.

[illegible]

Our [illegible] White Terror against the [illegible] of the country.

All [illegible] agreed that the wreck on the Michigan Central [illegible] the death of the engineer and the fireman was due to the use of a defective engine.

Not so the [illegible]. They all [illegible] to the illusion, profitable to them, that strikers had deliberately caused the wreck. Arrests quickly followed, originally 10, then six and now we are told that three striking shopmen are held, Charles Uselis, Joseph Popaunich and Albino Alesso.

The brutal third degree, blows, kicks, curses, the torment of not being allowed to sleep, more foul language, blinding light poured into tired eyes, all the fiendish tortures invented by diabolical minds, all this was used to get the desired "confession."

Even the New York Times is forced to publish the declaration of Paul Glaser, Gary, Ind., attorney, representing the three strikers arrested, that they are innocent, but they had been so abused by the police that they would have admitted anything.

Attorney Glaser told the court that the men arrested had been unmercifully beaten, that the confessions were wrung from them by force and that they would repudiate the confessions. He charged the whole affair with being a frame-up to discredit the shopmen's strike.

But the red herring must be drawn across the trail that leads to those really guilty of the wrecks now daily taking place on the railroads,— the railroad owners. Mr. Daugherty, of the department of justice, and Mr. Burns, of the Burns Detective Agency, can find the real criminals if they will study the Interstate Commerce Commission report, that examination of 4,055 locomotives out of the 60,000 in use discloses defects of one kind or another in 2,456. Out of these 169 were judged unsafe to operate, 992 required immediate attention and 1,295 are "in need of repairs."

But Mr. Daugherty and Mr. Burns do not want to prosecute the real criminals; men of wealth and "financial standing" in the community. They want to make the dear public, if they do not themselves, believe that the railroads have gone Bolshevik. So they arrest foreign-speaking strikers, some of whom no doubt cannot speak English, and get from them fist-made or brass-knuckle produced third degree confessions.

Maud McCreery writes in the Federated Press that George Till, of Buffalo, one of the visitors arrested at the first day's session of the Trade Union Educational League's Conference at Chicago, following his release, said on his return to the conference that the 15 arrested were forced to run a gauntlet, not only of rapid fire questions, but of kicks and blows from about 14 detectives.

Till said that Earl Browder, assistant editor of The Labor Herald, and co-worker with William Z. Foster, with Jack Schulman, of Winnipeg, were beaten and kicked and should be in the hospital.

These are the crimes not only of petty police officers or big profiteers, but of the rotten social system under which we all live, a system that finds its bulwark in the capitalist state that has its headquarters at Washington, D. C.

These crimes should help arouse more workers to the need of replacing that degrading and savagely cruel capitalist state with the emancipating rule of labor, established and maintaining its power thru a dictatorship of the workers in the form of a Soviet Republic.

Workers! Let the agony of labor's martyrs spur you on to greater efforts. It is forward to emancipation under Communism or backward to slavery with the return of barbarism. Let your forward march be your answer to the third degree.

Russia Is Still Hungry

The "Forward" attack upon the Friends of Soviet Russia to the effect that money is being used for other purposes than famine relief in Soviet Russia is a malicious and treacherous piece of work by those who are politically and economically hostile to the Soviet Republic.

Workers' organizations and papers, which attack the Friends of Soviet Russia without reason or proof, are stabbing Soviet Russia in the back and are assisting in the harvest of death in famine and hunger stricken Russia. They but unite with the Civic Federation, the Pierpont Morgan-Samuel Gompers organizations, with Miliukoff and other enemies of Soviet Russia in the U. S.

The "Forward" presents no specific charges, but only insinuations, false accusations and general suspicion. No doubt the Forward has done the Friends of Soviet Russia considerable harm. It impeded the progress of the TOOL DRIVE. In their attempt, however, to destroy the only workers' relief organization for the starving in Soviet Russia, they miserably failed. The workers of America will rally to its support and the workers and peasants of that stricken country will gain in the end.

The Friends of Soviet Russia is the AUTHORIZED workers' famine relief collection agency for America, affiliated with the International Workers' Relief Committee, headquarters in Berlin. The International Relief Committee is mandated by Moscow.

The Friends of Soviet Russia has appointed an impartial committee of five persons well known in the labor movement of the country. This committee will investigate the charges made by the Forward. Additional inquiries may be sent to this committee, addressed to Roger Baldwin, care of the Civic Club, 14 West 12th Street, New York City.

The Investigation Committee consists of the following: Roger N. Baldwin, Chairman; Robert Morss Lovett, Secretary; Norman Thomas, Walter Nelles. Another committee-man is still to be appointed by the Friends of Soviet Russia. J. B. C. Woods, the Friends of Soviet Russia auditor, will act in an advisory capacity.

Affiliated Branches at conferences and regular sessions upon investigating the accusations made by the Forward, passed resolutions strongly condemning the Forward, branding those behind it as enemies of Soviet Russia, and pledging their renewed support in aiding and furthering the relief work of the Friends of Soviet Russia.

The stab in the back attack of "The Forward" has been successfully met. It has not alienated a single worker from the supporters of the Friends of Soviet Russia. It has won it many friends. To work, Comrades, to greater efforts.

Soviet Russia is still hungry and needs relief more than ever.

The Cleveland, O., Federationist, that claims to be the local advocate of the American Federation of Labor, asks, "Why should there be such a hatred between capital and labor?" We suggest this question for the agenda of the next Civic Federation Banquet, with Gompers leading the discussion. Rank and file workers will please stay at home where they are needed to fight evictions and deportations, and face the attack of private gunmen, the police, militia and regular army. Perhaps the Cleveland editor would find an answer to his question if he took the place of a shop striker for a few days.

President Harding's "Back to Normalcy" policy is still working in the appointment of Former United States Senator George Sutherland, of Utah, to the U. S. Supreme Court in place of Associate Justice Clarke, resigned. Sutherland is a stone age reactionary of the Reed Smoot school of conservatism and can be depended on to serve the money masters well.

John P. Frey, editor of the Iron Moulders' Journal, in a Labor Day Speech at Herrin, Ill., is reported to have said that the United States Government is the greatest strike breaking agency in the country. Frey is one of Gompers' right hand men, and like Gompers, in spite of their Labor Day speeches, will vote and work to keep that strike breaking agency in power.

We Correct New York Times on Congress of Youth in Mexico City

MEXICO CITY.—On Aug. [illegible] the New York Times printed the following Associated Press dispatch dated Mexico City, Aug. 13: "Foreign bolsheviki are conspicuous at the sessions of the Communist congress for Mexican young men, which opened yesterday with 52 delegates present from all parts of the republic.

"Radicals from Russia, Italy, Argentina, Guatemala, China, Spain and Germany brought greetings to Mexican communists from their respective organizations. The session was opened with the singing of the 'Internationale.' Radicals from North America are keeping in the background.

"The arrest of four well known foreign agitators yesterday is being commented on as evidence that the government is watching the proceedings carefully."

Had the Associated Press reporter been present at the meeting he would have discovered the following facts. The congress was the second annual meeting of the Juventud Communists (Communist Youth), a separate organization from that of the Communist party. "Foreign bolsheviki" were not conspicuous; only two men were present who were not Mexicans, one the delegate from the Communist Youth of Guatemala, the other a Swiss who is the representative in Mexico of the International Organization of Young Communists. There were 19 delegates instead of 52 reported by the A. P.

The police did not arrest "four well known agitators," although El Mundo, an afternoon paper carried a story to that effect the afternoon before. Two of the men mentioned in the El Mundo story as being Argentinians come as delegates to the Young Communist congress are chimerical; the other two exist, but have not been arrested, according to a statement given out at Communist headquarters.

Worker Dies by Inches in Prison While President Harding Is Deliberating

By CARL BRANNIN

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Ed Quigley, I. W. W. political prisoner at Leavenworth, is dying by inches while President Harding deliberately and gravely considers the cases of those prisoners who have applied for executive clemency. Quigley is not among them.

I sat and talked with Quigley in the interview room at the prison. He was bright and cheerful with undimmed spirit. "Oh, I'm going to pull thru," said he. "The trouble with most fellows with T. B. is up here," and he tapped his head. "They give up. Not me, though." Then he coughed and spat into the little tin box consumptive prisoners carry with them for their germ laden sputum.

Quigley is one of the famous silent defense group tried in Sacramento, Cal. after terrible treatment in the overcrowded jail there. He is serving a 10-year sentence. I asked him if he regretted their tactics. "Not at all," was the answer. "With the war time hysteria we were bound to be sent up. We only did the sensible thing."

It may be remembered that some time ago the names of Quigley and Caesar Tabib (another I. W. W. consumptive prisoner) were presented over their protest to the attorney general's office for parole. Their very serious physical condition was emphasized. The final answer was that until they were much sicker than they were then they would have to stay behind the bars.

A friend here who was a political in Leavenworth when these men were first sent up, said: "A year ago Quigley had a fighting chance for his life if he could have been released and gone to the proper climate. I fear it is too late now."

For more than a half hour I visited with Quigley and Ricardo Magon, Mexican revolutionist and political prisoner, whose eyesight is fading with a cataract growth. We would have talked longer, but for Quigley's fits of coughing which made it impossible for him to speak and interfered with the conversation of others in the room. He was led away, his emaciated form racked with the paroxysm.

Seven Years Hard Labor

LONDON, England.—Isaac Jacob Viljoen, one of the leaders of the great strike in the Rand gold fields in South Africa last January, has been sentenced to seven years hard labor by a Special Treason Court in Johannesburg. Eight hundred and forty-nine others are to be tried for treason for their part in the protest against starvation wages which the South African government put down with aeroplanes, tanks and heavy artillery. Eleven thousand in all await trial.

Don't Throw This Paper Away. Pass It on to Your Neighbor

[illegible] Labor's Exploiters

By GEORGE HARDY
(Staff Writer, The Worker)

BERLIN. — The International Miners Congress at Frankfort was a landmark in the history of the International labor movement, but not for what the congress did progressive, for it was the negation of all class action, and merely portrayed the weak and mild class collaborative policy of the Amsterdam Trade Union and the Second Socialist Internationals.

There were approximately 2,000,000 miners represented, and three quarters of the membership composed the Miners Federation of Great Britain and the United Mine Workers of America.

These two organizations, having a majority, should have brought forth some form of international action in aid of the struggling miners of the U. S. A.

Instead we find the collosal betrayal of internationalism in the report of the Standing Orders Committee that, they had resolved to refrain from any form of direct action, to relieve the U. S. Miners, by preventing shipments of coal to America.

Instead they shelter behind the paltry donation of $45,000 which will not keep 2,500 families one week. They evidently are bent upon repeating the defeat of the British Miners Strike in 1921, when 147,000 tons of coal were shipped and carried into Britain by the Transport Workers.

There are now 64 ships in the river Tyne, awaiting cargos of coal, which will assist the enemy in defeating the American Miners.

Hodges Knows — But?

We can conscientiously say that the International Secretary, Frank Hodges, is quite aware of what he is doing, hence our accusation, for he admitted upon the floor of the Congress, that if the American Miners did not succeed in maintaining their conditions, it would be increasingly difficult for the miners of other countries to hold their own against the coal owners.

In other words: he admits the Executive of the Red International of Labor Unions is correct in calling upon the International Working-class to assist the miners of the U. S. A., by all means at their command.

However, like all the "safe and sane" labor leaders, he decides to aid the Steel Trust and the Standard Oil Company rather than speak for what he knows to be necessary to win.

The American Miners' voices will be heard from the Atlantic to the Pacific, in protest against your pious congratulatory resolution. Only Action can help them!

Truce or Class-War — Which?

Apparently Hodges is attempting to introduce his "ten years industrial truce measure" into the international movement—a truce which Bob Smillie correctly calls a "truce of death".

That there is no desire for a rupture with capitalism is evident, for the Congress, while voting a resolution for an international general strike in case of war, refused the French motion to include in the resolution words to make it effective against the attacks of capitalism and for the improvement of general working conditions, by a vote of 86 to 16.

Russian Miners Rejected

The All-Russian Miners Union applied for admission to the International of Miners, but were reminded they were converts of the Third International and the Red International of Labor Unions.

They were told they must accept the statutes and program of the Amsterdam Federation of Trade Unions. These dividers of labor, say in effect you must abandon your class-position and revolutionary program, to which the miners must reply: "Never! Never!"

If you think the Russian miners will accept your program you are sadly mistaken. These battle-scarred miners from Donetz and the Urals are not going to surrender upon the altar of reformism, after fighting for possession against Denikin and Wrangel for three years.

They will accept co-operation, as an inclusive part of the Miners International, for the purposes of solidarity of action — for a united front against capitalism, which you have shrunk from in this congress, and which you tried to cover up by a resolution to have a committee bring some recommendations for joint action upon miners conditions, next year.

Amsterdam Splits Labor Movement

Hodges attacked the R. I. L. U. in the British Miners Congress and blamed them for the split in the French C. G. T.

The miners of the Red International Labor Union in Britain replied: "Amsterdam is the cause of the split, for they expelled the majority who were aiming at unity." [illegible] like the Russians, the French [illegible] not allow themselves to be [illegible] in the political juggling for [illegible] of Nations. [illegible] is splitting the union should [illegible] to everyone. The Russian Miners want unity; you reject their proposals, like you rejected the C. G. T. Unitaire. You ask the Russian miners to accept "Amsterdam", which is in conformity with your reactionary policy of throwing out of the "International" all who disagree with your reformist tactics.

Just as the International Transport Workers Federation — a subordinate body of "Amsterdam" — threw out the French railwaymen and the Holland transport workers; just as your reformist brothers retreat from the United front, by expelling the largest unions in Czecho-Slovakia; just as the Italian "Amsterdamers" refuse to allow the R. I. L. U. adherents proportionate representation upon the central council of the Alleanza del Lavoro (Union of Labor), so has this international congress sown discord in the miners' ranks by rejecting the Russian Miners, except upon terms of surrender to International Imperialism.

We remind you Hodges of the 118,000 votes for the R. I. L. U. at the last miners congress in Britain, which fell far short of our total strength, owing to the votes being cast as units from each district — South Wales casting a united vote for the Red International.

Retreat Or Advance?

How much progress (?) this reformist International made can be measured by the fact that they accept the "Amsterdam" decisions upon reparations and the Versailles Treaty.

These recent decisions call for modification only. This is an admission that they are favoring one set of capitalists against another, instead of making war upon them jointly.

They tell the German delegates how sorry they are for their condition; knowing the German miners, and workers generally are being bled white, they decide to only ask the capitalist class to modify their bloodsucking policy a little, and concur to support the League of Nations by agreeing with Amsterdam.

The Red International of Labor Unions invites you to action. Make good your resolve to "strike in case of war," right now. Your governments have never ceased war since 1914. Their armies march daily to some battle front.

To the British delegates it is common knowledge that war is on in India and Ireland; it is known to the French that economic war is carried on in occupied areas and in Alsace Lorraine, with capital seizures and expulsions; the Belgians know the army of occupation has been used against the German workers during strikes; the American representatives know of their bloody history and their list of dead in West Virginia, etc., etc., in the war that never ceases — the class-war; they also know of the hundreds of Union men rotting in the prisons of America for the last five years, for their fight on behalf of labor, and every delegate there was acquainted with the smashing blows delivered at their own unions. Is this not enough war to warrant your resolve for immediate action? It should be!

R. I. L. U. and Revolutionary Unions

The R. I. L. U. stands for industrial Unionism. It wants all the miners in the world in one fighting international with a revolutionary policy.

We must seek unity and control of the mines by the working class; we must turn them into Social Property, instead of the private property of the capitalist class. We will organize every industry upon the basis of commodities produced therein, making class-unionism the rule, instead of the many craft-divisions that now exist we will have one big union of all workers in each country.

Linked up into the fighting class-conscious International of Red Labor Unionism we will be organizing the common will of the workers, coordinated for creative effort. It will be an International that will challenge the imperialistic plunderers with proletarian might. It will not shrink from Action!

The Red International concurs with the French delegates. Action is needed! Let the rank and file of the Miners' International order all treason stopped, whether conscious or otherwise. Let the rank and file of the International Transport Workers refuse to be used as strike-breakers at the behest of their so-called leaders. Force the "Amsterdam International" officials to abandon their present bankrupt policy, and adopt the program of the United Front. Organize to control your own destiny!

Create a real International of Miners!

Join the Red International of Labor Unions!

[illegible] the [illegible] R. I. L. U. was as follows:

THE APPEAL OF THE EXECUTIVE OF THE R.I.L.U.

Comrades! The Executive of the Red International of Labor Unions [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] between the miners and capital arise spontaneously [illegible]

[illegible] We all remember the heroic struggle of the English miners who fought for their rights for 13 weeks, and [illegible] from the workers of other [illegible]

The English capitalists were able to break the desperate resistance of the miners with [illegible] from America and the continent.

And the same [illegible] in America. The miners of the Central States have been fighting for four months, beating back the attacks of capital.

No means are too low for the capitalists. They employed strike breakers, [illegible] and even poison gas against the strikers.

The fight of the American miners may also end in defeat if their comrades from other countries do not support them sufficiently.

Dozens of ships are bringing European coal to America, thus minimizing the effects of the strike. In spite of their courage and their endurance, the heroic American miners may be forced under the iron heel of capitalism.

The international solidarity of the capitalists is unfortunately greater than that of the miners.

The only way out, the only hope of breaking the capitalist chains, lies in the close alliance of the miners' unions the world over for the purpose of conducting their class struggle in common.

The task of your Congress is to make of the Miners' International a mighty weapon for the proletarian struggle.

One of the chief conditions for the realization of this task is the formation of an active, closely united Miners' International, including the mine workers of the whole world, and independent of the political position or sympathy of its national members.

The second condition is that the present International shall not content itself with being a mere information bureau, but shall adopt a conscious class policy, conduct the fights of the miners on an international basis and place the interests of the international proletariat above those of the national sections.

Only after you have built a united international front of the miners, will your Congress measure up to its task and be able to oppose the attacks of capital with an unconquerable solidarity.

The R.I.L.U. and its affiliated unions are ready to do all in their power to help create a revolutionary front of the miners, and conduct successfully the fight against the aggressions of capital.

The Executive Committee of the R.I.L.U.
A. LOZOVSKY, General Secretary.

MINNEAPOLIS. — After changing engines 18 times between Kansas City and Minneapolis, passenger train No. 88 on the Rock Island railroad arrived in Minneapolis 10 hours late, according to reports received today at striking shopmen's headquarters. It is asserted by union officials that freight traffic on the Rock Island has been practically abandoned and that freight locomotives are being used to draw passenger engines.

Miners Struggle in West Virginia

Dear Comrade Editor:—There occurred a little massacre here in a little mining village called Cliftonville, which for some reason has been overlooked by our press.

Cliftonville is located across the river from Martin's Ferry, Ohio. The mine there had been operated by union men, and when the strike occurred the boss asked the men to stay on the job, not to mine coal but to "clean up" the mine. As the latter is permitted by the union, the men complied with the wishes of the boss.

All went well until the miners, having cleaned the stone and other material out of the rooms, were asked to mine coal. Of course, they refused. The boss thereupon attempted to operate the mine with scabs. This was early in July. The miners attempted to persuade the scabs to quit but to no avail.

In order to aid their brothers in West Virginia a couple of hundred union miners from Pennsylvania marched across the line, intending, of course, to use moral suasion to induce the scabs to quit. Then the sheriff of Brooke County (W. Va.), where the mine was located, sent for state police from the Pennsylvania side, and these, together with the sheriff and his posse, fired upon the marching miners, and then—

Well, the miners scattered them. The sheriff was killed, as well as a number of others from both sides. Armed thugs, uniformed and otherwise, were imported from all over the state, and on the following few days wholesale arrests of the miners were made, and to-day 216 are on trial, 78 odd of them charged with murder and the remainder with lesser crimes.

The matter was brought to my attention by the fact that the sheriff of Brooke County, Ohio, came last week to the homes of three miners in Warrenton, Ohio, one of whom is a member of the Workers Party, and arrested them on warrants charging them with complicity in the Cliftonville affair.

This affair looms big in the affairs of the miners of the vicinity, and the trial promises to be an interesting one. The farmers are mostly on the side of the miners.

In St. Clairsville, Ohio, where a riot occurred due to the attempt of operators to run a strip mine with scabs, the principal stockholder of the mine was shot and killed, after which 15 union miners were arrested and placed under charges of murder and manslaughter.

The first of them, Dominick Venturati, the president of the local, was recently convicted of murder in the first degree, altho it was proven in the trial that he could not possibly have been the man who did the deed. The Bellaire, Ohio, comrades are contemplating a gigantic mass demonstration of all the workers in the vicinity to protest against the conviction.

"Amalgamated" Organizer Beaten

VINELAND, N. J.—An aggravated case of violence occurred here recently in an attempt to stop the strike of clothing workers.

After the receipt of a threatening letter, which he did not take seriously, Forte Velona, organizer, Amalgamated Clothing Workers, was caught alone in his house, tied to a chair and beaten into unconsciousness.

The receipt of the threatening letter was closely followed by a visit from "prominent citizens," including the president of a local trust company, the president of the chamber of commerce, and an official of the American Legion, who attempted without success to prevail upon Velona to call off the strike or to leave town.

Now Hurricanes and Hailstorms

LONDON.—The assistant chief administrator of the Save the Children Fund in Russia states that a considerable portion of the province of Saratov has been afflicted by hurricanes and hailstorms and much destruction of crops has followed. A deputation of peasants recently declared that at least half the population will starve during the coming winter unless outside help is forthcoming.

Metal Workers Urge All Members to Refuse to Perform All Railroad Work

TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE AMALGAMATED METAL WORKERS OF AMERICA TO ALL METAL AND MACHINERY WORKERS

It has been brought to our attention that certain contract machine shops are at this time accepting work from railroads whose shopmen are on strike.

REFUSE TO PERFORM SUCH WORK!

All railroad shopmen in the United States are on strike, not to gain better conditions but to block the efforts of the roads and the United States Railway Labor Board to establish a condition that is in fact Industrial Slavery.

THEIR FIGHT IS OUR FIGHT!

To their everlasting disgrace certain railroad unions, particularly the "Big Four," are running true to "craft union" form by remaining on the job and lending the roads invaluable service toward breaking the shopmen's strike.

Other influential agencies are lined up on the side of the roads in a concerted effort to force the "open shop" upon them, therefore our immediate duty is twofold:

First—Stop work immediately on any and all railroad work.

Second—Point out to all railroad workers with whom you come in contact the necessity of supporting the shopmen, by an immediate stoppage of work, and the necessity of so correcting their form of organization by amalgamating the various crafts, to render impossible such an occurrence in the future.

UNITED WE STAND—DIVIDED WE FALL

While railroad magnates, mine owners and industrial capital generally are rallying to the call of the "open shop"—let labor close its ranks, and unite for the impending struggle; if the shopmen are beaten, we all lose thereby; if they win, we all gain accordingly.

Neither the shopmen nor the miners have taken the offensive, they are merely holding the front line trenches for the American working class against the wage-reducing, organization-busting drive of the employing class. They have hurled their challenge, we have no course other than to accept.

CLOSE YOUR RANKS—STOP ALL RAILROAD WORK.
LET WORKING-CLASS SOLIDARITY REPLACE CRAFT UNION-SCABBERY.
THEN AND ONLY THEN WILL VICTORY BE OURS
AMALGAMATED METAL WORKERS OF AMERICA

"The Callous Cruelty of Labor"

The title to this editorial is taken from the heading of an article appearing in the August issue of "Tom Mooney's Monthly." The complete heading is, "Callous Cruelty of Labor Responsible for Continued Incarceration of Prisoners."

That desperate declaration is born of the tireless struggle that has been waged for the past six years for the liberation of Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings.

The "callous cruelty" indictment against organized labor is based upon the following facts contained in this article.

> "We have asked, we have implored, that the labor movement record its demand for pardons with the chief executive of this State, Governor William D. Stephens, in whose hands rests the freedom or continued imprisonment of Mooney and Billings. Altho nearly four months have elapsed since we first made our appeal to the labor movement for action on this one thing, out of the thousands of local unions in this country and the hundreds of local unions in California, our records, as we go to press with this issue, show that only ninety-four local unions, Central bodies, State Federations and International Unions, have heeded our request.
> Ninety-four organizations! What a crying indictment of the indifference of the labor movement. Why, there are 117 national and international unions alone in this country, and they are made up of thousands upon thousands of local unions and other affiliated organizations. We have sent requests for action to over 900 organizations in California alone and yet thruout the entire United States only ninety-four have responded to our appeal.
> The Machinists' organization contains over 1200 local unions, the Painters' organization over 900, the Carpenters' over 2500, the United Mine Workers' nearly 4,000. These are but a few of the local unions in the country and to date, at the most critical time in the history of the Mooney-Billings defense, at a time when action will really count, only ninety-four organizations cared enough about their champions to ask for their release.

It is stated that at least 2,000 local unions are represented on the subscription list of "Tom Mooney's Monthly," an added count in this tragic indictment.

Let the thousands of unions that have not already responded immediately send their protests to Governor Stephens, at Sacramento, Cal., demanding the immediate release of Mooney and Billings. That is the least that can be done.

Never mind your officials. They are too busy keeping the workers divided on the industrial battle field. They ought to, but they have not organized a real effort for the release of these and other class war prisoners.

Many of them do not want Mooney and Billings released. One reason for this may be found in the fact that "Tom Mooney's Monthly" enthusiastically urges that every railroader in the country should read "The Railroaders' Next Step," by William Z. Foster.

We find that Seth Brown, president of the California Federation of Labor, has come out with an endorsement of Governor Stephens for re-election, Mooney case, criminal syndicalist prosecutions and all.

That alone ought to be enough to stir the red blood of every working man and woman, not only in California, but thruout the land.

California labor will have a state convention in October at which time Brown's O. K. of Stephens will receive proper attention. In the meantime let the workers everywhere give Stephens their attention by flooding him with demands for the immediate release of two of the most fearless spokesmen their class has ever known. Do it now!

Do not let it be said that you are guilty of the criminal charge contained in the indictment, "The Callous Cruelty of Labor."

$100,000 in One Year Chicago's Contribution for Relief of Russia

The first annual report of the activities and accomplishments of the Chicago F. S. R. brings the news that for the first year ending July 31, 1922, this Branch of the F. S. R. has collected more than $100,000 for the relief of the starving population of Russia.

Activities in San Francisco

The San Francisco local F. S. R. held an entertainment in celebration of the founding of the F. S. R.

A tractor picnic was held at which sufficient funds were raised to complete the purchase of a very good tractor.

Seek More Machinery

The F. S. R. is now in the market for three threshing and four baling machines, which are soon to be sent to Soviet Russia to meet the new requirements of the F. S. R. Agricultural Unit.

It is expected that the Unit will remain in Russia for the spring of 1923, when the F. S. R. will send additional materials for further increased agricultural production.

The Unit is stationed near Vereschag in the Urals and Comrade H. W. Ware is still on the job with his husky North and South Dakotans directing the work. The Unit has an excellent record of accomplishments in agricultural relief.

Food Still Being Sent to Russia

The French Relief Train's contribution of 140 carloads of flour, fats, grain, other foodstuffs, shoes, clothes, tools, etc. and 100 more tons of machinery, tools, motor cars, etc., is on its way to Russia.

HOW WE ARE GOUGED

Farmers are receiving $42.50 a carload for melons and paying $40 for freight. This dealer sold large melons retail for 5 cents each, passing the produce on to the public at a reasonable price. Restaurants retailed these melons at 25 cents a slice while retailers generally asked 75 cents each for the melons and pocketed the profit of 1,500 percent or more.

~~White Terror in Lithuania.~~

Fifteen radical papers have been suppressed since 1919 by the Lithuanian government, according to Kova (The Struggle) official organ of the Lithuanian Trade unions published in Shauliai, Lithuania.

Two editors of these suppressed papers, Kurauskas and Eidukevisiene, were imprisoned and are still serving in Kovno.

The radical movement and press are prosecuted under the code of czarist Russia, by which Lithuania's people are still ruled.

The Lithuanian Communist party is illegal and forced to function underground. Many communists are in jail. In order to prevent the workers from joining Lithuanian trade unions (Lietuvos Profesines Sajungas), the clericals organized their own Lithuanian Federation of Labor.

Progress Shakes Russian Church

LONDON. — During an interview in Berlin with a representative of the English "Observer", Tchitcherin spoke of the new democratic movement in the Russian church, "stating emphatically that democracy is triumphing in the most mediaeval and reactionary institution it is possible to conceive. 'The peasants,' he continued, 'are accepting the change of electing from out of their own community their bishops and priests —no longer ineligible for office, except monks — with a satisfaction which is increased by the use of Russian instead of the Slavonic language in the service.'" alleged "secret," "underground," "conspiratorial" convention in Michigan.

Workers of America! We are now turning to you. We want to make it clear to you why we are being persecuted.

The Government, the hordes of spies and stoolpigeons, and the kept press, are howling day and night, "Persecute and crush the Communists; they are a dangerous secret band of conspirators!" The Gompers clique rushes to the rescue of this unholy Trinity. And even the Socialist New York Call and the Forward print documents and evidence to prove that the Communists are an underground party with secret objects and mysterious methods.

Want Workers to Know Everything

Workers of America! We want to make it clear to you why all the Powers that be of American capitalism have solidly lined up against us.

They are persecuting us, not because we are a secret band of conspirators.

The Communist Party of America is not a secret band of plotters. We do not desire to conceal a single one of our objects from the great working class of America. It is an infamous lie that we Communists organize campaigns of bomb throwing, dynamiting and sabotage. On the contrary, we Communists, as all of our manifestoes, books, and press show, are in principle opposed to all such individual actions—instead of action of the masses—not because we want to save the capitalists, but because we know that all such terroristic acts are ineffective and would serve to confuse the working masses, poison public opinion against the workers' cause, and would afford the capitalist government an excuse to proceed against the workers.

We can perfectly well understand how honest, striking workers, embittered by the brutal oppression suffered by them under capitalism, resort to acts of sabotage, and we look upon the persecution of such workers with utmost disdain. But we do not look upon such methods as methods of the Revolution.

Revolutionists Not Bomb Throwers

We are revolutionists and not bomb throwers. We want to destroy the whole building of capitalist society and not the building of some railway station.

We are after the life of the political and economic rule of the bourgeoisie and not after the life of this banker or that government official.

The road to the workers' revolution does not lie in train wrecks and petty dynamiting feats, but in broad huge mass actions that is thru the organized mass movements of the organized workers.

It is base and senseless slander to brand the Communists a small, sinister band in ambush. Foe to face with all the workers of America, we openly declare that we have neither arms nor an armed organization. We know very well that capitalism cannot be abolished without the use of force.

The capitalist magnates will hand over power to the workers only as willingly and as peacefully as the British Crown and Feudal Forces handed it over to the American bourgeoisie in 1776, and as peacefully and as willingly as the Southern slave-owners freed their Negro slaves in the Civil War.

Attack Capitalist Hypocricy

Indeed, we openly proclaim that the industrial and agricultural workers, who, being the vast majority of the population of this country, have a right to establish their own rule, with force if need be, against the rule of the small group of trust magnates and capitalists generally.

We are for the rule of the workers, we are for huge mass actions, we are for participation of tens of millions of workers in this struggle. Is it not then plain and self-evident that it would be ridiculous and stupid for us even to attempt to achieve all of these in a secret, concealed manner without the knowledge and behind the backs of the millions of workers?

But—this being so, the honest working man may also ask. "Why then is the Communist Party of America an underground party?"

We want to answer this question also. It is true that the Communist Party of America is an underground party. But why? Simply because the capitalist State Powers compel us

SAN FRANCISCO.—"Lawyers in Hell" is the fitting title of an article on the recent convention of the American Bar Association in San Francisco, by the Reverend Mercer Green Johnston, of Baltimore. The article recently appeared in an eastern daily.

The Reverend Johnston, in his article, holds that San Francisco well deserves the appellation of "Hell" for its treatment of Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings.

"What possessed the American Bar Association to choose San Francisco as a meeting place this year?" he asks, "for, surely, there isn't a place under the sun where the spirit of law has been so openly and violently outraged, or where it is kept so continuously and so unapologetically in durance vile."

to be an underground party. In many of our states there are "anti-syndicalist" laws, the object of which is, thru imprisonment, deportation, and all sorts of persecutions, to make impossible the open existence of the Communist Party organization. You have here, before you the most brazen example of capitalist hypocrisy.

On the one hand, the capitalist State Powers, thru their own laws make it impossible for us to exist openly, and then on the other hand, these same capitalist State Powers turn round and blame us for being an underground party.

Organized As Open Party

It is not an inherent feature of a Communist party to be underground. In France, in Germany, in Italy, in England, in Czecho-Slovakia, we have Communist Parties with hundreds of thousands of workers in their ranks, whose program is the same as ours, that is, the establishment of working class rule, the abolition of capitalism.

And yet, these parties are not underground; on the contrary, they are able to organize openly, to carry on the most open Communist propaganda in their press, assembly and the legislative bodies.

It is only in the most backward countries, in the countries most apart from the center of the modern world, as in Rumania, Jugo-Slavia, Poland, Hungary and Finland, that the brutality of the State Powers has condemned the Communist parties to an underground existence.

The Communist Party of America has done everything in its power to organize as an open political party. In 1919 the Communist Party of America was organized as an open party. It is only the brutal persecution that has driven us underground. And today also, we want to do everything in our power that will enable us to participate openly in political life.

Our great aim, revolutionizing the broad masses, the development of huge political mass actions, the enhancement of proletarian class-consciousness, the raising of the working class to be the ruling class, all of these especially, we can only achieve in the great open field. We openly declare and we can convince every sincere worker that the Communist Party of America, despite the fact that it is today an underground party has not carried out a single plan in secret; and is carrying on all of its work, all of its activity in the open.

We are, then, not persecuted because we are a band of conspirators, and not because we are building an underground party. This is all false. The real reasons for this persecution are positively to be found elsewhere.

Why This Persecution!

The real reasons are the following: As a result of the War and the economic crisis, the class struggle of the American workers against the capitalists is developing on an ever larger scale and assuming an ever sharper turn. The offensive of the capitalists seeks, with the aid of their State Powers, to destroy the whole organized labor movement. The open shop movement and the brutal attempts of the Government to destroy the Coal Miners' Union thru the Coronado decision, indicates the real plans of the capitalists.

The workers must defend themselves unless they wish to go down to utter defeat. The big battles of this campaign of self-defense are the miners' and the railroad workers' [illegible] nomic life are [illegible] schemes of the [illegible] must close his [illegible] works and other capitalists must follow suit.

Workers Demand Amalgamation

The railway strike is becoming more and more general. Even the strike of the shopmen alone obstructed traffic. The Interstate Commerce Commission was obliged to notify the Senate that no less than 60 per cent of the 79,000 locomotives in use in the United States were rendered useless for service.

The organized workers of the Big Four are out on strike by the tens of thousands—against the will of the yellow trade union bureaucracy. The Steel Trust, terrified lest the steel workers be drawn into this strike movement, was forced "voluntarily" to raise the wages 20 percent.

The amalgamation of the craft unions into industrial unions is becoming an even larger factor in the minds of the workers. What has never manifested itself in the history of the American labor movement has already appeared: the idea and the possibility of conducting a General Strike thruout the entire United States.

Coal and railroads, fuel and traffic are in danger—the amalgamation of craft unions into industrial unions, the idea of the General Strike!

The capitalists of the United States feel that these struggles are shaking the capitalist system to its very depths.

Capitalists Employ Violence

The capitalists of this country cannot crush the millions of striking workers economically; hence they are compelled to employ the Government power, they are applying open, naked violence.

The American courts have issued a whole series of injunctions against the strikers for the protection of capitalist enterprises.

The aim of the Coronado decision is to strike to the heart of organized labor. The police dogs of the Department of Justice are fabricating lies and stories of sabotage to incriminate the workers.

The capitalists do not hesitate to increase the use of violence, even to the point of civil war. The bloody tragedy of Herrin is only a battle in the civil war between the capitalist and the working class of America.

The siege of Joliet is another battle in this big war. An extensive, well-planned campaign of the capitalists is clearly demonstrated by the fact that troops have been used in no less than 15 States.

But the capitalists are not satisfied with this. What has already happened in fifteen States, they intend to enact in all 48 States of the Union. Harding demands dictatorial power, he asks for a law which will hand over the organized workers of this country completely to the powers of the Government.

Harding's message to Congress stated in the hypocritical, juristic language of the capitalist class what Hoover said in all brutality: "If the strike is not settled within a week, we will simply raise the flag and appoint General Pershing to take charge of matters."

The dictatorship of the American capitalists has been changed into an open military dictatorship, owing to the increasing sharpness of the class struggle.

Struggle for Political Power

The mighty executive of the capitalist class—the Government—immediately grasped what the working class has not yet grasped, namely, that every large economic struggle between capital and labor becomes a political struggle—that is, a struggle for political power.

The extensive strike movement of the workers, which up to the present has been on the defensive, has reached the point at which it now faces the whole capitalist State Power. It is quite evident that Harding and his accomplices have determined to destroy the entire strike movement and, if necessary, to accomplish it by drowning the workers in their own blood. Attorney General Daugherty has said quite openly that if the workers do not surrender to the bosses, "the Government will destroy the unions."

Workers of America! This is the heart of the problem. You must understand that the persecutions to which the Communists have been subjected are nothing but the beginning and part and parcel of the persecutions which the whole working class of this country will suffer.

You must understand that the same courts that condemn Communists to prison also issue injunctions against the workers. The same courts that outlawed the Communist party also declared the Child Labor Law unconstitutional. The same Department of Justice that carries on raids against the Communists also sends its spies and rats into the unions, and by means of provocateurs carries out bomb attacks and acts of sabotage, [illegible] and then proclaim them as acts of the working class.

These Happenings not Accidents

The same armed forces that came out of their hiding place in Michigan and attacked the Communists also besieged Joliet and marched out to put down striking workers in fifteen states.

You must understand that the attack on the Communists at Bridgman, Michigan, and the raid on the Trade Union Educational League in Chicago are not things that happen only once in a while. You must understand that Patrick Hamrock who drove Foster out of Colorado is the same man who shot down the wives and children of the miners at Ludlow, Colo.

It is clearly no accident that Attorney General Daughterty one week ordered raids on the Communists, and the next week, by means of the most vicious, far-reaching, drastic injunction ever asked of a federal court in any labor dispute restrained the Railroad Employees' Department of the American Federation of Labor from ever "issuing any instructions, public statements or suggestions" to union members regarding the conduct of the strike. The funds of the strike are thus tied up, no money can be used to help the strikers and all picketing and meetings of strikers are banned.

The same capitalists who drove us underground are now trying to drive the trade unionists underground. The same powers of state that have declared us illegal and have forgotten all about democracy, so far as we are concerned, and have denied us the freedom of press, assemblage and speech, the same powers of state which have ruthlessly exercised a dictatorship over us for many years, these same powers are now planning to force the same brutal, naked dictatorship on the whole mass of workers.

Communists Part of Labor

This, and this only, is the meaning of the plan to hand over the mines and the railroads to Harding; this, and this only, is the meaning of the employment of Federal troops; this and this only, is the meaning of the raising of the flag over the mines and railways at this time; and this, and this only, is the meaning of Pershing's entry as a force into the strike arena.

The workers of America must understand that the fate of the working class and the fate of the Communists are inseparable. This is self-evident. The Communists are not a group separate and distinct from the working class. They are an integral part of the working class. The Communists are those workers who are conscious of the fact that in the struggle against the capitalists the workers must fight as a class.

The Communists are among the first to recognize that the workers cannot fight well when they are divided into nearly 150 separate and distinct unions.

The Communists are among the first to protest against the reduction of wages, and the first to agitate against the pauperization of the masses.

Against Capitalist State Power

The Communists are those who maintain that it is insufficient to struggle merely against the individual capitalists or trusts, because the organ of the organized capitalists—the Government—immediately rushes to the aid of the exploiters whenever they are attacked.

It is therefore necessary to wage a political struggle against the whole system of capitalist state power.

The Communists are those who demand that the workers should declare themselves independent of the capitalist political parties. The workers must have their own class party representing the interests of the whole working class.

The Communists are those who wish to substitute for the dictatorship of the trusts the rule of the workers in the interests of all. And neither does the Communist International, the great association of all Communist parties, have any secret, mysterious, "Russian" aims.

At this moment, in the prevailing situation in America, the Communist International (the real International and not the sham International portrayed to you by your enemies) asks that the railroad workers, the miners, and the seamen of England and France should not permit the transportation of scab coal to America.

The Communists are not a [illegible] secret band of conspirators. [illegible] power can only be achieved if the great masses of the workers stand with us.

[illegible] Truth of Communism

Workers! This is only possible when the millions of workers support the Communist program. The essential feature of the Communist program is to convince the majority of the workers of the truth of the ideas of Communism.

We do not have a single point in our whole program which we wish to conceal from the millions of workers. In the first Communist program ever issued, the founders of scientific Communism, Marx and Engels, long ago declared: "The Communists disdain to conceal their aims."

We have nothing to conceal from the workers. We once more appeal to the workers to look upon the persecution of the Communists as a matter concerning all workers as well.

The Communists are today outlawed because the capitalists are planning to outlaw the whole working class. When William Z. Foster was forcibly run out of Colorado, Adjutant General Hamrock declared: "That he did so for the best interests of the State." And he added: "No law was consulted."

Capitalists Break Own Laws

The capitalists break their own laws whenever their interests demand it. If the workers will not defend their advance guard, the persecuted Communists, then the workers, will have to get ready to have the whole working class face the same declaration from the Hamrocks, Hardings, Doughertys, and Pershings that the organized workers must be crushed "for the best interests of the State" —and in this instance also "no law will be consulted."

In the interests of the whole working class, we call upon the American workers:

1. To build thruout the country a United Front against all political persecution.
2. Demand the unrestricted right to organize, strike, and picket.
3. Democracy in fact for all the workers as it is now given to the capitalists—the unrestricted right to freedom of press, assembly and speech.
4. You must wage your struggles more effectively. Demand the amalgamation of your craft unions.
5. You must have a political party of the workers entirely independent of the capitalist parties.
6. Organize a country-wide protest against the slanderous capitalist campaign against your foreign-born brother workers.
7. For the realization of these demands, organize everywhere open protest meetings and demonstrations. Pass resolutions on a national scale. Every union, every labor organization should pass such resolutions of protest.
8. Raise money everywhere to aid the victims of capitalist persecution.

For the united struggle against our common enemy, we are,

Fraternally yours,

The Communist Party of America:
Section of the Communist International.

Labor Day, 1922.

NEW YORK.—The greater number of the striking shirt workers, of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, have gone back to work in this city, following a clean-cut victory. The strike is still effective against those shops which have not surrendered. The 5 per cent assessment levied against the members who are working is being promptly paid as soon as pay envelopes are opened.

[illegible] Labor Assembly Protests Arrest of Foster, Dunne and Others

[illegible] Minneapolis, Minn.—Trades and Labor Assembly has adopted a resolution dealing with the arrest of William Z. Foster, William F. Dunne and others in which it is charged that they are the victims of labor-hating and labor-baiting detectives reputed to be in the employ of the government.

The resolution follows:

WHEREAS, It appears that certain progressive members of the working class, including W. Z. Foster and William F. Dunne, are being made the victims of attack by certain labor-hating, labor-baiting detectives reputed to be in government employ; and

WHEREAS, such methods as are being used both as regards action by such officers and publicity, as to their actions, are the ever-present methods and tactics of tyranny, and of financial tyrants and exploiters in control of government.

Now, therefore, be it resolved by the Minneapolis Trades and Labor Assembly that we hereby avail ourselves of the empty right that we thought we reserved to ourselves in the constitution "to petition the government for redress of grievances," and hereby petition the President of the United States, and the Department of Justice to assign William J. Burns and his able coterie of thugs to the prosecution of the financial pirates and profiteers who during and since the war has so enriched themselves at the expense of the starving workers and farmers, and to relieve W. Z. Foster, W. F. Dunne and other representatives of the workers of the pleasure of their unscrupulous attentions.

Similar resolutions have been adopted by the Chicago Federation of Labor and will be brought before every other central labor body in the land for their consideration.

Injunctions Made to Order

TACOMA, Wash.—The absurdity of asking for a federal injunction restraining strikers when there had been no violence struck even railroad executives here recently. So they organized violence by having one of their blacklegs gently beaten up the night before final arguments were heard before Federal Judge E. E. Cushman. The injunction was granted while striking shopmen were collecting evidence that the attack was a frame-up. There were no witnesses to the alleged beating and the blackleg was not injured.

MINERS PROTEST

Hanna, Wyo., Local Union No. 2335, United Mine Workers, adopted resolutions condemning the kidnapping and deportation of Foster, who addressed this union shortly before his experiences in Colorado.

The German Independent Socialists, who for three years swore never to enter a Coalition Government with the bourgeois and blamed the Majority Socialists for so doing, are now supporting them. The German Communist Party is pointing the moral.

Hartmann Says Friends of Soviet Russia Not Engaged in Communist Propaganda

Dr. Jacob W. Hartmann, treasurer of the Friends of Soviet Russia, has issued a statement declaring that this organization is not engaged in Communist propaganda. It is as follows:

"News items appearing in the morning papers of this date have been brought to my attention, which declare that the arrests of certain persons, designated by these papers as Communists, have led to the finding of evidence connecting the Friends of Soviet Russia with an organization named as 'The Communist Party.'

"I feel constrained to point out that the spreading of such insinuations in the daily press is very unfortunate because of the possible discouragement such statements may give to persons who would be inclined to donate money for the relief activities conducted by the Friends of Soviet Russia.

"I should feel obliged to call attention to the incorrectness of any statement of a connection between the Friends of Soviet Russia with what these newspapers call the Communist Party, if only in order to correct an obvious misstatement, but I consider such a misstatement to be doubly unfortunate in view of the harmful effects it may have on the collection of funds by this organization, and therefore hope that the persons—official or other persons—responsible for such declarations will desist from their inhuman and anti-social machinations.

"The relief work conducted by the Friends of Soviet Russia is too serious an undertaking to be lightly linked up with organizations accused of conducting political propaganda of any kind."

New York City Sees Big Youth Day Celebration

Enthusiasm filled with promise for the future for the Young Workers League was displayed by the young people, and some grown-ups who attended the celebration of Youth Day, Sunday, Sept. 3, at Webster Hall. Similar successful celebrations were held in other sections of the country.

Among the speakers at Webster Hall were Sadi Amter, J. Louis Engdahl, Nat Kaplan, Al Schaap, Harry Dunchon and Bela Csont. The meeting was visited by a police captain and uniformed officer, but they parted after warning Chairman Schaap to keep the speakers [illegible]

[illegible] to Give Facts in Support of Its Charges

Editor's Note:—This week we publish the final installment of the statement of J. B. Collings Wood, auditor for the Friends of Soviet Russia, in reply to the slanders of Abraham Cahan, editor of the Forward. In this installment it is shown how Cahan scatters his charges broadcast without any attempt to substantiate them. We feel that the publication of this statement has been of considerable benefit to our readers in helping them to combat this pernicious anti Soviet campaign. Here it is:

Quotation: "The most interesting is the following and to which they do not reply. We have already shown in the Forward with reference to the astounding discrepancy between their report and the words of their accountant. Their report gives the impression that their accounts are for the whole of America, where they have 250 branches. The accountant reports, however, that their accounts are for the general office only, for the maintenance and its expenses. The maintenance and expenses of their 250 branches are not accounted for; and why not? And why does the report give the impression that the general office also includes the expenses of 250 branches?"

Answer: This is another false charge of inconsistency. I answered it in my letter dated August 12th addressed to the Editor of the "Jewish Daily Forward."

First: That I am responsible for the financial statements and the certificate.

Second: That no professional auditor would issue a certificate of approval to be used with statements with which it was in conflict.

Third: That no such conflict exists.

Fourth: That the financial statements are for the national office only and that the national office pays national publicity expenses for the benefit of all offices.

Fifth: That these facts are clearly stated in the financial statements and certificate published.

A perusal of the financial statement shows that it is for the National Office only, but that the National Office spends money for national publicity which helps the locals.

The Auditor's Certificate confirms and emphasizes the fact. There is no contradiction or "discrepancy." All that is needed is a clear mind and a will to understand.

Quotation: "The question then is—what is the income of all these branches and where does the money go to?"

Answer: This is not a charge but a question.

The answer is contained in the Auditor's Certificate.

"Locals are responsible to their own contributors for the acknowledgment and disposition of funds collected."

The Editor's answer is based upon information not at my disposal. It is "Out of these sympathy-collections they (the leftists) take money, which supports their 'business' in this country."

A friend of the organization would bring such information to the attention of its Auditor in order that such a practice might be stopped. Any organization may be robbed. Even a large well organized corporation may be robbed. I do not know of any one robbing the Friends of Soviet Russia. Neither do I know of any political party or group robbing the organization, either from within or from without.

Because the Editor does not bring such information to my attention I shall confine myself to a brief explanation of the relation existing between Locals and the National Office.

National organizations with supporting locals may be formed upon any one of a number of bases, of which I shall discuss two.

In a well established organization having a dues paying membership or a regular list of contributors and regular functions for raising money it is possible for the national office to receive or to record the gross income collected by all locals and for the national office to pay or record all local expenses. When that policy is adopted the national office publishes a consolidated financial statement, showing the gross income and expenses, whether handled by locals or by the national office.

In an organization recently formed or in an organization carrying on local functions of a divergent nature the relation between locals and national office is usually different. In the first place, a consolidation of income and expenses is technically difficult. In the second place, it does not have the same value as in the case of a well established static organization. The relation between locals and national office in such cases is that of local autonomy with responsibility to local contributors and to the national office. In such cases locals receive income and pay expenses and make remittances to the national office out of the net proceeds. The national office then publishes its own accounts incorporating in its income the amount received from locals. That relation between locals and the national office, with that method of accounting, is adopted even by many organizations with dues paying members. Most political parties function in that form. The Socialist Party never issued consolidated financial statements. Most trade unions function in that form. Most national campaigns are conducted in that manner.

The Friends of Soviet Russia is conducted in that manner. Its accounts are therefore kept upon the usual basis for large national organizations and campaigns. What is more important, it is the basis usually adopted by workers' organizations and understood by workers. It would be very difficult for the organization to function in any other manner in view of its sudden growth and the divergent character of its locals. The responsibility is squarely placed upon local contributors of watching their respective locals. At the same time the national office assures every contributor that funds forwarded from locals are economically and honestly handled. Moreover, the national office controls the locals by issuing standardized triplicate receipt books, and receiving reports from locals. The national office also recommends the employment of local professional auditors and the publication of lists of contributors and expenses.

In the case of the large locals these requirements are generally met because a local bookkeeper is employed. In the case of the smaller locals the problem is more difficult because most workers are incapable of keeping books and the employment of a bookkeeper would consume all the income. Therefore, the reports received from many of the smaller locals are very poor.

This problem of bookkeeping and accounting is not peculiar to the Friends of Soviet Russia. Every national campaign faces the same problem. The problem is more difficult to solve in the case of the Friends of Soviet Russia than in some other cases because it is an organization of working people speaking many languages. The organization is not to be condemned for encountering this problem. It should be judged for the manner in which it faces the problem.

Apart from direct steps taken to solve this problem, the Friends of Soviet Russia has taken one big constructive step to make the problem smaller. It is this: The National Office by conducting national publicity for the benefit of locals, without charging the locals for the service, reduces as much as possible the expenses to be paid by locals. In that way local accounting is made simpler and easier to control by local contributors and by the national office. At the same time it has the effect of including in the financial statement of the national office certain expenses by that office for locals. Obviously this practice would not be adopted by an organization seeking to cover up expenses.

I trust that you will find the answers to the charges and questions of the "JEWISH DAILY FORWARD" clear and complete.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) J. B. Collings Wood,
Chartered Accountant.

Arouse the Ex-Soldiers

The reputation of the American Legion has travelled far in the opinion of The New Majority, official organ of the Chicago Federation of Labor, which says in its issue of August 12th:

"An American consul from Italy was commenting on the fascisti, 'the armed, organized, militant capitalists, who are killing and burning to destroy the unions, the Communist and Socialist organizations and even the co-operatives in Italy. Said the consul: 'The fascisti are like your legionnaires.'"

If Burleson were still head of the post-office, Samuel Gompers might invoke the espionage act and have The New Majority suppressed.

It is certainly rude of the Chicago labor organ to throw this monkey wrench into the well-oiled machinery of Gompers' publicity forces that are now spreading considerable propaganda to show the harmonious relations between the American Federation of Labor and the American Legion.

It must not be forgotten that the Cincinnati A. F. of L. Convention, in June, went on record endorsing the American Fascisti, and that Gompers was instructed to attend its convention October 16th to 20th, at New Orleans.

In the language of "The Progressive Labor World," of Philadelphia, "The American Federation of Labor and the American Legion are getting along like two peas in a pod," and this approving labor sheet stands for "energetic measures to curtail the activities of the Industrial Workers of the World, opposition to Socialism and Anarchism, Communism and Bolshevism," and "The mutuality of capital and labor, employer and employe."

It is fitting that side-by-side with Gompers on the American Legion platform will sit Ex-Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, who won national infamy as an open-shopper thru the wage award that bears his name.

Chicago labor, especially the building trades, knows Landis as an open-shopper, its official organ recognizes the American Legion as the White Guardist organization of this country, and it long ago placed Gompers as an enemy of progress in the labor movement.

The message of friendship that Gompers will carry to the Legionists at New Orleans should be a call to militant labor thruout the land to struggle for more conscious working class action in this country.

Pershing is said to have remarked that Gompers' services in the recent Wall Street war were worth at least an army corp. They may have been worth that much to American imperialism. But the returned soldiers in the ranks of organized labor, as they face strike after strike, wage reductions in rapid succession, and a shattering of working conditions, may well wonder what they were worth to them.

They can make their answer by joining the World War Veterans instead of the American Legion and arousing all soldiers to the real nature of the war that must be waged, not against their brothers in other countries, but against capitalism in their own country.

PROUD OF NEW RIFLE

ST. LOUIS.—Col. C. S. Thornton and other officers of the Missouri national guard watched the demonstration of a new machine gun at the St. Charles, Mo., rifle range. The new gun shoots a 45-caliber automatic pistol bullet at the rate of 1000 a minute. Thornton will make a report to Adjt. Gen. Haupp on the new weapon and it probably will be adopted by the guard.

ANOTHER BLACK STAIN

Socialist Party Local at Elkhart, Ind., Quits and Joins Workers Party

ELKHART, IND.—Elkhart Local, Socialist Party, at its last meeting decided officially to secede from the Socialist Party and adopted resolutions providing for affiliation with the Workers Party.

Secretary Ray A. Youngblood has issued a statement of the action taken by the local as follows:

"After 21 years of loyal adherence to the Socialist Party of America the Elkhart Socialist local officially seceded from that organization last evening by the adoption without a dissenting vote of the following resolution:

"'Resolved, that Local Elkhart, Socialist Party of Indiana, secede from the Socialist Party and affiliate with the Workers Party.'

"The Workers Party of America was organized in New York City last December and is an outgrowth of the insurgent left-wing movement in the regular Socialist Party which came to a climax when that organization in 1919 expelled the entire state organizations of Massachusetts and Michigan together with seven language federations, a total of 50,000 members.

"Up until the organization of the Workers Party the left-wing movement was divided into several warring factions. With the achievement of unity the movement had grown rapidly and threatens soon to absorb the entire membership of the old Socialist Party.

"By its program the Workers Party is committed to proletarian dictatorship, sovietism and communism. It will run county and congressional tickets wherever there is sufficient sentiment to warrant.

"The local organization admitted seven new members, bringing the present membership up to 80. Regular meetings are held every Thursday evening in the A. F. of L. hall."

Fifth Group of Workers Leave U. S. for Kuzbas

NEW YORK.—The Rotterdam has sailed with the fifth contingent of American-trained workers on the first leg of their trip to the properties controlled by the Kuzbas organization.

The party numbered 58 and 16 nationalities were represented with Finns, Russians, Americans and Englishmen in the majority. All were equipped with clothing and tools.

Sufficient food is sent to last the workers for a year, in spite of the fact that they are proceeding to a point in Siberia where food conditions are good, according to recent reports.

The party includes families from Detroit, Cleveland, Baltimore, Seattle, Portland (Ore.), Shenandoah (Pa.), and New York City.

The next Kuzbas party will leave for Russia on Sept. 30, and will not include children as the weather and traveling conditions will be too hard.

Miners, lumber workers, machinists, toolmakers, electricians and others will be welcomed, upon inquiry at the offices at Room 301, 110 W. 40th St., New York City.

During the winter the American Organization is to recruit 2000 highly skilled workers for service in the early spring in Russia, and from all indications this quota will easily be achieved.

White-washing California

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — Five hundred thousand dollars is being raised as a publicity fund for California—to "tell the world what California has and is." This campaign, which is to be nation-wide, is designed to counteract the unfavorable effects of news of terroristic methods used against organized labor here, which has been systematically spread thruout the world in recent months by defenders of labors fundamental rights.

Jobless Take to the Road

LONDON.—The extent of unemployment can be gauged by the increasing number of those on tramp in England at the present time. Last quarter in Yorkshire over 85,000 were admitted to the casual wards, as against 47,000 in the corresponding period last year. A number of these are ex-service men who feel their position keenly.

[illegible] to Give Aid to the Revival and Development of Agriculture

The Soviet Government has recently informed Comrade A. A. Heller, representative in this country of the Department of Re-immigration of the Supreme Council of National Economy, that Russia is ready to receive 15,000 returning Russians from America and allocate them on large farms and agricultural estates.

The condition for their admission into Soviet Russia is that they come organized into agricultural groups, communes, or collectives; that they come equipped, at their own expense, with tractors and modern agricultural machinery and implements and that they be self-supporting for at least one year.

The Soviet Government has set aside over eight million acres of rich, arable land—large farms and agricultural estates—for the cultivation by the 15,000 re-immigrated Russians.

This land is situated in desirable sections of Soviet Russia and is near by good water supplies, transportation facilities, and industrial localities.

Immediately upon the receipt of these instructions, Comrade Heller who conducts his work thru the Central Bureau of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia worked out a plan in co-operation with the latter organization whereby 15,000 Russians will be sent to their native land between now and the spring of 1923.

The Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia has, therefore, launched a campaign thruout the country in all its branches for the organization of Russians desiring to return to aid Soviet Russia in her economic and agricultural revival and development.

Admission to Industrial Groups Only

Soviet Russia is not open to general immigration, even to the natives who wish to return, on account of the unfavorable economic conditions prevailing there at the present time.

With this policy of the Soviet Government, the Russian colony has been in entire accord. Re-immigration has, however, been restricted and so modified that only organized productive industrial and agricultural groups are admitted into the country, because the Soviet Government has recognized the distinctive technical aid that they can bring with them and the extent to which they can be instrumental in raising production of necessaries.

The Russian colony in America, fugitives from the political and economic injustices of the Czarist regime, welcomed the Russian Revolution and the Soviet system of government instituted by the Bolsheviki.

Like the peasants of Russia, they have realized the present Communist government in Soviet Russia is synonymous with the equitable distribution of the land to and its possession by the peasants.

The Russians in this country, able-bodied men and women, steeled in the industrial struggles of the workers in America, almost like one, were bent on returning to their native land and partake in gains of the Revolution.

The war, the blockade, and finally the horrible famine interfered with and prevented this mass movement of "back to their revolutionary Russia."

As a result many of them lost hope of their immediate return and have been waiting for a favorable change in Russia's economic situation.

Now that the ban against admission to Soviet Russia is gradually being lifted and the Soviet Government issues the invitation for organized industrial and agricultural groups to settle there, the Russians in America have again renewed their interests, revived their hopes and are once more flocking to return if the necessary permission is granted.

Additional articles on this plan for the rehabilitation of Soviet Russia's agriculture will appear in future issues of THE WORKER. All inquiries and arrangements may be made at the Central Bureau of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia, 110 W. 40th St., New York City, Room 603.

Membership Meeting of S.T.A.S.R.

Sunday Sept. 10, at 3 p. m., there will take place a general membership meeting at the new headquarters of the New York branch of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia, 231 East 37th St., New York (between Second and Third Avenues).

This general membership meeting has for its purpose the decision in regard to the annual convention of the S. T. A. S. R., which has been delayed on account of the expected early return of the delegate of the Society, who is at present in Moscow. There will also be discussed the educational program and the work in which the Society is engaged.

WASHINGTON.—In an open letter, delivered by registered mail to President Harding, 52 members of the I. W. W., serving sentence in Leavenworth penitentiary on war-opinion charges, made it clear why they had refused to file application for individual clemency and why they would continue so to refuse.

ROME, Italy.—This country has hundreds of thousands of inhabitants more than it can support, and must find an outlet for them thru emigration. But where can it send them? Signor de Michelis, Commissioner for Emigration, has just completed a survey of industrial conditions in the principal nations of the world, which discloses that every one of them is overflowing with surplus labor.

The war of 1914 was the most colossal breakdown in history of a system destroyed by its own inherent contradictions.—Trotzky.

[illegible] Chaplin, political prisoner in the federal penitentiary, has "got in bad," in part because of his freedom-breathing poems which have been widely reviewed and read [illegible] of his 20-year term for alleged violation of the war-time espionage act. Chaplin has been put in the second class by Warden W. I. Biddle, and assigned to work in the laundry. This means that he is not allowed to write to his wife or little son or to receive visitors.

ST. LOUIS.—The first Children's Crusade is over. With the return of the last of the wives and children who went to Washington to plead for the release of husbands and fathers who were imprisoned under the espionage act during the war the crusade came to a successful conclusion, in the opinion of Kate Richards O'Hare, leader of the crusade.

The Workers Party of the State of New York calls for your assistance to make this election campaign a time for revolutionary propaganda for the purpose of arousing the workers to the need of A Solid United Front of All Workers!

To Fight the Open Shop Campaign! To Prevent the Destruction of the Unions! To Stop the Interference of the Government in Strikes! To Maintain the Unemployed at Union Wages! To Teach the Workers that the Emancipation from Capitalism Can Come Only Thru the Establishment of a Workers' Republic in America! The Recognition of, Trade with and Loan to Soviet Russia!

As a working-class organization it must of necessity come to the working class for support; it has no desire to do otherwise. Therefore make an appeal to all your shopmates, fellow-workers and brother unionists, in order that a large fund may be raised to enable us to carry on a campaign for the education and emancipation of the workers.

"All South Russia Reported in Revolt Against Bolsheviki!" on the first page, fifth column, of the New York Times, August 31, 1922. 'Nuf sed.

All Quiet in Guatemala

An American man-of-war swings at anchor, flying the stars and stripes, in the bay at Guatemala City, Guatemala, Central America.

In the city itself a council of war condemns the leaders of the recent revolt there to death, Salvador Lorenzana, Francisco Lorenzana and Joseph Meza.

This latest revolution is said to have been entirely suppressed. The rebels are said to have fallen into the hands of the government troops.

Rear-Admiral Cole comes ashore from the United States Cruiser Birmingham to pay his respects to the new American Minister, Arthur Geissler.

All is quiet in Guatemala. The peace of the Central American republic is not even disturbed by the arrival of a U. S. "Socialist" Party protest against death being imposed on the rebels.

The double yoke sits tightly upon the oppressed of Central and South America, the yoke of the national bourgeoisie on the one hand, that of the foreign exploiters, the Wall Street imperialists on the other.

It is up to the workers of the United States to say when their brothers to the South will be released from that yoke.

When the workers of the two continents have learned the lesson of, "An injury to one is the concern of all," then freedom for one will mean the freedom of all thru victory over a common enemy.

The conflict between the workers and the capitalists cannot be harmonised or compromised. It can only be ended by abolishing the capitalist system.

The First Arrest at Herrin

The first arrest has been made at Herrin, Ill., and the victim picked is Otis Clark, president of a miners' local in Williamson County. He is chargd with the murder of C. K. McDowell, strip mine superintendent.

There will be no fancy charges of "treason," such as the miners' officials faced in West Virginia. It is going to be plain murder.

Simultaneous with the return of the first indictment, the Illinois miners' officials announced that the miners' union

> "has already pledged every means at its command to the defense of any and all of its members that may be indicted.
> "We have a popular appreciation of the magnitude of the forces that have combined to convict our members and we shall leave nothing undone, that will enable us to combat these forces. The very magnitude of the agitation, which is nation-wide for convictions in connection with this trouble, jeopardizes the lives and freedom of innocent men and makes it necessary that the State organization furnishes every possible means of defense for our members, and that we shall do."

This declaration of the miners' union surprised Attorney General Brundage, if we are to believe his own words. This hypocritical prosecutor declares the miners' union is not being attacked. He must have absent-mindedly forgotten about the $25,000 slush fund raised by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

The grand jury hunt goes on. There will be other indictments. We await the first indictment against one of the mine owners, against a scab-procuring agency official, or against a mine company tool.

The New York Police is throwing all beggars into the workhouse because it was learned that one of them lived in a hotel, not a flop house, and was seen to ride in an automobile. But the respectable robbers of Wall Street are still permitted to remain at large, no matter what the amount of their swag may be.

An International Strike-Breaker

We are just beginning to get the details of the International Miners' Union Congress held early in August at Frankfort, Germany.

In another column we publish a special report from George Hardy, well known to American workers, as well as the appeal of the Red Trade Union International.

We wish to add to this the startling revelations of Louis P. Lochner, European director of the Federated Press, charging that Frank Hodges, secretary of the British Miners' Federation, and also secretary of the International, forced the discussion of the American coal strike into a secret session.

The European labor press, therefore, got nothing of the vivid word pictures of the American coal strike and the methods used for breaking it, as portrayed by the two American delegates, John Gay, of Albia, Ia., and William Mitch, of Terre Haute, Ind., secretary-treasurers of their respective districts.

Even the representatives of the labor press were excluded when the American strike came up for consideration, and Lochner reports that every official of the convention whom he interrogated either gave an evasive reply or else tried to shift the responsibility for this queer procedure upon someone else.

The motion for secrecy was made by the reactionary Hodges and was prompted by the fear of the executive committee that the radical delegates might raise the obvious question as to what steps the European miners were prepared to take to prevent the shipment of scab coal to the United States.

Hodges played the Judas' role, willingly no doubt, since all scab coal to the United States originates in British mines.

With such international strike-breakers as Hodges at its head, it is easily understood why this world congress of labor remained silent on the issue of scab coal, as it did later on the question of admitting the Russian Federation of Miners.

The next miners' congress will be held in two years at Prague, Czecho-Slovakia. It is hoped by that time that the miners will have cleansed their ranks of some of the scabs now to be found there.

Nature is taking a hand in the disarmament program. A French dreadnaught hits a rock and goes down in the Mediterranean, and a Japanese cruiser is lost in a typhoon. The kept press couldn't see all the losses on the side of capitalism and so it "reported" the sinking of a Russian destroyer during the Soviet naval manoeuvres in the Baltic.

Do Not Call the Police

The big profiteers are planning a "Billion Dollar Dinner" to be held in New York City, Hotel Astor, October 5.

Not those who will attend the banquet, only those who are sponsoring it have combined fortunes of a billion dollars.

The guest of honor will be United States Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, and the gathering will celebrate the fact that the sugar clause in the Fordney-McCumber Tariff Law, put there by Smoot, will cost the workers of this country just $200,000,000.

This gathering of thieves and robbers, from Charles M. Schwab, of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, to Senator Coleman DuPont, of the DuPont Powder Trust, will not be troubled by the police. They will be permitted to glory in peace in their $200,000,000 swag.

The railroad shopmen might be interested to know that the vice-president of the Dinner Committee is L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad, who has headed the group of railroad executives opposed to a settlement of the strike.

Tickets for the banquet are $10 each. Let us see, at 23 cents an hour, $1.84 cents a day, that makes $11.04 per week for a section hand on Mr. Loree's railroad under the ruling of the Railroad "Labor" Board.

But then, when you are a member of a gang that can steal $200,000,000 and stay out of jail, you can well afford to spend the week's wages of a railroad laborer on one meal. You can, as long as the workers stand for it. So enjoy yourselves while you may.

Investigators or Stimulators?

In spite of the fact that Soviet Russia has been criss-crossed by Hoover agents, under the guise of famine relief workers, for more than a year, the United States government wants to send an expert technical commission to study and report on the economic situation within the First Workers' Republic.

There is cause enough to question the sincerity of this latest move of the Harding-Hughes-Hoover triumvirate at Washington, but Soviet Russia isn't backward about meeting any overtures half way, even from America.

If that little luncheon at Berlin the other day had taken place two or three years ago it would have had greater significance. But Krassin and Tchitcherin, minister of foreign trade and commerce and minister of foreign relations respectively in the Soviet Government, as part of the day's work, talked with U. S. Ambassador Houghton, to Germany, and during that talk America's attitude toward Russia was discussed.

Krassin has now announced from Moscow that if the United States wants to send an economic commission to Russia, then Russia would like to reciprocate and send a similar commission to this country because, as he says, the Russians are very much interested in the study of American economics.

But even the Harding administration at Washington, with its clever Mr. Hoover, must know that the era of investigation is about over in Soviet Russia.

Harding, Hughes and Hoover might get together and study the parting statement of Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, who has left on another trip to Russia. One hundred tailors, the pick of the organization, are also on their way to Petrograd. Hillman says:

> "We are not going to Russia as economic investigators as our American capitalists now propose, but we will go there as economic stimulators to set in motion the clothing industry of that great country so that by quantity production we will be able to clothe thousands of Russian men, women and children now in need by winter."

Thru its Russian-American Industrial Corporation, the men's clothing workers of this country, organized into the "Amalgamated," are rapidly raising their $1,000,000 to help start the clothing factories of Russia going, to stimulate this industry.

Such stimulators also are the Kuzbas project, to open the mines and the mills, the efforts of the Friends of Soviet Russia to aid Russian agriculture, and the many projects of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia.

Soviet Russia doesn't need investigators. But it is sorely in need of stimulators, and she seems to be getting them from among the organized workers of this and other countries. Messrs. Harding, Hughes and Hoover, please read, and learn.

Bonus or Bolshevism

The bonus bill has finally passed the senate. The vote was 47 to 22, with republicans and democrats split both ways, which makes one wonder again why we have two old parties.

It is interesting to note that the bill as passed includes the Simmons proposition, whereby interest from the foreign war loans "will be", says the New York World, utilized in making bonus payments.

That's adding insult to injury. First the senators, who are up for re-election, vote in favor of the bill only after they have made sure that President Harding will veto it. Then they promise to pay the bonus with interest money that the United States is unable to collect from England, France, Belgium, Italy and some of her other allies in the world war.

That double cross ought to make the democracy-winners in the war to end all wars real happy, and peppy enough to go out and smash a couple of strikes before their next breakfast.

At least that is the big argument advanced by Chairman McCumber, of the senate finance committee, in favor of the bonus. McCumber feels that the $5,300,000,000 involved will be well spent by the capitalists of this country to keep the loyalty of the war veterans. Listen to this man McCumber, recently defeated for renomination by the farmers of North Dakota, when he pleads:

> "The great capitalists of the country, whose fortunes were doubled and trebled and quadrupled during the war, are, thru their medium of speech—the great metropolitan press—whining because they are to be called upon to pay a trifling little tax out of their immense fortunes to meet the compensation due the soldier who made it possible for them to amass and hold their fortunes.
> "Oh, Mr. President, how shortsighted our avarice and selfishness sometimes makes us. In these times of great unrest, of lawlessness heretofore never heard of, of crime rampant thruout the land, when the sacred rights of life, liberty and property are being denied and defied as never before in the history of our country, to whom in the end must we look for the final arbiter between individual right and mob power—between the supremacy of law on the one hand and the supremacy of anarchy on the other?
> "We must look to those very boys who stood for their country on the field of battle—who carried the flag and whose comrades died for its honor. Let me tell you, Mr. President, that we will need these boys with their loyalty to country and constitution and the sacred rights declared by the constitution; we will need them more—a thousand times more—than we will need the few dollars we would save by denying them this little element of justice."

In the first place, that bonus tax will not come out of the treasure hoards of capitalists. It will come out of the sweat and agony of labor that produce all wealth. It will come out of an increase in the cost of living that will be borne by the workers.

Since most of the war veterans are workers, they will only be taking money out of one pocket and putting it into another.

The bonus is not an antidote for Bolshevism, as McCumber hopes. When the bonus fraud is exposed in actual practice, as it will be, there will instead be many Bolshevists in the making, many new recruits in the only army that registers progress for the working class, the labor army struggling for emancipation from the present social system that we call capitalism.

[illegible]

How natural it was of Foster to tear the ground from under the reactionaries by declaring that the Russian revolution particularly had absolutely changed the point of view of all intelligent radicals about the labor movement.

But it doesn't work out that way, bellow the arch-conservatives. Well, let us see. Study the actual record of achievements of the Trade Union Educational League, that Foster points out, "exists no longer in the world of theory" but "is an effective organ of activity."

It is shown that had the Howatt case, in the United Mine Workers' Union, developed two years ago, the miners' union would have been split from end to end. The voice of the League was raised against a split and it was averted. In the garment unions the League has successfully headed off several incipient split movements.

The charges of the reactionaries are but the children of their fondest hopes. They would like to see the Trade Union Educational League raise the cry of "dualism" instead of "amalgamation" because that would help them hide their own crimes against progress.

The Trade Union Educational League is for amalgamation of the craft unions in the different industries. It is for industrial unity, and for complete solidarity of all industrial unions. That is a program of co-operation and victory, ultimately the victory of the most radical workers.

In that victory the reactionaries behold their own doom. They try to forestall defeat by promoting splits on false issues, by expelling radicals, individually and collectively, wherever the forces of progress win a foothold.

Let the workers learn. The Gompers, the Cahans, the Schlesingers and their allies are the real splitters. The Fosters, the Browders, the Johnstones, the Knudsens and those who stand with them, are the real unitarians, the builders, the torch bearers on the highway towards the ultimate victory of the working class.

Every worker interested in the successful struggle of this class should immediately join the Trade Union Educational League and work for the program on which it stands.

Ganna Walska and her new husband, Harold F. McCormick, of the International Harvester Co., Elynor Glyn and others have found the waters at Karlsbad, Czecho-Slovakia, quite rejuvenating. Perhaps these youth giving qualities caused the 2½ International to postpone its congress scheduled for this health resort September 16. It would rather die quietly in the arms of the Second International. Lee and Hillquit, on behalf of the American "Socialist" Party are on the other side to help officiate at the ceremonies.

One of Harding's Clowns

One of the prize clowns of President Harding's cabinet of fools, almost rivalling Attorney General Daugherty, is James J. Davis, his secretary of labor.

Davis has succumbed to the disease known as autobiographitis. He is having his autobiography, the story of his own petty life written by himself, published.

After carefully arguing that beer should be permitted the much oppressed steel worker, to help him work harder, Davis takes up the discussion of Communism. He writes:

> "Capitalism, as the Communists call it, is an imperfect system. But it is the only system that has banished famine. Under Communism and feudalism there was hunger.
> "Nature is using Communists, slackers, sick men and fools to undermine the race that has conquered her. The man who says, 'quit work and divide our cake and eat it,' is opening the way for nature to strike suddenly with a famine.
> "The man who advocates 'one big strike' to destroy our capital is the secret agent of starvation."

Those labor unionists so anxious to have a secretary of labor in the president's cabinet should pride themselves on the intelligence of the present incumbent.

Since the world has not yet witnessed the existence of a Communist order of society anywhere, it is difficult to understand what Davis means by saying that, "Under Communism there was hunger."

In Soviet Russia at the present time we are far from Communism. All that Russia's workers have now is a proletarian dictatorship in the form of a Soviet Republic that is struggling to bridge the transition period between capitalism and Communism.

The famine in the Volga Valley came, just as many famines had previously come under czarism. Capitalism is directly to blame for the great suffering and tremendous death toll that followed in the wake of the present famine.

Capitalism brought on the great war that robbed Russia's fields of her peasants and sent many millions of them to untimely graves.

Capitalism sent its armies of intervention and counter-revolution across the fertile fields of the Volga Valley, destroying the grain of the good years that would have helped to bridge over the bad years of 1921 and 1922.

In addition, capitalism, its greed for profits, stood in the way of the rest of the world, where there had been tremendous crops, coming to the immediate aid of the Russian peasants.

Capitalism is to blame for all the hunger in the world today. We do not speak alone of the million starving school children in America, nor of the millions of undernourished working men, women and children in this country. It has been left for capitalism, cold-bloodedly and indifferently, to view the tragedy of dying millions when a famine sweeps India, or China, or some other part of the world, in the present case, Russia.

Capitalism is not interested in an international economy that provides for the feeding, housing and clothing of the many. It only asks where can I produce the cheapest and sell the dearest, in order to make the largest possible profits.

When the great masses, who suffer, become aware of that fact thru their actual experiences, they will abolish capitalism and a new social order, Communism, will spread over the world, the sole aim of which will be to house, clothe and feed the many.

Contrary to Mr. Davis, we do not believe that the "one big strike" will destroy capitalism. But it will help. Therefore, contrary to Mr. Davis again, we believe anyone advocating the "one big strike" to be one of the greatest enemies, not a "secret agent" of starvation.

With Daugherty trying to kill the railroad strike with his injunction, and Davis seeking the scalp of Communism with an autobiography, the Harding Circus should play to increased houses. The White House Show should be especially complimented upon its clowns. They are indeed very funny.

Secretary of Labor Davis declared that "no gibbet can be built too high for those who execute such dastardly deeds as the 'deliberate' wrecking of a train recently at Gary, Ind." [illegible] "O. K."

Gompers Wars on Militants!

A. F. of L. Executive Council Approves Burns-Daugherty Regime Against Progress in Ranks of Organized Labor

An era of Burns-Daugherty terrorism has been inaugurated within the ranks of organized labor thru the action of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, meeting at Atlantic City, the New Jersey seaside pleasure resort, endorsing the war launched against labor's militants by Samuel Gompers.

After having spent days in issuing lengthy press statements scoring the Daugherty-Wilkerson injunction against the railroad shopmen, and opposing the white guard tactics of the Harding administration in fighting the working class, the Gompers' regime has about faced and adopted similar infamous policies against the workers in the ranks of its own organization.

Writers for the kept press, with whom Gompers took strolls along the famous boardwalk, giving them ample opportunity to admire the bathing beauties at the famous watering place, had barely intimated that the Executive Council would take up the question of the Trade Union Educational League and its policy of fighting dualism and working within the old unions for desired changes.

When the Executive Council finally delivered its blow in approving Gompers' drastic re-organization of the Bookkeepers, Stenographers and Accountants' Union, in New York City, thereby ousting all the militants, the kept press hardly reported the news.

This policy was faithfully followed by the yellow "Socialist" New York Call.

[illegible] against the New York union will be followed up by similar action whenever required in all of the 666 federal labor unions affiliated with the A. F. of L.

Provoke the Internationals

Since the A. F. of L. executive council has no jurisdiction over local unions within the various internationals, the executive council merely urged that the international unions adopt a similar course. The declaration of the executive council reads as follows:

"By approving the action, the executive council set at work a principle that will be helpful in rendering ineffective the work of those radical groups working within the trade union movement to destroy its effectiveness.

"In this instance it is found that the organization was no longer confining itself to trade union functions, but was being used by many as a means of getting into the labor movement who have no right to belong to it, and thru this affiliation promote various kinds of personal and other schemes which were rapidly destroying the confidence of the better elements anxious to serve the cause of labor.

"This decision of the executive council, while purely local in its character, is nevertheless of national importance, and it is anticipated that the American Federation of Labor will follow a similar course in all local and federal trade unions that are directly under the control of the American Federation of Labor and which total [illegible].

"Unquestionably this action on the part of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor will prove an incentive for international unions to adopt a similar course, and if put into effect will prove one of the most effective methods of ridding the labor movement of those who are trying to break into and fasten themselves upon the labor

Chicago Labor Joins in Fight Against the Michigan "Red Raids"

The Chicago Federation of Labor, by unanimous vote, voiced its opposition to the Michigan "red raids" and pledged its support to those attacked, in resolutions as follows:

Whereas, The arrest of more than a score of men noted for their progressive views and activities in the labor movement on the charge of violating the so-called "Criminal Syndicalist Laws" of Michigan creates a crisis that cannot be ignored by any one concerned in the maintenance of American civil rights or in the struggle of workers for a decent standard of human rights; and

Whereas, The unlawful invasion of a public meeting and the indiscriminate arrest without warrants or due process of law of men and women and the cruel treatment of union men and women by the police is contrary to every principle of American right and justice; and

Whereas, The arrest of Wm. Z. Foster and Earl Browder, members in good standing in recognized trade unions of Chicago, is an outrage and disgrace to every real American, therefore be it

Resolved, By the Chicago Federation of Labor that we protest against these unlawful practices and declare our fullest confidence in these men both as union men and as peaceful citizens.

JUDGE FAVORS STOCKADES

WASHINGTON.—"If the jails of Indiana are not large enough to hold the men who violate these injunctions, then we shall build stockades," Federal Judge Baker, sitting in Judge Anderson's court at Indianapolis, informed J. F. Anderson, vice president, International Association of Machinists, according to Anderson's report here. He was before Judge Baker with several pickets charged with contempt of court of an injunction.

The Michigan Raid

The raid on the Wolfskeel Summer Resort, near Bridgeman, Michigan—two hours ride from Chicago—in which seventeen men were arrested and charged with membership in the Communist Party of America in violation of the criminal syndialism law of that state was not staged by the local authorities.

The sheriff's force merely acted as tools for the Department of Justice operatives who planned the entire proceedings.

So far as federal statutes are concerned the Communist Party of America is not an illegal organization for citizens. There is no federal law under which they can be arrested and held. It was necessary, therefore, for the busy Mr. Burns to operate under a state statute which has never been tested in the Michigan courts and under which no arrests have ever been made in that state.

Early Tuesday morning a small army of deputies descended upon the Wolfskeel Resort and with much flourishing of weapons and authority

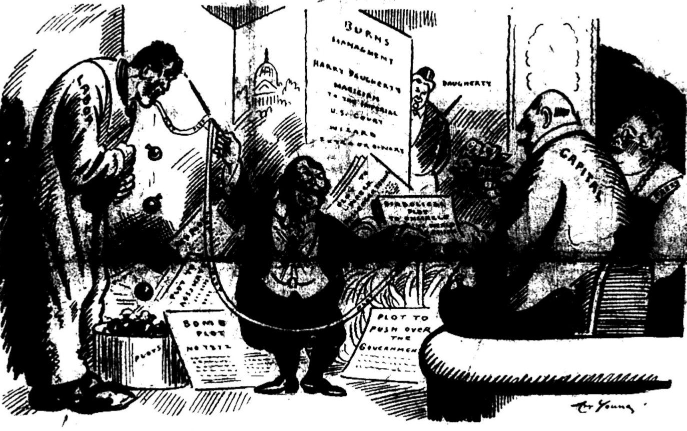
Burns the Wizard



CAPITAL TO HIS LADY:—See how innocent Labor looks, My Dear, as if he didn't know he had all these things concealed on his person.

Workers! You Must Fight for Freedom!

Manifesto of the Workers Party

The American workers are being taught that democracy does not exist in the United States. Freedom of assemblage, freedom of press, freedom of movement in pursuit of happiness, as expressed in the right of association to protect their own interests are rights which belong now to the Chambers of Commerce, to the Ku Klux Klan and other reactionary organizations—but not to the working class.

The great mass of men who do the useful labor of the land are deprived of these rights by the official puppets who administer the government in the interest of "Big Business." Moved by fear of the growing solidarity and power of labor the railroad capitalists and their Washington servants at one stroke abolish all constitutional guarantees of human rights. Government by injunction is established overnight.

This coup d'etat was too sudden and drastic to suit the courage of a certain section of the capitalist class. It may be modified so as to not so frankly set aside all constitutional rights, and camouflage. But the injunction even tho modified, remains a power in the hands of the capitalist class by which to set aside all limitations of the brutal use of its power and to strike the workers into subjection.

The Development of the Capitalist Dictatorship

The old time ideals of freedom have vanished. American political life has become bankrupt.

At the command of the Morgan banking interests the Democratic Party politicians changed the United States into a militarized nation overnight and poured the blood of hundreds of thousands of American Youth into a European War. For this betrayal the democratic politicians were thrown out of office.

Communist International Says Just Verdict Was Returned Against Social Revolutionaries

The manifesto of the Communist International, declaring the guilty verdict returned against the social (counter) revolutionaries to be a "just verdict," has just been received and is published herewith. It calls upon the workers everywhere to overcome the hate that the "Socialists" of the Second and 2½ Internationals are trying to arouse against the Soviet Republic. It is as follows:

TO THE PROLETARIANS OF ALL COUNTRIES

Workers! The Revolutionary Tribunal has pronounced sentence on the leaders of the counter-revolutionary party, which calls itself the Social Revolutionary Party.

It pronounces the verdict expected by every revolutionary worker who has followed the trial and has a clear picture of the crimes committed by this party.

The Court pronounced them guilty of conspiracy against the First Republic of the Workers and Peasants.

They were pronounced guilty because they incited the murder of the leaders of the workers' movement and tried to hush up their cowardly crimes.

In the interests of the World Revolution, the court pronounced the Frame-up in Sacco Case Is Shattered

By EUGENE LYONS

BOSTON.—The Norfolk County frame-up ring, responsible for the conviction of Nicolo Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti on a capital charge, stands exposed by one of its own principal tools and victims.

Mrs. Lola R. Andrews, state witness on identification and perhaps the most sensational figure in the famous trial has confessed that her testimony "was in its entirety unqualifiedly false and untrue."

[illegible] Was Forced

Her identification of Sacco, she states, was made "under the intimidating and coercing influences of Michael E. Stewart, Albert L. Brouillard, Harold Williams, and Frederick G. Katzmann." The first two are police officers working under direction of District Attorney Katzmann, and Williams is an Assistant District Attorney.

The detailed affidavit embodying this confession has been filed in the Superior Court at Dedham, Mass., in further support of the motion for a new trial.

Mrs. Andrews was on the witness stand for three days during the trial last year. Because of the dramatic incidents which developed while she testified, the attendant publicity, and the terrific legal battle centering around her she became unquestionably the outstanding prosecution witness.

Her evidence, it was generally con-

Let Him Answer

Will District Attorney Frederick G. Katzmann and his associates please answer this question? The workers of Massachusetts are interested. So are the workers all over the world.

Dear Mr. Katzmann:

First, your witness Louis Pelser told how he was whipped into line against his will. Now your witness Lola Andrews gives in all its sordid detail the story of how she was intimidated by the State into lying against Sacco and Vanzetti.

How do you square these facts with your statements to the jury in the closing argument on the case, as follows?—

"There is some responsibility upon a prosecutor who produces witnesses whose evidence tends to prove murder. He may think well. He should think long, and he should always have his intelligence and his conscience with him before he puts the stamp of approval of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts upon him as a credible witness before he takes the stand seeking to prove the guilt of men and if proven will result in their death." (Vol. 9, p. 3632.)

And—

"And then there is Lola Andrews. I have been in this office, gentlemen, for now more than 11 years. I cannot recall in that long service for the Commonwealth that ever before [illegible] a witness as Lola Andrews." (Vol. 9, p. 3736.)

[illegible] Injunction [illegible] Daugherty [illegible] Against Militants movement for the purpose of promoting their personal schemes and thereby ruin the trade union organization."

Like Daugherty Injunction

Thus have Gompers and his Grand Dukes issued their "Daugherty injunction" against the "reds," forbidding all radicals to raise their voices in the ranks of organized labor.

Or perhaps the head of the American Federation of Labor, with his associates, will follow the advice of The Union Reporter, Canton, Ohio, that comes to our desk in a sumptuous Labor Day outfit that looks like a pile of gold dollars.

This "Union Reporter" is so "devoted to the promulgation of unionism and union principles as interpreted by the American Federation of Labor" that it loads up its Special Labor Day Edition with "ads" of banks, public service corporations and old-party political candidates.

This exponent of Gompers' ideas has an editorial entitled "No Room for Radicals in This Country," that is so full of fabrications and misstatements that it is condemned by its own villainy. It declares;

"In this broad land of ours where freedom of action and speech is permitted, even tho "agitators" deny it, there is no room whatsoever for men who deliberately disregard every law and every ounce of honor and self-respect.

"In America there is only room for people with American blood and love of justice and every other thinking person whether he or she be an American born, naturalized or still an alien, ought to be driven from these shores.

"Every honest law abiding man, be he artisan or employer, will agree with us in our utter contempt of those, who are agitating not only radical soviet actions, but who also, to gain their nefarious contemptible ends, incite to murder, arson and every other most despicable un-American action.

"It is beyond our comprehension to see the motives actuating the radical element who have sailed under the colors of the American Federation of Labor in order to obtain recruits in their murder and fire riots. We surely are at a loss to see what benefit the radical element can gain by having its members perpetrate crimes too dastardly to believe they could or would be committed.

"What good can be done by putting obstructions or destructions—on the right of way of railroads and taking, as a toll for their vile and mean desires of revenge, innocent lives? What good can it be for a small coterie of radicals of the most dangerous class in the end, even tho they might by misrepresentation and false teachings obtain additions to their ranks?

"They can never gain a foothold strong enough to change the honorable actions as laid down by the officials of the American Federation of Labor, their allied International Unions and the various Brotherhoods.

"We are strongly in favor of the most drastic measures against every radical and as the present laws are insufficient we suggest that congress take immediate steps to rid this country of all the undesirables."

The "labor" sheet that printed the above boasts of the fact that it is a member of the International Labor News Service, official purveyor of Gompers propaganda.

Its case against the militants in the labor unions is Gompers' case, and it is the case of Attorney-General Daugherty in arguing for his injunction at Chicago against the railroad workers.

Labor Is Moving Ahead

We do not say that the kidnapping and deportation of Foster, and the raiding of the Trade Union Educational League offices and convention were inspired by Gompers. But the Burns' detectives might easily bolster up their case by citing from Gompers' attacks against the militants in the labor unions and by quoting the present action of the A. F. of L. Executive Council.

But, no matter how bitter or how extreme they may be, Gompers' attacks on the militants will have as little effect as Daugherty's assaults against the railroad workers. It is written that labor must make progress, if it would survive, and it is going ahead whether reactionaries of the type of Gompers or Daugherty like it or not.

The General Strike Is Dead! Long Live the General Strike!

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

Workers of the United States! You have heard the first call for a General Strike. Its rumblings across the land have awakened in you a sense of new power. It has aroused new fears in the minds of your enemies, those who would keep you in subjection.

You have hurled your demand for the General Strike into the sessions of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor. There your demand lies buried. But it will rise again, stronger, more insistent.

Your first call, Workers of the United States, for a General Strike in defense of your class, is dead. But there will be newer and greater efforts under the slogan of "Long Live the General Strike!" until the present ruling class shall have crumpled into dust.

Your present officials, Workers of the United States, are opposed to the General Strike. They will always be opposed to it.

Favor in Order to Betray.

They gave it lip service for a few short moments because they felt the power of your demands. Thus did Kerensky, when the workers and peasants swept the Russian czar off his throne, try to ride the storm of revolution. Thus did Scheidemann, Ebert and Noske for a few brief days side with the upheaval that lost the Kaiser his empire. They favored it to betray it.

So have your leaders betrayed you. The demand for the General Strike came from the most militant, the thinking, far-seeing elements among you.

Gompers and his reactionary associates used your demand, for a few days, to frighten your enemies. Then they threw your demand into the waste basket and continued their alliance with your enemy, the present ruling class.

They made their gesture and they think they have fooled you just as Scheidemann and Ebert believe they will keep the workers of Germany in subjection. But you will not be fooled, the workers of Germany will not be fooled, no more than the workers and peasants of Russia who have dethroned all their bosses, were fooled. It will only take a little longer to win the fight to reach the goal.

Be Proud! Plan Anew!

Workers! Be proud of your achievements this year! You might have done better had you the right kind of leadership and the proper form of organization. But you will do better, because you will get a real leadership and develop a fighting organization.

First [illegible] great strike of the textile [illegible] New England, a revelation [illegible] working class solidarity.

Then the giant walkout of the 600,000 coal miners, unprecedented in this country in the display of industrial unity.

Then followed the nation-wide down tools movement among the railroad shopmen that nearly swept with it the railroad brotherhoods.

Three times you have assailed the citadels of capitalism in three great industries and you were ready for the great assault, a General Strike, but your leadership held you back because it is yellow and reactionary.

They are trying to interest you to take "impeachment" proceedings against Daugherty, in per capita taxes for the relief of the striking shopmen that will never be collected, specious plans for curtailing the power of the U. S. Supreme Court and "new legislation" for congress to pass and the sacred cows of the Supreme Court to chew to bits.

In Europe the yellow leaders of labor cry, "Anything but the revolution!" while here in the United States we have reached the stage where the same cringing officialdom yells "Anything but the General Strike!"

No Action Yet Taken

Gompers announced ten days before this writing that the A. F. of L. executive council was being called into session for the purpose of discussing the demand for the General Strike. But, as we go to press, no action has been taken.

James Duncan, first vice president, declared the "General Strike" would only be called as a last resort "in defense of democracy," while every worker knows, if Duncan doesn't, that democracy is dead in the United States of America.

When completely cornered these side-stepping labor spokesmen announce they have "no authority," which is a confession that labor is so crippled thru the form of its organization that it is unable to fight its own battles.

It is because the militants of the Trade Union Educational League would develop the kind of an organization that could carry on a General Strike, that they are being fought by the Gompers' regime.

We had been told that an industry-wide strike of the coal miners was impossible. But it has taken place, even with a backward officialdom forced to win a partial victory.

The strike of the railroad shopmen, involving seven out of the 16 craft unions of railroad workers, gives promise of the day when all labor in the transportation industry will stand together and fight together.

Unity of the capitalists nationally and internationally, will force the workers to parallel the organizations of their bosses whether they like it or not.

The pee-wee mind of a Matthew Woll fights amalgamation in the printing industry. He is head of the photo-engravers, and he fears to associate in one organization with the printers, the pressmen, the stereotypers, the electrotypers, the bookbinders, mailers and even the newsboys, who have shown themselves an important factor in every big newspaper strike.

Similarly this Woll, hater of "reds," carries his isolation tactics into the A. F. of L. executive council. He is typical of the rest.

The Last Alibi

"Anyway the general strike is a European institution," is the final display of ignorance with which some of these mis-named "labor-leaders" dismiss the subject.

It is true that the workers of Europe, and we might add labor on every other continent with the exception of North America, have developed the General Strike into a more effective weapon than in the United States.

In spite of their officials in league with Germany's industrial kaisers, the German workers have repeatedly invoked the General Strike to crush the restoration attempts of the Monarchists.

The Italian workers bring the General Strike to bear in the struggle against their American Legion, the labor-crushing Fascisti.

The General Strike has proved an effective weapon in Europe and elsewhere, not because the European profiteers and exploiters are different, but because the workers are different. They are more class-conscious and are learning more and more to fight as a class, as a united working class.

The workers of the United States are neither class conscious nor united as a class. As workers, with the exception perhaps of the mining industry, and partially on the railroads, the workers are merely craft conscious.

But this year 1922 has shown that you are waking up, Workers of the United States. You will in the very future, show that the General Strike is also an American labor institution, because capitalism is just the same in this country as it is everywhere else and it must be fought with the same weapon—CLASS SOLIDARITY.

It Isn't "Respectable"

The last word from Atlantic City is that "the general strike talk has had a very bad effect on the industrial situation."

That was not said by Schwab or Morgan or Rockefeller. But it is credited to the president of an international labor union who adds: "I believe it was a mistake to allow this report to go out."

This "labor leader" no doubt does not consider it respectable for labor to get up off its knees and enjoy the sensation of standing erect.

Against the claim of the "leaders" that "the majority of the workers are not in sympathy" with the proposal for a general strike the militant workers will raise the cry "Organization! Education! Solidarity!" until the workers show by their deeds just where they stand.

Replying to the claim of the "leaders," that "the public should be officially assured at the earliest possible moment that they are not faced with a general strike," we say let the great masses of the people realize they are but a part of the working class and that they should take their stand with it in all its struggles.

The threat of a General Strike will bring the bosses to their knees. The ability of labor to carry out that threat will keep them there.

Labor has responded to the question of the Trade Union Educational League: "Is it to be amalgamation or annihilation?"

It is going to be AMALGAMATION. With amalgamation the general strike weapon gradually evolves into a reality.

Workers of the United States! You will need that General Strike weapon for the bigger struggles ahead. You cannot perfect your organizations for its successful use too soon.

GET BUSY!

FORWARD TO COMPLETE AMALGAMATION OF ALL LABOR!

FORWARD TO THE GENERAL STRIKE!

FORWARD TO THE REVOLUTION AND THE ABOLITION OF CAPITALISM!

[illegible] Against White Terror

What promises to be the greatest protest demonstration held by workers in recent years will take place Friday evening, Sept. 22, at the Central Opera House, on 67th St., between Second and Third Aves.

The workers will give their answer at the huge protest meeting. William Z. Foster, C. E. Ruthenberg, J. Louis Engdahl and Joseph Schlossberg will be the speakers.

The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Emergency Labor Defense Committee.

The workers will come there to voice their indignation against the attempt of the government to crush the Labor Movement.

And that is exactly what Daugherty's injunction against the railroad shopmen and the arrest of prominent radical labor leaders means.

Using as a pretext an alleged secret meeting held at Bridgeman, Mich., Burns' private Detective Agency, shown as the Department of Justice began a series of raids upon working-class organizations. The Trade Union Educational League, the organization of militant labor unionists, led by William Z. Foster, suffered the brunt of the attack of the Department of Justice.

Foster was slapped into jail in Chicago and without even a hearing handed over to the authorities of Michigan. Other union men were dealt with in the same unwarranted manner. The whole business is only a smoke screen to cover up the real intentions of the capitalists. Right after the raids came the injunction against the railroad strikers and Daugherty speaking for the capitalist class openly boasted that the open-shop fight of the employers must conquer.

Philadelphia Is Busy

The Philadelphia Defense Committee is working hard to raise money and bail to help effect the release of Workers Party members recently arrested in Michigan. Several hundred dollars have already been secured and an assessment of $1 per member has been levied on each member in the local.

A Protest Mass Meeting has been arranged for September 20th at the Labor Lyceum, 6th and Brown Sts. Prominent speakers will be present and every effort will be made to arouse the workers against this and other attacks on their rights.

Organize Defense Committee to Fight New War on Labor

(Special to The Worker)

CHICAGO.—The Emergency Labor Defense Committee for the defense of the Michigan defendants and those arrested in connection with that case was formed here Sunday afternoon at a meeting attended by thirty delegates from various labor unions.

Robert M. Buck, editor of The New Majority, official organ of the Chicago Federation of Labor, was elected president and Sam T. Hammersmark chosen secretary-treasurer.

By-laws were adopted which pledges the organization to aid in securing bonds and defense for those who have been arrested in connection with the Michigan prosecutions and others who may be involved from time to time.

The executive committee consists of Murray Loeb, Anton Johannsen, George Stall, Niels Kjar and Lillian Herstein.

The committee has already started an active campaign in Chicago and vicinity in behalf of the accused men and plans to affiliate with a national defense organization that is believed will soon be formed.

BLAME THE I. W. W.

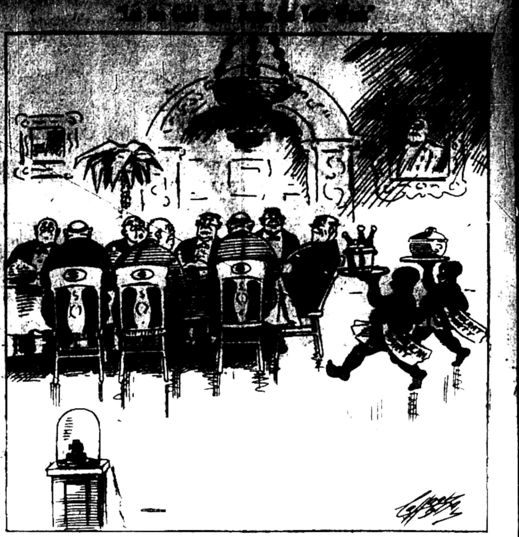
CALEXICO, Cal.—Not content with having framed his own "kidnapping" in order to provide an excuse for intervention in Mexico, Bruce Bielaski, discredited agent of the department of justice, now descends to the depths of blaming that same kidnapping on the I. W. W.

"It was done by I. W. W. members whom Bielaski had had deported to Mexico," asserts Jesus Barcenas, an associate of Bielaski in the frame-up.

HOW COME?

BICKNELL, Ind.—Organized labor celebrated on its own here Labor day. For the first time the workers held aloof from the "friends of labor," asking no business men nor politicians for favors, only recognized representatives of organized labor appeared on their program.

Help Get Those 25,000 Readers!



But we regret to say that the cartoonist forgot to fasten a few "Socialist," Farmer-Labor and other "Nonpartisan" fleas to the backs of the figures representing the two "old parties."

Stand of the Trade Union Educational League on the Coal and Rail Strikes

The declarations of the recent national conference of the Trade Union Educational League on the coal and rail strikes are as follows:

THE RAILROAD STRIKE

The Trade Union Educational League expresses its complete solidarity with the striking railroad shopmen. The rail exploiters have no regard whatever for the human needs of the workers. They are animated only by their own greed. They want profits and more profits, regardless of the fact that their insatiable lust for wealth means the enslavement of the great mass of the people. In self-protection the workers must resist the encroachment of the parasitical owning elements. We note with satisfaction that the shopmen are developing a true understanding of the real situation and are defending themselves accordingly.

But we must also point out one great lesson in the present struggle. While the seven shop unions are valiantly battling the united exploiters, nine other organizations, numbering some 1,000,000 members, have remained at work and are helping the companies in their fight against the striking shopmen. This is an inexcusable situation. Nothing but profound stupidity or worse, on the part of the trade union leadership, is responsible. We call upon the nine crafts still at work to rally to the support of their striking brothers, and we urge the railroad workers as a whole to prevent such a sad state of affairs developing again, with part of their number working and the rest striking. This can only be accomplished by merging all the railroad unions into one body. The very life of railroad unionism demands that this be done.

THE COAL STRIKE

The first National Conference of the Trade Union Educational League congratulates the coal miners on the splendid spirit manifested by them in their recent great strike. Never have the workers of this country risen to greater heights of solidarity, never has the country been made to understand more clearly the debt that it owes to the toilers. Although the struggle has not resulted in a complete victory, at least the violent drive of the "open shoppers" has been checked. This in itself is a no mean accomplishment in these days of black reaction. But this true, now coming to pass, is only temporary. Soon the employers will be on the offensive again. And when the next great struggle develops the miners must be ready to fight even more valiantly than they have this time. By their gallant struggle the coal miners have undoubtedly preserved the whole trade union movement from destruction. Had they been faint-hearted and had they yielded in the battle, the employers, tremendously encouraged thereby, would have raged against all other trade unions until the movement generally was crushed. We hail the battling miners.

Ice Cream to Repair Engines?

BOSTON.—New England railroads are furnishing their strike breakers with ice cream, cigarets, moving picture shows, radio concerts, as well as free board and lodging, the executive board of Boston & Maine striking shopmen asserts in a public statement. The executive board asks why it is that despite this royal treatment the scabs are unable to send out locomotives in good condition.

100 PER CENT

SEATTLE.—An admittedly class conscious paper is soon to be added to local newspapers when the Daily American starts publication. It is opposed to pussyfooting with unionism and is in favor of smashing them, it announced. It will be a tabloid newspaper.

NEW YORK.—Custom Dressmakers' Union No. 80 of the I. L. G. W. U., are making an effort to organize all non-union custom tailoring establishments. Renewals of agreement with those now operating union shops will be effected about Sept. 15.

F. P. Walsh, Ohsol and Hibben in Joint Plea for Russia's Children

CHICAGO.—The American Committe for Relief of Russian Children has received the following cablegram from Samara, Russia, signed by Frank P. Walsh, John G. Ohsol and Paxton Hibben, and sent just after the three had completed a tour of the famine districts;

"Whatever are the results of the Russian harvest, it is clear that the need for feeding and clothing millions of underfed, sick and homeless children is incontestible and compelling. Great hearted America which has already done so much to save Russia cannot now let these little ones die or pass their childhood in misery and want. We apeal for support to the splendid work of the American Committee for Relief of Russian Children, that these children may be enabled to come through the valley of the shadow of death to health at last."

Each of these men went to Russia as a private citizen. Copies of the cablegram are being distributed to those interested in the million cans of milk campaign now under way, in an effort to combat the press reports which would lead the public to believe that the situation in Russia is no longer critical.

With the Young Workers

Some of our comrades have been arrested in the renewed attacks by the capitalist class and government on those having practical and revolutionary opinions. We must defend our comrades and all other industrial and political prisoners.

To have a united front in this work, an Emergency Labor Defense Committee has been organized, composed of working class and liberal organizations in this country.

The Young Workers League of America has affiliated with the Emergency Labor Defense Committee and the N. E. C. has placed a representative on that committee.

Every city and every branch must also elect delegates to the corresponding defense unit. The [illegible] of the Y. W. L. will in most instances elect delegates to the local defense committee. Where there is only one branch in a city that branch must send a delegate to the City Defense Committee. Do this NOW.

In the next issue of the Young Worker will appear a statement by the N. E. C. of the Y. W. L. of A. on the problem of defense. Read this statement carefully and then ACT.

Plan for Liebknecht Day

Get ready for LIEBKNECHT DAY and for the 5th Anniversary of the Russian Soviet Republic November 7. We shall co-operate with the Workers Party in the celebration of the Anniversary of the Workers Republic.

For Liebknecht Day, another big day for young workers thruout the world, extensive preparations must be made. Now that we have learned better because of I. Y. D. meetings, how to proceed with our work we should be able to have huge demonstrations and meetings for Liebknecht Day Jan. [illegible]

Neglecting the Young

New York city, which has 400,000 illiterates under the age of 21, which has scores of public school buildings condemned again and again as filthy, disease-breeding firetraps, which last year had 300,000 public school pupils on part time or "double session" for want of seats, has re-opened its schools for the fall term with only 16,000 more seats than were provided at the close of school last June. This means that on the "single session" plan these seats will fall 6,000 short of providing even for last year's increase of 22,000 part-time pupils. Even on the "double time" plan, at the very best there still must be 116,000 pupils who can attend school only on part time.

BERKELEY, Cal.—Sixty-five young men and women, citizens of Russia, have entered the University of California as students. They are sent here by the soviet government, and after their training in engineering and other technical lines will return to Russia and the government service there. Their expenses are being paid by the soviet republic.

One Printing Trades Union Great Demand

Editor's Note: The issue "Amalgamation or Annihilation" is being raised at the 67th Convention of the International Typographical Union now meeting at Atlantic City, just as it is being urged in all other gatherings of labor. We are planning to have thoro reports of this convention for THE WORKER. This week we give space to the accompanying tribute to the Typographical Union by Al Smith, in the August issue of The Labor Herald:

One Union in Printing Trades

By AL SMITH

The printing trades unions have been thru a great struggle. Attacks against their wage standards and hours of labor have been most vicious. Taking the industry as a whole, the workers have suffered setbacks and have been weakened.

The pressmen, stereotypers, electrotypers and bookbinders, have lost half their members, have had to take big reductions in wages, and have failed to hold the 44-hour week.

On the other hand, however, the biggest union in the industry, comprising more than half those organized, the International Typographical Union, has held its membership well, losing less than 10 percent, has held the 44-hour week, and suffered no reductions in wages. This has only been done at the cost of millions of dollars and bitter struggle.

The smaller unions in the industry have suffered heavily. They have paid the price for lack of unity among the printing trades workers. They above all others, should realize by this time that their only hope to protect their interests, and prevent the employers from crushing them, is for them to unite all their forces. One union for the printing trades would be a boon and protection to them.

Strange to say, however, it is the large union, the I. T. U., which is leading the movement at this time for one printing trades union. In spite of the fact that in going alone it fares better than any of the others, it is the first to suggest unity among them all. At the Quebec convention (1921) it passed the following resolution almost unanimously:

"Resolved, That this convention favors the amalgamation of the various printing trades unions, to the end that there be but one union in the printing industry."

This resolution is the most concise statement made of the principle of industrial unity, and is the latest statement of the principle which has animated the progressive elements in the printing trades for many years. There has always been a struggle going on between the advocates of unity and the forces of disruption. Today the movement for one union for the printing trades is gaining much headway because the logic of membership figures, wage-scales, and hours of labor is forcing the issue to a decision. It is amalgamation or annihilation for the smaller unions, as the immediate alternative.

CAPMAKERS' UNION

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. The St. Joseph Cap Co. has withdrawn its demand for a reduction of wages in its controversy with the local of the United Cloth Hat and Cap Makers' Union. The Western Cap Co. refusing to follow the same course, precipitated a strike in its plant which has been won by the workers. The company was forced to grant increases to such workers as were below the union scale.

NEW TRIAL STARTS

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va.—After considerable delay owing to the inability of many witnesses to pay their traveling expenses to court, the trial of Walter Allen charged with treason in connection with the West Virginia mine war of August, 1921, has begun. The trial is expected to consume several weeks.

Monster Mass Meeting!

Thousands Participate—Speakers of International Reputation Dwell on Present Situation—Gompers Excoriated—Soviet Russia Cheered

Labor Day, St. Joseph, Mich.

At a mass meeting which packed the new auditorium in Berrien County jail, a remarkable ovation greeted the announcement of Charles Krumbein, well known Chicago labor leader, that the Soviet Republic of Russia was today impregnable after five years of civil war and attacks from the outside by the capitalists of the world.

"The Workers of America," stated Krumbein in a voice hoarse with passion, "are prepared to follow in the footsteps of their comrades in Russia and establish the Soviet Republic of America on the ruins of American Imperialism."

This outburst of Krumbein was cheered by the monstrous gathering until the iron locks rattled on the doors of the cells.

Krumbein further announced that he was instructed by the masses in Chicago to state that if the capitalists wanted war they could have it. As far as they were concerned, they were too proud to fight.

Norman Tallentire, known among the world proletariat as "The Poet Laureate of the Revolution," sang the Internationale, and when the audience was sufficiently recovered he delivered a disquisiton on revolutionary poets which had a quieting effect on the audience. He concluded among loud snores.

The next speaker was T. J. O'Flaherty, who came purposely from Ireland, to partake in the ceremony. We have not space in this issue to do full justice to his eloquent and instructive oration but the next issue of the Daily Worker will carry his speech in full.

Seth Nordling from Sweden and Puget Sound, representing the lumber workers of the Far West spoke with considerable feeling on the revival of class-consciousness among the Swedes in the lumber industry. The Swedes, he stated, were peacefully inclined, but it would not do to goad them into anger. Nordling gazed significantly at MacMillan as he made this statement. The audience took the hint and applauded.

Eugene Bechtold, representing the International Youth, delivered a fiery speech and made particular appeal to the young people among the audience. He stated that on the C. E. C. of the Young Workers' League were some of the best thinkers in the American Labor Movement. Himself and the other members of the C. E. C., he stated with becoming modesty performed a lion's share in bringing the position of the American youth to the attention of the capitalist class.

After smoking a cigarette and answering several impertinent questions he sat down amid cheers.

Max Lerner, the noted Marxian scholar and personal friend of the famous eccentric genius Harry Waton, spoke with dignity on "Karl Marx as I knew him." "Marx," stated Comrade Lerner, "contrary to the general opinion was not a temperance advocate. He drank good whiskey, smoked the best cigars and was not above carrying on a flirtation. However, Marx did not become famous like General Grant because of the brand of whiskey he used. He made his reputation by contributing to posterity an analysis of capitalist society known as "Das Kapital." There are only a few Marxian scholars in Europe and one in America. I hope to give you a more intimate picture of Marx before this course is ended." Professor Lerner was severely quizzed and smoked a heavy cigar a la Marx. He was given a vote of thanks.

The principal oration was delivered by Caleb Harrison of Cleveland, a disciple of Daniel De Leon and formerly one of the leading lights in the Socialist Labor Party. He is now famous as one of the best poker players in Berrien County jail.

Harrison was introduced by Krumbein in the usual way. Harrison needed no introduction and so forth. The speaker proceeded to satirize the present system of society much to the astonishment of Jerry Dillon, the "Fighting Harp" of Chicago. Harrison stated that there was freedom for all in America. Dillon was about to hit the speaker with his wooden leg when the chairman diplomatically winked and Jerry got wise immediately.

The speaker then opened up and delivered a rousing speech which lasted until the large audience had filed out. A collection was taken up to defray the expenses of hiring the hall and paying the fares of the speakers.

Krumbein announced that the collection was 19 cents. He thanked the audience for their patience and liberality. The great event was over.

HERE WE ARE!

It has been recognized for some time by the forward looking members of the W. P. that a daily paper was a necessary part of the equipment of a revolutionary organization that was making a bold attempt to go to the masses.

Pious hopes were expressed, resolutions were passed and various schemes were concocted but still the daily paper did not appear.

At last a small minority, but a militant minority, tired of the lackadaisical methods of their leaders, took the bull by the horns and decided to launch the "Daily Worker" at this critical juncture in the history of the American Working Class.

This action may draw down on our heads the wrath of would-be leaders who claim an immunity from making mistakes. Our reply to this claim is that it is better to make mistakes than do nothing at all.

INFORMATION WANTED!

An anxious wife and five children await information concerning the whereabouts of Seth Nordling the Portland Lumber King, who deserted her on or about August the 15th. Nordling can be identified by the large bunion on his left foot. He is also very fond of snuff and has the appearance of a mediaeval viking. Liberal award offered. Address X. Y. this office.

GREAT MILITARY COUP

Seventeen Prisoners taken in Assault on Red stronghold in Berrien County fastness

GENERAL ERICKSON INTERVIEWED

By Bud Reynolds

General Erickson, hero of the Battle of Poitiers, during which he distinguished himself by his bravery, sat in the lobby of the Bodgenon Hotel, smoking a Clown, when your representative sought his opinion on the engagement now known as "the Battle of Bridgeman."

General Erickson stated that the flanking movement carried on under the direction of Major Moflhagen, simultaneously with the frontal attack of General Bridgeman, caught the Reds between two fires. It reminded him of the Second Battle of the Marne, when he, Erickson, with Foch and Pershing conceived the famous encircling movement which sent the Germans Reeling in disorder. The power of the Reds Erickson believes is now definitely broken as their best generals were wounded, killed or taken prisoners.

The operation was considered delicate as the strength of the Reds was unknown to General Spolansky, Commander in Chief of the Washington Division. His Intelligence Department reported enemy concentration in the vicinity of Bridgman, but was unable to locate them by an artillery so he hesitated to sacrifice his men until his airplane division first carried out bombing operations.

His main Flying Squadron arrived rather late and discovered that the big guns had been moved by the Reds under cover of darkness. Light artillery however, could play havoc with his forces if properly placed around the gullies where the Great Headquarters of the Reds was located.

Erickson stated that in his opinion General Spilansky did not display the dash of a real American. He also remarked that the General might properly be accused of neglect in not paying proper attention to the indications of retreat from the enemy camp. His Intelligence department reported a strange cackling after dusk and the flapping of wings, showing that the birds in the neighborhood were disturbed by some unusual activity. It is now believed that the Reds retreated during the night on which the cackling was heard.

SOCIETY COLUMN

Albert Bail, noted Philadelphia turf man and rounder dropped into Berrien County Jail for an indefinite stay. His social affairs are in the hands of Attorney Soakem, his family lawyer.

Bud Reynolds who recently returned from a trip around the world, is held up in St. Josephs, Michigan, owing to complications in the real estate market. He is now the guest of Sheriff Bridgeman.

Charles Erickson, the famous builder, is staying at our best Hotel. It is rumored that he is soliciting a one million dollar contract for the construction of the biggest county jail in the United States. Erickson was recently seen riding in one of Sheriff Bridgeman's machines, revealing a close intimacy with the Berrien County Boss.

[illegible] Strike War Against Great Odds

In entering upon the great struggle just ended, the coal miners faced some terrific handicaps, declares John Dorsey, in an article on the miners' strike in the October issue of The Labor Herald, official organ of the Trade Union Educational League. Other odds against them developed in the course of the fight.

The finances of the union were at a low ebb. Numerous suits and injunctions were being fought in court. Bitter factionalism was tearing the organization.

A strike had been on in Mingo County, West Virginia, for nearly two years, which had developed into civil war. Great unorganized fields were in operation in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Tennessee, Alabama, and Colorado.

Splendid Fighting Spirit

These odds against the workers counted heavily, and were only overcome or offset by the heroic energy and splendid fighting spirit of the rank and file, and some most excellent organizing work in the Connellsville field.

The Connelsville coke region of Pennsylvania, a stronghold of non-unionism operated by the steel trust, was one of the weak spots of the Miners' Union.

The union invaded this field and enrolled scores of thousands of new members here. This new organization, gained early in the strike, grew in power and numbers. It is a permanent addition to the ranks of organized labor. This was one of the best bits of organizing work that has been done. It counted mightily in the growth of the power of the strike.

West Virginia, in spite of the two-year war of Mingo County, also held its own in this strike. Super-human energy must be in these sturdy American miners, for right at the outbreak of the strike, more than 300 of their officers and leaders were dragged away 500 miles, to Charlestown, to stand trial for treason and murder.

Accomplish Wonders in West Va.

Along with them had to go 500 of the most active union men of the coal fields, as witnesses to keep them from being railroaded to the penitentiary.

In spite of the bleeding of the Union of its most vital element, the militants, in this fashion, the West Virginia district accomplished wonders in upholding their end of the strike.

Even in Colorado, where John D. Rockefeller and the Steel Trust go hand in hand, and their vassal, Pat Hamrock of Ludlow infamy, rules the land with Cossacks, rifle, tanks, and tear-gas, the employers did not have a free hand. Only by the most ruthless suppression, by force were the miners prevented from sweeping the fields.

Their organizers were rearrested as fast as they could get out on bail, until all available bonds were exhausted, and then they were held in prison until the strike was over or they agreed to leave the state.

Separate Agreements and "Leaders"

One danger which threatened the strike, was the determined efforts of some "leaders" to bring about separate district agreements, instead of battling it out for a national settlement.

This was particularly true of Frank Farrington, President of District No. 12 in Illinois. How the danger was met and overcome there is a story all by itself. But the separate agreement menace was actually made a reality in one instance, Alabama, and threatened to have disastrous consequences for a time.

It happened this way. A man who was once International President of the Union, John P. White, was put on the pay-roll at an outrageous salary, and sent to Alabama, one of the weakly organized districts.

White was head of the Union at the outbreak of the war, he continued to draw his salary from the miners while he went to Washington to serve the Government at $1 a year.

Then he got a good government job, and was succeeded by Lewis as President of the United Mine Workers of America. But in some way White lost out, so Lewis, for unknown reasons, put him on the job again for the union. White went to Alabama, signed up separate agreements which tied up the miners under an arbitration board whose decisions they were bound to accept, and then resigned to accept the position of—head of the arbitration board!

But in spite of all handicaps, in spite of treachery, the miners of the country as a whole, in bituminous and anthracite fields alike, stood solid without a serious break in their ranks. They emerged from the struggle stronger in numbers than they went in. Their spirit is unbroken. If they have not won a complete victory it is not because they have not earned it.

What Will the Truce Mean?

The temporary settlement has checked the "open shop" drive to some extent and thus far is a victory, but it is only a temporary and very partial one. What will it mean for next spring when the truce ends?

One of the provisions of the truce is the naming of a commission to investigate the conditions of the industry and report a plan of organizing it to guarantee the miners a decent standard of life, without interfering with the bosses' profits.

This commission is to be named by agreement between the Union and the operators, in case of disagreement it is to be named by President Harding.

This "joker" makes it certain that the report of the commission will be adverse to the miners. This year the miners went into battle with the mass of so-called public opinion on their side. Next spring the report of the commission, which is morally sure to be against the miners, will be a powerful factor in swinging "public opinion" against them. On this point the truce is favorable to the bosses and distinctly unfavorable to the miners.

The five month's fight has drained the miners of financial resources. They have no way of recuperating themselves, except their regular wages.

Mine Owners Reimburse Selves

On the other hand the mine bosses are already reimbursing themselves for their losses in the strike in a most princely fashion.

For example, the Chicago Tribune of August 30th, carries the story of a State Fuel Commission, in deciding the price which would be charged for coal, solemnly agreeing that it is perfectly in order for the companies to add $1 per ton to the price to cover the cost of the strike.

To understand this fully, remember that the miner, for his entire labor in producing that ton of coal, gets only 91 cents to $1.10. Every time the returned miners produce a ton of coal they will be putting another dollar into the coffers of the companies which will be used to break the next strike.

Financially, the truce is favorable to the companies and unfavorable to the workers.

The settlement of the bituminous strike carried terms differing from those accepted in the anthracite strike. The former established a truce until April 1st, the latter for one year, or three months beyond the other. This destroys the solidarity which existed between these two branches of the industry in the fight this year.

If the bituminous miners must strike next year, the anthracite workers will have still a three month's contract to fulfill. From the point of view of solidarity the miners have lost an advantage by this truce.

Menace of Coal from Abroad

The Union is faced with bitter persecution in the courts. The Coronado case has laid them open to furious raids upon their funds. The Herrin persecution threatens to command a tremendous amount of the energy and attention of the Union.

All of these drains upon the Union strength have another nine months to get in their work before the issue of a cut in wages comes up again. From this point of view the Union will face a more favorable situation next spring.

In the strike just ended, the importation of coal from abroad was resorted to very late in the struggle and did not grow to very great proportions before the truce.

But if the employers decide to cut wages next spring there can be little doubt that the systematic importation of coal from abroad will be one of the well-prepared weapons. This is another factor unfavorable to the miners.

Pettigrew Backs Revolution

"The Russian Revolution is the greatest event of our times. It marks the beginning of the epoch when the working people will assume the task of directing and controlling industry. It blazes a path into this unknown country, where the workers of the world are destined to take from their exploiters the right to control and direct the economic affairs of the community."—From the book by Ex-U. S. Senator R. F. Pettigrew, "Imperial Washington".

An Apologist for Capitalism

The editorial writer of the New York Call has been weeping so much over the fate of social (counter) revolutionaries in Soviet Russia that we had come to the conclusion that his tear ducts had about gone dry.

Frank P. Walsh, noted labor lawyer, however, comes out of the Workers' Republic, and announces that "any government would have condemned" the Social Revolutionaries, which causes this writer to suffer a relapse, in the issue of September 5th. The Call writer hysterically states that, "Soviet officials and trial judges organized mass meetings, spoke at them and assured their audiences that the accused would be convicted. Atrocious as some of the political trials were in this country, government officials and judges did not go that far."

We have just been reading a Federated Press report, Sept. 6th, telling how Attorney General Edward J. Brundage, Illinois, carried his fight against the Illinois miners into a speech at the 23rd Ward Republican Picnic, Chicago. Brundage has $25,000 from the Illinois Chamber of Commerce to carry on his grand jury attack against the Herrin miners.

We remember that every hireling of capital, from President Harding down, has been attacking the Herrin miners who have not even been charged with crime.

Similarly Secretary of Labor Davis in his Labor Day speech, declared that "no gibbet can be built too high for those who execute such dastardly deeds as the 'deliberate' wrecking of a train recently at Gary, Ind.," when all the facts show that the wreck resulted from the use of a defective engine.

We cite these instances to show that capitalist spokesmen do not wait for workers to be arrested, charged with crime and put on trial before beginning their attack. If the memory of the Call's editorial writer is so poor there are those who will remember that workers were tried and convicted in the newspapers and by their judges long before they came to trial, before the war, during the war and since.

It did happen that mass meetings were held during the trial of the social (counter) revolutionaries in Soviet Russia, some of these being gatherings on the anniversary of the assassination of the Soviet commissars Volodarsky and Uritzky. Surely, the spokesmen of the Russian workers addressed these meetings. The Russian workers are peculiar in that they do not invite the kept lawyers of capitalism and anti-working class politicians to address them.

The Russian workers, in the conduct of their proletarian courts, have no apologies to offer.

But the Call, in attacking the Russian workers, inevitably and naturally adopts the role of apologist for capitalist institutions and customs. Playing that part it seems to be very much at home.

[illegible] Facts Show [illegible] Strength of [illegible] Communists

The Bulgaria that fought in the late war on the side of Germany, Austria-Hungary and Turkey, now boasts one of the strongest Communist Parties in Europe, its parliamentary fraction even threatening the majority of the government.

The inspiring facts are given in the report of party secretary, T. Lechanoff, to the party's fourth congress. We take from the report the following:

On May 20th, 1922, the Communist Party of Bulgaria included 1534 local organizations with a membership of 38,036, as against 1512 organizations with 34.898 members at the end of 1921. This represents an increase of 104 local organizations with 2849 members, between the first of January and the 20th of May 1922.

The Party controls the following organizations:

1—The General Trade Union Federation, comprising 19 trade unions with 497 local groups and 29,139 members.

2—The Central Women's Committee with 72 local groups and 4200 members, including 1552 working women, 226 housekeepers and 293 women without exact occupation.

3—The Central Foreigner's Committee, with 18 sections and 1310 members.

4—The League of the Bulgarian Communist Youth, which comprised at the end of 1921, 362 groups with 13,216 members. They are divided into 78 city-groups, with 6831 members and 224 rural groups with 6355 members. Their organ, Mladec (The Young People) appears in an edition of 14,000 copies.

5—The Communist League of War Invalids and the League of former War Prisoners, which united at the beginning of the year into the Union of War Victims. At the end of 1921 this union had a membership of 4261 members, divided into 105 local organizations. Their organ The War Victim has a circulation of 4,300 copies.

6—The Group of Communist Engineers with 52 members.

7—The Cooperative Society "Osvobojdenie" (Liberation) which, on the 31st of March 1922, had a membership of 57,000. At the end of 1921 their consumer's division controlled 32 branches and 85 agencies. The publishing division prints all the newspapers, magazines and other publications of the Party. They have over 300 organs, possess headquarters, with a modern printing press equipped with the largest rotary machines in the country. Their construction department possesses a modern sawing mill and a well equipped carpenters shop. They are now working on the construction of a new five-story People's House. The cooperative has close connections with the Russian and American labor movement.

The Party has a representation of 43 members in Parliament. The election of 9 more Communist deputies was declared void by the government so that its majority would not be endangered.

In the local elections of October 2nd, 1921 and of February 19th, 1922, the C. P. B. received 126,464 votes. The party now controls 113 communes and 9 city executives. In a great many other communities it has won a greater or lesser number of offices. Altogether, it has elected 3,623 communal and 315 provincial councillors.

The C. P. B. had to fight in all cases against a coalition of the other parties. All its campaigns have been successful. We need only mention the protest campaign against the burning of the People's House, May 24th, 1921, its campaign for the relief of Russian famine, and not least, its campaign against the Wrangelites in Bulgaria. The propaganda is conducted by the Central Committee which has named a special committee for that purpose.

The Party publishes the following newspapers: Rabotnitchetski Vestnik (Labor Herald) the central organ of the C. P. B. and the General Trade Union Federation with a daily circulation of 25,000, the Selski Vestnik (Rural Herald), a weekly with a circulation of 25,000, the magazine Novo Vremia (New Times), the scientific bi-weekly of the Party, circulation 5800; the Tcherven Smech (Red Laugh) a humoristic weekly, circulation 4000, the Ravenstvo (Equality), weekly organ of the Communist women, circulation 10,000; the Mladec (Young People), a weekly published by the Communist Youth and having a circulation of 14,000; the Osvobojdenie (Liberation), organ of the foreign Communists, which will be published in the near future in 3200 copies; the War Victim, organ of the former soldiers, a bi-weekly with a circulation of 4000; the Zia (Light) published in Turkish for the Bulgarian Turks, 1800 copies; the Novo Svet (New World), organ of the American Communists in Bulgaria, edited in 1000 copies; the Bratstvo (Brotherhood) a magazine for propaganda among Bulgarian Jews; and, finally, the Narodna Armia (People's Army) a weekly for propaganda in the Army.

Outside of this, the C. P. B. published the Bulgarian number of the Communist International; during the year 1921 it also printed 61 books and many pamphlets.

[illegible] Here's First Detailed Story [illegible] Raid placed under arrest Caleb Harrison, Ned Reynolds, William F. Dunne, Norman Tallentire, Thomas O'Flaherty, Tom Sullivan, Al. McMillin, John Michelic, C. E. Ruthenberg, Cyril Lambkin, Charles Krumbein, Gene Bechtold, Max Lerner, A. Nordling, Charles Erickson and Charles Ashworth. Erickson was beaten up before the arrested men were taken from the grounds. All were held two days incommunicado during which time they were questioned and third-degree methods used on those who appeared physically weak.

Ashworth was so badly beaten that he was later ordered released by the federal man in charge. Lambkin, Bail and Erickson were also severely beaten and manhandled.

The Berrien county jail was overcrowded; there were not enough bunks or blankets to go around and at this writing some of the prisoners are still sleeping on the concrete floor.

The second or third day the seventeen were taken down in front of the jail, photographed from various angles, while the brave deputies stood on guard with shotguns held in readiness and revolvers bulging in every available pocket.

Later when the defendants were taken over to the city hall to hear the charges read those who got downstairs first were handcuffed until the supply of manacles ran out. The result of this lavish use of the small supply of cuffs was that the smallest and most inoffensive looking of the prisoners were chained to deputies who looked big enough to eat them, while the more husky prisoners simply trailed along with the guards.

Contrary to what might have been expected the spectacle of seventeen reds in captivity aroused but little interest in St. Joseph. Only a handful of boys turned out to see the results of the brain-racking work of the local officialdom in saving the nation with the help of William J. Burns, Spolansky and Goebel—the latter two being Polish Jews and therefore greatly interested in repelling the alien invasion.

Judging from the first attitude of the local sheriff and his deputies they had expected that the arrested men would be friendless aliens on whom their sadistic desires could be satisfied without arousing any great protest from outside. Some little change took place, however, when telegrams of inquiry and sympathy began to arrive, particularly one from the Minneapolis Central Labor Council to William F. Dunne and his fellow-prisoners, stating that the Minneapolis labor movement was with them "to the last ditch."

Bail was fixed at $10,000 each, an exorbitant sum in view of the charge, and altho the prosecutor had intimated to the defendants' attorneys that it would be reduced in most cases, the objection of the federal authorities has so far prevented any reduction. We have here a clear case of a federal espionage system, run by the head of a notorious private detective agency, going outside of its jurisdiction, to help wreak the vengeances of an insane ruling class upon men whose sole crime is activity in the labor movement. A federal prosecutor is at present in St. Joseph assisting the county attorney to prepare the case; if additional evidence is wanted of the gratuitous nature of these prosecutions this appears to furnish it.

The situation appears to be this: That men cannot meet to discuss the problems of the labor movement in America without being hounded by police spies who are nominally government agents but actually the servants of the capitalists of America and as such anxious to convince their masters that they are on the job.

Let us see who these "reds" are who were arrested at a well-known summer resort just previous to the convention of the Workers Party and the conference of the Trade [illegible] Union Educational League in Chicago a few miles away.

All of these are members of [illegible] in the labor movement. They are associates of William Z. Foster whose idea of the [illegible] of the existing trade union movement and the necessity of the radicals staying with it has worked a revolution in the tactics of the militant elements all over the United States. His idea of the amalgamation of the railway unions has gained such a foothold that everywhere the rank and file is calling for and working for industrial unionism despite the opposition of officialdom.

Already a split in the United Mine Workers of America has been prevented because the militants have got the notion of dualism out of their systems, and to-day the outlook for the American labor movement is more hopeful than ever before. The employers are worried at the strong new tendency for unity.

Again, William F. Dunne, former editor of the Butte Bulletin, lately labor editor of The Worker, of New York, was on his way to Butte when arrested with a plan for the organization of the metal miners of the United States which had been worked out by him and Foster.

He was to take charge of the Butte Bulletin once more and again challenge the copper trust in its stronghold.

There are copper mines in Michigan and there is little doubt that the news of Dunne's arrest brought no sorrow to the copper barons in Arizona, Montana or Michigan.

Caleb Harrison, active in the machinists' union; Michelic, another militant machinist from Kansas City. McMillin, organizer for the World War Veterans in St. Louis. Reynolds of the Carpenters' Union of Detroit. Norman Tallentire, carpenter, known for his work on the Mooney defense and in behalf of all worker victims of employers' hatred and greed. Thomas O'Flaherty, longshoreman [illegible] C. E. Ruthenberg [illegible] for his class.

This is the type of men who are now menaced with a sentence of ten years' imprisonment and a $5000 fine for daring to counsel with each other on the burning questions of the labor and revolutionary struggles of the workers.

Without a semblance of reason Michigan warrants were issued for William Z. Foster, Browder and Aronberg. Browder is managing editor of The Labor Herald and of course the powers that prey want Foster for many things. He has never been forgiven for the organization of the steel strike and there is no worker in America today who is more hated and feared than William Z. Foster, the quiet young man who has brought new hope to the militants in the organized labor movement.

The complaint on which these men were arrested charges them with nothing except membership in the Communist Party of America. No acts in violation of any statute are cited; the department of justice seems to merely have taken advantage of the fact that seventeen men were in Michigan at the same time to institute prosecutions under a state war-time measure whose federal counterpart has been repealed.

There is little doubt that these arrests are part of a general campaign of intimidation engineered by the government agents in connection with the railway strike. As a matter of fact this was admitted by Spoliansky in conversation with some of the prisoners in the Berrien county jail. He said: "The Communist Party and the Workers Party are not strong enough to bother about and if [illegible] have happened. [illegible] that he is a [illegible] department of [illegible] and as such enjoys the trust and confidence of those [illegible] in high places, so in this particular matter he can probably be believed. It follows therefore that the Michigan arrests are not an attack on revolutionary suspects but are a deliberate onslaught on the fighting elements in the organized labor movement. More significant than anything else in connection with this matter is the sweeping injunction applied for by Attorney-General Daugherty, restraining the striking shopmen from doing everything except breathing and even prohibiting that in the vicinity of railway property.

For the first time in the industrial history of the United States ordinary trade unionist and the officials of the trade unions find themselves, so far as the oppressive powers of capitalist government are concerned, in exactly the same position as the so-called "reds," whom the governmental agencies and the propagandists of the ruling class have hitherto used as bugaboos with which to scare the worker who did not know that all organization of the workers is anathema to the ruling class at the present stage of capitalist development.

It is out of such occurrences as these that come the phenomena most dreaded by a worried and frightened ruling class—THE UNITED FRONT OF LABOR.

Here in the United States where labor is the least conscious of its mission its scattered forces are being welded together by two forces—the activities of the militants who are the first to feel the heavy hand of the Black Hundreds of imperialism and the oppressive acts of those same Black Hundreds who are unconsciously destroying the very system they try hard to save from the consequences of its follies, inconsistencies and cruelties.

[illegible] Dogs Right [illegible] Courts Will Get [illegible]

(By the Federated Press)

ALBANY, N. Y.—Better be careful how you treat dogs that may annoy you, or you may find yourself in court charged with interfering with an officer of the law. That is the extraordinary—and the first on record—charge made here against Anthony Martino, arrested here near the yards of the West Shore railroad by railroad police who have been guarding strikebreakers.

There had been trouble at the yards in which two rail guards were slightly hurt. A police dog was set to trail men suspected of having fired several shots. The dog snapped at Martino, and Martino, unaware of the dog's sacred mission, threw a brick at it. Forthwith he was arrested and haled into court charged with interfering with an officer (the dog) in the discharge of his duty. The case, it is said, will have an early hearing.

Just Verdict Was Returned Against the Social Revolutionaries

sentence of death upon all those whose guilt was proven and who furthermore refused to give up the armed struggle against the Soviet Government.

The Central Executive Committee of the Soviets of Workers, Peasants and Soldiers has approved the sentence and at the same time given the order that the sentence be not carried out.

If the Social Revolutionary Party whose guilt was completely disclosed at the trial gives up its preparations for civil war, ceases to incite armed insurrections, gives up its terroristic and espionage activities and cuts its shameful connection with the capitalist Governments, then their leaders who are in prison will not have one hair of their heads disturbed.

But should the S. R. Party start civil war again and once more resort to arms it alone will seal the warrant of execution against the convicted S. R.s.

Workers of All Countries

The Communist International took an active part in this trial, because everything that concerns the life and death of the Soviet Republic affects you, proletarians of all countries, and the Communist International, the international organization of the revolutionary proletariat of all countries.

In your name the representatives of the Communist International, Zetkin, Bokanyi and Muna acted as prosecutors.

The Executive Committee of the Comintern gave its opinion to the Central Committee of the Russian Communist Party, the leaders of the Soviet Republic, before the final decision.

We affirm our standpoint to the whole international proletariat. We affirm our approval of the Revolutionary Tribunal's verdict.

For the crimes which at the trial were shown to be crimes of the Social Revolutionaries, in a trial which lasted more than two months and in which the accused were allowed more possibilities of defense than are the revolutionary workers in the so-called democratic courts anywhere,—the revolutionary conscience could pronounce no other sentence than that of death.

But the revolutionary Workers' Government is far removed from the bourgeois subservience to the letter of the law.

Knows No Policy of Revenge

It knows no policy of revenge which the bourgeois governments pursue so mercilessly against the revolutionary workers. The revolutionary Workers' Government is led by revolutionary considerations.

For this reason the Executive Committee affirms its solidarity with the All-Russian Soviet Committee, which has ordered the sentence not to be carried out.

The Soviet Government lays the fate of the leaders of the S. R. Party in the hands of such of its leaders who are abroad.

It gives them the possibility of saving the lives of the condemned, by giving up their attempts at counter-revolutionary struggle and provocation of civil war.

Workers!

The leaders of the Second and 2½ Internationals are taking advantage of this trial of the S. R. Party to rouse hatred against Soviet Russia.

Together with the bourgeois press they took up the defense of the allies of world counter-revolution, masquerading under the banner of Socialism.

They represent Soviet Russia as a wild beast thirsting for blood. We ask you if there is a government in the world which would commute the death sentence against persons, who in conspiracy with the capitalist governments of other countries, fought to overthrow the Soviet government, stopping at nothing, not even a murder.

The leaders of the Second and 2½ Internationals sent defenders to the Moscow trial but recalled them when they became convinced of the terrible crimes of the defendants.

The documents that the Soviet government confiscated from Kerensky, the leader of the S. R.s, prove that it was not in 1918 only during the period of bitter civil war that this party fought against the Workers' Government with allied money, but that even as late as 1921, the S. R. P. organized insurrections against the Soviet Power with the money of the French and Czecho-Slovakian governments and the aid of the Baltic governments and the Polish spy system.

All Reactionaries Exposed

The unmasking of the S. R.s as agents of the world counter-revolution, also unmasks the leaders of the Second and 2½ Internationals.

After this unmasking and after the Soviet Government has shown that it is not thirsting for the blood of the criminal leaders of the S. R.s, we expect that every worker, irrespective of party, will call to the leaders of the Second and 2½ Internationals:

"We have had enough of this hate against the Soviet Government. In the name of the proletariat, we forbid you to stand forth as defenders of people who have soiled their hands with the money of capitalistic governments and steeped them in the blood of the Russian workers and peasants."

We are convinced that even the most backward sections of the Second and 2½ Internationals will know enough to say:

"Compel your allies, who are warring against the Soviet Government to break their shameful bonds with the capitalist governments and to stop their criminal preparations for civil war in a country whose desire is Peace, Work and Order."

If the Second and 2½ Internationals would expend one tenth of the energy they have wasted in hatred of Soviet Russia and use it instead to influence the S. R.s not only will the lives of the S. R. leaders be protected, but the lives of many workers and peasants would be spared, who must defend the Soviet Power and the lives of millions of children whom civil war would condemn to starvation.

Workers!

The just sentence pronounced by the Workers and Peasants Republic expresses that which millions of revolutionary workers in Europe have thought and think today, the workers who do not allow themselves to be misled by the lies of the bourgeois press, but see the truth thru the mist of lies and denunciations.

Far away from the idiocy and blood lust of bourgeois government, the Soviet Government, in order to realize the united front with the workers who have not yet freed themselves from the influence of the bourgeoisie and the Social Democratic leaders, has drawn back the sword that was justly suspended over the heads of those guilty of the greatest possible crime against the world revolution.

This it did in the firm conviction that the working-class of the world will not only do everything in its power to restrain the mad S. R. Party from civil war, but that it will use all its energy to help Soviet Russia in its difficult fight against the predatory plans of world capitalism, whose instrument is the S. R. Party.

By helping Soviet Russia, by defending her, you free yourself from the necessity of the terrible fight, in which no one is spared, for our opponents have no mercy for the struggling and suffering masses of workers and peasants.

Danger Not Yet Over

The period of danger for the first Republic of Workers and Peasants has not yet passed.

At the Hague the representatives of world capital demanded that the Russian workers give back to the foreign capitalists factories, workshops and mines.

Soviet Russia, representing the interests of the world proletariat rejected these offers.

World capital will use every means, from financial boycott to financing civil war, to force the capitulation of the Soviet Government.

The Soviet Government will protect the interests of the workers with all its strength.

In this fight it will destroy all its enemies. Do not allow the magnanimity that the Soviet Government has shown the S. R.s to give new hope and new strength to the enemies of Soviet Russia.

Long live Soviet Russia.

Long live the Revolutionary Tribunal that guards the interests of the world proletariat with a firm hand!

Disarm the enemies of Soviet Russia, the initiators of civil war and terror!

Long live the union of the world proletariat with Soviet Russia, the mighty vanguard of the working class.

The Executive Committee of the Communist International.

Frame-up in Sacco Case Is Shattered by New Testimony

ceded, was the cornerstone of the prosecution's case. The defense brought against her five impeaching witnesses, and the District Attorney in his closing argument to the jury made a specially passionate plea for her.

Demanded She Commit Perjury

Thousands who followed the trial remember Mrs. Andrews as the woman who fainted when defense counsel Fred H. Moore attempted to grill her on her past history. She has now revealed in full how the police and the prosecutors used their knowledge of some unsavory chapters in her life to force her to commit perjury.

The affidavit indicates how "the affiant was given to understand that the Commonwealth was in possession of facts relative to the private life of the affiant which the affiant was not desirous of having brought out on the witness stand," and how thru threats based on that knowledge she was "coerced and intimidated."

She cites a specific instance of such coercion. After she had fainted under Attorney Moore's grilling and had been carried out of the court room, she told police officers Stewart and Brouillard "that now they had gotten her into a nice mess and that she, the affiant, did not want to go back on to the witness stand and that thereupon the said Stewart said to the affiant:

"'You do not think we put you on the stand without looking up your history, do you? You have got to

Mrs. Andrews testified at the trial that she had been on the scene of the crime in South Braintree on April 15, 1920 several hours before it took place that she had inquired her way to a factory from a man whom she called from under an automobile for the purpose, and that the man was Sacco. She stuck to this story thru a three-day's grilling despite the evident absurdities and contradictions of her testimony, she now swears, because she was gripped by fear due to the prosecution's threats.

Gripped by Fear

Defense Attorney Moore visited her in reference to the crime and her knowledge of it before the trial. She gave him at that time a statement in which she said that she had been in the neighborhood on the morning of April 15, but that she could not possibly identify anyone. On the stand many months later she repudiated this statement. But now she swears "that the statement made by the affiant to Fred H. Moore previous to trial was given freely and voluntarily and contained a true statement of the facts as best known to the affiant."

It was between the time this state-go back on the stand. You started this thing and now you have got to go through.'"

ment was made and the day she took the stand that the police "put the screws" on Mrs. Andrews. Much of the significance of the story lies in its details. Officers Stewart and Brouillard—the former especially assigned to the Sacco-Vanzetti case by the Governor of Massachusetts—approached her on the question of whether she had seen a car near the murder scene and what she remembered about it. The affidavit reads, "In that connection the affiant then and in the first instance and many times thereafter stated to both officers above named, that she was unable to state whether the said automobile was a Ford car or what kind of car it was."

"Preparing" the Witness

To her surprise they disregarded her claim that she did not even know the looks of the car let alone the men near it, and took her to the County Jail in Dedham, where Nicolo Sacco was then confined. In telling of this visit she corroborates the version the defense has from the beginning claimed to be the true one. She says, "that in this trip around the institution no prisoners were pointed out to the affiant and her attention was directed to no one. That at the conclusion of this trip she was led over the right wing of the jail, as one comes in the front door, and was told by the person accompanying her, to wit, one of the jailers, that she was to look at the man down on the floor below, that he was the man she was there to see."

The affidavit continues thus: "That the affiant looked at this man, and on returning to officers Stewart and Brouillard, who were waiting for her, and getting into the automobile she was asked by said officers whether he was the man that she had seen on April 15, 1920, in response to which question the affiant stated that she was unable to say that she did not know. That thereupon the said officers and both of them repeatedly stated to the affiant in substance and effect, 'You know he is the man you saw' and by their manner and demeanor conveyed to the affiant the impression and idea that she had to confirm that statement."

Repudiates Her Story

Mrs. Andrews also repeats the substance of a conversation with Assistant District Attorney Williams the day before she testified in which she refused to say that she would identify, insisting that she was not positive. Williams shook his finger in the face of the prospective witness and said: "You can put it stronger than that. I know that you can."

That conversation, she states, "was not had in the District Attorney's office in the Dedham Court House, but was had in a private room in which there were two small beds, with the door closed. That the statements of said Williams were delivered in a loud, and authoritative voice and in a manner commanding, coercing and intimidating, and resulted in the affiant becoming confused and uncertain in her statements."

After the recital of other incidents, Mrs. Andrews sums up her confession thus:

"That the purpose of this affidavit in substance and effect is to make it known to the Court that the affiant does now state emphatically that she cannot state that Nicolo Sacco, the defendant in the above entitled action is the man that she saw at South Braintree on April 15, 1920, and that any and all parts of her testimony given in the above entitled cause contrary to this statement are false and untrue and were made under the intimidating and coercing influences of Michael E. Stewart, Albert L. Brouillard, Harold Williams and Frederick G. Katzmann."

Mass of New Testimony Grows

The part of her confession relating to Williams is of particular significance because Williams is the man who, according to the sworn confession of another witness, Louis Pelser, frightened him into making a perjured identification of Sacco.

In addition to the Pelser and Andrews repudiations the motion for a new trial is supported by the expose several weeks ago of state witness Erastus E. Whitney, alias "Goodridge." There is also much other new testimony and more will be filed in the near future.

Convention of Party Is Set for Dec. 25th

The national convention of the Workers Party, that was to have been held in Chicago, starting Monday, August 28, has been postponed to Christmas Day, December 25, the anniversary of the holding of the first convention of the party. The convention may be held in New York City, although this has not been definitely decided as yet.

The postponement of the national convention was made necessary by the arrest of many of the party officials and most active members. It was decided that all energies are needed now for the defense work, and for carrying on the election campaign.

It is planned that the December convention shall be twice as large as the one held a year ago, and that it shall represent a growing organization planning big things in the immediate future.

Build Powerful Party

Every effort will be made to build up a powerful party between now and Dec. 25, in spite of the attacks launched against it.

Four of those arrested in Michigan, William F. Dunne, Cyrus Lambkin, William Reynolds and C. E. Ruthenberg, had been released on bail as this issue was going to press. Alexander Bail, of Philadelphia, had been released on $10,000 bail, but was immediately re-arrested and held for deportation.

The work of raising bail for the remaining 11 in jail at St. Joseph, Mich. is being carried forward as rapidly as possible.

Two arrests have been made in New York City during the past week, that of Edward Lindgren, district organizer for District No. 2 and Joseph Zack. Lindgren was released on $5,000 bail after being held for three days. Zack is still being held in the Tombs.

District Office Raided

Seven husky sleuths made the raid on the district office, 799 Broadway, New York City, the same building occupied by the National Workers Party. Nat Kaplan, assistant organizer, was taken along with Lindgren but released the same day. The district office has issued a statement on the raid and arrest, in part as follows:

"The Bomb Squad of the New York Police Force swooped down upon the District Office and without permit, warrant or any legal rights whatsoever ransacked everything they could lay their hands on.

"Lindgren is charged with being 'A Fugitive from Justice' with having participated in a certain recent Convention of the Communist Party of America in Michigan.

"This charge is utterly false. Comrade Lindgren during the time that this Communist convention was supposed to have been held was doing organization work in New York State, spending most of his time in Jamestown, N. Y.

"This is nothing more than a continuation of the malicious attempts on the part of Labor Baiting Detectives to discredit the Workers Party because of the intense activity it is manifesting in the Railroad Shopmen's Strike and in the Miners' Strike.

"Comrades! In this battle for the attainment of our aims we cannot afford to let up in activity.

"Let us be determined that just because of the terrific persecution of the Capitalist Government we will ever more and more play an active part in the Workers Struggles."

Many Defense Meetings Held

C. E. Ruthenberg, secretary of the Workers Party who is out on bail, spoke at a defense meeting in Cleveland Wednesday night. He is scheduled to speak at other defense meetings as follows: Saturday night, Detroit, Mich.; Sunday, Chicago; Philadelphia, Wednesday night, Sept. 20, and Boston, Mass., Sunday, Sept. 24th. Foster will also speak at Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston.

There will be a hearing for all the prisoners at St. Joseph, Mich., Friday, Sept. 15, when the prosecution will be forced to show the evidence on which the defendants are being held.

It was reported on Tuesday that Foster was taken into custody at Chicago by Sheriff Bridgeman of Berrien County, Mich. on a governor's warrant and started in an automobile for St. Joseph.

A fight is being made in Illinois to prevent the extradition of Earl Browder and A. Aronberg arrested at the national conference of the Trade Union Educational League. Extradition of Lindgren and Zack from New York State will also be fought.

Bail Is Still Needed

"Bail is still needed!" is the appeal sent out by the National Defense Committee.

All those able to turn over liberty bonds or cash should get in touch with the committee at Room 405, 799 Broadway, New York City.

Workers! You Must Fight for Freedom! Manifesto of the Workers Party

To all the places of the sugary phrase Democratic hypocrites the enraged voters turned blindly to another set of political leaders—the Republican Party, and placed them in office by the most overwhelming majority vote ever recorded in American history.

With what result?

A still greater betrayal!

The Harding administration has attacked the labor unions with the most amazing viciousness ever known in American political life.

The Labor Movement has been handed over to the mercy of an unscrupulous professional anti-labor detective, the worst in all the history of strike-breaking and labor frame-ups in America. For all practical purposes the United States government has put the notorious William J. Burns in police control of the Labor Movement with orders to destroy it.

The attacks that Labor is now suffering are without parallel outside of the darkest monarchist countries.

Injunctions are issued and arrests and raids are made with complete disregard of anything but the need for destroying the organizations of the working people. They are to be reduced to the position of dumb work animals under the autocratic rule of the capitalists.

The Declaration of Independence? The Bill of Rights? The heritages of the American Revolution? All these are swept away with one illiterate sentence of an attorney general known only for his record of securing pardons for rich criminals.

Idealism in public life has reached the lowest ebb in American history. Public officials are known as the kept men of this or that section of the great capitalist interests.

In ridding itself of the Democratic Party lickspittles of the Morgan Bank, the American people finds itself ruled by the lickspittles of the Standard Oil Trust and the Morgan Bank together. In the last presidential election the only candidate enjoying the slightest respect as a man was one who lay in a prison cell convicted as a criminal.

The Cause of These Changes

There is a reason for this change in American life.

The irreconcilable conflict between the capitalists and the workers has become so bitter that the capitalists are compelled to drop the mask of democracy and to reveal the naked dictatorship of the capitalist class.

The economic results of the great war have been a reduction of the amount of wealth produced. The capitalists are fighting to compel the workers to bear the burden of this reduced production by compelling them to accept lower wages and worse working conditions. The capitalists refuse themselves to bear the burden of sacrifice made necessary by the war.

This has brought into existence the embittered class struggle which is tearing apart American life.

In order to whip the workers into submission in this struggle the big capitalists are using the government to deprive the workers of the right to assemble, to organize, to picket, of free speech and generally of acting together to protect themselves against the vicious attack of the capitalists.

To deprive the workers of these rights, to subject labor into subjection, [illegible] these are the chief functions of the government. Injunctions, industrial courts, the Railroad Labor Board are arms of the government used against the workers. To these are added the police, militia and regular army when necessary. The whole government at Washington and elsewhere is merely a central committee for managing the collective affairs of the capitalist class and fighting the struggle against the workers.

Down with the Old Parties

This use of the government to crush the workers cannot be ended by transferring power from one of the old political parties to another.

The attack on the workers to-day is directed by Republican politicians. The attack of yesterday was directed by Democratic politicians.

Who leads the onslaught against the great railroad strike of 1922?

The Republican, Harding!

Who led the brutal onslaught against the railroad strike of 1894?

The Democrat, President Cleveland.

DOWN WITH THE OLD PARTIES! THEY ARE OWNED BODY AND SOUL BY THE BIG CAPITALISTS.

Political parties that serve the capitalists cannot serve the workers.

If you remove Harding and put a Democrat in his place you will get another Grover Cleveland and the same bullets, death and jail of the Pullman strike of 1894. If you displace Daugherty and his detective, Burns, with Democratic politicians you will get another Mitchell Palmer and another labor-baiting Flynn.

Organize a Mass Political Party of the Workers

The bankrupt American political life can be changed only by the entrance of the working class into the political life of the country.

Only the working class is fitted for the job of cleaning these Augean stables of Daughertyism, Burnsism and Palmerism. Only the working class is interested in preserving the rights of mankind against the tyranny of the great capitalist interests. Only the working class has the heart and the vision to take the lead in the struggle. Only the workers, fighting together with the exploited and harrassed farmers have the overwhelming numbers to win the fight.

To win back the lost liberties of the American people to save the workers from further industrial enslavement and to win a new industrial civilization the working people of this country must organize a mass political party of the working class.

GENERAL STRIKE!

In the present crisis the fate of the Labor Movement is at stake.

It is generally admitted that the injunction granted at Chicago will destroy the labor unions if it is permitted to stand unchallenged.

The working people of this country must answer this attack upon them effectively. From all over the country resolutions are pouring into the American Federation of Labor from millions of plain workers demanding a general strike to save the Labor Movement.

The Labor Union leaders are afraid of the General Strike. They are hesitating to mobilize the power of the whole working class against the capitalist offensive. The general strike is the only effective answer which Labor can make to the attack of the Daugherty injunction.

Every local labor union, every central labor body in the country should demand that the power which the workers can bring to bear in their defense thru a general strike be used to beat back the attack of big business.

The general strike is the only answer to the general injunction.

The conservative and reactionary labor officials do not want to act. They have always been against the general strike.

WORKERS, IT IS YOUR DUTY TO MAKE THEM ACT. BRING THE PRESSURE OF THE RANK AND FILE TO BEAR AND COMPEL THEM TO MOBILIZE ALL THE POWER OF THE WORKERS FOR THIS STRUGGLE.

To preserve the liberties of the workers these liberties must be fought for.

The answer to the general injunction must be the general strike for FREEDOM TO ORGANIZE!

FREEDOM OF ASSEMBLY!
FREEDOM OF THE PRESS!
FREEDOM TO STRIKE!
FREEDOM TO PICKET!
FREEDOM OF SPEECH!

The answer to the strike-breaking government is MORE STRIKE. The answer to union-smashing is UNIONS TOO STRONG TO SMASH.

BUILD A LABOR DEFENSE COUNCIL

Persecutions and jailings are weapons which the capitalists do not hesitate to use against the worker. The jails are already being choked with workers of the most advanced way of thinking, the workers who have always agitated for union solidarity and militant tactics on the part of the workers.

In order to terrorize the less militant worker and frighten them into submission, the Government has levelled its attack against the radicals. Thru its spectacular raid on the Communists in Michigan it hoped to break the morale of the workers.

It hoped to destroy the leadership of those workers who are in the forefront of the struggle and who do not hesitate to occupy the positions of danger.

These persecutions directed against Communists are part of the general attack upon Labor. The Communists may be first to go to prison but inevitably there will follow workers from every part of the Labor Movement unless the attack by the capitalists is halted.

The government says that the open shop will be established and that troops will be used. That means that there are bull pens ahead, jailings, prosecutions and all the dirty work that is used as a last resort to break a successful strike.

To meet these prosecutions and jailings a general labor defense council must be organized to carry on the work of defense. This labor defense council should include representatives of every part of the working class and of every group ready to enter the struggle to preserve the freedom of the American people.

To Meet the Present Crisis

The working people of this country are facing the greatest crisis in the history of the last quarter of a century.

If they remain disunited and disorganized they will be beaten down to greater degradation and a poorer standard of living.

The working people have the power to protect themselves, to protect their standard of living, their wives and children, their rights to act as free men and women.

To mobilize their power and beat back the attack of big business they must—

DECLARE A GENERAL STRIKE AGAINST THE DAUGHERTY INJUNCTION!

ORGANIZE A LABOR DEFENSE COUNCIL TO PROTECT THE PERSECUTED WORKERS!

ORGANIZE A WORKING-CLASS POLITICAL PARTY TO WREST THE GOVERNMENT OUT OF THE HANDS OF THE CAPITALISTS AND THEIR POLITICAL LACKEYS!

DOWN WITH THE RULE OF BIG BUSINESS!

ALL HAIL TO THE COMING RULE OF THE WORKERS!

THE WORKERS PARTY OF AMERICA
C. E. Ruthenberg, Secretary.

Young Workers League Accepts Call for the World Youth Congress

Urging all proletarian youth organizations to rally against the impoverishment of the youth, the Young Communist International has issued a call for a World Congress of the toiling youth of the world to be held in the near future.

Practically every revolutionary youth organization in Europe as well as in other parts of the world, has accepted this call. An elaborate agenda for its discussion has been issued by the Y. C. I. The basis for the Congress is the United Front of Labor.

The first point on the agenda is The examination of the present situation of the young workers. This is to be one of the most important gatherings of the working youth held in recent years.

The Young Workers League of America has whole-heartedly accepted this call and will participate to the full extent of its organizational capability.

The acceptance of the Y. W. L. is as follows:

"Dear Comrades: The National Executive Committee of the Young Workers League of America in complete accord with the Young Communist International in its call for an International Congress of Proletarian Youth Organizations, accepts the call and will participate in such a Congress. We have already cabled you to this effect and thru our official organ, the 'Young Worker' (August-September issue) have declared our intentions to do our utmost to make this World Congress a success and have therein reprinted your call.

"The importance and necessity of a World Congress to consider the problems laid down in your call should be obvious to any thinking worker.

"In this fight against increasing exploitation, against militarism, against capitalist society and capitalist government, The Young Workers League of America stands shoulder to shoulder with the vanguard of the revolutionary young workers, The Young Communist International.

"For the United Front of Labor!

"For the World Communist Revolution!"

National Executive Committee,
Martin Abern,
(Seal) National Secretary.

TEN WORKERS SHOULD READ THIS COPY OF THE WORKER; KEEP IT IN CIRCULATION

Come to the Ukrainian Mass-Meeting
Arranged by District Committee Ukrainian Section, Workers Party
SUNDAY, SEPT. 17th, at Manhattan Lyceum, 66 E. 4th St.
SPEAKERS:
J. Louis Engdahl,
Editor "The Worker"
A. Chramoff (in Russian)
M. Witenko (in Ukrainian)
Beginning 1.30 P. M.
Admission free.

Calling "Their" Bluff!

WORKER readers have called the bluff of the tools of Capital whose recent raids upon the class conscious workers have aroused a wave of resentment thruout the organized labor movement.

Determined to fight the bosses successfully, WORKER readers have rallied to our subscription campaign and last week rolled up a higher number of subscriptions than for the two previous weeks.

A total of 490 new subscriptions were received last week. This is the answer of our readers to the capitalists' attack upon the Communists, the Trade Union Educational League and the Workers Party, and the striking shopmen and miners.

For the attacks of the bosses are not confined to "REDS" and "Bolshevists" as witness the Daugherty Injunction against the Railroad strikers. All down the line from Communist to simple trade unionist the capitalist class has launched its terrific offensive backed by the State Powers.

The workers must meet this attack with every atom of its resistance. Communists, trade unionists, radicals, all workers, must form a UNITED FRONT against the enemy. Every inch of ground must be contested. The enemy must be beaten back. The survival of the workers' organizations depends upon this united front and counter offensive.

The workers must support their revolutionary press. The reactionaries in the trade unions must be shown up in the light of publicity. The machinations of the capitalists to beat down the workers must be seen in their true light. The capitalist State must be uncovered. Its hypocritical attitude in the struggle of the workers and capitalists must be made plain to all workers.

We call upon every reader of this paper to make himself a committee of one to agitate and help organize a UNITED FRONT AMONGST HIS FELLOW WORKERS by getting them all to read THE WORKER. Show them copies of this paper. Offer them a 20 week subscription card for 50 cents and see how readily they will take advantage of your offer. Get every worker in your shop, mill or mine to read THE WORKER and you will do more for the workers' cause than anything you can do now.

Probe Body at Work But Call and Forward Still Attack the F.S.R.

In spite of the impartial committee of five persons, well known in the labor movement, invited by the National Office of the Friends of Soviet Russia, now at work investigating the charges against the organization, the Jewish Daily Forward and The New York Call persist in their attacks on the integrity of the F. S. R.

That the charges are false and of malicious intent you are convinced. That the committee will clear the F. S. R. there is no doubt. The hostile motives actuating these enemies of Soviet Russia can however no longer be doubted.

We must accept from now on that The Forward is in the camp of all the other enemies of Soviet Russia. Sympathy and support from The Forward and The New York Call we cannot expect. Rather we must look for the obstacles they will continue to set for all our relief activities.

F. S. R. and Recent Arrests

All statements referring to the recent arrests alleging a connection between the F. S. R. with what the newspapers choose to call the Communist Party are absolutely incorrect.

These false statements have been spread unfortunately with the purpose in view of producing harmful effects for the collection of funds for the starving in Soviet Russia.

The relief work conducted for the F. S. R. is too serious an undertaking to be lightly linked up with organizations accused of conducting political propaganda of any kind.

The spreading of such insinuations in the daily press is very unfortunate because of the discouragement such statements may give to persons who may be inclined to give money for the relief activities of the F. S. R.

False Reports About Famine

Belief is being spread thruout the country that not only is the famine in Soviet Russia over but that no further aid is needed. This is absolutely untrue.

All false reports to the contrary notwithstanding, Soviet Russia is still hungering and is as much if not more in need of the workers' aid than at any time since the famine catastrophe.

Were this not true The American Relief Administration, contrary to its former plans for relinquishing its relief work for Soviet Russia, would not now be concentrating on medical and children's relief thruout Russia, and general relief thruout the whole of the Ukraine. This the A. R. A. is obviously doing with the knowledge that famine conditions in Soviet Russia have but slightly improved.

Must Continue Relief Work

To deal with the Famine effectively and to restore the economic life of Soviet Russia, are indeed, two aspects of the same problem.

For Russia can never become self-supporting again unless her population obtains not only food and clothing to keep them from immediate death, but the tools, the machinery, and the means of transportation, which will enable them to supply their needs from Russian soil and Russian resources.

Distress will continue in Soviet Russia until the workers and peasants there are enabled to stand on their own legs. Constructive relief work only, machinery and technical aid, can subdue the famine and its deep-seated consequences.

The F. S. R. cannot now relax in or abandon its CONSTRUCTIVE workers relief. The F. S. R. has one year of excellent relief work to its credit. Let us make it another one.

National Office Works on New Plans

The National Office is alive to the issues now confronting the organization. It is convinced of the necessity for further constructive relief. We are now working on extensive plans for national drives in the immediate future.

Our special representative-expert sent over to Soviet Russia about two months ago is now on his way back to the U. S. after having made a complete study of the present famine and economic status in Soviet Russia and its newer relief needs.

Within a very short time we shall announce the definite plan for this new phase of relief work.

A "Call" to Action! Attend Defense Picnic! on Sunday, Sept. 24th

Indian Summer, or early autumn, is beautiful with its yellows, reds and varied greens. Yet there is a tone of sadness in this beauty. So it is with the Autumn Festival and Barbecue which the New York Division of the National Defense Committee will hold on Sunday, Sept. 24, at Dickert's Park, 4018 Boston Road.

While we are preparing for merry-making at a camp fire, singing, dancing and roasting an ox in good old style, our comrades lie in little cells, full of bugs and vermin, in many jails thruout the country and among them are a goodly number of New Yorkers.

But this is no time for sadness. We must work harder than ever in spite of persecution, to bring about the Dictatorship of the Workers and the consequent jailing of the parasites of the capitalist class.

This is a call to action! Every comrade, friend and sympathizer must get busy spreading tickets everywhere and do all possible to make our picnic on Sunday, Sept. 24, successful enough to net an appreciable sum for the defense and relief of our comrades in jail.

Wall Street might try to overthrow Soviet Rule in Russia by having Attorney General Daugherty serve an injunction on Lenin or Trotzky. Daugherty is willing to try anything, ONCE.

"Saving" the Russians

Every invasion of Soviet Russia was bolstered up by the excuse that it was an attempt to save the Russian workers and peasants from the bloody grip of the Bolsheviki.

Those American troops at Archangel and Vladivostok, we were told, were to be received with open arms by the anti-Soviet inhabitants, welcoming the Stars and Stripes as the symbol of their salvation.

American intervention in Soviet Russia is long a thing of the past. But the American troops left the Japs in Vladivostok and other parts of the Far Eastern Republic. Now these Japanese "emancipators" are also leaving for home.

We are now told by Walter Duranty, in the New York Times that, "If the Japanese fulfill the promise to evacuate Vladivostok, it already is clear that the White Government of Merkulov, now ruling there with the collaboration of one of Kolchak's generals, Diederich, cannot withstand the Far Eastern Republicans."

In fact, in every place, just as soon as the Japs withdraw, the red troops of the Far Eastern Republic drive out the White Guardists, if they have not already left, and take control.

Thus, to the last, has the claim been supported that anti-Soviet movements lived only as long as they were supported by foreign bayonets.

It is not surprising that during their last days in power in Vladivostok, the Kolchakists should number Americans, Scandinavians, Chinese and other nationals among their victims, in addition to the Russians.

The last of the invaders is leaving Soviet soil. It is promised that the red flag of the Russian-Siberian revolution will soon be flying on the Pacific Ocean.

No wonder that the United States government, as reported by Duranty, is sending Roy Scott Anderson, long American financial minister in Pekin, China, to Moscow, on the invitation of the Soviet Government. Even the most obstinate are beginning to realize the truths of world developments.

The New York Times is certainly persistent. In its issue of September 9th, we find the headlines, "New Odessa Revolt Rumor," "Helsingfors Hears of Fighting in South Russia." Helsingfors, being in Finland, in the north of Europe, must be a pretty good listener, since Odessa is on the other side of the continent. Perhaps it is the altercation between the Turks and Greeks that Helsingfors hears.

Prepare for the Next Battle

The coal miners, first the bituminous and now the anthracite, have gone back to work. After a battle of five months, in which they displayed a solidarity amazing to all and which was the most complete industrial general strike America has ever seen, they have gone into the pits again to produce coal.

The wage scale is to remain the same as before the strike—but only until next spring. As for the six-hour day and other demands of the miners, they have been side-tracked. The miners have not got a settlement, they only have a truce until the present agreement expires in the spring.

The militants who have battled for years in the United Mine Workers of America knew that attempts to reach a settlement would result in a compromise.

Both the mine owners and the union officialdom had good reasons to come together. The coal barons were licked. All indications were that if the union had held out for another month it could have dictated its own terms. And the officials wanted a compromise because nominations for election of officers in the union were due and they needed a platform to run for office on, the platform of "we saved your wage scale for you." The battle brought only a quarter victory.

The one factor which can enable the bosses to cut wages next spring is the unorganized districts. West Virginia, Tennessee, Colorado, Alabama, and other outlying fields, have been neglected by the union for political and other reasons.

The militants among the coal miners claim that if President Lewis would only send the "organizers" who are idling around the hotels in districts already organized 100 per cent, down into these unorganized fields with the word that they would be fired instantly unless they began to show results, the mines of the country would be organized completely before spring.

It is declared that the administration deliberately keeps these districts partly unorganized, so that they will be dependent upon the assistance of the national office. Thus they become obedient voters in the conventions and referendums. Thus, while bureaucrats hold office from one term to another, the miners are the losers.

This vicious system should be broken. The situation next spring will be a serious one, unless the miners close up their ranks, wipe out the weak spots in their organization, and prepare to go into battle again with redoubled vigor and power. The rank and file must get busy in the local unions, in the sub-districts, in the districts, and prepare to swing the ax in the national convention. Action, energetic and intelligent, to force the organization of the unorganized fields, is the crying need of the American coal miners.

But above all, the rank and file must be imbued with a fighting spirit. They must understand that this is just one battle in the great war between the capitalist class and the working class, a war which can end only in the establishment of the workers' power and the complete defeat of capitalism. The idealism and spirit arising from such an understanding will carry the miners to victory.

One of the organizations fighting LaFollette for re-nomination in Wisconsin declared itself to be "against Communism." But the New York Times comes to the aid of LaFollette, declaring that to link him with Communism "indicates an atrophied sense of humor." In fact the Times, with the election over, asks if LaFollette will ever be "likely seriously to impair our institutions." The Wisconsin Socialists can now with safety, having no candidate of their own, go ahead and vote for LaFollette with the blessings of the New York Times.

U. S. Senator LaFollette has many kind words for [illegible] Milwaukee organ, the Wisconsin News, for [illegible] him. LaFollette should not slight Vic Berger's "Socialist" Milwaukee Leader. It also helped.

La Follette, the Red Herring

Among the numerous red herrings being drawn across the path that leads to the realization of the first general strike in this country, is the LaFollette boom for the presidency.

Instead of organizing for a titanic struggle against labor's oppressors now, we see the officials of the American Federation of Labor at Atlantic City directing labor's eyes to the beautiful prospects of the distant future.

Thus Matthew Woll, of the Photo Engravers' Union, one of Gompers' grand dukes, announced, "I believe LaFollette would rally the forces of labor to his support and sweep the country."

LaFollette refused the presidential nomination of the Farmer-Labor Party in 1920, when this organization still possessed the virility of youth. But LaFollette turned it down when the Farmer-Labor Party Convention refused to accept his platform and swallow his dictates.

Those were the days when LaFollette's senatorial term still had two years to run, and his candidacy in a personally-conducted Farmer-Labor Party campaign might give him considerable and at that time much-needed prestige.

The Wisconsin senator's majority in the recent primaries will certainly revive his hopes of capturing the republican nomination for the presidency in 1924. It is not to be questioned that the so-called Nonpartisan Political Campaign Committee of labor leaders will blindly follow him in this ambition.

We can thus see LaFollette not only being used now as a red herring to direct labor's attention away from a general strike, but during the next two years we can see him being trotted out as an argument against the launching by the organized workers of this country of a real struggle for independent political action of all labor.

Even the "Socialists" followed LaFollette into the republican party in Wisconsin. It is not inconceivable that this "Pied Piper" might also lead these political children of labor into the republican party nationally.

Workers! Beware of the pitfalls that are being prepared for you! Watch out for those who would betray you! Forward to the welding of industrial action thru the general strike, to the building of political power thru independent political action.

Asia for the Asiatics

Soviet Russia continues to make friends in Asia. A resolution demanding recognition of Soviet Rule in Russia has been introduced in the Chinese parliament at Peking.

This document, that is not inspired by Communist elements, advances three principal reasons in favor of recognition as follows:

> First, the Soviet Government, now established five years, has made good its claim to be considered as the Government of Russia and that, Russia is China's most important neighbor, and it is essential for the well-being of both countries that they live on friendly terms.
> Second, the Soviet Government has given practical proofs of friendship by throwing overboard all treaties and agreements forced on China by the Government of the Czar with the purpose and effect of placing Russia in a position of suzerainty over China.
> Third, the Soviets have shown a willingness to conclude a trade agreement with China on the terms of involving no infringement of the latter's sovereignty and exhibiting no symptoms of political or territorial aggression.

We might bring it to the attention of Mr. Hughes, Secretary of State at Washington, that the Russian delegation, on its way to the Russo-Japanese conference, was warmly received at Peking, by the Chinese minister of foreign affairs, Wellington Koo.

The Soviet policy of "Asia for Asiatics" is winning the peoples of this continent, especially as they see the Russians granting self-determination to the workers and peasants of Siberia as they have to the workers and peasants of the other republics in the Russian Federation.

Contrast this policy to the Monroe Doctrine of the United States which, while it says "America for the Americans," means "The two Americas for exclusive exploitation by United States' profiteers."

These are new days when new policies are winning. The new Soviet policy in Asia is making headway against the old policy of world imperialism.

Thus the New York Times, unable to attack Soviet policy in Asia, declares that "in her European policy Russia is fumbling between the statecraft of Russian national interests and devotion to the vision of a world social revolution."

We thought that Soviet Russia, at Genoa and at the Hague, has shown conclusively just what her European policy is. It may be summarized in four words, "Against capitalism, for Communism." Which is a world policy that may be translated into "The World for the Workers."

The Blaze in the Near East

American battleships are again being hurried to "protect American lives and property." This time their destination is Smyrna in the Near East, being evacuated by the Greeks in their rout before the advancing Angora Turks.

The American warships are being joined by those of France, Great Britain, Italy and other imperialist nations having "business" in this part of the world.

There is significance in the fact that Karakhan, of the Russian foreign office, at Moscow, has sent a message to the Turkish authorities congratulating them on the Turkish victories and declaring that the Russians shared in the Turkish joy over the defeat of "European imperialism."

To which Reouf Bey, the Turkish nationalist premier, replied that, "The Nationalist government is happy to receive the congratulations of Russia, the first power to offer us a helping hand in our difficulties."

The Greeks have been a pawn in the grip of European imperialism in its efforts to bulwark the Near East against the Soviet advance into Asia. Mustapha Kemal Pasha, heading the Angora Turkish government, has been co-operating with Soviet Rule in Russia ever since the Versailles Treaty tried to divide the Near East between the Paris allies.

The Angora Turkish victories, therefore, are not only a threat to the present Greek government, facing a revolution at home, but to the Allied interests along the Asiatic coast of the Mediterreanean, frantically hanging onto their Versailles mandates.

It is not difficult, therefore, to understand the propaganda of some of our "best capitalists" interested in Near East Relief, that pictures the alleged atrocities of the Turkish army, repeating the fables that have been spread over the world for years.

Thus the Turks can turn only to the workers and peasants of Soviet Russia and ask them to exert pressure on the Greeks to "halt the campaign of atrocities" in the villages the Greeks are evacuating after their defeat at Sakari. The appeal to the Russians declared that the Greeks were systematically burning villages and massacreing the population. It asserted that the Greeks locked all the Moslem inhabitants of the village of Uludyek, near Altoontasha, including the women and children, in the mosque and burned them alive.

But nothing is to be expected from the United States. If its armed forces can passively consent to, in fact abet the killing of women and children of the working class in Colorado, there is no reason to believe that they should do less while "protecting property" in the Near East, where the struggle for liberation from world imperialism continues to blaze.

It Begins to Stink

Those forces of labor that gathered at Chicago and organized the Nonpartisan Political Campaign Committee refused to take a stand for independent political action on the part of the working class.

Instead they decided to associate with the stinking carcasses of the two old political parties. The inevitable result is that this Nonpartisan Committee, like its associates, is also beginning to stink. More workers daily, with their fingers to their noses, are turning away in disgust.

The notorious Governor William D. Stephens of California, in spite of the endorsement of the Nonpartisan Political Campaign Committee of the State Federation of Labor, has been defeated for re-nomination.

We told last week how Seth Brown, president of the State Federation of Labor, had endorsed Governor Stephens. We thought that this was the approval of an individual, but we find that it extended to some local unions, organizations of labor that one moment endorse the fight for the release of Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings, and the next declare themselves in favor of the man who, more than anyone else, is keeping Mooney and Billings in prison.

Yet what can one expect from organized labor with a leadership that parades under the standard of "nonpartisanship," that refers to Stephens as "Our friend, the governor," this Stephens who sent troops into Needles, Cal., over the protest of the local city officials, to help break the railroad shopmen's strike, this Stephens who enthusiastically urged more stringent additions to the savage California Criminal Syndicalist Law, this Stephens who has refused repeatedly to grant a pardon to Mooney and Billings after the frame-up has been proved 100 per cent.

Let us point out further the activities of the crawling worms in this "nonpartisan" political carcass, contaminated with the same rotten disease that invests the old parties.

Thus we find Hugo Ernst, "Socialist" Party candidate for congressman in the 4th, California District, a la Vic Berger in the 4th, Wisconsin District, telling the workers at a San Francisco railroad shopmen's meeting that the old party congressman, John I. Nolan, candidate for re-election in the 5th, California District, is "as good a man as labor ever had" in such a position. Nolan is chairman of the house labor committee. Funny we haven't heard of Nolan during these exciting strike times. Neither has the "Socialist" Party been heard from, for that matter.

At this same meeting we have Daniel C. Murphy, former president of the Frisco Allied Printing Trades Council and the Central Labor Council, eulogizing Hiram Johnson, U. S. senator, candidate for re-election. Johnson voted for the Esch-Cummins Law, the worst blow ever struck the railroad workers until Daugherty got his injunction from Judge Wilkerson at Chicago.

And last but not least we have another "friend" of the Nonpartisan Political Campaign Committee, Colonel Smith W. Brookhart, republican candidate for U. S. senator from Iowa. He has been charged by his opponents with "radical" associations. He replied to this charge, in a Labor Day speech at Des Moines, Ia., declaring that William H. Johnston, of the Machinists' Union, and H. E. Wills, assistant grand chief of the Engineers Brotherhood, had told him that the Chicago Conference was called "to head off some radicals in the labor movement," that its purpose was "to lead the great solid and reliable part of the labor unions on a sound American platform in the old parties."

The elections are still more than a month away. Before the ballotting is over it is expected that the antics of these "non-partisan" political laborites will have so discredited themselves in the eyes of the workers, that labor will be ready for some real independent working-class political action. The smell of the "non-partisan" carcass grows stronger and stronger.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of safety!" is the rallying cry that Gompers always attaches to the proclamations of his executive council. Does he mean eternal vigilance against the rise of the radicals as his contribution to the safety of capitalism? We will gladly give Gompers space in THE WORKER for an answer.

Praising the Boss

William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, always makes good use in his papers of any kind words that are said about him.

No wonder that he proclaimed in big headlines a resolution said to have been adopted by Chicago Typographical Union No. 16, lauding the publishers' conception of the living wage and tolerable working conditions.

There are labor unions that stoop to the licking of their masters' boots, but this was not expected from the Chicago Printers' Union that has a rather militant record to its credit.

Its bootlicking, however, has been rapidly terminated with the opening of the 67th Convention of the International Typographical Union at Atlantic City, N. J.

Charles N. Smith, third vice-president, officially scored Hearst for locking out the mailers employed on his "Atlanta Georgian" and filling their places with scabs. Thus Hearst follows his usual tactic of adopting different policies in every city where he has a paper.

The Atlantic City convention will be closely watched for development leading to closer affiliation, if not amalgamation of the five printing trades.

One big reason the convention should favor amalgamation is the fact that George L. Berry, the "American Legion" president of the Pressmen's Union, and Matthew Woll, of the Photo Engravers, one of Gompers' henchmen, are against it.

Berry and Woll have sent a joint letter to the convention declaring that, "The proposition for an amalgamation is thoroly impractical and unsound." That ought to be proof enough to the militants in the Typographical Union that they are correct in their position.

And again, while Charles A. Sumner, head of the stereotypers, declared his organization was opposed to surrendering its identity, we find Walter Reddick, president of the Bookbinders, favoring the industrial plan and gracefully surrendering to the inevitable in the following statement:

> "The printing trades, as well as all organized labor, will inevitably form itself into industrial groups, not as a matter of choice, but thru the irresistible pressure of necessity."

The compositors have been leading all printing trades workers in the fight to maintain wages, hours and working conditions in the face of the "open shop" drive, and it is now hoped that they will lead the pressmen, the electrotypers and stereotypers, the mailers, the bookbinders, photo-engravers and all other craftsmen in the publishing industry into one united organization.

That is the big work of the convention. It is safe to say that neither William Randolph Hearst, nor any other publisher will encourage the printers in this effort. So let the workers cease bootlicking for every small favor granted them and go after the big things, including complete industrial solidarity in the struggle against their exploiters.

The 47th triennial general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church opens at Portland, Ore., and we are told that a bishop is in attendance with his "gold war decorations," three on his breast and one each on the ends of his black stole. Thus does the church under capitalism proclaim where it stands.

Following their suppression of the Berlin Communist daily, "The Red Flag," the German Social Democrats in power are meeting the Communist high cost of living demonstrations with the policeman's club, as usual.

PREPAREDNESS

A rather slim chap, sedately dressed, stepped into a fashionable establishment where arms are sold, an called unto the clerk:

"Let me have a dozen cannon mounted on wheels that carry hundred pound solid balls, 2 gross o Springfield rifles with bayonets o them, and five dozen automatic revolvers."

The clerk thought he had struc a lunatic, but he didn't care whethe he took the cash of a sane man or moron. He wrote out the order an asked:

"Is there anything else you want?"

"Yes, indeed. Let me have a fe dozen daggers, about fifty cutlasse and cavalry sabres, a couple of doze Turkish scimetars, and several claymores. Also some harpoons an spears, a few machine guns, and a dozen or two hand-grenades an bombs. That will be all. Send it al right up to my hotel, C.O.D."

The man presented his card to th clerk, who thanked him for placin such a nice big order.

"I suppose, professor, you're goin on some exploring trip to Africa?"

"Oh, no," laughed the prof. "I' simply going on a lecture tour t Colorado to speak on The Rights o American Citizens and I don't ca to be interrupted by any ignora general."

British Imperialism Totters!

Hail Heroic Stand of Soviet Rule in Aid of Oppressed Peoples

Brutal and degrading British imperialism totters. It staked its fortunes in the Near-East on its puppet, King Constantine of Greece, and it has lost.

Today, with Constantinople threatened by the Turkish nationalists, Great Britain, deserted by her allies of the Versailles Peace, rushes fleets and armies to the Dardanelles in vain.

A palsied hand today grips the British Empire's sceptre. The power to enslave, exploit, rob, is going, if not gone.

"The atmosphere is one of impending crisis at home rather than of serious difficulties abroad," exclaims the Pall Mall (London) Gazette, hitherto a strong supporter of the Lloyd George coalition government.

Thruout the country British labor is fiercely expressing repudiation of the Government's belligerent attitude. Labor's protest gatherings against the new war were reported being held everywhere.

Great Britain sent word to all her colonies demanding more human cannon fodder for the "New War."

Canada holds back, Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada declares, "The time has passed when the country should be swept into the war on a single declaration." Newfoundland replies that, "Newfoundland does not want the British Empire to get into another row."

No word comes from Red South Africa where thousands of workers are in prison camps as a result of the strike along the Rand, when British military forces were used to drown in blood the efforts of the workers to better their conditions.

The one power on the horizon in the big flare-up in the Near-East is the Workers and Peasants' Government of Soviet Russia, the friend and ally of the oppressed peoples of Asia.

George Tchitcherin, Soviet commissar of foreign affairs, to the consternation of British imperialists, who have always felt themselves all-powerful, proclaims that the Soviet Republic will stick to the terms of her agreement of March 16, 1921, with Mustapha Kemal Pasha, and the Angora Turkish Government.

Red Russia wants peace. She does [illegible] want war with England over the Dardanelles and Constantinople. Russia wants to carry on her work of reconstruction, recuperation from the famine, the rehabilitation of her industries and her agriculture. But Russia will not give one inch.

Before leaving Berlin for Moscow to attend a special conference on the Turko-Greek war question, Tchitcherin said:

> "Russia will not stand for the allied powers permitting Greek war and troop ships to pass thru the Dardanelles.
> "From our point of view, any agreement permitting any of the western powers to control the Bosphorus would be racially, as well as historically, wrong. What has Great Britain or France, 2,000 miles away, got to do with Constantinople? Of course, it is a question that is many centuries old.
> "The Crimean war was fought over the same issue, and the war which is now brewing in the Near-East, unless it is prevented by the United States, will be fought over the same question.
> "Russia does not want to interfere. Russia wants peace, but unless Great Britain is reasonable and advises Greece to accept the consequences of the defeat in Asia Minor and to prevent a new campaign in Thrace, we cannot promise the United States or the world that another war like that of 1914-1918 will not be started. But I have confidence in the good judgment of the United States. The present war—for war seems almost inevitable—can still be prevented if President Harding interferes."

The Harding administration at Washington declares it has no intention of interfering "in the adjustment of Near-East troubles." It is content to rule over a nation, the bankers of which control the world's gold supply, and the industrial kaisers of which are willing to coin more profits out of new agonies in Europe.

In the meantime the kept press is trying to whip up to blood heat the war fever of the workers. Dr. Barton, chairman of the Near-East Relief, a Christian gentleman, wants to plunge into this new blood bath on the shores of the Mediterranean. He has read the war horrors ably supplied by Anglo-Greek propagandists. The Turks are demanding a commission to investigate atrocities. It would surprise our yellow press of it were shown that the Greeks themselves set fire to Smyrna.

America's workers have nothing to gain by United States' participation in a Near-East war for the preservation of British oil fields in Mesopotamia and the maintenance of England's grip on Constantinople.

Profits made on war munitions sold will go to the profiteers. Food sent abroad to sustain marching armies means higher prices for food in this country.

Let the demands of America's workers be:

NO WAR TO AID BRITISH IMPERIALISM!

NO WAR TO KEEP OPPRESSED NATIONS IN SUBJECTION!

WE WILL FIGHT IN BUT ONE WAR; THE WAR FOR OUR EMANCIPATION!

Across the war shaken world the workers of America greet the heroic stand of the Russian workers and peasants on behalf of oppressed peoples, struggling against their imperialist masters.

DOWN WITH IMPERIALISM!

HAIL THE LIBERATING SOCIAL REVOLUTION!

Stand by the Fayette Miners!

PROCLAMATION OF THE WORKERS PARTY

Forty-five thousand miners in Fayette County, Pennsylvania, are still out on strike. The mines of Fayette County were unorganized when the strike was declared in April. Previously the rule of the coal barons in Fayette County had been unchallenged.

The fact that Fayette County was non-union and would produce coal while the union miners were out was one of the things depended upon by the coal operators to break the strike.

When Fayette County organized and came out it was hailed as one of the greatest victories of the United Mine Workers.

Thruout the strike the 45,000 men in Fayette County were obliged to meet the most brutal attack the bosses made anywhere in the coal fields. The Sheriff's records show 1,500 evictions in the county. The armed thugs of the coal operators and the state cossacks have been particularly busy in Fayette.

Thru all this brutal oppression and hunger and misery the 45,000 men have stood like a stone wall. Their ranks were unbroken. They refused to be driven back to work and scab on their fellow workers in [illegible]

But when the settlement was made the officials of the United Mine Workers forgot Fayette County—forgot the sacrifice and suffering that the Fayette miners had gone thru in order to help win the strike.

The operators in Fayette County refused to sign the Cleveland agreement. The Hillman Co. which own mines in Fayette and also near Pittsburgh was allowed to sign for the mines outside of Fayette County, but was not compelled to sign for the Fayette County mines also.

The Fayette County miners are still struggling and starving.

In this crisis all the support of the United Mine Workers should have been thrown to the Fayette Miners. The whole organization should have been called upon to rally to the support of the Fayette County strikers. But the officials in control of the national policies of the United Mine Workers have done nothing.

There have been some vague promises of relief later, but no money, no food, no clothing has been sent to Fayette where the miners are starving and freezing in

"New Majority", Official Organ, Chicago Federation of Labor, Shows Michigan "Red Raids" Direct Attack on Organized Workers

EDITORIAL NOTE:—The Burns-Daugherty "red raids" last month will not have the same easy time of it that Palmer's "red raids" enjoyed in 1920, declares the New Majority, official organ of the Chicago Federation of Labor, and of the Farmer-Labor Party. It points out that the workers are in a different mood this year and that they realize that an attack on the Communist Movement is an attack against them. The New Majority states its position in an editorial as follows:

When the now historic "red" raids of 1920 were made, in which thousands of radicals were thrown into jails, it was at a time when the war hysteria had not yet subsided, and the cry was, "Get the foreign agitators."

At that time the trade union movement showed little response to the calls made upon them for support and defense of the persons arrested. Times were good, work plentiful and wages still high.

To the average worker in shop or factory class warfare meant little and the persecution of radicals seemed something apart.

The recent raids, however, in which more than a score of trade unionists were arrested in Michigan and Illinois, are felt thruout the entire country as a direct attack upon the labor movement as a whole, particularly upon the progressive trade union movement.

Where in 1920 the red raids came and passed with hardly a protest from the unions and no concerted action on their part, the 1922 raids find unions all over the country

Militants in Evidence at Printers Meet

By JEANNETTE D. PEARL

The 67th Annual Convention of the International Typographical Union was opened in the sumptuous Venetian Room of the Hotel Ambassador of Atlantic City, the pleasure city of the world.

President Herrmann, of Atlantic City I. T. U. No. 377, in welcoming the delegates and visitors said:

"I want to welcome you to our beatiful city, the queen of resorts and the play ground of the world. Here is a pleasure producing factory, a gigantic machine where billions of dollars are involved for producing the commodity called pleasure."

Some Atmosphere for Labor

Along the shore of this pleasure city stretches a dazzling illuminated board walk, eight miles in length, upon which sensuous occupants, not workers, glide in some five thousand

Debs Joins Defense Committee; Protest Mass Meeting at Boston

(By Telegraph to THE WORKER)

CHICAGO.—Eugene V. Debs, in a letter to William Z. Foster, has accepted the position as one of the members of the National Labor Defense Committee, formed to aid in the defense of the victims of the Michigan raids, and other cases of a similar nature.

In writing from the Elmwood Sanitarium, where his health is being restored, Debs pledges his fullest support to the aid of these victims of capitalist persecution.

PROTEST MASS MEETING AT BOSTON

BOSTON, Mass.—Great preparations are being made here for the Protest Mass Meeting against the White Terror planned for Sunday afternoon, 2 o'clock, Sept. 24th, at the Paine Memorial Hall.

Both C. E. Ruthenberg, secretary of the Workers Party, and William Z. Foster, secretary of the Trade Union Educational League, will be among the speakers. This gathering if expected to duplicate the big meetings already held at Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Philadelphia, and other cities.

NEW YORK DEMONSTRATION, OCT. 6th

The New York Demonstration against the Michigan Raids will be held Friday night, Oct. 6, at the Central Opera House, 205 E. 67th St., instead of Sept. 22, as announced. Foster and Ruthenberg will head the list of speakers. Get ready for a great protest gathering!

A New Storm Menaces Europe!

By KARL RADEK

What is now happening in Europe may be characterised as the death-agonies of the Treaty of Versailles. Economic necessity is the cause of the Treaty's breakdown. The victors had decided to treat the wounds which the war inflicted upon western capitalism at the expense of Germany, Austria, Bulgaria, Turkey, and Russia.

This attempt could not be realized not only because of the frightful havoc caused to Cen-

Sensation in Soviet Russia

The first statement of the surprising results achieved by the Friends of Soviet Russia "Agricultural Unit" has just been received from Hal Ware, head of the unit, formerly secretary of the American Federated Russian Famine Relief Committee.

It shows that the F. S. R. unit is creating a sensation in Soviet Russia as the forerunner of many other similar units. Ware reports as follows:

Village of Toikino, Government of Perm, August 1, 1922.

Executive Committee
Friends of Soviet Russia
New York City.

Dear Comrades:—I am enclosing a letter which will keep you in touch with our progress. Your "Iron Horses" are beating a road to a solution of this problem. Almost all industrial centers have land. With modern farm machinery and a few trained men they can produce enough food to maintain themselves wherever tractor farming is possible.

The American workers thru the agency of the F. S. R. have been first in demonstrating these possibilities.

Some of the American comrades have become so interested in this project they will remain in Russia providing the support of the American workers is continued until the Russian Government takes hold of the plan.

Fraternally yours,
(Signed) Hal Ware.

The letter follows:

Toikino, August 1, 1922.

The work is in full swing here: one large field of 500 acres was finished yesterday and the crews are beginning on the second. We have been delayed in organizing two shifts first because the Benzine transport is still confined to those 10 iron barrels and is just sufficient to maintain 15 or 16 tractors in full operation; second because the camp equipment was not sufficient to house a full double crew. Your man arrived with the new tents, and I have issued a request to all villages for young men.

We have at present 19 men in the "Russian Camp" and need 24 more.

We have attracted a great deal of attention and created friendly feelings among the villages for our work. All along the route we have created a sensation and in the village of Otchor held a big demonstration. Every Sunday we have demonstrations here. We have invited a number of villages to come next Sunday and learn about our work. We will serve tea and show pictures, also the tractors in operation.

Numerous requests from small villages for us to plow land for them are coming in. I have decided to plow small areas in two or three villages with one or two of the tractors for propaganda among them. In each case we insist that the land so plowed be used for communal distribution of the product and that land shall not be divided.

Records are being kept upon which other Units may figure with safety. I am enclosing samples of the cards used in recording the work of each man, tractor and tool, which the foreman of each crew fills out daily.

In this Sovkhoz (Soviet Farm) there are 15,000 desiatines. After organization is completed and equipment installed a Unit of 65 men can plow and plant all the land suitable for machine work. In other words, Industrial Combines who control land can become almost entirely independent of the peasantry. By the use of machinery—extra labor will be essential at harvest only.

In spite of the inexperienced operators and unusually trying conditions all machinery has been operating. No serious breakdowns have occurred nor have defective parts been discovered. The work is typical of what other units will encounter and our records of each machine will be of great service.

Fraternally yours,
(Signed) Hal Ware.

Relief Exhibition in Berlin.

The exhibition for famine Relief which was held in Berlin during July was visited by thousands of workers and the general public.

Numerous statistical diagrams prepared in Russia showed vividly the extend of the famine in Russia its causes and the relief measures of various organizations. There were exhibited also specimens of "hunger bread" famine relief posters from various countries and objects of art from Russia, carrying embroideries etc.

TEN WORKERS SHOULD READ THIS COPY OF THE WORKER: KEEP IT IN CIRCULATION

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

There is a [illegible] in the New York Call, September [illegible] in which the [illegible] writer, James Oneal, who is also the spiritual guide of this "Socialist" daily, tearfully confesses to the doubt "whether one man in 1,000 has read a textbook on logic." The showing among women is not mentioned.

We have no doubt been included among the 999, since our article "Has Debs Changed?" that appeared in a recent issue of THE WORKER, is denounced in terrifying terms as "butchering all the accepted rules of logic."

Yet we are not squelched, altho this clever "logician," Oneal, probably feels he has us completely floored.

They say that figures cannot lie, but that liars do often figure. And it must be the same way with these logicians who pride themselves on having pored thru and absorbed the contents of the volumes of Mill, Hamilton, Berkeley and others too numerous to mention. It is easy to corrupt an honest game of craps with loaded dice. So I have noticed that our most boasting logicians are those who deal in "loaded logic" in trying to carry on an honest discussion.

I cannot claim credit for having been the first to compare the Russian Revolution to a strike, putting the enemies of the revolution whether in Russia, Germany or elsewhere in the same class with the workers' enemies in a strike, on the railroads, in the coal mines, the textile mills, or somewhere else.

That is what James Oneal's hair-splitting mind disagrees with. He says it isn't so. The bomb-throwing, poisoned bullet shooting, paid agents of the Paris imperialist allies masquerading as social revolutionaries, when, in fact, they are counter revolutionaries, should not, says Oneal, be put in the same class with Rockefeller's thugs and assassins in Colorado.

Oneal was moved to an assault upon his typewriter that brought forth more than 2,000 words for The Call's Magazine Section when I asked, "Has Debs Changed?" after pointing out that in Colorado Debs, in an article written 8 years ago had denounced as "a coward and, a craven and undeserving the name of man" any striker who refused to defend his own life and fireside against Rockefeller's Cossacks, while this year he indicts the Russian Communists, guiding spirits in oppressed labor's greatest strike against enslaving capitalism, and finds them guilty of "bloodthirsty revenge, cruel reprisals and savage killings."

When Oneal grandiously exclaims, "What has Debs' advice to workers to strike back at hired thugs got to do with Debs' opposition to capital punishment for anybody for any offense?" we feel Oneal is quite hopeless and are inclined to side with Robert Ingersoll when he said that to reply or argue with a man who has bidden good-bye to his reason is like giving medicine to the dead.

We would have wished that Debs had a better defender. Debs was not troubled with scruples about capital punishment when he urged the miners' union of Colorado to "arm their members against the gunmen of the corporations, the gangs of criminals, cutthroats, woman-ravishers and baby-burners that have absolutely no lawful right to exist." What is it that worries him now, or worries Oneal in his defense?

Suppose the Soviet Government had put the social (counter)-revolutionaries to death when they were caught red-handed at their bloody deeds. Would Debs have approved? Then what power is it that puts the white mantle of virtue over the shoulders of a murderer in a court room?

I take it that there is a class struggle going on in the world. In this class war I am on the side of the working class, the exploited masses. I try to play my part, as I see it, in the war against capitalism.

It is rather unfortunate for Oneal that he should quote a paragraph from my speech before Kenesaw Mountain Landis, while he was still a judge, before receiving sentence of 20 years' imprisonment. I said:

"What can be said of the prosecution? Coercion, intimidation, misrepresentation and falsification — all that and more is expected as a matter of course. Our trial, therefore, is no disappointment. No ends were too mean, no act too low, if it only lead to a conviction."

That was my indictment of capitalist class justice. I tried to point out to the workers just what they might expect from capitalist courts seeking to defend the capitalist system that must be destroyed.

The Moscow trial was also an example of class justice, but of working class justice defending the social revolution that every true worker is seeking to develop into the world victory of labor.

Oneal says if I favor the Moscow convictions, I must also uphold the convictions of Debs, of the I. W. W. at Centralia, Wash., of Sacco and Vanzetti, of Tom Mooney and Warren Billings. How absurd!

It is because I favored the Moscow convictions against the enemies of the Workers' Republic that I take my stand on the side of the victims of capitalist class justice, Debs, the I. W. W., Sacco and Vanzetti, Mooney and Billings, and all the rest, yes, even the coal miners of Herrin, Illinois, who established their own rule of proletarian justice for one day and meted out capital punishment to some of capitalism's lickspittles.

I can picture Oneal setting himself up as a sort of referee in the grand jury investigation of the mine war, now taking place at Herrin, Ill. He would see to it that "justice" is rendered both the mine workers and the mine owners, and he would plead for "fairness" in a capitalist court.

Of course, Oneal objects when I put all the enemies of the workers, the mine owners at Herrin, and the social (counter)-revolutionaries in or out of Russia, in the same class. But I do it, nevertheless. And I am only interested in the fight of the mine workers against the system that keeps them in slavery and makes "Herrin massacres" inevitable, just as I am only interested in the war of Soviet Rule in Russia against all its enemies.

Oneal cannot conceive of anyone warring on capitalist justice and at the same time taking a stand for a revolutionary working class tribunal, for proletarian justice. That makes it possible for us to understand why it is so easy for Oneal's "Socialist" Party to betray the very principles of Socialism and consort with the enemies of the working class. It is easy to understand why Oneal's "Socialist" Party doesn't repudiate Victor Berger's endorsement of La Follette, in Wisconsin, and similar antics on the part of its candidates in other parts of the country.

In fact, Oneal, in manipulating his logic, becomes a regular circus juggler. His hypocritical reasoning permits him to profess to be indifferent which ball goes up and which comes down.

Oneal says that if the counter-revolutionary Mensheviks deserve death for murdering Bolsheviks, then the Bolsheviks deserve death for killing Mensheviks. Which means that Oneal is out for "justice" for everybody, the hypocritical, pretense of every capitalist court.

We only remember once that Oneal was ever endowed with the power to judge, to use force in the guise of justice, over others. That was in the spring of 1919 when 60,000 members of the Socialist Party were up for expulsion before the National Executive Committee, of which Oneal was a member. Justice, party precedent, party constitution, even a trial, everything was thrown to the winds by the Oneal-Stedman-Berger dictatorship. Was this because these 60,000 members wanted to compromise with capitalism, wanted to vote the old party tickets, wanted to betray the principles of Socialism? No, it was because these 60,000 members wanted to stand side by side with the Russian Revolution, because they wanted to fight for the revolution in this country, because they were opposed to the Oneal-Stedman-Berger brand of yellow "Socialism", and the Oneals, the Stedmans and the Bergers would not permit any other kind of Socialism to function, even tho the overwhelming majority of the party membership demanded it. Oneal's theories about "justice" were thus put into practice and Oneal took his place with Palmer as a "red raider".

This policy of "purifying" the "Socialist" Party was so successfully carried out that its Yellow Dictatorship did not meet with a single opposing voice at the Cleveland Convention this year.

I merely cite this to expose the Oneal in action as compared to the Oneal that peddles hypocritical phrases about the "conduct of Judge Landis being the last word in equity compared with what the president of the Moscow tribunal and his fellow judges indulged in."

It is fitting that the representatives of Oneal's "Socialist" Party, Hillquit, Lee, Panken, should now be in Europe arranging for the return of the "Socialist" Party to the ranks of the Second International, the international of Scheidemann, whose gang murdered Karl Liebknecht, Rosa Luxemburg, slaughtered thousands of their comrades upon the streets, and sent other tens of thousands to prison for trying to achieve that social revolution in Germany that real Socialism says must come everywhere before the new day dawns.

It is admitted that the Social Revolutionary Party is outlawed in Soviet Russia. It is outlawed because it is an agent of the capitalists of Wall Street, of London, Paris, Rome and Berlin. And the Proletarian Dictatorship in Soviet Russia says that every vestige of capitalism must be destroyed.

Oneal would wish the Social (Counter)-Revolutionary Party legalized in Soviet Russia, so that it could agitate for the constituent assembly where the capitalist and monarchist parties could seek admission and work for the restoration of capitalism and the czardom, just as the Scheidemann-Ebert "Socialists" in Germany, in the Reichstag, co-operate with Stinnes and other industrial and financial capitalists to keep down the Communists, just as Fritz Adler, Austrian "Socialist," helps the oppressors of the impoverished workers in Austria enact their Anti-Communist laws.

Political trials are grotesque when staged by capitalists and Yellow Socialists in favor of things as they are. The trial, conviction and expulsion of thousands of members from the "Socialist" Party, in 1919, under Oneal's spiritual guidance, was certainly the desperate efforts of men who feared arguments and appeals to human reason.

The mask is rapidly dropping from the hypocritical faces of those "Socialists" in this country who profess sympathy for the Russian Revolution, but stab it in the back at every opportunity.

We are not surprised that Oneal's hate for the Communist International should now spread to the Revolution's proletarian courts. Soon he will be standing side by side with Chernoff, the social (counter)-revolutionary in attacking the Soviet Republic and the Bolshevik Revolution.

We asked, "Has Debs Changed?" We do not care to look to Oneal for an answer. We want that answer to come from Debs himself, confident that if there is any doubt about that reply now, that doubt will be removed in the very near future.

Gala Day and Night at N. D. C. Autumn Festival

Old folks, young folks, each and every one,
Come to the N. D. C. festival, if you want to have some fun;
Check your bag of worries, and your differences at the door,
And you'll see such pretty features as you never saw before.

The Autumn Festival of the National Defense Committee, Sept. 24. Don't forget the date if you are out for a good time. There will be a barbecue, the roasting of frankfurters and marshmallows; a large number of jolly friends gathered round a cozy campfire singing revolutionary songs, recitations, musical concert.

Sounds almost too good to be true, eh? Yet it's going to be true Sept. 24, at Dickert's Old Point Park, 4018 Boston Road, Bronx, New York City.

A prize will be awarded for the best dancers on the floor; bring your dancing partners with you; if you forget, one will be furnished you by applying to the committee on the floor. Drinks and refreshments will be served.

A prize will also be given to the champion frankfurter eater and beer drinker of the evening; prizes will also be awarded to the champion runner and bowling artist.

There will be games for children, and a good time for everyone. The festival will commence at 10 o'clock in the forenoon and will wind up in the wee small hours of the morning.

Come and bring your friends along. You have nothing to lose but 35 cents, the price of admission; you have a world of fun to gain. Workers, unite for the Autumn Festival and Barbecue of the National Defense Committee, and let us make this one big, grand, rollicking affair, to be long remembered in the annals of our festivities.

Urge Transport Workers of All Countries to Join in Real International Labor Action

All American workers especially the transport workers of this country, should be intensely interested in the manifesto issued by labor in eight different countries on the forthcoming congress of the International Transport Workers' Federation to be held at Vienna, Austria, October 2nd.

The manifesto comes from the Mid-European Bureau of the Red International of Labor Unions with headquarters at Berlin and is as follows:

To the Transport Workers of All Countries!

Fellow Workers:—The "International Transport Workers' Federation" will convene their regular congress at Vienna on October 2nd with a boasted membership of 3,000,000. What can you expect from this congress? Your hours of toil have been lengthened and your wages slashed below a living standard. Therefore we ask: will it bring more idle talk? Can we expect a sincere attempt at formulating a program of International Action?

The I. T. F. has furnished the answer to these questions by refusing to carry out the resolutions and decisions of the congresses held at Christiania, Amsterdam and Geneva.

They have declared previously for the eight-hour day, and now they associate themselves with the Amsterdam program, which declares for the League of Nations, and whose "Labor Bureau" decides against the eight-hour day in conformity with the resolution passed at their conference at Washington, D. C., U. S. A.

The Eight-Hour Day Is Everywhere Attacked

They also declared for "War Against War" but in every country the leaders of the I. T. F. support their respective governments, and capitalism, which is the root of all wars.

They also decided upon a resolution to relieve the unemployed dockworkers by calling upon the various governments to recuperate commerce. (?) Instead of unemployment decreasing it has increased since they passed this ridiculous resolution.

On the most important question of how to stop international blacklegging between the various countries, by refusing to ship goods intended for use against workers of other nationalities, the I. T. F. has done nothing.

To the workers these congresses are nothing but idle talk and deception.

Simultaneous with the convening of the congress of the I. T. F. on Oct. 2nd, the dockers of Great Britain must suffer a reduction of one shilling a day. And a further reduction has been decided upon for June 1923. This reduction was accepted by the officials of the I. T. F.: Robert Williams, Gosling and Devan are signatories to these attacks upon wages.

Against a reduction of wages upon the Czecho-Slovakian and the French railways, Edo Fimmen, Bidegaray and Brodzki have done nothing.

What have these officials done? What are the international facts? Blacklegging against the American miners!

On Aug. 10th Ernest Bevin, the "leader" of the dockers, wrote to Frank Hodges of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain that it would be a form of "International Blacklegging" to work "three shifts" loading coal for America. But between Aug. 19th and the 26th 150,000 tons of coal have left South Wales for the United States, and two million tons are contracted for by the importers of America.

What was the I. T. F. doing? Nothing! Their silence is sanction to this international blacklegging!

What can we expect from an International which systematically divides the workers and destroys our attempts to create the United Front against the United Bourgeoisie?

The I. T. F. is in the best of terms with the League of Nations and give their support to the Entente, thereby aiding in the political policies of their governments, which enslaves the workers of Central and Western Europe. This Policy means hunger and death to the workers living in countries bearing the burdens of the Treaty of Versailles. This is the policy of the I. T. F.

Just as the capitalist class robs the workers of all they produce, and gives them pennies in return as charity: so the I. T. F. delivers the workers into these miserable conditions.

It was not the I. T. F. officials that hindered the transport of munitions intended for use against Soviet Russia as they claim they did, but it was a spontaneous demand from the rank and file of labor that made this possible. It is not possible to believe that J. H. Thomas would aid the Russian revolution, when he declared against the solidarity and the general strike to aid the British miners. He is on record in open court as being against a workers' revolution. So it is impossible for him to be for revolutionary action internationally.

The I. T. F. officials are proven to be against the workers' interests by their act of expelling from the I. T. F. the Russians, Bulgarians and Finlanders, and by making it impossible for the majority of the French, Dutch, and the great bulk of the Czecho-Slovakians to remain within their ranks.

In Germany, the adherents of the I. T. F. have also expelled the best militants from the organizations, and in Czecho-Slovakia they have split the railwaymen's union. All these organizations have united into an International Propaganda Committee to establish the United Front against the Transport Bosses.

We demand that the "International" of Transport Workers shall unite the All-Transport Workers of the World; we demand that the 8-hour day shall be established internationally and declare for this as an immediate necessity; we demand action in opposition to the attacks upon our already meagre wages; we demand Solidarity as opposed to international blacklegging; and, we further demand that the International of Transport Workers cease its support of the bourgeoisie and the League of Nations.

If these officials of the I. T. F. talk of unity, the transport workers must demand action at every port of the world. We must have international action to fight for a living wage and decent conditions for we are only an organized force if we are united internationally!

With best wishes to the International Transport Workers, we remain.

Yours fraternally,

Signed: Russian Railway and Transport Workers Federations.

NOTICE!

CHICAGO.—Two thousand five hundred working men and women, in Ashland Auditorium here, donated $2,577.22 to aid the victims of the Michigan raids, and gave overwhelming ovations to all the speakers.

The great gathering cheered William Z. Foster and C. E. Ruthenberg for five minutes when they appeared on the platform, and all the speakers were constantly interrupted by outbreaks of applause that forced them to pause until the enthusiasm had subsided and they could continue.

Lillian Herstein, of the Teachers' Federation, acted as chairman in place of Robert M. Buck, editor of the New Majority, who had been unexpectedly called to New York.

Dunne First to Speak

William F. Dunne, the first speaker, told of the raid and linked up the arrests of the Michigan defendants with the widespread campaign of the employers and their governmental tools against all manifestations of working class solidarity.

He pointed out that we were now experiencing the same kind of oppression under the Harding regime that aroused such a storm of resentment against the Wilson administration.

He reminded the audience that while many workers still clung to the idea that democracy was possible in America and many hoped for a return to the good old days when free land made a free country, that the America of today was not the America of yesterday either territorially, economically or politically; that the United States was now the foremost imperialistic power in the world and that all the persecutions of the workers were part and parcel of the manifestations of this new state in capitalistic development.

Foster Tells of Persecution

William Z. Foster followed Dunne and told of the unceasing efforts of the authorities to hamper the work of the Trade Union Educational League, and of the various frame-ups he had been the victim of in his years of work in organizing the wage earners in the lumber woods, the stockyards and the steel industry.

C. E. Ruthenberg, National Secretary of the Workers Party, outlined the history of the Communist Movement in the United States and told of the continuous persecution inflicted on it from its very inception.

He reminded the audience that it is no longer possible for the ruling class to single out small groups of workers for persecution without involving the broad masses of the entire working class.

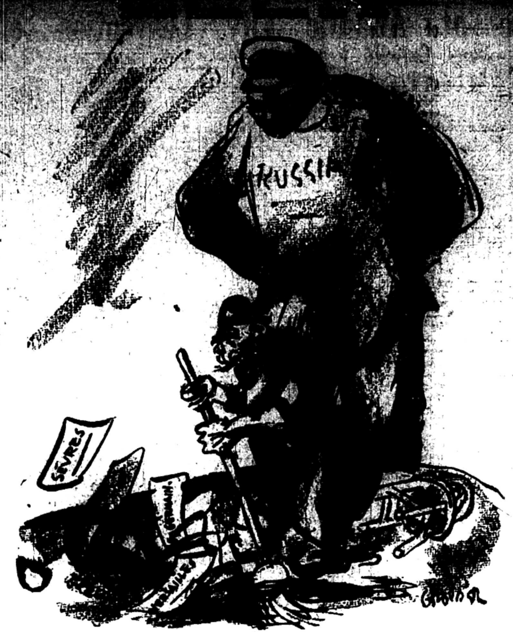
In this particular case striking railwaymen were placed by the agents of the capitalist government in exactly the same position as the Reds insofar as the law was concerned.

Splendid Show of Solidarity

He evoked wild applause when he said that the only answer for which the rulers had any respect was the organized determination of the workers.

Pledge Cards for bonds were passed among the audience and collected as the hall was vacated. The results of these pledges have not yet been tabulated.

No one present at the meeting doubted that the Michigan defendants have the solid backing of the Chicago militants and that a splendid exhibition of solidarity will be given in their defense.



While the Turk Sweeps Away Old Rubbish

Defense Mass Protest Meet Friday, Oct. 6

The railroad strike and the miners' strike are over but the White Terror is not yet over.

The injunction obtained by Daugherty against the railroad strikers was not only directed against the railway men. It was aimed at the heart of organized Labor. It was intended to destroy the unions, to prevent any possible strike in the future.

The workers of this country must once and for all stop the use of injunctions against strikers. They can easily do so if they form one solid front against the capitalist class. The workers of New York will show Daugherty what they think of his injunction at the great Protest Meeting which will be held on Friday, Oct. 6, at the Central Opera House.

This meeting had to be postponed because Foster and Ruthenberg have to appear at a court hearing on September 22nd.

SYDNEY, N. S. Wales.—Birth control is being practiced all over Australia because the workers cannot maintain their families on the wages paid to them, says Judge Piddington, a judicial dignitary in Australia.

Utilize Labor's Resentment

With the slogan, "Workers! You Must Fight for Freedom!" the Workers Party has addressed another manifesto to the masses urging the necessity of independent political action thru a mass political party of the workers.

Such intelligent expression as we find in the labor press today is all on the side of independent action in place of the "nonpartisan" program of Gompers and the committee created by the Chicago Conference.

The strongest indictment of labor "nonpartisanship" that has come to our attention is to be found in the Cincinnati News, Sept. 1, official organ of International Association of Machinists of Cincinnati, Ohio.

This mouthpiece of the organized machinists flays both the old parties in the following language:

> The just resentment of the working class against the Republican national administration because of its hostility to labor as manifested anew in the application of Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty for an injunction against the shopmen before Federal Judge Wilkerson, at Chicago should not be diverted to the aid of the so-called "Democratic" party as seems to be the intent of some "leaders" of organized labor.
> The workers have every reason in the world to be against the so-called "Republican" party, but the same reasons should prompt them to be against the "Democratic" party.
> The injunction asked for by the Republican Attorney General H. M. Daugherty in the matter of the shopmen is even less drastic than the injunction obtained by the "Democratic" Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer in November, 1919, at Indianapolis, from Federal Judge Anderson against the United Mine Workers of America.
> Further: The injunction obtained by Republican Daugherty at the instigation of a Republican President, Warren G. Harding, is actually based on the Debs injunction, secured by that "Democratic" Attorney General, Richard Olney, under the "Democratic" administration of Grover Cleveland, in 1893.
> Just as the injunction gotten by the "Democratic" administration of Woodrow Wilson, was more drastic than the injunction secured by the "Republican" administration of Warren G. Harding, so the "Democratic" administration of Grover Cleveland capped the climax in using Federal troops to break up the strike of the railroad men in 1893, something that Harding has not yet done, altho threatened.
> There is really nothing strange in the fact that if Harding does at any time use Federal troops in industrial disputes he will find the precedent set by a "Democratic" president, the honorable Grover Cleveland. It should be burned into the memory of every workingman who is now being appealed to to vote the "Democratic" ticket in order to rebuke the Republicans, that it was under a "Democratic" administration that "government by injunction" was instituted and that Grover Cleveland, the "Democrat," marched the standing army of the Federal power into the sovereign state of Illinois over the protest of the governor of Illinois, the sheriff of Cook county and the mayor of Chicago.
> There is nothing strange in this fact because the real power that committed this outrage was capitalism.

Similarly "The Advance", official organ of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, says, "Would there were a labor party in this country to which the workers could turn in a crisis like the present one for such action as conditions are now crying for. But there is no such party. Politically, the American workers have voluntarily disfranchised themselves.

"The labor movement alone has the power to inaugurate an effective third party. But that power is still in a state of disuse."

It isn't strange that the Workers Party should stand alone, except for the demands of some trade unions, in urging independent political action for the workers, while labor's so-called "political parties" are making their dickers here and there with republican and democrat political bosses.

The Workers Party only considers the interests of the great mass of the industrial toilers and working farmers. The "Socialist" Party, the Farmer-Labor Party, the Nonpartisan League and other "nonpartisan" political organizations can only see as far as the night of November's election day.

They are too busy, trying to count the number of jobs they hope they will grab, to make definite plans for utilizing labor's great resentment this year against its exploiters.

Those plans must be developed by the forces of labor enlisted in the Workers Party, that accepts the leadership in this struggle and pushes forward to make the most of the great opportunities now offered for uniting labor's efforts definitely in the direction of its own emancipation.

Arrest of Sacco-Vanzetti Prosecutors on Charge of Attempted Murder Demanded

BOSTON.—If the revelations made by Mrs. Lola R. Andrews to the effect that her testimony against Nicola Sacco was false and given under intimidation are sustained, "someone in the district attorney's office at that time ought to be arrested and tried for attempted murder," declares the Boston American in a leading editorial.

The editorial reads in part:

"The confession of the woman who identified Sacco that she lied on the witness stand and that she was frightened into lying by the terrorizing methods of the prosecuting attorney's office is a terrible confession. She is either crazy or someone in the district attorney's office at that time ought to be arrested and tried for attempted murder

"Tom Mooney, the labor leader in San Francisco, barely escaped being murdered by the district attorney's office and a lot of 'big business conspirators.' It was a timely confession and a timely discovery of evidence which saved his life.

"Cowardly prosecuting officers, seeking notoriety at the expense of the helpless, persecuted men of radical opinions everywhere, forgetting that the accepted opinions of to-day were the radical opinions of yesterday, and that the pioneers of reform and progress were always radicals when they first raised their voices."

A Rebel's Appeal

SAN QUENTIN, Cal.—Jim Roe, 70 years old, and crippled with rheumatism, has asked the district defense committee not to carry his case to the supreme court, the appellate court having confirmed his conviction of a criminal syndicalism charge. Roe's "crime" consisted in selling I. W. W. papers, possessing second class mailing privileges thruout the country, on the streets of San Francisco. He feels it would be a waste of money to appeal his case further.

"I would rather see the money spent for publicity for the repeal of the criminal syndicalism law," concludes the appeal of this fine old rebel, "for that would be to the benefit of all of the working class."

of Michigan Raid Hearing

The hearing in the case of the 20 comrades arrested as a result of the Michigan "red raids" has been postponed to Tuesday, Sept. 26.

William Z. Foster, who was arrested in Chicago last week and taken to Michigan, has been released on bail.

The release of Max Lerner, of Seattle, Wash., district organizer of the Workers Party for the Pacific northwest, has also been secured.

This leaves 12 still in jail, ten of the original 17, and Earl Browder and A. Aronberg, of Chicago, arrested at the national conference of the Trade Union Educational League.

"Efforts should not relax," says C. E. Ruthenberg, secretary of the Workers Party, who has returned to New York City, from a trip to Chicago, during which he addressed several mass meetings. "We must secure bail from every available source to bring about the release of all the others as soon as possible."

The Labor Defense Council has been organized in Chicago with the Workers Party, Socialist Party, Farmer-Labor Party, Proletarian Party, Trade Union Educational League and quite a number of unions represented.

The national office of the Labor Defense Council has already been established at Room 307, 166 W. Washington St., Chicago, Ill., and will spread its activities to every section of the nation. There will even be a branch of the Council in St. Joseph, where the labor militants were thrown into jail, and where 10 are still confined.

One of the local preachers at St. Joseph, Mich., delivered a sermon in which he denounced the arrests, and it is felt there is a beginning of popular resentment against the attack on the workers' organizations.

Workers Party Sends Aid to the Starving Miners of Pennsylvania

(Special to The Worker.)

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—In a communication from William Feeney, organizer for District 5, United Mine Workers of America, the Pittsburgh District, to the District Office of the Workers Party, in Pittsburgh, asking them to aid in the relief of the Starving Miners in Fayette County a desperate condition is revealed as the aftermath of the coal strike.

The strike is ostensibly settled but the Fayette County Coal Operators' Association did not sign the Cleveland agreement and 35,000 Miners organized during the strike are staying out and starving with their families rather than go back to work under scab conditons.

So far as can be learned the International Office of the United Mine Workers has done nothing in the way of relief for these men and their familes and the gossip in the district is that John L. Lewis knows that they are opposed to the policies of his administration and that he is content to let the wonderful organizing Campaign conducted by these men and their splendid fight against the Frick interests go for naught rather than have thousands of opposition votes in this territory where there was no organization before the strike for reasons well known to the Lewis administration.

Meanwhile 35,000 miners are standing pat, hoping that relief will come from some source and enable them to continue their fight to victory in this important coking coal district.

Hundreds of these men and their families have been evicted and are living in tents, typhoid feaver is raging and the actual conditions cannot be adequately described.

The Workers Party Relief Committee of Pittsburgh is sending $200 per week into Fayette County but this is only a drop in the bucket.

Thirty children have already been placed in Pittsburgh homes and twenty more are being brought in this week.

It is claimed by the miners that in signing with the Hillman Company, which also operates in Fayette County, for mines near Pittsburgh without forcing a general contract for Fayette County the district board violated the Cleveland agreement and placed the Fayette County diggers at the mercy of the Frick interests.

There is much resentment over the matter and resolutions of protest are being sent to other locals informing them of a conditon to which no publicity has as yet been given by the official labor journals.

Relief must be organized and sent into Fayette County if the wonderful sacrifices made by these men and their families for the long weary month of the strike is to result in the access of 35,000 more fighters to the labor movement, instead of a general demoralization which would make organization in this field impossible for years to come.

tand by Thes Battling Miners their tent colonies. There are charges that the officials are sabotaging Fayette; that they are afraid to have these rebels come into the organization; even that money received for relief has not been immediately available.

This is a crisis which requires action by every local union of the United Mine Workers. The rank and file who have won their victory after the splendid struggle of the last five months will not stand for the desertion of the 45,000 miners of Fayette County.

Locals of the United Mine Workers! Call immediate special meetings. Adopt resolutions demanding that the central treasury of the organization be used for immediate relief of the Fayette County strikers. Demand that all the resources of the organization be put behind the struggling and starving workers in Fayette County.

Send relief to them direct. The Pittsburgh Miners' Food Relief Conerence is doing what it can to feed and house them. It will be glad to make your contribution available quickly. Address J. A. Hamilton, Secretary, 35 Milller St., Pittsburgh.

But above all make your officials act. Make your protest in such a mighty volume that they will give the Fayette miners immediate relief.

THE EMERGENCY IS GREAT. ACT QUICKLY OR THE FAYETTE MINERS WILL BE COMPELLED TO SUBMIT BY HUNGER AND COLD.

Central Executive Committee Workers Party of America
C. E. Ruthenberg, Executive Secretary.

Cry for Bread from Union Miners of Fayette County

Resolutions demanding bread to fight the hunger that is gripping their families have been adopted by Local Union No. 5220, United Mine Workers of America, as follows:

"We, the members of Local Union No. 5220, U. M. W. A., at Fayette County, Pa., who struck in response to the invitation of the U. M. W. A. on April 1st, 1922:—

"WHEREAS, The members of this local have suffered 384 evictions, of which 200 have been since the Cleveland Agreement, and

"WHEREAS, The Cleveland Agreement was signed against our wish and special plea that the coke fields should not be left out, and

"WHEREAS, The District Executive Board signed an agreement with the Hillman Company for mines near Pittsburgh, without requiring them to settle for the larger part of their mines in Fayette County and over vigorous protest of Board Member John O'Leary, and

"WHEREAS, Vice-President Fagan and other officials of District 5 have repeatedly promised relief from the Union, and

"WHEREAS, We have more than fulfilled our part of the contract in which all our wishes have been disregarded, suffering evictions, exposure in tent colonies, typhoid fever and other hardships, and

"WHEREAS, The Pittsburgh Miners' Food Relief Conference, which has given us limited relief for a number of weeks and provided homes for children from camps in Fayette County, and in whom we have every confidence, informs us that District 5, during the last few weeks, has received several thousand dollars for satisfactory distribution for relief among the miners, which they cannot learn about.

"THEREFORE, We, the undersigned, appeal to the International organization to immediately make an investigation of the distribution of relief by District 5, and ask for immediate help for thousands of members actually starving in Fayette County now."

Louis Zazick, President.
John Zubal, Jr., Financial Secretary.

The Program of the Militants

We have just received our copy of the "National Conference Number" of the Labor Herald, official organ of the Trade Union Educational League.

This issue contains a complete account of the proceedings of the League's first conference, including an illustrated story of the double raid on the league's headquarters and the league's conference.

Thinking workers will also find in this issue the program of the building trades workers, the railroad workers, the metal trades and the needle trades workers, as well as the stand of the league on all the important issues of the day.

There is so much good material, in fact, that every man and woman who labors, and who has a desire to help better the condition of his class, and join in the struggle for its emancipation, should get a copy and study its contents at every opportunity.

The price of the Labor Herald has been reduced to 15 cents per copy, $2.50 per year, thus bringing it within the reach of a larger number of readers. Send all communications to the Labor Herald, 118 North La Salle Street, Chicago, Ill.

New efforts to prevent the Spread of Bolshevism are contained in a circular letter addressed to the heads of French universities and high schools by the French minister of education. He urges them all to do nothing to promote the study of Esperanto, as this artificial international language must be regarded as a dangerous tool for the spreading of Bolshevist propaganda. All that is needed now, of course, is a language to safeguard the existence of capitalism. Send your suggestions to the French professor.

It is declared that the Argentine government has sent a message to Congress, asking, in view of the desperate condition of Soviet Russia, authorization to lend the Workers' Republic 5,000,000 pesos (about $4,750,000) to be repaid "when circumstances permit, and without interest." That's too good to be true. We'll wait until that report is confirmed.

Russian workers and peasants are planning 103 great celebrations on the fifth anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution, Nov. 7, which is also the date of the opening of the fourth world congress of the Communist International at Moscow. Let the workers in the United States plan for similar celebrations in this country.

Hungary of the White Terror has been admitted to the League of Nations, unanimously. No objections from the "Socialists," Branting, Thomas or Vandervelde. Hungarian Socialists are agitating for permission to emigrant Socialists and Liberals to return. No mention is made of Communists.

When an attempt was made to display the Anti-Soviet film, "The Dance of Death," in Berlin, the Communists made such a protest that the picture was discontinued. It wouldn't hurt to have workers in this country take a similar stand under similar circumstances.

Gompers and Daugherty are running neck and neck in their efforts to crush the militants in the labor movement. And there are still a few workers left who help keep Gompers in power, and who vote the republican ticket put up by Daugherty's party.

[illegible] War on All Organized Workers

[illegible] and ready to take action on behalf of the labor men now in jail or facing trial.

When the offices of the Trade Union Educational League were raided, the capitalist press blazoned to the world that connections between Foster and the "million dollar wreck" in Gary, Ind., would be established.

When this fell thru, four members of the striking shop crafts were seized and by means of brutal beatings were forced to confess that they had engineered the wreck.

Herrin, Illinois, is the scene of another attempt on the part of the government to establish definitely the fact that the American labor movement is a criminal conspiracy, an outlaw that must be crushed and eliminated from society.

While all over the country efforts have been made to place union labor outside the law, it was not until Sept. 1, that the federal government was so bold as to make its position clear.

In no unmistakable terms Attorney General Daugherty, speaking officially for the United States Government, said:

"I will use the power of the United States Government to prevent labor unions from destroying the open shop."

The Department of Justice made war on Foster and the others, and a few days later declared war against the entire American Labor movement. That the permanent injunction will be granted, no one in the labor movement can doubt.

In a court room Labor's lawyers may not be able to tell Judge Wilkerson why the injunction should not be granted, but the organized labor movement, insulted, goaded beyond limit, exploited and suppressed more than it can bear, may show Daugherty and Wilkerson, Harding and the United States government why it is not advisable to go too far.

Now, more than ever, it is plain that the cause of the victims of Daugherty's raids is the concern of the labor movement and that an attack on a "red" is a covert attack on unionism.

In such an atmosphere a labor convention takes place, and at the same time and in the same hotel the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor was also in session. Was it an accident that the two bodies were meeting simultaneously and under the same roof?

At the conclusion of President [illegible] speech, Rev. McDade offered the invocation and then Deputy Mayor Armand T. Nichols welcomed the delegates on behalf of the city. Handing over to them the key of the city, Mr. Nichols told the delegates that that key also opened his cellar door and assured them that Atlantic City was as wet as the ocean and that if he could be of service, he was at their beck and call.

Then followed the welcome address by Samuel Gompers. "If I could only urge," he said, "upon you and all the citizenship of our Republic the prayer so eloquently presented to us, I think we might rest content for the balance of our existence . . .

More Gompers' Retrospect

"In all our struggles, large or small, of short duration or long periods of time, I can only say to you this, that there never has been a fight or a struggle in which the I. T. U. or any of its locals, or subdivisions, or chapels have ever engaged, but what the struggle was my own, and so far as God has given me the light and the strength I have tried to serve you to the very best of my ability, and that which I have just expressed as desirous and willing of giving service to you and your organization, to your individual membership, is equally true to every worker whether organized or unorganized."

Then Gompers reverted to retrospect: "I have asked myself," he reflected "when was it, at what period of time in the history of man, did the slave owner enter into a [illegible]

"When did [illegible] a large portion of [illegible] order to protect [illegible] What legislation is written in the books of our nation, of our state or our municipalities, advocated and fought for and paid for by moneyed interests and big business? I used the word 'paid' for in regard to high finance and big business because they are so accustomed to buy the legislation they want."

View Bathing Beauties

In the Venetian Room of the Hotel Ambassador, with its subdued tints and muffled atmosphere, the delegates feel the voluptuous languor oozing in from the pleasure factory of the world, and as they viewed in the dim oriental light Sammy's bare breasts gushing forth the milk of human kindness, their dazed senses impel them and they take the harlot to their bosoms. Gompers is the master courtesan of the labor world. He knows the art of deception. He knows how to allure and captivate and non-class conscious workers are his dupes.

They unduly curtailed the first day's session of the Convention so as to permit the delegates to enjoy a frolic upon the million dollar pier and on the second day an early adjournment took place in order to permit delegates to view the Bathing Beauty Contest held in the pool of the same Ambassador Hotel where the union Convention was taking place.

The delegation of the Convention by no means reflected the views of the membership. Representation is not based upon membership, but upon locals. A large local like Chicago with 5,000 members gets but four delegates while some out-of-the-way local having a membership of ten is entitled to one delegate, so that numerically the Convention represents in a greater measure the small locals.

The First Line-up

The first alignment in the Conven- [illegible] tee.

President McParland, who is empowered to name such [illegible], conscious of the [illegible] of such power, fought [illegible], explaining his position as follows:

"I agree with those who say that this power should not reside in the hands of the President. It is an [illegible] of things in any form of procedure that [illegible] from Caesar to Caesar. The President of the I. T. U. is a member of the Executive Council; the Executive Council renders decisions, most of which are unanimous.

"To my mind it is a travesty on justice to vest one of these men with the power of appointing a committee that shall sit upon the legality of their decisions. Reference has been made to the fact that former Presidents have enjoyed this privilege—if it is a privilege—and that it should not be withheld from me. Do not allow yourselves to be swayed by any such argument. The principle of the thing is wrong; regardless of how many years it has existed. It ought to be wiped out."

Lynch Bats for Precedents

James M. Lynch, spokesman for the conservatives, contended that to pass such a motion would destroy an old established precedent, and fought in favor of President McParland appointing such a committee, willingly yielding power unto his most bitter enemy, rather than destroy an old established precedent.

It is the tenacious retention of the "old established" that adds strength to the A. F. of L. leadership. But Lynch had a second motive. He is aspiring to that leadership and hopes himself, some day, to wield that power which he is only lending his foe.

Mr. James M. Lynch held the [illegible] Governor Martin Glynn.

With Glynn's exit from political power, Lynch likewise fell and immediately the politician began to aspire to the position of president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Lynch's Hat in the Ring

Failing in that, he embarked upon a business career which proved disastrous and is now seeking to assume his former duties of a labor politician. His hat is in the ring for the Presidency of the I. T. U. on the reactionary ticket. Notwithstanding the fact that the honorable brother has not been a brother since 1914, at the time when he received a ten thousand dollar gift from the I. T. U. Convention in Providence, R. I., ostensibly for faithful service rendered to the union, but in reality for rather uncertain purposes connected with finances for the Union Printers' Home, Mr. Lynch now makes an open bid for the Presidency of the I. T. U. by becoming the leading spirit of the reactionary machine.

The Convention delegation, composed of two factions, reactionary and progressive, held preliminary sessions off the Convention floor. The progressives held open forums in which the progressive delegates participated, whereas the reactionary faction met in secret. That faction has a secret oath-bound organization with a ritual and this organization is very powerful and most effective. This secret klux-klan forms a strong link in the machine chain which is directly linked up with capitalist interests to the detriment of labor, so graphically brought in evidence in the betrayal of the railroad shopmen's strike.

Fears for Capitalist State

The proceedings on the convention floor as I viewed them appeared me- [illegible]

A member of the Socialist Labor Party, in pointing out the abuses of secret bound organizations, took occasion to denounce in general terms the evils of secrecy. He pointed out that great danger lurked in all secret undertakings and underground organization and that secrecy was threatening to American institutions and was likely to destroy the American state itself.

The progressive group is not a homogeneous one. It is composed of all shades of opinion and no opinion at all. In the main it is a protest against machine politics and corruption, but it is in that group where real educational work could be made to bring telling results. This group is searching, groping for expression and clarification. This is also the trend among the general membership. The $13,000,000 spent by the A. F. of L. in its fight against the "open shop" and the persistent onslaught of the union smashing campaign are clarifying factors, giving momentum to the political swing toward an independent labor party. The Convention went on record favoring an independent labor party.

Morrison Favors Amalgamation

The A. F. of L. is rewriting some of its history. Conscious of the sentiment favoring amalgamation, Secretary Frank Morrison announced from the platform of the Convention that the A. F. of L. FAVORS amalgamation of international unions, altho the A. F. of L. "has not the power to mandate or instruct" its affiliated bodies to amalgamate. Morrison represents one of the most radical locals in the union. Had he taken any other position it would have been at the risk of being dethroned.

So close upon the heels of the [illegible] of the A. F. of L. [illegible] Woll, Second Vice [illegible] of the A. F. of L. [illegible] opposed to amalgamation and [illegible] in direct conflict with the [illegible] announced by the Secretary. [illegible] characteristic of the A. F. of L. policy is the behavior of these gentlemen. Talk radical and act reactionary. The lesser official [illegible] while the higher official now being groomed for the presidency of the A. F. of L. sways the action.

A resolution of amalgamation adopted last year at the Conven at Quebec, but the executives sa it that it remain a paper resolut

Trot Out Red Scare

A second attempt was made year, another resolution, one teeth in it, was submitted to the C vention and was defeated. This feat was in no small measure due the fact that the sponsor of it, M. Wicks is charged by the officialdom with being a notorious red a working class criminal record, has been many times arrested criminal anarchy charges against government. Much is also made the charge that he is a direct representative of the Communist International.

The A. F. of L. has two migh supports at its disposal. It can invoke the spirit of 100 per Americanism and conjure up fear the reds. In the open caucus, Charles Rouse, President of the N York local, introduced three of supporters and asked the privilege of the floor for them so that they each could testify to their American loyalty and patriotism and so publicly and emphatically deny the charge th the "vacationist" movement of the printers was led by Bolsheviks.

In order to defeat any measure, or discredit any individual, the officialdom resort to the cry of "reds" and at the present time are getting away with it. Is a new approach on the part of militants necessary? That is the sign post of the I. T. U. Convention.

Radek Shows New War Is Menacing Europe

tral and Eastern Europe as a result of this policy, but also for another reason which the leaders of the victorious capitalist nations do not seem to have understood, in spite of all the economic sermons they have been so good to deliver to us, to the effect that the world forms a single economic unit.

Plundered Germany Cannot Buy

Germany was one of the greatest export markets of England and the United States, which are now compelled to look on how a plundered Germany can no longer buy their products. Lloyd George realized this even before the Treaty of Versailles was signed.

In a memorandum which ex-Prime Minister Nitti, has published in his book Peaceless Europe, we warned the Allies of the baleful results which would follow the burdening of Germany with an absurdly enormous debt.

But in spite of the fact that he realized that the Treaty of Versailles would plunge capitalism into chaos, he nevertheless signed the treaty and has not yet found the courage to demand its revision.

Ruined Man Bad Customer

His defense of Germany has always been within the limits of the treaty. This proves not only imbecility on his part, but also that the conflicts within the Entente have blinded him to the ABC of capitalism, namely that a ruined man is a bad customer.

Lloyd George has been fighting France for many years already. Were we to adopt the tone in which the English official press comments on the French policy, we would bring down upon ourselves severe notes of protest. And this fight has gone beyond mere word-conflicts; the cannon's voice is also heard.

The so-called Turko-Greek war is nothing else than an Anglo-French war. The English Government is openly furnishing the Greeks with arms and money, and accuses France of doing the same with the Angora Republic.

But England cannot afford an open break with France, even if the break should not bring about an immediate war on a world scale.

America's position towards France and England is not yet clearly defined.

America supports on the one hand, England's policy towards Germany, and on the other hand, France's policy towards Russia.

The simple fact that in Washington, America did not support England's declaration against the use of submarines in warfare, proves that America has not definitely given up its anti-English policy, and is willing to play up France against England. An old English publicist wrote recently in the Fortnightly Review that Napoleon had never brought about such a military hegemony on the Continent as did the Bloc National.

Tool of English Imperialism

Against Napoleon, England found allies in Russia and Germany. The simple German believed he was fighting for the liberation of his fatherland, when he was actually playing the game of English imperialism against French imperialism.

Today, England herself has destroyed Germany's military power and could not use it as a weapon against France, even if it should now be needed. Imprisoned in the iron circle of French, Polish and Czecho Slovakian armies, Germany, even if she be allowed to make open preparations for war, could never fight France, except with the support of Russia.

But England, hopelessly entangled in the contradiction of her European and her Asiatic policies, thought it in her interest to keep Russia a weak power. She feared that she might meet in a strong Russia an enemy to her robber policy, against the interests and the life of the Mohammedan people.

England's plans were not fully successful, for Russia was not so naive as to believe, like the Germans, that no other motive than the re-establishment of peace actuated England, and was unwilling to become the tool of England.

Ask, "What Next?"

Russia's attitude towards the world crisis is that of an independent great power, concerned primarily with its own interests, which are also the interests of the international working class.

The dissolution of the Entente places England, France and Germany before this question: what next? France may proceed with the occupation of the Ruhr without the support of England. Germany, disappointed in its expectation of English support, may sell out to France and save herself from dismemberment, by agreeing to combine the Ruhr coal with the Alsacian and French ores.

This idea is not so new among the German industrials. They expect in this way to save their mining industry, and hope that their talent for organization may give them a decisive influence on French industries. In any case, the possession of the Ruhr valley would give to France an unparalleled industrial position among the victorious countries of Europe.

The ripening changes in the European politics have a deep, practical interest for Soviet Russia.

France's advance upon the Ruhr, and the participation of Poland in an attack upon Germany would bring a change in the European situation equally important to that resulting from a Franco-German agreement. France would become the greatest economic power in Europe, and constitute an even greater danger to its imperialistic enemies than it does today; it would then become a power disposing of immense economic resources.

The coming events in Central Europe require from Russia a clear and calm estimate of the possible consequences, and combinations of power that may follow.

Russia On Guard

We must remain on our guard on the military field. We have proposed to our neighbors a restriction of armaments, only to receive from Poland the ridiculous answer that this was a task for the League of Nations.

The Baltic nations are protracting the negotiations under various excuses.

The agreement reached before Genoa for a temporary armistice is coming to an end. We have no idea of the intentions of our neighbors.

Citizen Marshall Pilsudski invited Comrade Litvinow to a friendly talk, but this meeting was a pure sham to calm Polish public opinion.

But even if we accept the friendly tendencies of our western neighbors, we must not forget, first that they are dependent upon London and Paris; secondly that Soviet Russia is an Asiatic as well as a European power.

Asia is affected by the decision on the Rhine question. Our army must remain war-ready whether partially demobilized or not. And not only the army, but all Russia be prepared for all events.

The question of crops and industrial work is not only one of stomach, but also a question of the maintenance of the Republic and its international position.

Madness Again in Europe

It is possible that madness may again take hold of Europe. Woe to him who falls unprepared into the hands of the mad ones!

We must call the attention of the masses to the international situation so that we may be ready politically for any eventuality.

It is also possible that a compromise may again be reached, but the compromise will be rotten to the core, and will not endure. A new storm menaces Europe. It is quite possible that it is not preachers' sermons and diplomatic notes only that will play a role in the attempt to kill the Treaty of Versailles.

A whole period of diplomatic attempts to settle the question of the Treaty is behind us.

All these attempts, Washington and Genoa as well as the Hague, have proved to be fiascos of bourgeois pacifism. It is quite possible that the capitalist rulers of Europe may look to cavalry, infantry and artillery rather than to Adam Smith for a solution of the problem.

We must make sure that we can answer this sort of argumentation too.

Debs Pledges Support to Foster in Fight Against Oppressors

(BY FEDERATED PRESS)

CHICAGO.—From a sanitarium, where he is striving to regain strength, Eugene V. Debs pledges support to Wm. Z. Foster in the work of the Trade Union Educational League. Writing to Foster with regard to the Colorado kidnapping, Debs says:

"If I were not confined to a sanitarium under treatment I would at once be with you and tender my services in any way in my power.

"The miserable wretches in Colorado and Wyoming, especially the capitalist hireling who masquerades as the governor of the former state, who so brutally manhandled you in the name of law and order, have sown dragon's teeth from which will spring in due time the warriors of the revolution who will sweep the corrupt system of which they are the servile lackeys from the face of the earth.

"You are to be congratulated, after all, upon the infamous outrages perpetrated upon you in the name of capitalist law and justice, for in these outrages, committed by their liveried hirelings, is revealed the fear of their thieving and brutal masters, and this is the highest compliment they could possibly pay you.

"They know you cannot be bought, bribed or bullied and so they set their dogs at your heels to drive you off their reservation.

"I need not sympathize with you nor bid you be strong, for you have the strength to stand and withstand, and you need no sympathy, and all I have to say is that when I have recovered my strength sufficiently to take up my work again, I shall be with you shoulder to shoulder in your stand for the working class and industrial freedom."

LECTURE ON MEXICO

Comrade Rafael Mallen, who is considered the best authority on the Mexican Labor Movement, will deliver a lecture on the Labor Laws in Mexico.

The lecture will be held under the auspices of the New York branch of the Society for Technical Aid to Soviet Russia at the new headquarters, 231 E. 37th St., New York City, Thursday, Sept. 28, 8 p. m.

Carney Gets New Trial

CHICAGO.—New trial has been granted Jack Carney, editor, Voice of Labor, on federal charges brought when he edited Truth in Duluth. He was arrested in 1919, charged with attempting to dissuade soldiers to go to Russia. Conviction in federal district court has been thrown out by the circuit court of appeals, Carney announces.

10-Day Drive for Defense

By NERMA BERMAN

Secretary, New York Division, National Defense Committee

The New York Division of the National Defense Committee will hold a ten-day drive, beginning Oct. 5th and ending Oct. 15th, to raise funds for defense and relief for the comrades arrested recently in connection with the Michigan and Illinois raids, as well as our old New York cases.

The drive will close with a house-to-house collection on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 14th and 15th respectively—the proceeds of which will go solely for the Michigan cases.

Arrangements are in progress to have headquarters in every section of the city where comrades and friends may call for boxes all thru the drive. The boxes may be used during the week for collection in the shops, offices or meeting places where workers congregate. They have to be turned in on Friday night or Saturday, in exchange for new ones for the house-to-house collection.

Friends and comrades, hundreds of thousands of dollars are needed for bail, tens of thousands of dollars are needed for the defense of the men and women in jails thruout the country. Your help is needed more than ever at this time. Will you distribute lists, stamps, pledge-cards and boxes for the drive? Remember, the ten days from Oct. 5th to 15th are DEFENSE DAYS, and all other activities must be put aside, and no union, fraternal organization, social club should be left unvisited.

If you are a comrade or a friend it is your duty to help.

For material and information get in touch with The National Defense Committee, New York Division, Room 405, 80 E. 11th St.

Tottering Greek Regime Jails Communists and Labor Union Officials

(Special to The Worker)

PIRAEUS, Greece.—Following quickly upon the arrest and imprisonment of Comrade Petsopoulos, accused of high treason, the entire executive committee of the Communist Party and of the General Confederation of Labor has been thrown into prison.

One of the absurd features about the arrests is that the government based its attack on the publication of certain articles in the Communist newspaper "Risospastis" on the war situation, articles that had been passed by the censor.

Following the arrests meetings were immediately called by the Confederation of Electrical Workers and the Seamen's Union to discuss steps to be taken to secure the release of the prisoners.

In a proclamation issued by the General Confederation of Labor it is declared that the Greek Government is seeking to destroy the Communist Party and the labor unions so that it will have complete freedom to put into effect the war program of the imperialist class, which program is ruining the people.

TEN WORKERS SHOULD READ THIS COPY OF THE WORKER; KEEP IT IN CIRCULATION

"Backward" Labor Leaders

By JEANETTE GERSHANICK

"I am glad we are going backward. For a quarter of a century we did business with the railroad executives—I know them all—across the table and this is the only way peace can be maintained and results achieved. We can settle our affairs without any meddling by politicians. A decade ago, when no outside machinery existed that could gum up negotiations and becloud issues, we used to fight across the table, but at night when they were over, we'd go out to dinner together. We are getting back to that now."

No better indictment of the labor leaders of this country could have been drawn up than this statement of W. G. Lee, of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. With what joy he welcomes back the days of the past, the days "when I was a boy, we used to—"! Could there be a more obvious misunderstanding of labor conditions than this belief that now labor is again on its way to peace?

While the wheels of progress are moving and the workers are beginning to awaken, the gentlemen, Gompers, Lee, Johnston, etc., are happy to return to the good old days when a small matter such as the lives and welfare of the workers were not allowed to mar the festivities of wining and dining.

It is high time that the workers of America began to analyze the condition of their movement. For a number of years in the 19th century they waxed far ahead of the labor movements of other countries. Then came a period of poor manoevres. They were betrayed and misled. Their radical leaders left them to go out and build new and utopian organizations. The leaders who developed in these forsaken unions rose to power and in due time left thier flocks behind while they entered the political arena or some comfortable economic niche.

There is the story of William B. Wilson, "from miner to secretary of labor; John Hylan, the conductor who became the mayor of America's metropolis; Gompers, the cigar maker who became the hobnobber of capital in the Civic Federation, and at the numerous banquets in Washington, when the workers would be called upon to contribute to the nation's welfare."

There are Mitchell of the Miners and Davis who became secretary of Labor. All these gentlemen continue to claim support of organized labor on the strength of their past economic status.

In looking back ward for guidance in their new problems, they show that they do not understand the new problems they are facing. Their ideas belong to the last century. These men are traitors who presume to be leaders of labor in 1922.

It is this point of view and their support of capitalism which determined their reply to the demand for a general strike. It was relatively easy for these "yellows" to hand labor over to the government during the war. They could shout "patriotism" and get away with it on that score.

But to state now that the general strike is "unpatriotic" and "un-American" is sheer dishonesty. The Executive Council of the A. F. of L. by doing so shows its colors once more. It proves that it is bankrupt so far as modern labor tactics in the United States are concerned. To declare that the Executive Council is powerless to call a general strike is a black lie. Have the Johnstons and Gompers only the power to hand labor over to the government and receive it back as vassals? Are they powerless when it comes to asserting labor's right?

Workers, you must discover the answer for yourselves. You must scrutinize the actions of your "keepers", your leaders, a little more closely. If you have become their vassals, their pawns, awake, and throw off these chains for that is the first step to throwing off the yoke of capitalism.

Let us continue in our demands for a general strike when that weapon should be invoked. Let us continue in our demands upon the old unions. Let us transform them from the [illegible] craft unions into modern industrial organizations. Let us take [illegible] from the [illegible] unions that [illegible] to the [illegible] tion, and [illegible] labor [illegible] Times sit up and [illegible]

[illegible] Urged to Help Miners Here

Editor's Note:—"No lack of coal" is the announcement of the New York City subways. Six shiploads in the harbor and more coming, they proclaim. This coal is British coal, mined by British union miners, members of the same World Federation of Miners with which the United Mine Workers of America is affiliated.

We have already published the appeal of the Red International of Labor Unions to the Miners' Federation, urging aid of the American mine strike. This appeal failed.

We then have the Executive Committee of the Communist International issuing an appeal direct "To the Workers of Great Britain," urging them not to mine and transport blackleg coal to the United States. This appeal, dated August 19th, has just been received and may well be considered in preparing for the next American coal strike. It is as follows:

Workers of Great Britain!

Show your solidarity with the workers of America!

The bitter struggle between the coal miners and the coal barons of America has now been raging for four and a half months. Over 600,000 workers, without distinction of race or language, have been resisting for months all the assaults of the American money kings.

Armies of strike-breakers have been called into service; military units have been mobilized in fifteen states; and a multitude of provocateurs have been set in motion. But all this has failed to break the solidarity of the miners or to force them back to slaves' working conditions.

Their heroic resistance has begun to bear fruit. The coal reserves which the capitalists had piled up for the struggle have given out. American industry is beginning to gasp for breath, and the American exploiters are faced with a great defeat.

The British capitalists know very well that the defeat of the American coal barons will signify their own defeat as well, and the strengthening of British labor. They have immediately realized their class interests, and they are hurrying to the aid of the hard-pressed mine owners of America. They are loading whole fleets with coal and sending them to the United States. Every cargo of coal which enters the harbors of North America during the strike strengthens the forces of the capitalists and robs the fighting workers of the successes which they have so far gained in the struggle.

There is danger that the struggle which our proletarian brothers have been carrying on with such unexampled endurance will be defeated by the international solidarity of the capitalists!

This danger must be met by the international solidarity of the workers!

The International Congress of the coal miners which met in Frankfort should have brought about this solidarity. But it remained true to the spirit animating the Amsterdam Trade Union International, and it did not dare to apply the only effective means, namely, the tying-up of the coal export to America. Thus, the Amsterdammers have shown once again, that they do not want to fight the capitalist class in earnest. They have left the American strikers in the lurch.

This desertion has weakened the fighting front of the American miners. Unless the British workers step into the breach by resolute action they will be partly responsible for their defeat.

It is your turn! You must understand that every shipment of coal leaving for America is a stab in the back of the workers struggling there! You must realize that you are performing strike-breaking service, and supporting the capitalist oppressors, if you do not put a stop to the loading and shipment of coal for America!

The defeat of the American workers will react upon you. The reduction of wages in America will prompt the British coal capitalists to launch another attack upon your wage standards with the cry that they cannot compete with cheap American coal.

But if you show your solidarity now, if you meet the united front of Capital with the united front of Labor you will increase the fighting power of the American miners and help them on to victory. And you will also share the fruits of the victory with our American fellow workers.

Therefore we call upon you:

Hasten to the aid of the American strikers!

Refuse to perform strike-breaking service for the capitalists!

Load no blackleg coal for America!

Long live the solidarity of the British and American workers!

The Executive Committee of the Communist International.

Moscow, August 19th, 1922.

[illegible] Power

By C. E. RUTHENBERG

The National Convention of the party, which was to have been held in Chicago August [illegible], will be held in New York City beginning Dec. [illegible]

The immediate reason for the postponement of the convention, was, as you know, the arrest of the executive secretary, a number of District Organizers and other active party workers as part of the campaign of terrorism which the capitalists are waging against the workers in connection with the great strike battles which have shaken the country during recent months.

The first decision was to postpone the National Convention for two weeks, in the hope that those suffering under the persecution of the ruling class could be quickly released and take their places in the ranks of the party.

The party, however, finds itself face to face with this situation:

During the next month or two we must mobilize all our forces for defense work. We must raise tens of thousands of dollars for bail so that all our comrades can be freed and carry on their party work during the period in which their cases are pending. We must raise thousands of dollars for the expenses of the defense.

Only six weeks remain before the November elections. We must nominate candidates and carry on campaigns wherever possible, so as to establish our party as a political force.

This work will require all the energies of our organization. A convention in the midst of such a period in which all the energies of the party are required for the tasks before it, would distract attention from this work and absorb the time of comrades whose efforts must be given to carrying thru this work successfully.

There is also the great political reason for postponement, that by December the present great industrial struggle will be over, the lessons of this struggle will be clear and we will be able to base our new policies upon the developments which this struggle has brought to the American labor movement.

The period from now until December will be a period of preparation. The convention must and will be a greater demonstration of the strength of our party.

Let us take up the immediate tasks of the party with enthusiasm and courage. Let us build more strongly than ever during the coming months, and make the December convention a demonstration of the power of our movement.

The Fight Is Still On!

EDITOR'S NOTE:—In conjunction with the extracts from the speech of Gregory Zinoviev, chairman of the Communist International, on the internal policies of the Russian Communist Party, we publish the resolution on this question adopted by the All-Russian Communist Party Congress. It is as follows:

The resolution reports, after a year of the new economic policy, the differences existing in the ranks of the enemies of the Soviet Republic:

"The Cadet Party has divided into a right and a left, and has formed two centres abroad. The tendency of the Smena Vekh is manifested in certain bourgeois circles; the Church is divided and the divisions have had incalculable consequences; the Mensheviki are divided into groups and sub-groups; the left S.R.'s have split into two groups and an extreme right has been formed by Kerenski, Minor, Bounakov; among the Mensheviki, the Zaria group has been formed abroad, a non-partisan Social Democratic group has been formed in Russia and a left formation can be observed. The student circles in Russia and in emigration are divided; even the old white generals cannot agree among themselves. These are a few of the symptoms of the weakening of our enemies."

But on the other hand a year of the new economic policy has revealed to us new dangers. The anti-Soviet parties are taking advantage of their legality and are attempting to penetrate into the Soviets, in the hope of transforming them little by little into democratic bourgeois institutions. These parties draw their recruits not only from the old intellectual and bourgeois circles, but also from the new bourgeoisie.

The first year of the new economic policy coinciding with the famine, the strengthening of the world reaction, and the demands for capitalist restoration presented to Russia at the Hague and at Genoa by the Entente, encouraged the work of the counter-revolutionaries. In 1921, the intrigues of the All-Russian Famine Relief Committee (Formed of notables from the old regime) were the commencement of the counter revolutionary campaign by the so-called non-partisan intellectual circles. At the Pan-Russian Medical Conference, at the agricultural and rural cooperative conferences, the same elements manifested their counter-revolutionary spirit.

At the introduction of the new economic policy, the Mensheviki and S. R.s hoped for an evolution from Communism to bourgeois democracy and for a coalition policy. They were disappointed. Furthermore, the leaders of these parties display an unexampled stubbornness, and criticize the policy of the Communist Party from the point of view of the October Revolution, representing themselves as the sole defenders of the demands formulated by the working masses at the outbreak of the revolution. But the years of revolution have given the mass of workers too realist an education for them to have any success by these methods. We can only find here a justified tribute to the power of our slogans. In proportion as the principles of the October Revolution are practically realized, the workers see more and more the treason of the Mensheviki and the S. R.s.

But these parties try to take every advantage of all possibilities offered them by legality. The congresses of any kind of organization give them the opportunity to act.

AUTUMN DANCE

Tickets on sale at Local Office, Workers Party, 208 E. 12th St., and at National Office, Workers Party, Room 405, 799 Broadway.

The anti-Soviet parties are exploiting the co-operatives, to whose resurrection and economic strengthening, the C.P. should pay the greatest attention. But the C.P. is bound to admit that the co-operatives may become one of the bases of counter revolution. At the All-Russian conference of rural co-operatives, two tendencies disputed for the majority, the constitutional monarchists and the S.-R.'s. Recently an analogous situation revealed itself in the Artisans' Co-operative.

The anti-Soviet elements are attempting to use the higher educational institutions as tribunes for counter revolutionary propaganda.

They are attempting to penetrate into the Soviets and the executive committees of the rural Soviets.

The tendency of the Smena Vekh, positive inasmuch as it consists of intellectuals accepting the revolution, embraces bourgeois restoration elements who think that political concessions will follow the economic concessions, and that we will thus return to bourgeois democracy.

Revolution Still in Danger

The preceding assigns to the Russian Communist Party the following tasks:

The workers and peasants must be reminded that the revolution is still in danger; that international and the anti-Soviet elements in Russia are holding themselves ready, and that these elements wish to overthrow the Soviet Power.

The Party must devote its attention to those institutions where the counter-revolutionary forces have been most active in the course of the last few months, cooperative institutions, the trade unions (principally those whose composition is not purely proletarian) education, the youth education movement, libraries, etc.

The Party must encourage the differentiation in the anti-Soviet ranks, and facilitate the evolution of those who desire to participate in the economic rebirth of Workers' and Peasants' Russia. As for those non-party elements who are a feature of the social transformation, they should be systematically supported. The Party should improve and intensify its educational work. It must oppose bourgeois influence by an intensified propaganda, especially in the country. It must develop its scientific work of the Communist concepts (Socialist Academy, Communist Universities, conquest of University chairs etc.), it must give due attention to journalism.

On the other hand the Soviet Power must not renounce its repressive measures with regard to the Mensheviki, the S. R.s and the "non-partisan" bourgeois democracy.

Militant Voice from "The Tombs" Tells of Labor Fight in Courts

Joseph Zack, arrested in New York City, and held for extradition to Michigan, as a result of the nation-wide persecution of militant workers following the Michigan "red raids," has written the accompanying letter to the readers of THE WORKER:

State Jail, The Tombs,
New York City, Sept. 13, 1922.

Dear Comrades:—To-day it is a week since I came into this cage. No sunshine gets into the cell except second hand. The air is putrid. The stench produced by about 500 people has not a sufficient escape.

Wednesday they let us out into the court yard of the prison. What a difference! The sun was shining bright and altho the chimneys of the manufacturing buildings all around spout all their dirty fumes produced by the worst of coal over the place, yet it was a relief.

See Sunshine Once Each Week

The yard is surrounded by high walls, with doors bolted with a bunch of steel bars and locks, and every fifteen yards there is a cop. They let us out once a week, so I am in this cage for six days again, with no sunshine but putrid air.

I made a checker board to kill time. But my partner in the cage is a typical bonehead of the Yankee variety, who was charged with grand larceny. So he loses even if I give him four stones ahead. Hence he does not like to play and the game is uninteresting.

I lost seven pounds in weight, of which I am glad. Hope it stops after two more weeks and I hope I'll have some hair left when I come out as I don't want to die a bachelor.

Those with experience around here say that Sing Sing is a great place compared with this dump. The other day "Brother-in-Christ" Geegan of the Bomb Squad, together with some higher illustrious luminaries of the local and federal inquisition—what hypocrisy to call that a department of justice!—came to speak to me in private.

They proposed a bargain to me according to which I could save my skin and be rewarded if I accepted. Then things would become sweet and sugary for me the rest of my life.

I refused to be closeted with them or talk to them about treason to my cause, so they assured me that penitentiary and deportation are the things I'll get and they'll see to it that I do.

Indeed they were very nasty yesterday in court, after having adjourned the case three times to gain time, they wanted a fourth adjournment. My lawyer, Joseph Brodsky, put our case well by saying:

"The gentlemen from the police read a story in the newspapers about a meeting of radicals in Michigan. This meeting was raided. Immediately they arrested every leader of reputation of the radical labor movement under suspicion that he was there, altho they know that nothing was done or accomplished at that meeting, hence nothing illegal could have been committed. But they picked up them then and kept them in the dump."

Brodsky demanded a dismissal. The judge said that even if he would dismiss the case I would be immediately re-arrested before I left the building. Brodsky said he wants it done in order to show the "people" what "justice" means in the case of labor men.

In order to give the District Attorney time to dismiss his no account case, the judge delayed action for several hours; then they went thru the procedure of re-arresting me in court and drawing up a new complant, that is, the same complaint with a new title.

The judge allowed one week's time to get their case in shape against me. Next Thursday I am to appear again. Brodsky says he will try to get me out on a Habeas Corpus. I personally believe the Government has a hard case even on the Michigan group as no actual overt illegal act was committed. A mere meeting of radicals to organize, at which not even a program or resolution was adopted, is not sufficient to convict them. As to me having been arrested without evidence or cause on the streets of New York, they have no case at all. I believe the committee ought to hasten the trial instead of prolonging this situation by tying up things.

I tried to get some books and they referred me to the priest; can't bring any in from outside, only clothes. The movement is dearer than ever to me now that I am personally and physically suffering for it.

Long Live the Militant Party!

Joseph Zack.

[illegible]

[illegible] Organized labor will solidify its ranks and refuse to be defeated.

This fighting spirit must be encouraged. It must be educated. It must be trained. It must be moulded so that its energies are not lost, but directed in a manner which will win.

The workers have no time, money or energy to waste in this struggle which the bosses have forced upon them. They must conserve their forces, their strength and use their class war weapons with intelligence.

The attacks of the bosses will continue. They will forge new weapons against the workers. New forms of governmental oppression, threats and intimidation will be launched against us.

Every available power of the capitalist government which is the tool of the capitalist class, will be set in motion against the workers. The class war will continue with unabated fury.

Union smashing, the use of injunctions, soldiers, gun-men and the selling out of the workers by their reactionary union officials will continue.

We, the workers, must form a solid unit against these attacks. We must organize TO FIGHT. We must organize in unions which WILL WIN. And, above all, we must establish a WORKERS' PRESS which will combat the lies of the capitalists' press; which will tell the truth to the workers about this struggle and which will teach them the methods and the means of WINNING the battle for life and power.

"THE WORKER" is determined to fulfill its mission as a weapon in this class war. It has fought and will continue to fight for the workers in every struggle in which they engage. THE WORKERS ARE ALWAYS RIGHT, is our motto. The workers are always right BECAUSE WAGE-SLAVERY AND EXPLOITATION ARE ALWAYS WRONG—against the workers' interests. With that ringing slogan we enter every political and economic struggle in which the workers engage.

We call upon every WORKER reader to stand by us in this, our common fight. We call upon you to give your concrete assistance in this common struggle. YOU can help our work of organization, education and agitation.

You can get WORKER subscriptions among your fellow workers. Our campaign for 25,000 new readers has brought many thousands of worker readers.

Thousands more will become readers too, if you will go after them. Success in the workers' struggles depends upon accomplishing concrete tasks: YOU CAN HELP BEST BY GETTING SUBSCRIPTIONS.

Ratification Meeting, Workers Party, Park View Palace, Sept. 29

The campaign of the Workers Party is on in full swing. In every section of New York thousands of workers are listening to party speakers presenting the issues of the campaign. These issues are such that all workers can rally around them and form one solid united front of Labor against the Capitalists.

To fight the open-shop campaign, to prevent the destruction of the unions, to stop the government from interfering in strikes, and to recognize Soviet Russia are the issues of the great masses of toilers as well as of the Workers Party.

A great Ratification Meeting where all these issues will be explained by the candidates of the Workers Party will be held Friday evening September 29th at Park View Palace, 110th St. and 5th Ave. The speakers will be: William F. Dunne, Labor Editor of The Worker, candidate for Governor; Ludwig Lore, Editor of the N. Y. Volks-Zeitung, candidate for Lieutenant Governor; Alexander Trachtenberg, candidate for United States Senator; and J. Louis Engdahl, candidate for Congress.

EVEN THE POOREST HELP

MEXICO CITY.—Over 100 pesos ($50) was collected for Russian relief thru a dance held by the Communist party and the Young Communists of Mexico City. Several hundred of the city's poorest people gathered in the dilapidated old convent which the tenants' union recently entered and appropriated as its general headquarters and as a shelter for its members who have been evicted for nonpayment of rent. The dance was held in what used to be the chapel of the convent. In place of the former altar are large red banners and a huge portrait of Karl Marx. The chapel was decorated with red streamers and paper flowers.

Worcester, Mass., Shows Way to Build Bigger Party

One of the outstanding circumstances of the present campaign of The Worker for 25,000 new readers is the action taken by Local Worcester, Mass.

A letter received a few days ago from Comrade H. S. Bloomfield, Local Organizer, opens with the following enthusiasm producing paragraph: "I am sending you enclosed a check for $35. This is to cover the list of 70 names of Worker subscribers attached."

Comrade Bloomfield then goes on to say that the local comrades are determined to see that The Worker reaches the hands of Worcester workers. As one means of accomplishing this $35 was contributed toward sending the paper to these 70 names.

The local has outlined a complete plan for work calculated to bring all Worker readers in closer touch with the Workers Party and eventually into its membership.

An organizer will visit every Worker subscriber armed with books, pamphlets, membership application cards and an urgent invitation to join the Party. Renewal subscriptions will be taken at the same time.

The idea that arises to our mind is this: If Local Worcester can do this then every Local can also do it. Local Worcester is doing it and accomplishing results. Your Local can do as much. We recommend this plan to all District Organizers and Locals. Intensive organization work of this character is what builds the Party. Put your Local behind a plan of this kind and build the Workers Party.

MOSCOW.—The All-Russian Central Union of Cooperative Societies has commenced distribution of its products throut Europe. Preference is given to cooperative societies of other countries, any surplus they cannot handle being sold to private firms. The society has opened an exhibit at the Konigsberg (Germany) fair.

[illegible] in Washington Election

SEATTLE.—Advocates of independent working class political action in this state are pointing out the plight of nonpartisan political policy advocates as a proof of the weakness of the A. F. of L. official policies.

One week before the primary election William Short, president of the State Federation of Labor, broke with the Conference for Progressive Political Action, and urged the nomination of George Lamping, a local politician, for U. S. senator. The C. P. P. A. had previously indorsed Mrs. Frances C. Axtell of Bellingham, a club woman of indefinite progressive ideas. Both Lamping and Mrs. Axtell ran in the Republican primaries.

Farmer-Labor party forces saw confirmation of their views in the results which showed Senator Miles Poindexter renominated despite progressive opposition. They centered their forces before the primaries in supporting their own candidates on the independent ticket. James A. Duncan, secretary, Central Labor council, was nominated and will oppose Poindexter and G. C. Dill, a Democrat, in the finals.

Great Celebration of Fifth Anniversary of Russian Federated Soviet Republic

The Italian Branches of the Workers Party, New York District, are arranging a monster labor celebration of the greatest revolutionary event in all the history of the world: The Fifth Anniversary of the Triumph of the Russian Revolution, for Friday, Nov. 3, at 7.30 P. M., in Arlington Hall, 23 St. Marks Place.

Various prominent speakers of international reputation will address the workers about the historic event in various languages.

The proceeds of the evening will go to the support of "Alba Nuova," the Italian official organ of the Workers Party.

A one-act play appropriate for the occasion will follow and opera selections will be rendered by real artists.

Social dancing and revolutionary songs will close the celebration.

New York comrades of all the languages groups are requested to co-operate with the Italian comrades in selling tickets, attending and do everything possible to make it a success. General admission 50 cents.

Tickets may be obtained at the Workers Party General Office, 799 Broadway, Room 405.

Those wishing to help may report at any time until 7 P. M. at the above place.

Second World Convention Communist Ido Federation

The convention was held in Dessau, Germany. The K. I. F. I. (Komunista Ido-Federuro Internaciona) was organized last year in Vienna, Austria at the international convention of the Emancipanta Stelo (Revolutionary Idists).

K. I. F. I. has now sections in Germany, Czecho Slovakia, Russia, France, Austria, Luxembourg, Bulgaria, Switzerland and Mexico. Eight countries had sent delegates, the others sent written reports.

The Workers' International Russian Relief Commission sent a representative, Comrade Milter, who delivered a public lecture in Ido about the relief by the workers to Russia.

The delegates stated that in every section of the Third International the movement for Ido recommended by the "Study Commission for the Adoption of an International Language in the Third International," is making great progress. The Communist Party and the Red Federation of Gymnastical Unions in Czecho-Slovakia and the Communist Party of Mexico have officially adopted Ido. Other parties are studying the problem.

The National Office of the American Section of the Emancipanta Stelo is 7616 Tioga St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

[illegible] Russia has [illegible] the United States that she is not in need of any [illegible] from this country, but that she will [illegible] into negotiations for the [illegible] of official relations between the [illegible]. Now it is Washington's move.

The Struggle for Constantinople

Soviet Russia has taken an active part in the war between the Turkish nationalists and the Greeks by challenging the allied occupation of Constantinople.

This challenge has taken the form of a strong note to the British High Commissioner in the Turkish capital, protesting against allied control of the city and straits "irrespective of and injurious to the rights of Turkey, Russia, the Ukraine and Georgia, who are vitally interested in free communication between the Black Sea and the Mediterranean."

The note went to the British, because it is the British who are the most eager supporters of the Greeks in their war against the Turks, it is the British who have the biggest stake in Constantinople, Soviet Russia's Southern outlet to the sea, and the half-way station on the Berlin-to-Bagdad Railroad, the high road from Central Europe to the East that threatens British interests in Asia.

Russia has always been and still is deeply interested in the disposition of Constantinople. But the policies of the czardom and those of Soviet Rule differ greatly. The czarists sought to capture Constantinople and subject the Turkish nation to their rule, whereas the new Russia stands for the self-determination of the Turkish peoples, just as they do for the peoples of all other nations.

It is probable that Soviet Russia's determination not to be bottled up in the Black Sea will result in Great Britain inviting her representatives to attend the approaching Near-East Conference to be held at Venice, Italy.

British imperialism is having plenty of holes shot thru it these days and not the least of its troubles is the stirring among the peoples of Egypt, aroused by the success of the Turks.

The great war is not yet over. The robber peace of Versailles did not settle it. It will not be settled until it is settled right, by the workers of Europe, in co-operation with those of the rest of the world, on the basis laid down by the Russian Revolution of "No annexations, no indemnities and the self-determination of all peoples."

Between 75,000 to 80,000 persons are killed annually by industrial and street accidents in the United States. This country lost only 56,000 killed, or dead from wounds or disease in the world war. Then they talk so much of a bonus for the ex-soldiers. Better get busy about a bonus for the soldiers of industry.

A 20th Century Heresy Trial

There have been great heresy trials in the church in the past. We are going to have another in the Episcopal Church of this country if the reactionaries succeed in their plans for driving the Right Rev. William Montgomery Brown, of Galion, Ohio, retired Bishop of Arkansas, out of the church. It is to take place in this the 20th Century.

To cover up the paralysis of their own brains, and as an effort to dodge a real trial, we find some of the Episcopal churchmen advancing the ridiculous claim, so often put forward against heretics, "that Bishop Brown is considered by many of the Bishops to be mentally unbalanced."

The main charge against Bishop Brown is that he wrote a book called "Communism and Christianism". It was expected that the Episcopal clergy would be opposed to it. But they have never refuted its declarations, although they have all been sent copies and asked to do so.

Bishop Brown's book carries on the front cover the statement, "Banish Gods from the Skies and Capitalists from the Earth". There are the crossed Soviet hammer and sickle with the rising sun as a background.

This book, that the Episcopal Church would place on the Index Expurgatorius, and no doubt condemn the writer to eternal damnation, is "Gratefully dedicated to the Proletariat from whom Bishop and Mrs. Brown are sprung, and to whose unrequited labors (not to the good providence of a divinity) they owe their wealth, leisure and opportunities."

We find on another page of this book that Bishop Brown had the temerity to give circulation to that quotation on religion by Karl Marx that includes the sentence, "Religion is the opium of the people."

The Episcopal Church charges against Bishop Brown declare that "we condemn and denounce said work 'Communism and Christianity', as not only unscriptural, and without warrant and justification, but contrary to the history and traditions of the Church and calculated to spread heresy among the unthinking and the ignorant and as also being inimical to good government and a patriotic love of country, for all of which the Church has ever stood."

The newspapers state that the "discussion of the case will be behind closed doors" which is in keeping with past heresy trials in the church.

It has been our pleasure to meet with and talk to both Bishop and Mrs. Brown. We have found them both to be most lovable. It was on the threshold of old age that Bishop Brown won a new youth by forsaking the capitalist teachings of the orthodox church and started out, with his wife as an earnest supporter and co-worker, "to make the world safe for Industrial Communism."

The only disturbance that this heresy trial will bring about is a fluctuation in the sale of the book under discussion. This will no doubt show a rapid upward trend.

It is reported that exercises were held Saturday, September 16, celebrating the 135th anniversary of the adoption of the United States Constitution. We didn't think it customary to celebrate birthday anniversaries after death. We urge a campaign compelling 100 per cent Americans to permit the constitution with its bill of rights, the Declaration of Independence and the sayings of Jefferson and Franklin to rest in peace. If anyone would celebrate let them scatter a few flowers over the graves of these dead American institutions and let it go at that. More than that is blasphemy.

[illegible] on the [illegible] of the Trade Union Educational League [illegible] on the League's National Conference, and the [illegible] score of labor's militants in Michigan.

This was shown in part by the resolutions [illegible] by the Minneapolis Trades and Labor Assembly and the Chicago Federation of Labor. These have already been published in full by The Worker.

The organized workers of Minneapolis, in addition to voting their sympathy, also provided $1,000 of the $10,000 bail that was raised to secure the release of William F. Dunne.

The motion to deposit the money towards Dunne's bail was made by Alderman I. G. Scott. It was supported by [illegible] Stevens, organizer for the assembly; J. O. Johnson, of the carpenters, also an organizer for the assembly; R. D. Cramer, editor of the Labor Review; R. S. Wiggin, assistant city attorney, and others.

"The interests that placed Dunne in jail knew his power," said Cramer. "That's why they want to keep him there."

Cramer's plea for the Scott motion was followed by that of Johnson, who said Dunne and Foster were two of the biggest men in the labor movement.

Minneapolis labor also arranged for the holding of a Tag Day, 50 per cent to go to the striking shopmen and 50 per cent to the men arrested in Michigan.

The fight against this latest attack on the labor movement will be carried to the country under the direction of the Emergency Labor Defense Committee, of which Robert M. Buck, editor of "The New Majority", official organ of the Chicago Federation of Labor, is the chairman.

It is the duty of every working man and woman in the country to get behind this committee and help it carry on its work.

The Burns-Daugherty-Wilkerson outfit must be put on the defensive in this struggle. Workers! Forward in the offensive against your oppressors!

Workers! You must fight for freedom!

The Benevolence of British Rule

The crushing defeat of the Greeks by the Turkish nationalists is a body blow for British imperialism in the Near East.

It is in this part of the world that the crucifying benevolence of British rule displays itself to good advantage, altho not much different than the brand exhibited everywhere else that the sun shines upon the earth.

The British cabinet in London has approved the policies of Sir Percy Cox, in Mesopotamia, where revolt is simmering among the mandated Mesopotamians, just as it boils in India, Ireland, Egypt and other nations oppressed in the name of the Versailles Peace, and making the world safe against Bolshevism.

Sir Cox declares he will use force if necessary to stuff the British brand of benevolence down the throats of the Mesopotamians.

Recently Sir Cox paid a visit to the British-made King Feisul. When the British High Commissioner was about to enter the Royal residence, an "extremist" shouted, "Down with the Mandate," to express his opposition to British domination.

Using this incident as a pretext, and declaring that he must uphold the majesty of the might of Britain, Sir Cox had arrested and removed from Bagdad, Ja'afar Abu Timman, the ex-Minister of Commerce, and a number of other nationalist statesmen. He suppressed "temporarily" the Moderate and Nationalist parties. He ordered two Bagdad newspapers, Mufid and Rafidan, shut down and their editors arrested. All this merely by way of "warning" as to what would happen to the entire population if they did not heed it.

British rule in Mesopotamia is merely repeating its oppressive tactics in every other part of the British Empire where the population refuses to bow to receive imperialism's yoke. But because this smouldering rebellion prevails in all sections of the British Empire, it is possible for the Turkish nationalists to snap their fingers in the face of the Versailles Peace and its mandates, and march on towards Constantinople.

The London Daily Herald notes that Great Britain has already spent $1,750,000,000 to bolster up the adventures of War Minister Churchill in Mesopotamia, the land of oil. All of this must be paid out of the pockets of the British workers. It is to be wondered how long they will stand for it. It is time that the workers in England were joining the peoples of the oppressed nationalities against their common enemy-British imperialism.

Separate agreements mean a divided working class.

When the Enemy Laughs

President Harding and his political claquers at Washington, not to mention the money masters in Wall Street, must be laughing uproariously at the antics of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor in its closing session at Atlantic City's luxurious Hotel Ambassador.

Organized labor's war council, thrusting aside the general strike it was called to consider, has decided on Sunday, October 1, for demonstrations demanding impeachment proceedings against Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty and Federal Judge J. H. Wilkerson, of Chicago.

Daugherty and Wilkerson will not be impeached, but even if they were, Harding and his political gangsters can smilingly reply, "We've got many more Daughertys and Wilkersons we can appoint to the same jobs."

The A. F. of L. executive council refused to consider the general strike, or any form of industrial action that would be a blow at the whole capitalist system, therefore effective action. Instead it urges ineffective Don Quixote assaults upon individuals, that only result in running labor up blind alleys, getting it nowhere.

The big exploiters were panic stricken by the terrific assaults this year of the textile workers, the miners, the railroad shopmen. They have been in deadly fear of the general strike demands pouring in for several months upon the headquarters of the A. F. of L. But threats of impeachment only leaves them splitting their sides with boisterous mirth.

Similarly these labor spokesmen took their stand on political action this year, against independent working-class effort, for rewarding and punishing individuals among the candidates of the two old parties. Gompers and his reactionists even turned their backs upon the job-hunting Socialist Farmer-Labor Party Coalition in New York State. Thus, by electing a few "friendly" democrats and republicans, the A. F. of L. officialdom announces that it hopes "no legislation of a reactionary type will be able to get thru the next congress."

Thus the old order in the American labor movement comes thru this eventful year, 1922, without having learned anything, industrially or politically. It repeats the same old slogans, clings to the same outworn policies. There is no response to the upsurge that is so evident among the masses of organized labor.

The necessity for a new leadership was never so apparent. Let all militant workers hesitate, not a minute longer, but get into the Trade Union Educational League and help agitate for and win the new deal that is absolutely necessary if labor is to hold its own and make progress against its oppressors.

[illegible]

THE DEMORALIZATION OF GERMANY AND [illegible] OF AUSTRIA [illegible] THE [illegible] OF EUROPE.

[illegible]

May we suggest for the perusal of some of our "Socialist" and "labor" contemporaries, among them The Call, edited by Oneal, Ervin and Co., and the American Federationist, sponsored by that noted anti-Bolshevik, Samuel Gompers, all of whom so bitterly denounce Soviet Rule, an additional statement by Holmes as follows:

> Conditions of thought and opinion seemed to be perfectly free. I came and went, talked and argued, criticised and questioned, without the slightest [illegible]. I met [illegible] men and women who were not Communists, who told me why. Critics and opponents of the Government were [illegible] more than once, and they made no concealment of their views.

We would suggest that every traveler to Europe be compelled to spend a couple of weeks in visiting Soviet Russia. This would include Hillquit, Lee, Panken, Block, and other "representative Socialists," who, like most other European travelers carefully dodge the Workers' Republic in their journeys.

Of course, that suggestion will not be carried out. But if it could be put into force, we feel that there would be a greatly enlarged and much more sympathetic understanding of Soviet Russia than we find at the present time.

Mexican workers conducted a one-day general strike in sympathy with the striking railroad shopmen of the United States. But the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor decided that for the workers of this country to call a one-day general strike on their own behalf would be "un-American," which translated reads that Gompers' Americanism means slavery for the working class.

A Paul Revere Rescue

The Socialist Party national executive committee met over the week-end at Philadelphia, instead of its neighboring pleasure resort, Atlantic City, so popular with labor "leaders."

It issued a belated statement on Daugherty's injunction against the railroad shopmen, and tried to smash the attempted united front of the workers of Rhode Island.

The drive for united and independent working-class political action on the part of labor in Rhode Island, mostly textile workers who have been on strike for months, was coming to a climax with a mass convention on Sunday, at Providence, R. I.

The Socialist Party executive committee-men, meeting on Saturday at Philadelphia, heard that Socialist Party members were planning to participate. They executed a rapid Paul Revere rescue, and the party members were saved from the terrible Communists.

Otto Branstetter, national secretary of the "Socialist" Party, issued a statement declaring that his party is opposed to "recognizing the Workers Party in any manner, shape or form.

Nevertheless, the delegates went ahead and held their convention without the "Socialists," adopted a platform, selected their candidates and inaugurated an enthusiastic campaign.

On the same day the Socialist Party went thru another marriage with the Farmer-Laborites, this time in Connecticut.

The Workers Party is too radical, is the "Socialist" complaint. It is a Communist organization. It is controlled by Moscow.

But it is getting more and more evident that that is the leadership and inspiration the workers of this country are looking for. The "Socialist" Party is vainly trying to maintain an existence where there is no place for it, between the reformist Farmer-Labor Party and the revolutionary Workers Party.

It is going into its last political campaign as the tail to the kite of labor reformism. And the indications are that the kite is not averse to sloughing off its tail.

The officialdom of the American Federation of Labor announces it has "neither the right nor the power to call or advise a general strike." Perhaps the workers will so organize their forces that they will have the right and the power to fight as a unit industrially. It is up to them.

Capitalism Protects Its Own

The grand jury investigation into the "massacre" at Herrin, Illinois, is on again. The jurors just had to take a rest after returning 58 indictments against 57 union coal miners and their sympathyzers.

The fraud of the investigation inspired by $25,000 contributed by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce is daily becoming more apparent.

Evidently the grand jurors have been troubled by their own conscience for they have issued another statement declaring they "will investigate the deaths (they should have said the murders) of the union coal miners in the same thoro manner that we are now investigating the death of the non-union men."

The fact remains, however, that the real criminal, William J. Lester, the mine owner, who herded strike breakers from Chicago to Herrin, in an effort to operate a scab mine, has not been molested.

This criminal walks abroad, shrouded in the sanctity that the possession of dollars gives him. He is "respectable" in the eyes of the system, and can do no wrong.

It remains for the workers of the nation, in this case, as in the case of Mooney and Billings, of Sacco and Vanzetti, to say whether labor shall mount the scaffold, or whether would-be labor crushers shall pay the penalty of their bloody deeds.

Capitalism protects its own. How about labor?

Harriet Stanton Blatch is back from Europe. She says she asked Karl Kautsky, anti-Bolshevist, if Germany would not have joined in the Russian revolt had she [illegible] the Versailles treaty and the aftermath. Kautsky, who [illegible] against Communism, replied, "Perhaps, but we have at least kept our people fed." This was supposed, [illegible], to be a slam at Soviet rule in Russia. But what does Kautsky mean, "Fed" with bread riots in Germany every day? Perhaps he means fed up on betrayals by the traitor "Socialists."

[illegible] Executive Council Meeting

([illegible] for the Bolcoms; quoting or reprinting prohibited; copyright applied for)

1. Political Prisoners

Whereas, every principle of freedom and humanity is being threatened by the ever increasing multitudes of bolshevicks, and

Whereas, the state forces are too limited to combat them and the jails are pretty well filled, therefore be it

Resolved, that we call upon the trade unions of America to contribute liberally towards the construction of more jails and the maintenance of adequate military and police forces. Unanimously Adopted.

2. Soviet Russia

Whereas, the officials of the Soviet Government do not belong to the A. F. of L., and

Whereas, they openly criticise and oppose the tactics of our august organization, therefore be it

Resolved, that this Conference goes on record as denouncing the pro-capitalistic labor-hating government of Russia. Adopted.

3. Beauty Contest

Whereas, a national bathing beauty contest is taking place at the present time in Atlantic City, and in view of its vital importance to the labor movement, therefore be it

Resolved, that this meeting be adjourned until after the contest.

Adopted.

4. Attorney-General Daughterty

Whereas, he has always shown himself to be a true lover of democracy, and

Whereas, he has proven himself to be an even greater lover of the principles advocated by the A. F. of L., as demonstrated by his recent injunction, therefore be it

Resolved, that Attorney-General Daugherty be elected honorary member of the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. Adopted.

5. The Bolcoms

Whereas, the press is the biggest force in control of public opinion, and

Whereas, the Bolcoms, the biggest power in the press, has always given us the maximum amount of publicity, therefore be it

Resolved, that the Executive Council, assembled in this conference, sends its warmest greetings to the Bolcoms and calls upon the workers of the entire world to assist them in all possible ways. Adopted.

Science Under Capitalism

A harrassed professor, in order to make ends meet, decided to take up manual labor. So he visited a large building operation, and said nervously to a red-faced man with a diamond horse-shoe in his necktie:

"I am—ahem—an ex-college professor, and I would like to know if you could take me on here as a bricklayer?"

The red-faced man gave a derisive snort.

"Bricklayer? I should say not!" he said. "We may start you as an architect, though, and let you work your way up!"

Signs of Autumn

Levys begin to fail.

The Call starts a new campaign for money.

Landlords begin asking for a raise.

Tammany politicians start buying cigars.

The price on coal and clothing goes up.

Hearst becomes sympathetic with the working class.

Political candidates quit betting on races and start attending church.

Times correspondents start telling us that the Soviet Government will fall before the winter.

Socialist orators begin telling us how humanity can be saved by electing them for the assembly.

Congressmen return to Washington after their vacation to continue their vacation.

Alas, Autumn is best!

You Can't Fool a Secret-Service Man!

A labor agitator during the course of his address at a meeting in a Western mining camp expressed the belief that "the attorney-general is the biggest boob living."

One of Burns' faithfuls present there, immediately stopped the meeting and placed the orator under arrest.

"You have no right to arrest me!" protested the speaker. "I didn't specify which attorney-general I had in mind. Perhaps I meant the Attorney-General of Canada or Australia?"

"You can't pull that stuff on me!" replied the bull. "I know which Attorney-General is the biggest boob living." . . . .

"Hubby dear, stop writing, supper is ready."

"But, wife, dear, I've got to finish the Bolcoms."

"I, I said quit writing!"

"But" . . .

Fayette Miners' Brave Fight

Officials Expose Tyranny of Pennsylvania Coal Barons

We are in the fight to help the 45,000 battling coal miners of Fayette County, Pa., the vanguard of the recent coal miners' strike, deserted by the miners' international union in the hour of the Cleveland settlement with the mine owners. The Fayette miners, some of the best fighters in the working class of this nation, will win if the militants come to their support. If this copy of THE WORKER gets into a coal mine camp, let the local miners' union send in its help to John O'Leary, West Brownsville, Pa. Let it send in a demand to the National Office, United Mine Workers of America, Indianapolis, Ind., demanding that it rush aid these miners, that it not basely continue its desertion of them in this, the greatest hour of their need. Let the locals of all labor unions also rally to the support of these miners. This week this fight is reviewed by two officials of the miners' union as follows:

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE

(Special to The Worker)

CHICAGO, Ill.—The conditions revealed in a statement sent out by William Feeney, National Organizer for the United Mine Workers, and now stationed in the Connellsville, Pa., coke district, dealing with the plight of the miners and their families in that locality are so horrible as to challenge belief.

Nothing but the cold facts are given in the statement below but these alone are enough to make the flesh creep. One thing Feeney's statement does not state for obvious reasons, but anyone with even a scant knowledge of the politics played in the United Mine Workers of America cannot but suspect the astounding truth that the lives of these men, women and children are being played with by the Lewis administration because they are not of the proper political complexion.

These forty-five thousand men struck when there were but another forty-five thousand organized in the Pennsylvania bituminous field.

These men formerly unorganized because a certain faction did [illegible] tion by fighting the powerful Frick interests to a standstill in the coking coal fields on which the existence of the steel industry depends.

Such a demand must go up from the militants in labors ranks that the Lewis administration will be forced from very shame to aid these heroes of industry to win the victory for which they fought so well.

Feeney's statement follows:

"When the history of the great coal strike of 1922 is fairly written there will be outstanding as one of the greatest elements that contributed toward bringing together the warring factions and that will be the tenacious struggle that has been going on in the Connellsville coke region.

"No other factor aided so much in the victory of the miners as did the 50,000 non-union miners who laid down their tools, joined the United Mine Workers of America and steadfastly refused to be coerced into accepting a few crumbs from the hands of those who for years had owned them body and soul.

"These 50,000 men realized that the success of the union miners meant their success.

"They knew that the operators in both union and non-union fields were a unit and that if they continued to work their condition would grow intolerable.

"They realized that they worked in the mines for 23 cents a ton when the union men were receiving 73 cents, thus causing the shutting down for many months of the union mines while the non-union mines produced cheap coal.

"The solid phalanx presented by the men, women and children of the Connellsville coke region expressed an indomitable and independent spirit hard to conceive of.

"Thousands have been thrown from their homes and their goods dumped upon the public highways,

Help Fight Daugherty Injunction at Protest Mass Meetings, Sunday

MANIFESTO OF THE WORKERS PARTY

To the Workers of America:

The American Federation of Labor has set aside Sunday, Oct. 1, for the holding of mass meetings thruout the country in protest against the Daugherty injunction and government interference with the railroad strike.

Not much more than this could be expected from the A. F. of L. Bureaucrats. The situation called for a general strike, for an expression of the mass power of the workers. But the [illegible] answer of the A. F. of L. is mass meetings.

[illegible] participate in these meetings and to convert them into aggressive expressions of the revolutionary labor movement.

Federal Judge Wilkerson, at Chicago, has granted Attorney General Daugherty the sought for injunction, nation-wide in effect, restraining officials of the Federated Railway Shop Crafts from every possible act that might aid in carrying on their struggle.

Every request made by Daugherty is granted. Every contention of the lawyers for the workers is rejected. One of the most drastic and sweeping capitalist edicts comes to life to be used as a weapon against labor.

This diabolical court order restricts the activities of 270 officers and the 400,000 members of the six shop crafts belonging to the Railway Employes Department of the American Federation of Labor.

These facts must be brought before all the workers. Only by intelligent understanding will it be possible for all the workers to secure that united action, in spite of their reactionary leadership, that is now denied them.

Rally to the slogans:

Down with Government by Injunction!

Demand Freedom of Speech and Assemblage for All Workers and Their Organizations!

Down with the Authority of the Courts to Issue Injunctions!

Repeal the Anti-Syndicalist and Sedition Laws!

Down with the Boss-Owned Unions!

Hail to Independent Working Class Political Action.

Hail the General Strike!

Hail the Victory of the Workers!

WORKERS PARTY,
C. E. Ruthenberg, Secretary.

Constantine Gone! Next?

King Constantine, the puppet of the Paris Allies on the throne of Greece, has lost his job. He resigned (abdicated) before he was thrown out.

This news, expected daily, came across the Atlantic on Wednesday, as Soviet Russia, in a note addressed to England, France, Italy, Greece, Roumania, Jugo-Slavia, Bulgaria and Egypt, proposed an immediate conference designed to find a solution to the Near East situation.

The developments in the Near East follow all the predictions made in the columns of THE WORKER.

The Russian note reiterates that the Workers' Republic will refuse to recognize any decisions to which she is not a party.

This puts new meaning into the stiffened attitude of the Angora Turkish Government in its demands against the Allied Entente, headed by frenzied Great Britain.

Just what forces will take power as a result of the revolution in Greece we cannot say at this writing. The indications are that the Turkish Sultan, Mohammed VI, will follow in the path of Constantine.

Use Trick to Keep Raid Victims in Jail

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE, Special to THE WORKER

CHICAGO.—The Department of Justice again showed the bitterness with which the prosecution of the Michigan defendants is being carried on when after a postponement of the preliminary hearing until October 17th was agreed upon the prosecution informed the defense that after the hearing nothing but Berrien County real estate or cash would be accepted as security for bonds.

The obvious impossibility of securing Berrien county real estate makes certain that the defendants will have to await trial in jail if the almost prohibitive sum of 10,000 dollars cash cannot be furnished for each of the accused.

The court has been accepting Michigan real estate outside of the county up to date, but the new ruling adds a staggering burden to the defense.

The Communist movement is gaining strength thruout Japan. The newly-formed Communist Party has succeeded in winning over the majority of the revolutionary trade unions to its side. The Communist germ has even worked its way into the army, soldiers and officers, it is reported, being arrested en masse. The Japanese Gompers, Ki-Sa-Tome, was recently expelled from the Japanese Federation of Labor.

The pre-revolutionary Russian Embassy building in Berlin is now under the control of the Soviet representative. Grand Duchess Xenia, a sister of the late Nicholas Romanoff, is claiming the building as having been the personal property of her lamented brother.

Communist Party Issues Survey of the Present Political Situation in America

THE WORKER has received a Manifesto of the Communist Party of America, being a "Survey of the Present Political Situation in America." It is addressed "To the Workers of the United States," and is as follows:

MANIFESTO OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY OF AMERICA

To the Workers of the United States:

1. Since the publication of the Labor Day Manifesto of the Communist Party of America there have been various changes in the industrial and political situation.

The strikes have practically come to an end: the coal strike is over in nearly all districts and the railroad strike is being settled.

A sweeping injunction was issued against the railroad workers by a Chicago court at the request of Attorney General Daugherty, startling the capitalist press and the majority of the railroad barons themselves because of its ridiculously drastic provisions.

The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor met and made far-reaching decisions. Primary elections have taken place in several

Foster Calls Railroad Shopmen's Strike Piteous Debacle of Craft Unionism

By WILLIAM Z. FOSTER

Secretary, Trade Union Educational League.

Written especially for the Labor Herald (October) and released for simultaneous publication in THE WORKER

For years past, but particularly since the advent of the Trade Union Educational League, railroad militants have declared again and again that the present system of 16 separate railroad organizations was incapable of putting up a winning fight against the highly organized companies, and we have demanded a general amalgamation of all the unions into one body.

The shopmen's strike has given the most overwhelming demonstration of the soundness of our contentions. The whole thing has been a piteous debacle of craft unionism.

The companies have played the various organizations against each other just as they have seen fit, forcing some into the strike and keeping others at work scabbing, exactly as they desired.

Unionism Suffers Enormously

Consequently railroad unionism has suffered enormously all around, if it has not actually been dealt a mortal blow.

The shopmen's strike, evidencing as it did the deplorable lack of solidarity between the railroad trades, is an unanswerable argument for industrial unionism thru [illegible] tion.

Seven unions on strik[illegible] at work. The shopmen's [illegible]ions battling valiantly in f[illegible] terrific odds to bring the railroads to a halt, and the other unions faithfully help the companies to keep the roads in operation. What a pitiful exhibition of working class stupidity.

Who can defend such a condition? No one. Yet it was exactly the state of affairs that was bound to develop, and the leaders, who have consistently fought every get-together movement between the organizations, deliberately walked right into it.

It was the logical and inevitable climax of their contemptible craft policy of each union for itself and the devil take the hindmost.

Some Traitors Unmasked

As the great shopmen's strike began the rank and file of the railroad workers generally were stirred to the depths and wanted to make common cause in the fight.

They seemed to realize instinctively that the interest of all were directly at stake.

Never in the history of American railroading was there such a splendid spirit of solidarity developed, never such a pure realization that the welfare of all railroad workers, skilled and unskilled, is bound up together.

The stage was all set for the most tremendous strike in history, for a movement that would have been gloriously victorious and that would have dealt a heavy blow at the very foundations of capitalism.

But the leaders of the nine non-striking unions ruined it. They betrayed their members into the hands of the companies. They compromised the whole fight. They robbed the workers of victory. They are traitors to the working class.

Many Acts of Stupidity

In the great strike there have been so many acts of stupidity committed, so much betrayal of the workers' interests by the leaders that one hardly knows which to single out for mention.

Consider for example the attitude of Grable, President of the Maintenance of Way Workers. Could anything be more contemptible?

There was his organization, made up for the most part of unskilled, undisciplined, and unstrategically situated workers.

Anyone with the brain of a twelve-year-old child could see that its in-

Big New York Mass Meeting to Fight Raid

Under the auspices of the National Labor Defense Council a great meeting to protest against the White Terror will be held Friday evening, October 6th, at the Central Opera House, 67th Street and Third Ave.

The attempts of the government to crush the labor movement has not stopped with the ending of the strikes.

In Michigan a score of militant union men have been arrested because of their activities in the railroad and miners' strikes.

In Herrin union miners are indicted for murder. The Attorney General of Illinois, spurred on by a relentless Chamber of Commerce, is exerting every effort to place the blame of the Herrin massacres on the union men. Dozens of union miners are in danger of being hung or imprisoned for life.

In West Virginia union men have been sentenced to long prison terms for insisting on their right to organize. The capitalists call that right "treason".

Judge Wilkerson, Daugherty's darling, has continued the injunction against the railroad strikers.

And the A. F. of L. is silent. The leaders mumble "general strike" and then get scared of the phrase and proceed to apologize to the capitalist class for ever mentioning such a thing. They call for mass meetings to protest against the injunction, but the meetings are never held. All vain and empty gestures!

To expect the officials of the A. F. of L. to rally the workers to fight against the capitalist attacks is to expect the impossible. The class-conscious workers themselves must organize demonstrations to protest against the high-handed methods of the Harding administration.

A group of prominent labor leaders of Chicago have taken the initiative in organizing the Labor Defense Council for the purpose of rallying the workers to defend their interests on all fronts. A great meeting was held under its auspices at Chicago where over twenty-five hundred dollars were collected.

All over the United States branches of the Labor Defense Council are springing up. The meeting on Friday, October 6th, will mark the official launching of the Labor Defense Council in New York and no class-conscious worker can fail, under any circumstances to be present at that meeting.

Gompers' American Legion Not in Much Favor Among the Workers of Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — At the last regular meeting of the Minneapolis Trades' and Labor Assembly a communication was read from the A. F. of L., requesting that "a committee be appointed to confer with the Local Officers of the American Legion on matters in which the two bodies are interested and for the mutual advantage of all."

It was moved and seconded that the Assembly concur in the request and "instruct committee to try and uncover the wolf in sheep's clothing." An amendment was offered that Assembly "notify President Gompers of the A. F. of L. that we can not co-operate with the American Legion in this city." After a general discussion the previous question was called for and carried. President Myers of the Assembly ruled the amendment out of order and the motion was lost. It was then moved and seconded that the entire matter be laid on the table until the first meeting in December, the motion to table being carried.

Delegate Scott, who is also Secretary of the local branch of the Trade Union Educational League, reported that the recent tag day netted $1,220, which would be divided 50 per cent to the striking shopmen and 50 per cent for the brothers in jail at St. Joseph, Mich.

"YOUNG WORKER" IS OUT

The October issue of the "Young Worker," organ of the Young Workers' League of America, is now out and may be obtained on all stands or at the office, 799 Broadway.

A powerful cartoon by Ellis embellishes the front page. Besides the regular editorials and branch news there are excellent articles by Jack Carney, Martin Abern, Edgar Hart and Harry Young of the Y. C. L. of Great Britain. The price of this fine little paper is ten cents.

When the boys' and girls' organization of the French Communist movement decided on a Sunday demonstration, to proclaim their solidarity with their German brothers and sisters, the police got on the job in a hurry and broke it up.

An Invasion of Russia Welcomed

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

I have heard the story of the latest invasion of Soviet Russia, the successful invasion of America's "Iron Horses."

We all know how American capitalist intervention, backed by the billions of the United States treasury at Washington and the [illegible] life-blood of workers carrying the Stars and Stripes, FAILED at Archangel, in North Russia, at Vladivostok, in Eastern Siberia. It was defeated!

This is a story of VICTORY! The peaceful victory of the pennies, the nickels, the dimes, and also of the dollars, of American working men, women and children, coined into "IRON HORSES," into the TRACTORS taken to the Workers' Republic by the first Agricultural Unit of the Friends of Soviet Russia.

Mrs. Cris Ware has come back from the slopes of the Urals carrying this tale of triumph to us from the other side of the world.

Her face beams with the light of achievements won as she shows her calloused hands, for she was cook, laundress and nurse to the men, chauffeur and tractor demonstrator as well as driver of one of these IRON HORSES, when men failed in numbers.

When she speaks her words sparkle with the promise of conquests to come, and kindle within you more than ever the desire to cooperate to the last ounce of your strength with the revolution of the Russian Workers and Peasants.

I first saw Mrs. Ware when she was acting as secretary of the American Federated Famine Relief Committee, the purchasing agent of the Friends of Soviet Russia and other famine relief organizations.

That was in the early days of the famine when millions were starving. The job seemed too big, but the workers of America, organized into the F. S. R., stood by their task as a year swept past on the calendar.

Hal Ware, who became the secretary of the American Federated Committee, succeeding his wife, last winter began planning for and organizing this TRACTOR UNIT.

The call was sent out by the F. S. R. for funds for "IRON HORSES" to help win new victories in Soviet Russia, real victories, to help conquer the famine. The funds came. The tractors were purchased, the best product of American working class ingenuity. The huskiest and most able of the farmers of the great grain-growing Northwest were enlisted.

All was ready in the spring, from the mighty "IRON HORSES" themselves, 20 of them, to the smallest peg to hold in place the tents, against the mountain winds of the Urals, the tents that were to be the homes of these pioneers of modern agricultural methods in the vanguard nation of the world.

This new venture, seeking new worlds to conquer, crossed eastward, instead of westward, over the Atlantic, left ship at Libau, and went inland on 17 freight cars across Latvia into Moscow and then on to Perm.

Hot boxes claimed three of the freight cars that were left behind in Latvia, while the remainder of the expedition proceeded on its way farther into the East.

Finally these 20th century argonauts arrived at their destination, Vereschagino, a small railroad town just west of Perm, on July 3. This is a market town consisting of a bazaar of two rows of little booths and three rows of log houses.

For 13 days these pioneers, Charlie Heck, one of the original organizers of the Nonpartisan League of farmers, with Otto Anstrom, Andy Erickson, "Big George" Iverson and "Little John" Schallenberger, all undaunted farmers of the Nonpartisan League, Mickey Millings, an Irish-American farmer, "Big John" Pluchuk, a Russian-American farmer, and Hal Ware, American farmer, worked in the village of Vereschagino assembling these 20 tractors before the eyes of the intensely interested and wondering peasants.

Sure, they were hungry for food. The famine still had its grip upon their stomachs. But their minds were also hungry for knowledge, for new ideas, hungry with the desire for the new machinery that is emancipating them from slaving and endless toil.

There are many Communists among these peasants. The young people are all growing up as Communists. The older people all tell of their years in the movement. Vereschagino is proud of its Communist veteran of 30 years' activity.

As one "IRON HORSE" after another grew and grew to completion in one long row, Indian file along the railroad siding, there was no end to the questions of these Russian farmers.

The Americans saw the plows of the Russians, sad contrivances, pulled by horse or man. When the Russian peasant follows his plow he is on all fours almost as much as his horse or oxen, the handles are built so low. No one knows why there are no long handles on these plows, so that the Russian peasant, like the American farmer, can follow his plow walking erect.

Hal Ware, of the TRACTOR UNIT, wanted to help the Russians contrive something better for the horse-drawn plow. But these Russians, having seen and watched these tractors, wanted nothing more of four-legged horses and plows that must be followed on foot. They wanted "IRON HORSES," and many of them, so quickly does a new idea take hold, even of the mind of a Russian peasant, whom we were told is dull and ignorant.

Nine students were assigned to the UNIT from the agricultural college at Moscow, but these were mostly students from the old regime. They sabotaged the work of assembling, they loafed on the job. They had to be watched. They left the screws loose, the bolts were not tightened. They were sent back to Moscow, all except two, who were converted by their enthusiasm for this new order on the farm lands of Red Russia. Workers from Perm, and from the coal mines and from surrounding villages took the places of those who were "fired."

There were three days of waiting at Vereschagino for fuel. These were days of restlessness for the Americans who wanted to get to work turning furrows of Soviet soil with plows from the United States of America. Yet no moment was wasted. During this time a demonstration was arranged. Comrade Cris Ware demonstrated a tractor to the peasant women and one of the "boys" demonstrated to the men.

Finally all was ready. The parade of tractors rolled up into town. Each one carried a red flag with the three letters, in Russian, F. S. R. It was a coincident that this also meant "Federated Soviet Republic," to the peasants, who felt that their own government was thus coming to their aid.

Mrs. Ware had made those red flags, the white letters created out of strips torn from a petticoat, discarding in donning the khaki breeches of a tractor mechanic. She had made these letters working by candle light at one end of the coal car she called home in this Workers' Republic. She explained that the coal dust was clean compared to the human filth that could not be fought because imperialist intervention deprived the Russian workers and peasants of soap, disinfectants and other means of sanitation.

Thus the procession moved over 50 miles of Russian roads thru villages that had never seen an automobile. At Achor the largest village, the peasants had gathered together from near and far to welcome this new American invasion.

There were speeches galore, by the village president, by Hal Ware, also by presidents of nearby villages, by a peasant woman and by Cris Ware.

There were similar greetings on a smaller scale at all the villages, those peasant villages that dotted the road almost every mile, beautiful villages with clean homes, flowers of many colors at the windows, flocks of birds flitting about their own bird houses, children playing, calves, goats, colts, newborn pigs and sheep to restore the flocks and herds swept away by the famine. There is little meat to be had. Nothing is killed. Everything is growing with the new crop.

The Russian road is a series of deep narrow ruts. The tractors in this procession alternated, the first keeping its heavy wheels on one rut, the second tractor keeping its wheels in the other. The last two tractors were equipped with road drags made out of old railroad ties. Thus the road for these 75 versts travelled were left smoothed and levelled to the great joy of the peasants.

After travelling two days and a night the tractor unit arrived at Toikino Sovhoxz and set up camp, with army tents and camp cots.

The plows and the harrows were made ready, and on July 31 the first furrow was turned. Let this date be put down in history.

Mrs. Ware left on her return to the United States, 22 days later, Aug. 21. At that time 1,000 desiatines (2,700 acres) had been plowed, harrowed and prepared for the fall rye seeding.

Thus is Soviet Russia being made safe for the revolution. There is a good crop this year. The Russian peasants and workers will not starve.

Yet they must be helped, with more "IRON HORSES" to reap a greater harvest next year. Russia must become the bread basket, the granery of the world revolution.

Russia must not only feed itself, it must be able to give a helping hand to the workers of Central Europe, starving in the grip of the Paris Allies. She must and will come to the aid of the workers in other lands, hungering and at the mercy of their own capitalist exploiters.

America's "IRON HORSES" are winning victories against old methods of agriculture in Red Russia. The workers in the cities will be fed and win new conquests over their industrial problems. Soviet Russia will rise triumphant over all her difficulties.

She will thus become an inspiration to the workers of all countries who will rise against their oppressors and spread the rule of labor everywhere.

Attend Party Ratification This Friday

Workers! The party that represents your interest; the party that fights with you, shoulder to shoulder, in everyone of your struggles; the party that is composed of the most militant, the most class-conscious workers; the party that constantly keeps before the working class the ideal of emancipation of the workers from the slavery of capitalism thru the establishment of a Workers' Republic is the WORKERS PARTY.

The Workers Party is in the election campaign not for the purpose of catching votes, and putting lawyers into office but in order to clarify the issues confronting the working class at the present moment.

Workers! Come to the ratification meeting at Parkview Palace, 110th St. and Fifth Ave., Friday, Sept. 29, at 8 P. M., and hear the candidates of the Workers Party explain the issues of the campaign.

File Petition in New Jersey for Workers Party State Ticket

Petitions for the Workers Party state ticket in New Jersey were filed on Saturday, Sept. 23, naming Martin R. McDonald, for governor; Louis F. Wolf, for United States senator.

Tours have been arranged for both of the candidates thruout all sections of the state.

Work of gathering the names on the petitions in Connecticut and New York is on in full swing.

All comrades that wish to volunteer for the work of gathering signatures on the nominating petitions should get in touch immediately with the District Office, Workers Party, Room 508, 799 Broadway, New York City.

Chicago Labor Fights Foe of Amalgamation Found In Its Ranks

CHICAGO — John Fitzpatrick will succeed himself as president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, having been renominated without opposition. Ed Nockels, secretary, was similarly complimented, as were all present officers except Oscar Nelson, vice-president, who is opposed by Ben F. Ferris. Nelson led the opposition on the local federation floor against the socalled Foster union amalgamation resolution, which was twice passed by overwhelming votes.

The federation, in regular meeting unanimously adopted resolutions protesting against the "unlawful invasion" of the Trade Union Educational League conference and the arrests of William Z. Foster and Earl Browder on Michigan criminal syndicalism charges.

Another resolution pledging support to the striking rail shopmen and denouncing the Daugherty "open shop" resolution as outrageous was unanimously adopted.

Dungeon and Solitary Fail to Break Spirit of Wobblies in Prison

SAN QUENTIN, Cal. — The protest strike of the criminal syndicalism prisoners here continues, with men constantly transferred from the dungeon to solitary, and vice versa.

(The chief difference is that in solitary the men have two meals a day, in the dungeon only bread and water.)

At latest advices, Wismer, Golden, and Martin are in solitary; Ryan, Casey, Dunn, Olsen, Shocker, Williams, Sherman and Gaveel in the dungeons.

Gaveel, on whose account the whole movement started, has been on bread and water in the vile conditions of the "hole" ever since July 17, with the exception of four days in solitary.

John Hannon has been taken out and put in the hospital; he contracted an eye disease from the dust in the jute mill and owing to the chloride of lime fumes in the dungeon it has become worse until he has lost the sight of one eye.

The men claim they are being moved about from solitary to dungeon and back in an effort to destroy their health and morale. The first object is being accomplished, but their spirit is stronger than ever.

Missing Attorney Located

Charles E. Ruthenberg Released on Bail

ST. JOSEPH, Mich. (Secret Service Department to The Daily Worker): DAVID J. BENTALL, attorney for radicals recently arrested in Berrien County, who mysteriously disappeared after visiting the jail in which the notorious leaders are incarcerated, dramatically made his appearance at the county jail yesterday when his friends had given up all hopes for his recovery.

When Bentall was last seen in this vicinity it was noted that he went in the direction of the House of David. That institution was searched by the Cheka but no trace of him could be found.

An "ad" was inserted in the Worker offering a substantial reward for information concerning his whereabouts. On the following day Bentall showed up.

Our advertising solicitor grilled Bentall and learned that he first heard of the anxiety which his absence created when he picked up a copy of the Worker in Kalamazoo Michigan. —Moral — Advertise in The Worker!

Banquet for Ruthenberg

BERRIEN COUNTY JAIL, Sept. 6.—Charles E. Ruthenberg, national Secretary of the W. P. of America, was today released on bond in the sum of $10,000 pending trial on a charge of violation of the Criminal Syndicalist Law of State of Michigan with sixteen other alleged radicals. His friends in St. Joseph gave a banquet in honor of his release.

Lambkin in Detroit

An ovation was tendered to Cyril Lambkin by the Detroit Federation of Labor on the occasion of his release from prison. Support was pledged to his imprisoned comrades. Lambkin wired the editor of the Daily Worker informing him that Detroit was solidly behind our comrades. Lambkin shares the leadership of the Detroit movement with Comrade Reynolds, now residing in Berrien County.

GREAT COCKROACH HUNT

Thousands Are Slaughtered

General Krumbein Distinguishes himself—Nordling seriously wounded—Enemy Finally Routed—Commander Harrison Receives Baton

COUNTY JAIL. — A sanguinary engagement took place in the county jail yesterday between the Red Forces under Commander Harrison and the State Militia of Michigan led by General Mohawk, chief of the cockroaches.

The Red Forces entered the jail two weeks ago and spent the time since consolidating their positions. They made friendly overtures to the cockroach brigade, even offering them a share of booty when they took possession of the County jail.

The cockroaches, however had secretly allied themselves with the counter-revolutionary bourgeoisie and were preparing to oust the Reds from the jail. With this end in view their chief, Mohawk, stole out of prison and mobilized the downstairs cockroach brigade and set the time for the concerted attack on the Reds. The time was set at 12.01 yesterday.

General Krumbein of the Red Intelligence Department scented danger in the cocky attitude of the enemy and notified Commander Harrison. The latter dispatched Bail to watch Mohawk who was seen prowling in the vicinity of General Headquarters.

Bail heard a mysterious noise in the air flue of Camp 13 and on investigation found Mohawk armed to the teeth and surrounded by half a million cockroaches. Bail immediately signalled the Commander who ordered out two pieces of artillery.

Harrison placed the guns so that the cockroaches were caught between an enfilading fire. Caught off their guard they didn't have a chance. Nordling led the attack on Chief Mohawk who in desperation threw a can of mush at the battling Swede. The latter was knocked unconscious and carried to the hospital. It is expected he will recover.

Chief Mohawk was put thru the Third Degree by Major Sullivan. He confessed his perfidy and was promptly executed in front of his demoralized forces.

Their morale broken, the cockroaches fled in disorderly retreat with the red forces hot in pursuit. Poison gas, tear gas and liquid fire was used to good effect with the result that when the smoke of the battle cleared up, 1,500,000 cockroaches lay dead on the field.

This engagement disposes of the only obstacle to the onward march of the Reds. General Harrison, when interviewed by your reporter, stated that he intended to eat his Christmas dinner in Washington.

The Reds are jubilant over their victory. Telegrams of congratulations were received from Trotsky, of the Soviet Army of Russia, and from Kemal Pasha, Turkish leader.

Etiquette

The editor of this paper is not a highbrow or a crank on good manners. He is proud to consider himself of the people by the people and with the people. Still he confesses to a feeling of disquiet over the tendency on the part of the Berrien Jail Commune to conduct themselves in a manner that is, to put it mildly, lacking in decency not to mention comradeship.

Recently the Commissary Department purchased twelve cakes of soap for the general use of the commune. A reasonable time was allowed for the consumption of this soap. However, sooner than expected the soap supply exhausted.

Suspicion was aroused, so the commissary department assigned Detective MacMillan to search the bunks while the occupants were down at the beach. The soap was discovered in General ....'s bunk.

This calls for prompt disciplinary action. The General must be given to understand that the dictatorship is not yet here. An example must be made.

THE WORKER has just received an acknowledgment from President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers of America, of the greetings forwarded from the Miners' Federation of Japan.

The Japanese mine workers, first thru a cablegram, dated July 30th, and then thru a confirming letter written on the same day, sent their greetings to the striking American coal miners, and stated they were raising a fund in support of the strike here.

The letter received from President Lewis is as follows:

Sterling Hotel,
Wilkes-Barre, Pa.,
September 5, 1922.

Mr. J. Louis Engdahl,
Editor, The Worker,
799 Broadway, N. Y. City.

Dear Sir and Brother:

This will acknowledge receipt of your favor of August 29th, transmitting copy of a letter which you had just received from the General Secretary of the Miners' Federation of Japan, expressive of the sympathy of the mine workers of that nation with the United Mine Workers of America in the great struggle in which we have been engaged for the past five months.

In appreciation of this expression I am writing General Secretary Aso, acknowledging receipt of his letter and advising him of the successful termination of our great struggle in its major aspects.

I enclose herewith copy of the communication which I am forwarding.

With appreciation of your courtesy in transmitting to me the letter from Mr. Aso, I am

Sincerely yours,
John L. Lewis, President.

The greetings to the Japanese miners is as follows:

Sterling Hotel,
Wilkes-Barre, Pa.,
September 6, 1922.

To the Mine Workers of Japan:

Greetings:

On behalf of the organized mine workers of America, I reply to the splendid words of greeting transmitted in your letter of July 30th, which has just reached me. The sentiments expressed are indeed an inspiration to our people, and I am happy to convey to you that our great struggle in all of its major aspects is coming to a successful conclusion.

Some 400,000 of our members in the bituminous coal fields of the country have returned to work under a satisfactory agreement negotiated at Cleveland, Ohio, on August 15th. We have just completed the negotiation of an agreement for the mine workers employed in the anthracite coal mines of the country, numbering some 155,000, and it is highly probable that within a few days the men in this particular field will also have returned to their employment.

The agreements in question maintain the rates of wages which were previously paid and carry with them other satisfactory provisions. Taking into consideration the widespread economic conditions of the most adverse nature, together with the unfavorable influences which were arrayed against us, the United Mine Workers of America has accomplished a signal victory and has demonstrated the cohesion and loyalty of its members in this great conflict.

May the mine workers of Japan be inspired by our success to a degree which will enable them to fight their own battles with a greater determination which will make for their material welfare.

Fraternally yours,
John L. Lewis, President
United Mine Workers of America.

"It is a herculean task to care for these 50,000 miners and their families. National board member, John O'Leary; National organizer William Feeney, and sub-district board members Will Hynes, who are in charge of the strike, are being continually besieged for assistance. They have planned to have barracks erected in time to care for a large number during the winter. Consignments of tents continue to arrive, but not in sufficient quantities to relieve the conditions.

When it is considered that there are 170,000 children in the field who need food, clothing and shoes, besides the men and women some idea of the task confronting the three men in charge may be gained.

"Appeals have been sent all over the country for assistance, and upon this depends the very existence of the struggling men and women of the Connellsville coak regions.

"(Signed) William Feeney,
International Organizer
United Mine Workers."

Surely there is enough misery caused by a brutal system and brutal private ownership of the coal industry described in the above to move the hearts of thousands to give until it hurts in aid of these men, women and children who unassisted now hold the first line trenches in the nation-wide struggle against oppression.

Frisco Machinists Protest

SAN FRANCISCO.—The machinists' union of this city has adopted resolutions protesting against the arrest of William Z. Foster, on a charge of violating the Michigan criminal syndicalism law, as "a part of the program of the combined anti-union labor forces of this country to crush organized labor and its leaders, especially those who would meet capital's attack by a solid labor front."

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill.—Two local dentists have advertised that they will furnish free dental service to railroad workers and their families during the present strike. Presentation of the strikers' union card is necessary to secure free treatment.

THANKSGIVING FESTIVAL & DANCE

The Local Office of the Workers Party, New York, will hold a dance on Thanksgiving eve, November 28th, at the LABOR LYCEUM, 86th St & 3rd Ave.

All branches, federations and sympathetic organizations are requested not to arrange any affairs on that date.

Stand By the Fayette Miners!

In last week's issue, THE WORKER published the proclamation of the Workers Party, "STAND BY THE FAYETTE MINERS!" It also gave space to the resolution of Local Union No. [illegible], calling for help for the "thousands of members actually starving in Fayette County, Pa., now."

The Fayette County, Pa., miners are holding one of the outposts of the United Mine Workers' organization. They must be supported at all costs. The situation is further set forth in the following statement:

By WILLIAM HYNES

Board Member, Sub-District 4, District 5, U. M. W. of A.

The sixth month of the great coal strike in the Connellsville coke region finds the miners stand solid, but fighting with their backs to the wall and with a spirit that can never be broken and must be seen to be appreciated.

More than 30,000 of these miners marched in the Labor Day Parade, Sept. 4, in Uniontown, county seat of Fayette County, where for thirty years there was never a meeting of union miners previous to April 1, 1922.

In this great coal field with a seam of coal from seven to ten feet thick, these miners have been at the mercy of the men who owned the mines and in every strike that the miners of District No. 5 have been forced to engage in, they have been compelled to sit in their homes and watch this great stream of coal flow down the Monongahela river and by rail on each side of the river, on its way to market to break their strike and threaten the very life of their union.

For two years the miners of District No. 5 have had very little work, while the coke region was working and the non-union men were loading coal for 23 cents a ton.

On April 1, 1922, the miners of the coke region, 45,000 strong, laid down their tools with their fellow miners and joined the U. M. W. of A. About 4,000 families have been evicted and these miners bought their own tents. Men have been killed and jailed and mistreated.

As I write this, their furniture is piled on the fields all over Fayette County. They are sleeping out tonight with their families with the sky for a roof in this rich coal field where they have worked for 30 years to make millionaires and produced the coal that made industrial civilization possible.

No gamer or nobler bunch of men ever lived. Their strike saved this union beyond the shadow of a doubt. They have paid their debt.

They must have help right away. The U. M. W. of A. and the American labor movement must act quickly to save these noble men and women and save them from the iron heel of the steel companies.

Let every Local in the U. M. W. of A. send money if you have to borrow it. This is your fight. Don't wait until it is too late. It will be a crime if you do.

Help now to bring victory to the best bunch of fighters that ever told a tyrant to go to H—l. Send all money to John O'Leary, West Brownsville, Pa.

Pass This Resolution at Your Mass Meeting, Sunday, Oct. 1, Protesting Against Daugherty-Wilkerson Tyranny

Here is the resolution that should be passed at every workers' protest gathering held Sunday, Oct. 1, to condemn the Daugherty-Wilkerson Injunction issued against the striking railroad shopmen:

The American working people, who were told during the war that they were fighting for "democracy" and a better life, find themselves face to face with the most ruthless attack upon the rights supposedly guaranteed to them and all other people in this country, and upon their standard of living, in the history of this country.

For over two years the employers of labor have waged an aggressive campaign to cut down the wages of the workers and to destroy the labor unions. Union after union has had to fight a life and death struggle for existence; wages have been reduced, hours of labor lengthened, the conditions of life of the workers in place of being improved, have become worse.

In the bitter struggle which has resulted from the resistance of the working people against the attempt of the employers to compel them to work for starvation wages and longer hours the workers have found that their enemy was not only the employers.

The government of the United States, the local and state governments, which the working people have been taught to believe are a "government of the people, for the people and by the people" have been proven to be instruments thru which the bosses break up the workers' organization and compel them to accept wage-cuts and a lower standard of living.

In every big strike, beginning with the miners' strike and steel strike of 1919 down to the present time, the bosses have called the government to their aid and thru courts, injunctions, and even soldiers, have tried to make the workers accept worse industrial slavery which the bosses are trying to force upon them.

These attacks upon the labor movement and the right to organize and strike have found their culmination in that act of tyranny, the Daugherty Injunction. If the Daugherty Injunction is allowed to stand as the law of this country the rights of labor are at an end.

The Daugherty Injunction declares the strike of the Railway Shopmen a conspiracy and the court has enjoined the right of the shopmen to freely assemble and discuss their grievances. It has taken from them the right of free speech. It has denied them the right of a free press. It has denied them the right to use their funds in support of their members. It has denied them the right to act together to protect their interests.

No greater act of tyranny can be found in American history than the brutal trampling upon all the rights of labor expressed in the Daugherty Injunction.

We, the workers of ....

in mass meeting assembled declare our determination to resist this trampling upon the right of the workers in order that the bosses may destroy their unions, cut down their wages and increase their hours of labor, with all our power.

We call upon all the working people of this country to unite for the struggle against these acts of aggression and for the freedom of labor.

We declare that all labor organizations, industrial and political, must unite against the tyranny of the bosses. We pledge our support to the organization of a Labor Defense Council to resist this and other attacks upon the labor movement.

We declare that the time has come when no workingman or woman can longer support the old political parties which use the governmental power to commit these acts of tyranny against the workers. We declare that labor must organize for independent, working class political action thru a party of labor fighting the battles of labor.

We declare that labor must not hesitate to use its organized power to resist tyranny and that the answer to the general injunction—the Daugherty injunction—is the General Strike.

Down With Industrial Courts!

Down With Government by Injunction!

Build the Political Party of Labor!

Hail to the General Strike!

Down with the Injunction Tyranny!

10-Day Drive in Fight for Men in Jail

October 5th to October 15th

Preparations for the Ten-Days' Drive for funds for bail and defense for the fighters of the class war arrested in connection with the Michigan raids, Kowalski and the defense of the old New York State cases are in full swing.

Every section of New York is being organized to carry on the work effectively. Committees will visit unions, fraternal organizations and clubs and present to them the problem, point out their relation to those in jail and the duty every class-conscious worker owes to the men and women who dare expose the capitalist system.

The Drive will begin October 5th. Headquarters will be open every night in every section of the city where comrades and friends can secure lists, stamps, pledge cards and boxes for the House-to-House Collection on Saturday and Sunday, October 14th and 15th.

These may be used for collection purposes in the shop, union hall and any other available places during the week. They must, however, be exchanged for new ones for the House-to-House Collection on Saturday and Sunday. On Friday, October 6, Foster and Ruthenberg will speak at the Central Opera House and launch a branch of the National Labor Defense Council in New York.

Friends and comrades are urged to devote as much time as possible to the Drive. Give at least a few hours, if that is all you can spare. Below is a list of the stations that will be open every night during the Drive. (More to be announced later.)

Downtown and Lower West Side will have the following stations: 431 East 6th St.; 208 East 12th St.; 201 West 13th St.

Yorkville: 222 E. 71st St., Oct. 5th to Oct. 13; 350 E. 81st St., Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 14th and 15th.

Harlem: 143 East 103rd St.

Bronx: 1347 Boston Road.

Williamsburg, Brooklyn: Empire Hall, 46 Ten Eyck St.

Boro Park: 1302—40th St., Brooklyn.

Brownsville: 229 Sackman Street, Brooklyn.

There are thousands of pieces of literature that are ready for distribution between now and the opening of the Drive. Volunteers are needed! Get busy and come for material to the National Defense Committee, New York Division, 80 E. 11th St., Room 405, Nerma Berman, Secretary.

Remember, the success or failure of this campaign depends on you! All we ask is ten days of good hard work for defense and relief of the men and women in jail.

Sleuths Pay Visit to New York Greek Branch of the Workers Party

Department of Justice agents, evidently fearing that the Greek workers were not cheering lustily enough in support of King Constantine's war on the Turks, paid a visit to the headquarters of the Greek Branch, Workers Party, 793 Second Ave., New York City, a few days ago.

The sleuths were accompanied by a Greek interpreter. They didn't like some of the pictures that adorned the walls of the Greek workers' headquarters, and they were startled to find a copy of "Proletarian Revolution," by Lenin and Trotzky.

The headquarters boasts an excellent library, that the sleuths looked over carefully, and it is also the offices of the Greek weekly, the Voice of the Worker. The sleuths left without appropriating any literature, but promised to call again.

SAN FRANCISCO.—Lodge 890 of this city and Lodge 802 of Oakland, both of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees, have indursed the "Minneapolis plan" of amalgamation of the craft unions of railway employes into a single industrial union.

Volunteers!

Volunteers needed for the Ten Day Drive.

Clerical work, visiting organizations, distributing literature and for the House to House Collection.

If you can spare any time do so and report to:

The Hypocrisy of Giving

In a recent gathering of the assembly of the League of Nations, Lord Balfour, speaking for the British government, said it was willing to give another $500,000 towards the relief of the famine stricken in Soviet Russia, if other governments would help also.

Let us see what Great Britain has done. During August to October, 1921, we find Lloyd George repeatedly referring to the Russian famine as "a question of common humanity . . . we will do all in our power . . . a matter of pity and humanity . . ."

The first help came in December, 1921, under pressure of the left and the Labor Party, $450,000, not in cash, but in old war materials, mostly dental instruments, dentists' chairs, medicine, etc., etc., ad nauseum, it was this gift of second hand junk that Lord Balfour probably referred to as the first "$500,000."

Similarly in France, in October, 1920, the Chamber of Deputies passed a resolution voting six million francs for Russian Relief. Until May, 1922, practically nothing had be done. Until March no one had even entered into negotiations with any relief organization. Some canned goods have been promised the Russians but most of this still remains in France.

The same indictment applies to Italy where the Fascisti have actually suppressed the voluntary collections on the part of the Communist and Socialist relief organizations.

Less hypocritical, however, have been the countries that promised nothing and gave nothing, or very little: Belgium, Finland, Spain, the South American countries, Australia, except for Queensland, Portugal.

We wish to pillory before history those governments which not only have done nothing to relieve the famine, but have actually suppressed all voluntary collections and measures of relief (especially, of course, those of workers' organizations) and have confiscated the collections,—Poland, Bulgaria, Hungary and Japan take first place; Jugo-Slavia seems to have relented in its antagonistic attitude only a short time ago.

But in "democratic" Germany too, have police and government organs competed in paralyzing the relief action, preventing and confiscating collections. We need only mention Lubeck, Pommern, and the decisions of magistrates against relief permissions, as in Frankfort and in the Rhineland.

Thus has the great Russian famine, the most devastating in the history of the world, unmasked the hypocrisy of the capitalist nations.

They spend billions for the destruction of life, Great Britain masses her army and navy in the Dardanelles for the new war; France maintains the largest military establishment in the world, for the destruction of life. That is capitalism—death and destruction. On this ruin rises the structure of Communism, bringing with it the liberation of all mankind.

Western Imperialism Loses in Asia Minor

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE

Stripped of all such hysteria as that which results in reports that the Turks burnt Smyrna (after they had captured it) the story of the Greek debacle in the Near East, followed by the frantic and futile efforts of the English imperialists to rally their late allies for a new world war, means just one thing and that is the end of Western imperialism in Asia Minor and in all probability in Asia itself.

The Turkish nationalists will get Constantinople, not because France has backed the Turks as against the Greek proteges of Great Britain and finds herself committed to their further support but because the whole Mohammedan world is aflame—French and British possessions alike.

Back of all stands the power of Soviet Russia—the greatest power in the world today—looked upon by all the eastern peoples as their savior and protector from the oppression of the capitalist nations of Western Europe. The map of Eastern Europe and of Asia has been redrawn by the victorious march of the Turkish Nationalists and never again will a western power dictate to the brown and yellow men of that continent. Soviet Russia has her outlet to the warm waters of the Mediterranean by her treaty with the Turks and their victory has plugged the hole in her frontier thru which a hostile army might drive. The little Balkan nations, hostile to Soviet Russia by reason of Anglo-French persuasion know better now than to attempt to wage a war which would be nothing less than national suicide in view of the events of the last few weeks.

Great Britain is driven to bluster when she thinks of seething India, but she can only bluster. The full extent of her strength was shown when her colonies remained cold in the face of the peril the empire faced as voiced by Downing Street. France and Italy refused their aid and once more the eternal rivalries between capitalist nations (pointed out time and time again by the Third International), have worked for the destruction of what effectiveness is left in the dying body of European imperialism.

For those who for one reason or another pride themselves on the arrogance with which imperialism as represented by Great Britain has dealt with the subject nations and second class powers it must come as a severe shock to witness the humbling of the imperial pride of the Churchills and Georges. The working masses of the world can be deceived no longer by the futile phrases of diplomats and Britain's diplomacy (once the greatest in the world), is found to be what all capitalist diplomacy is when not backed by bayonets—a miserable display of senile weakness.

It is from the military men and not from the diplomats that we get the truth about the Turkish victory and its far-reaching consequences. Let us listen to General Townshend—the hero of Kut-el-Amara, who was captured by the Turks during the world war and who knows them as few Europeans do.

"We had better make peace with Mustapha Kemal while we can," says this soldier of British imperialism, according to dispatches. Continuing he said:

"My God, what madness to treat the near east situation as the powers are doing. We have no business in Constantinople, and the sooner we get out the better.

"If something is not done we are threatened with a holy war. The entire Mohammedan world would rise against us and menace the existence of the British empire.

"Mustapha Kemal can take Constantinople. If he does I would not be surprised to see the bolsheviki march to Constantinople to help the Turks. Then we would have another world war.

"The Kemalists have a big, well disciplined army—I would rather not say how many.

"We can have peace with the Turks. I talked to Kemal and he outlined the conditions. I forwarded the memorandum to Mr. Lloyd George. The Turks want independence of territories where the Turkish population predominates and will guarantee freedom of the Dardanelles.

"We had better settle while we can. I know what is in the minds of the Turks and I warn of the consequences. A holy war would set the whole east aflame, from Turkey to India—and remember Russia. Didn't I see the soviet officers in Angora aiding the Kemalists? That is worth reflection."

The inevitable has happened. The hostility of the Western European powers toward Russia, whose friendship with the so-called backward nations of Asia has been fully demonstrated, has solidified the Asiatic peoples and has set up a wall of resistance to the encroachments of European imperialism that cannot be broken by the bankrupt Western nations whose people are sick and tired of war and the more disastrous peace the finance capitalists and militarists forced upon a war-torn continent.

Unless the European junkers are insane enough to risk certain defeat in one mad military struggle with the rising powers of the East the Turkish victory means much to the workers of Europe and Soviet Russia. It means a new era of peace and production with Russia showing the way to a world of workers willing to follow a leadership that holds out hope of rescue from the welter of starvation, misery and disease into which a dying capitalism has plunged those who followed its will-o'-the-whisp.

BOSTON.—Erastus C. Whitney, the twice-convicted felon who under the alias of Carlos E. Goodridge was used by the State against Nicola Sacco in the famous labor trial at Dedham, Mass., was arrested in Augusta, Maine, following the exposure of his identity by the Sacco-Vanzetti defense. It was revealed by independent investigators of the Boston Herald.

branch of the National Labor Defense Council.

Other places at which meetings will be are as follows: Saturday, Sept. 30, Cleveland; Sunday, Oct. 1, Youngstown, O.; Sunday, Oct. 1, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Monday, Oct. 2, Buffalo, N. Y.; Tuesday, Oct. 3, Rochester, N. Y.; Thursday, Oct. 5, Philadelphia, Pa.; Friday, Oct. 6, New York City; Sunday, Oct. 8, Boston, Mass.

Foster will speak at all of these meetings. Ruthenberg will speak at all the meetings with the exception of those planned for Philadelphia and Boston, where he has already spoken on the defense question.

Information received at the National Office, Workers Party, is to the effect that the mayor of Youngstown, Ohio, has put a ban on the Foster-Ruthenberg meeting. The local workers are fighting his edict.

Nine prisoners are still being held in spite of all efforts to get them bailed. These are: Caleb Harrison, Norman Tallentire, Thomas O'Flaherty, A. Mihilec, Charles Krumbein, Charles Erickson, Eugene Bechtold, Philip Aronberg, T. S. Sullivan, Elmer McMillan and Seth Nordling.

Those now out on bail are William Z. Foster, Earl Browder, Chicago; C. E. Ruthenberg, Cleveland, O.; William F. Dunne, New York; Cyril Lambkin and William Reynolds, Detroit; Alex Bail, Philadelphia; Max Lerner, Seattle, Wash.

Francis Ashworth, Camden, arrested at the entrance of the alleged gathering place and so badly beaten that he was placed in hospital for two days, has been set free and the charges dropped after he was compelled to sign a statement that he would not bring suit for damages against those responsible if he should be permanently injured.

Browder's bail was reduced to $5,000 from the $10,000 set for the others after the judge learned that Browder's mother had died in Kansas City and that there was just time for Browder to get there in time for the funeral. Bail money was supplied by the Chicago Teachers' union, which put up $2,400 cash and pledged $8,000 liberty bonds.

Browder furnished the climax of the recent mass meeting held by the National Labor Defense Committee in Chicago. He was released from the Berrien County Jail just in time to get to Chicago and reach the meeting hall as Ruthenberg was making the closing address.

Browder's spectacular appearance resulted in his being called upon for a speech. Browder said that he was late in reaching Chicago because Daugherty's injunction could not run the train he was on.

"The trains are regularly late now, thanks to Wilkerson and Daugherty," he said. "The raids are the result of the unexplained solidarity of the labor movement in its struggles of the past few months.

"We must not lay down on the job now. Our duty is to get into this fight with more vigor than we have ever before been able to command."

Lithuanian Workers Aid Comrades Arrested in Michigan and Chicago

By MARGARET UNDJUS

It is just one week since the branches of the Lithuanian Section, Workers Party, have been urged to come to the rescue of our comrades arrested in connection with the Michigan raid. Here is the beginning of the results.

The Zeigler, Ill., comrades who have been out on strike for many months having no money of their own, but convinced that only the workers will support our comrades persecuted by the ruling class, loaned money from their friends and sent in a contribution of $20. There are only about twelve members in the Zeigler, Ill., branch. The W. Frankfort, Ill., branch contributed $23. The Binghamton, N. Y., branch just started its work and already collected over $20.

All members in the Lithuanian branches of District VIII are to give one day's wages. The district organizer has already collected over $200 from the branches.

If all of the comrades will display a spirit like that of the Lithuanian comrades, the ruling class in America will not succeed in breaking the back of the organizations taking the lead in the class struggle of the American proletariat.

Pick up Scabs on the Chicago Slave Market to Help Break Strike

By ALFRED FRANKLIN
(For The Federated Press)

CHICAGO.—A solid block of employment agencies for strike breakers has been created on Canal St., between Madison and Monroe Sts. They are, in the main, saloons and restaurants turned temporarily into offices. Dirty and sick looking men line the sidewalks and a policeman keeps them moving.

Offered Job as Scab

Here I came as a laborer looking for a job. At the Freeland agency, 6 So. Canal St., I was offered a job in railway shops anywhere in the northwest at 38 cents an hour. I was to be a shop laborer. Had I told him I was a machinist or a cook I could have shipped just as easily, as I saw others doing. Clapp & Riley, 12 So. Canal, had jobs for trackmen near Peoria, and offered me one at $3.50 a day.

At the Western Labor Agency, 24 So. Canal, I saw an example of the work of these agencies. They roped in a drunk who was so far gone he was probably not conscious of his actions, signed him up and shipped him off. The Western offered me trackwork at $3.50 a day in Iowa or Michigan. The agent at the Craig agency, at 32 So. Canal St., informed me, "I ain't taking nobody but experienced railroad men." Needless to say, his place was empty. The Erie agency, 40 So. Canal, wanted no unskilled labor.

All Make Big Promises

The agents are hardboiled men with brass vocal cords that can be heard hawking jobs a long way off. The principal qualification to getting a job is to tell your name to the agent so he can write it down, and then you are hired as a mechanic or a repairman, a cook or a boilermaker.

The signs all over the place tell the promises of the railroads. "Car repairers and car carpenters for Chicago & Alton, 63 cents an hour, 30 cents bonus," is typical. They offer eight and nine-hour days. The Northwestern railroad makes itself virtuous by advertising "Wages as prescribed by U. S. Labor Board," while other roads advertise that they give the worker a square deal, and their wage promises run up to $6 a day.

Advertise for Foreigners

Says the Wabash, "Mechanics, boilermakers, electricians, car repairers, car inspectors and helpers. Diningcar service, nice new clean bed, best working conditions, railroad fare free, ship tonight. Lifetime job if you want it. Come in and talk it over." The Elgin, Joliet & Eastern exhibits a number of pictures of the barracks their men live in. They have all the home comforts of an up-to-date jail. Many advertise for foreigners. There are signs in Spanish to allure Mexicans. The Illinois Steel Co. shows an enticing menu of its restaurant as an inducement to immigrants.

The street is a dirty, sordid place, filled with dirty, hungry, inefficient looking human things, and the cries of the agents hawking jobs. It symbolizes the "American plan" of the corporations and Attorney General Daugherty.

Baldwin Locomotive Co. Sends Engines to Russia in Spite of Washington

(By The Federated Press)

WASHINGTON. — Because it cannot tolerate the idea of an equal exchange of courtesies with Russia, the state department's scheme for sending a technical commission of inquiry into the soviet republic has been abandoned before it was fairly born.

Moscow was willing to receive the American delegation and to let them look at anything in the Russian industrial and economic situation that might excite their interest, but it asked for the equal privilege of sending a commission of engineers and other technical men to the United States to look into our business conditions. The department then dropped the discussion.

Nevertheless, trade with Russia goes forward indirectly, in spite of the state department's private war against the Russian government and people. It is disclosed, for example, that the Baldwin locomotive works has delivered to Moscow a large shipment of modern locomotives, paid for in gold, after the state department, thru its Russian division—then in charge of Arthur Bullard—had brusquely assured the lawyers in the transaction that no such shipment would be permitted.

Reason given by Bullard were that Russia might use these locomotives for military purposes, and that the United States was interested in protecting Poland against possible Russian attacks.

The lawyers were discouraged, but the Baldwin firm shipped the locomotives thru an agent—said to have been Swedish—and made a big profit on the transaction.

Foster Calls Railroad Shopmen's Strike Piteous Debacle of Craft Unionism

terest lay in making common cause with the shopmen, that it could not possibly win by going alone.

Yet what did Grable do? With the wages of his men cut to starvation levels he went cringing to the Railroad Labor Board seeking to trade on the struggle of the shopmen, offering to sell the integrity of his union for the sake of a few cents per hour increase.

And on the strength of a promise of consideration he abandoned the embattled shopmen and went over to the side of the companies. Who can doubt the ultimate ruinous effects of such tactics even upon Grable's own union?

Pay the Price of Treason

If the companies can smash the powerful shopmen's organizations it will not be long until by a mere gesture they wipe out the Maintenance of Way men. As the price of this treason the trackmen's organization will probably be destroyed. Unions cannot survive by crawling to the employers and betraying each other.

Their very breath of life is to make an intelligent fight together. And this Grable ingloriously failed to permit his union to do when he deserted the shopmen in the midst of the battle.

If the Maintenance of Way men, under Grable's leadership, committed craft betrayal, so did the Railway Clerks, headed by Fitzgerald.

This union, similarly situated as the trackmen, in that it is made up of inexperienced and undisciplined members, had every possible reason to win in the fight. It, too, had had its wages slashed by the Railroad Labor Board.

But, like the Maintenance of Way, it was pulled out of the fight in the crisis.

Its leadership quite evidently is proceeding upon the fatal theory that the way for the railroad unions to defeat the militant and ruthless railroad corporations is thru a policy of lickspittle subserviency, rather than one of determined and intelligent struggle.

Should the shopmen be crushed we may depend upon it that the clerks' organization will be speedily swept aside also.

The railroads have nothing but contempt for such conduct as that of the clerks' leaders in this strike. They make use of labor treason and then crush the organizations guilty of it.

Fitzgerald is also to be condemned for his open opposition to amalgamation. At the recent convention of his union in Dallas the body went on record for a complete amalgamation of all the railroad unions and instructed Fitzgerald and the other executive officers to seek to bring it about.

He betrayed this trust at the A. F. of L. convention in Cincinnati, where his delegation not only made no fight for amalgamation, but did not even vote for their own resolution on the subject, which they had been instructed by the Dallas convention to introduce into the A. F. of L. convention.

And now Fitzgerald is writing around the country denouncing as enemies of his organization those who dare to work in accordance with the mandates of the Dallas convention by advocating amalgamation.

Lee At His Old Tricks

For many years past whenever there has been any signs of an awakening on the part of railroad workers, Bill Lee, President of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, has always been on hand to club them back into insensibility again.

Nor has the shopmen's strike been an exception. Lee has done his utmost to facilitate the fight of the companies.

He has acted faithfully his usual role of auxiliary to the railroad owners by fighting back every semblance of solidarity on the part of his organizations' membership.

No less than the other non-striking trades, the Brotherhood men in the train service have felt the warmest sympathy for the striking shop mechanics.

Almost unanimously they realized that the latter were making their fight, that if the shopmen's unions were destroyed their own will be doomed.

A tremendous strike sentiment developed among them. At least one prominent official, Stone of the Engineers, showed some understanding of the situation.

Stone Yields to Men

Altho not bringing his powerful organization directly into the fight as should have been done, he yielded to the spirit of the men to some extent by instructing them not to directly scab on the mechanics by making repairs, and by conceding to them the right to strike where conditions of work were dangerous either because of defective equipment of the presence of armed guards.

These were small enough concessions, but the rank and file of the train service men seized upon them with avidity. Strike movements developed here and there all over the country in strategic railroad centers.

The employing class became intensely alarmed. It looked as tho the railroad workers, triumphing over the primitive policies of craft unionism, were actually going to strike in a body and really tie up the transportation system of the country.

But just then, when victory seemed assured, Lee, loyal servitor of the companies, took a hand and arbitrarily ordered his men back to work.
